Board of Health Meeting Postponed

Many Matters of Importance to be Considered Later On

The Board of Health meeting that was to have been held yesterday morning was postponed until Friday afternoon at two o'clock. Several of the members were absent, and it was not considered advisable to meet without them.

Among other things of importance that were to be discussed, was a report that Dr. Bingham had prepared, showing the quality of the milk, sold by the various vendors in the city and the percentages of many of the constituents. It is learned that the general condition is good, water not being found except in its proper proportions, showing that the farm pump is not often pressed into service.

Although the report has not yet been presented this fact should be an assurance to the people that the milk they are using is of standard quality.

Mrs. W. P. Clark's Funeral

This afternoon the last mortal remains of the late Harriet Clark, wife of Mr. W. P. Clark, who died Sunday afternoon at Nicholls hospital, will be taken from the family residence, 74 Patterson street, to the Little Lake cemetery for interment. Mrs. Clark was 50 years of age, and was born at Quaker Hill, near Uxbridge. She was married 30 years ago, and had lived for most of her life in Peterborough. The deceased was in the hospital but four days before death claimed her.

There is but one child, Mrs. Westcott, of Norwood, and the husband, in this city. There are also four sisters and two brothers in the Northwest, and Mrs. Brown at her own home.

STONY LAKE TRIP

The Steamer Otonabee will make a trip to Stony Lake on Wednesday, July 31st, leaving Wolfe street Wharf at 7:30 and Lift Lock at 8 a.m; returning at 8 p.m. Return tickets 75c; Children 40c.

Something New in Souvenir Cards

See our new line of souvenir cards entitled "Hands across the Sea," "Should auld acquaintance be forgot," and "Far away but not forgotten." These are very unique as one half of the card opens and inside shows a beautiful view of George street. Price only five cents each or six for 25 cents.

Immense Eel Caught Yesterday

Mr. W. Hamilton, a local painter, had quite a tussle with a huge eel at "Yankee Bonnet," a few miles below the locks yesterday. Mr. Hamilton was still fishing and felt a peculiarly heavy tug at his rod. He started to haul in the capture but had some difficulty. When he got his fish to the boat it proved to be one of the largest eels ever caught in these waters and measured a trifle over five feet in length. The actual work began when he attempted to dislodge the hook. The eel squirmed and twisted and gave him a lot of trouble.

Did Watch Dropped In Court Break?

Some One Knocked Watch in the Chief's Possession to The Floor.

Yesterday afternoon Chief Rogel looked mad all through. His manly features for the first time possibly in the whole of his Peterborough history, became suffused with the rich red blood that the anger of a healthy hearty man cannot help but pump to his superficial arteries when something definite happens to rile him. It seems that, during the second session of the alleged pickpockets' trial, the chief in the necessary court procedure had to dig down into a grip he carried and looked after as carefully as though a son of Confucious had in a bag of his the ashes of two hundred generations of ancestors), to get out the money taken from the alleged dips, and in doing this had to produce other plunder taken from them. Among this was a gold watch and chain. Some one sitting at the table in front of the judge by accident knocked the watch and chain off the table to the floor. Judging by the sound the watch must have received quite a knock and, further, in watching the goods that had fallen being picked up, it looked like the time-piece came up in segregated fragments. This however, is not guaranteed.

A SCIENTIFIC BREAKFAST

Easily Prepared

Rightly selected food will alone cure many diseases.

Try a scientific and healthy breakfast:—Fruit of some kind, preferably cooked, a dish of Grape-Nuts with cream, two soft-boiled eggs, (Put two eggs in a tin pint cup of boiling water, cover and set off for nine minutes. Whites will then be the consistency of cream and most easily digested) slice of hard crisp toast, cup of Postum Food Coffee.

On that breakfast you can work like a horse and be perfectly nourished until noon. Your nervous troubles, heart palpitation, stomach and bowel troubles, kidney complaints and various other disorders will gradually disappear and firm solid health will set in.

Why? You have probably been living on poorly selected food, that is, food that does not contain the required elements the body needs. That sort of food, and coffee, is the direct or indirect cause of more than half the ills the human body acquires.

Grape-Nuts is a perfectly cooked food and both that and the Postum Food Coffee contains fine microscopic particles of phosphate of potash obtained in a natural way from the grains of the field and by scientific food experts incorporated into food and drink. That element joins with the albumen in food to make gray matter, which is the filling of the brain cells and the nerve centers throughout the human body.

A man or woman thus fed is scientifically fed and rapidly grows in vigor and vitality, and becomes capable of conducting successfully the affairs of life. To produce a perfect body and a money-making brain the body must have the right kind of food and the expert food-specialist knows how to make it. That is Grape-Nuts and Postum Food Coffee, produced at the pure food factories of the Postum Co., at Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Bad Symptoms.

The woman who has periodical headaches, backache, sees imaginary dark spots or specks floating or dancing before her eyes, has gnawing distress or heavy full feeling in stomach, faint spells, dragging-down feeling in lower abdominal or pelvic region, easily startled or excited, irregular or painful periods, with or without pelvic catarrh, is suffering from weaknesses and derangements that should have early attention. Not all of above symptoms are likely to be present in any case at one time.

Neglected or badly treated and such cases often run into maladies which demand the surgeon's knife if they do not result fatally.

No medicine extant has such a long and numerous record of cures in such cases as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. No medicine has such a strong professional indorsement of each of its several ingredients—worth more than any number of ordinary non-professional testimonials. The very best ingredients known to medical science for the cure of woman's peculiar ailments enter into its composition. No alcohol, harmful, or habit-forming drug is to be found in the list of its ingredients printed on each bottle-wrapper and attested under oath.

In any condition of the female system, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription can do only good—never harm. Its whole effect is to strengthen, invigorate and regulate the whole female system and especially the pelvic organs. When these are deranged in function or affected by disease, the stomach and other organs of digestion become sympathetically deranged, the nerves are weakened, and a long list of bad, unpleasant symptoms follow. Too much must not be expected of this "Favorite Prescription." It will not perform miracles; will not cure tumors—no medicine will. It will often prevent them, if taken in time, and thus the operating table and the surgeon's knife may be avoided.

Women suffering from diseases of long standing, are invited to consult Doctor Pierce by letter, free. All correspondence is held as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

More Ascent Pavement Express Carts

Several leading citizens, including two married ladies yesterday strongly commended a Times representative for the action of this paper in calling attention to the reckless way in which stupid boys rush along the George street pavements dragging or coasting on "express carts." One prominent society lady remarked, "Mr. ———, if wish the other papers of the town would take up this matter. A few days ago a boy riding along George street on the sidewalk, caught my brand new dress with either the corner of his cart or one of the wheels and tore a hole about 12 inches each way."

the truth and justice of the matter." Witness went on to explain that Lewis when asked for his ticket, after he had got the tickets from the others, met him in another car and had a check in his hat. Conductor said, "Where's your ticket." Lewis pointed to the check in his hat, but on being caught paid his fair.

Provincial Detective Greer, in the box, said he travelled with Forepaugh's circus in the public interests, saw the four prisoners in Stratford and Woodstock together. He produced an extract from a Woodstock hotel register. He knew their signatures. He saw and had an interview with Phelps in the corridor of the jail here yesterday.

Here Mr. Kerr objected to the talk between Greer and prisoner in the corridor being used in evidence. This was overruled.

Detective Greer said after warning Phelps that what prisoner said might be used, the witness produced a list of alleged convictions against Phelps; Phelps denied them. Goldfield was then seen by witness at the same place later, re the lost of convictions, said, "They are all right," but that is all. Lewis also acknowledged the list. Witness was present when the $50 bill was found here on Phelps.

Detective Anderson of the Toronto police force said he took measurements here, by the Bertillon system on July 3rd in the police station of the prisoners. They agree with measurements taken of them in other cities in the United States.

The witness produced photographs of the prisoners he took here. He also produced photos of Lewis, Goldfield and Bradford from the New York city police department.

P. C. Newhall again went into the box and, to Mr. O'Connell, showed the note book he had read from in the morning. He marked with different kinds of marks, straight line and spirals the pages referring to two stages of his evidence. As Mr. O'Connell started to carelessly turn over the whole note book in general Newhall very quickly objected to his looking at other matters.

The case was adjourned until this morning.

Get Wise!

A New York business man was telling some friends not long ago of the disadvantages of having two telephones in his business office.

"A new office boy entered upon the discharge of his duties last week," said the merchant, "among which duties is that of answering the telephone calls. The very first call resulted in his coming to me with the statement:

"'Which one?' I asked, thinking of the two phones.

"'Well, sir,' said the boy, after an embarrassing pause, 'I—I think it's your wife, sir!'"—Harper's Weekly.

Penalty of Vanity.

Two tadpoles lived in a meadow pool. One tadpole was exceedingly vain and kicked around until he developed a pair of pale green legs and arose to the dignity of a frog. The other tadpole was sluggish.

"Hurry up!" said the new frog. "Why, you are the slowest thing in all the meadows. Without legs you will never be noticed."

"And that is just why I am not raising them," replied the slow tadpole. "It doesn't always pay to be noticed."

And now the slow tadpole still swims among the rushes while his vain brother has long since been served up on crisp toast.—Detroit Tribune.

Spheres of Influence Along Indian and Persian Frontiers to be Delimited--Russia's Designs on India to be Forgotten--Complete Adjustment of All Disputes.

London, July 31.—It is announced that the negotiations between Great Britain and Russia have resulted in an agreement amicably adjusting all outstanding differences on the Indian frontier and in Persia.

Both powers have consented to the deliberation of their spheres of interest in these regions.

Sir Arthur Nicholson, the British ambassador at St. Petersburg, who is at present visiting in London, is arranging the final details of this matter.

Russia's designs on India have for generations been a bugaboo in England. If a reasonable final re adjustment of the questions at issue between the two nations on this point has been reached, it will add greatly to Sir Edward Grey's reputation as foreign minister, and do much to give stability to the peace of the world. Liberal ministries have been regarded as weak in the department of foreign affairs, but the Campbell-Bannerman Government is an exception

Sergt.-Maj. Brittain Broke Record

Yesterday morning, Sergt.-Major Brittain established a record in walking the six miles from Chemong Hotel to Central Park. The sergt.-major left the hotel at Chemong Park, at ten o'clock yesterday morning. He arrived at the local post office and called for his mail at three minutes past eleven, lowering the Best record by 10 minutes. A reporter asked the sergt.-major how he was feeling.

"Oh, I'm not the least bit tired," he said, "and I intend to walk back for dinner. I started a little too soon after breakfast and only for that I would have reached here inside the hour. I have done it before, and I intend to do it again."

He was dressed in white duck trousers and light shirt, and wore neither coat nor hat. He walked down Water street, at the finish and up along Hunter street to George, where he was stopped several times to receive congratulations.

He stated that he could walk from Chemong to Peterborough in an hour. The sergt.-major was accompanied down by Messrs. W. H. Hill of the Sun Life, and Mr. George Brown, proprietor of the Chemong Hotel, who drove behind him, and the time as stated above was given by them.

Britain's Hand is Seen

Ottawa, July 30.—At the height of the recent excitement a telegram from Victoria, B.C. stated it was reported that Great Britain was going to re-establish Esquimalt as a Pacific naval station and maintain a big fleet there. The rumor arose probably from unofficial enquiries by the British admiralty authorities looking to eventualities in case of war at any time seriously threatening between the United States and Japan, when Great Britain would most unquestionably resume possession of Esquimalt and assemble one of her most powerful squadrons there for the protection of Canadian ports, and to strengthen Britain's hands in any representations she might feel called upon to make to Japan as the latter's ally and in the interests of friendship with the United States.

At a special meeting of the Board of Managers of Knox church, held Monday night the plans and specifications for the new gallery to be erected in the west end of that building were submitted for the approval of the board, and after a full discussion it was decided to leave the matter of calling for tenders for the work with Mr. J. F. Morrison. Tenders will be opened and considered shortly after the Civic Holiday.

G.T.R. ORDERED TO PUT ON 3RD CLASS CARS

Railway Commission Decides Railway Must Provide Two Cent Rate Accommodation on One Montreal-Toronto Train Daily--A Far Reaching Decision.

Ottawa, July 31.—A judgment of much interest to the travelling public and to the railway interests is announced by the Railway Commission under which the Grand Trunk Railway is held by the terms of its act of incorporation to be compelled to provide third-class passenger accommodation every day over its lines between Montreal and Toronto at the rate of a penny a mile. There is no such rate as a third-class rate in force at present either on the Grand Trunk or the other Canadian railways.

The order of the Board is rendered upon the application of W. N. Robertson of Toronto, who applied to the Commission for an order directing the Grand Trunk to issue third-class tickets at the rate of one penny per mile travelled, and to run third-class passenger carriages attached to one train each way throughout the length of its line.

THE BOARD'S ORDER.

The order of the Board is in the following terms;

"(1) That the Grand Trunk Railway Company of Canada run every day throughout the length of its line of railway between Toronto and Montreal at least one passenger train having in it third-class carriages for passenger traffic and that the fare or charge for each third-class passenger by any train on the said portion of its railway do not exceed two cents for each mile travelled, and that the said company forthwith after the coming into effect of this order file with the Board passenger tariffs for the aforesaid portion of its railway embodying the said rate of two cents per mile for third-class passengers.

(2) That the Grand Trunk Railway Company of Canada be and its hereby granted leave to appeal from this order to the Supreme Court of Canada upon the question whether that portion of section 3 of the aforesaid Act of Parliament of the Province of Canada which required that the fare or charge for each third-class passenger by any train on the railway of the said company should not exceed one penny currency for each mile travelled and that at least one train having in it third-class carriages should run every day throughout the length of the line of the railway is now in force.

That in the event of an appeal from this order being entered for hearing at the next ensuing sitting of the Supreme Court of Canada this order does not take effect until after the final disposition of the said appeal, but in the event of no such appeal being entered on or before the commencement of the said sitting this order shall then immediately take effect.

The judgment of the board in the matter is accompanied by a lengthy statement of the reasons which in their judgment show that the obligation assumed by the Grand Trunk to provide third-class passenger accommodation is still incumbent upon them.

DECIDE TO APPEAL.

Montreal, Que., July 31.—The G.T.R. will take advantage on the appeal clause in the decision. Further than that however, none of the officials will make any statement today.

Police Court

Jas. Fritz was charged with having threatened to cut Arthur Cutgrave with a knife a few days ago. Cutgrave swore out an information, and in the witness box said that Fritz, who is a little out of his mind, used the words, "I'll put a knife into you." Cutgrave said prisoner was a nuisance at the house and Cutgrave said he was afraid of Fritz. He asked that the latter be bound over to keep the peace. He said Fritz did not pay his board. The Magistrate said that as such a serious charge had been sworn to that prisoner would have to go to jail until someone went on a bond that he would keep the peace for one year.

Alfred Taylor, a small boy, was charged with having assaulted another boy named Raymond Welsh. The latter said he was playing ball. Taylor was catching behind the batter, and he was behind the fence. He was hit by a stone. He thought it was a stone but was not sure what it was. Could not swear who threw it. When he saw the stone coming he dodged behind a tree but was hit. He would not have been hit had he stood still. (Laughter). The Magistrate said, "Next time a stone is thrown, don't run into its course." Another small boy gave evidence that was equally absurd. Mr. McWilliams appeared for the prisoner, who was discharged.

Bella Campbell and Jane Taylor were charged with having stolen a night shirt, the property of Wm. Duncan. Miss Campbell pleaded guilty, and the other said "Not guilty." The Campbell girl said the night gown was hanging in her bed-room and she thought it belonged to a girl that had worked there before. Mr. Duncan said that the Campbell girl had been a domestic at this place and left a week ago. She went to work at Mr. Hayward, and Mr. Hayward, when witness was at this house asked him if he had lost anything. A bundle was produced in court containing a night dress which witness identified. The Taylor girl was allowed to go whilst the Campbell girl was detained. The case was enlarged until this morning.

Violation of Act

News Agents Have no Right to Sell on Sunday Trains

Toronto, July 31.—The case against the news agent on a G. T. R. train for selling his wares at Guelph on a Lord's Day in April, has ended after long delay in the Magistrate convicting the defendant. No appeal has been or is likely to be taken. Mr. Jas. Haverson, K.C., had charge of the defence and Crown Attorney Paterson of the prosecution. The conviction was for selling newspapers. But the news agents have no right under the Lord's Day Act to sell anything whatever, to travellers or to others, on or off the trains or to be on the trains at all for business purposes.

EVELYN THAW TO STAR ON THE STAGE

It Is Said She Will Take Part in a Broadway Production.

Harry K. Thaw Says the Statement is Absolutely False

New York, July 31.—According to a report circulated yesterday, Evelyn Nesbit Thaw intends to return to the stage this Fall, despite the objections of her husband.

At the office of Daniel O'Reilly, one of the Thaw counsel, a member of the firm said the report was not true.

According to the rumors in circulation, Mrs. Thaw has been taking lessons of Carl Hennerman for some time past, and has admitted to her friends that she was preparing to take part in a Broadway production in the near future.

CANNOT ENDURE RETIREMENT.

It has been freely prophesied along Broadway ever since the Thaw trial that Mrs. Thaw would not be able to endure the retirement from the footlights that her mother-in-law and her husband wished for her.

It is now said that if Mrs. Thaw returns to the stage it will not be as a chorus girl, but that she will have a prominent part. She is said to have a sweet voice and ability for acting. She first attracted attention on the stage by her dancing and she hopes to improve in this line.

Daniel O'Reilly and Russell Peabody, Thaw's lawyers, and Mrs. William Thaw, mother of the young millionaire who shot Stanford White, it is reported, have been bitterly opposed to Evelyn's going on the stage, but Mrs. Thaw, it is said, does not believe it will have a detrimental effect on her husband's next trial if she returns to the stage.

The second hearing of the famous murder case will probably come on at the September term of the Criminal Court.

THAW DENIES IT.

The following signed statement was given by Harry K Thaw at the Tombs yesterday to the Associated Press: "This story, like many others, is absolutely false, and has been started, I believe, for one of two reasons, either to give a false impression of my wife's character and steadfastness, with the cowardly intent of injuring us all, or simply to fill space. (Signed) H. K. T."

CORNER STONE TO BE LAID TO-DAY

This afternoon the corner stone of the new Collegiate Institute will be laid, the ceremony being at four o'clock. The public is invited to attend the ceremony, which will be most interesting. For the first time Peterborough will have a Collegiate Institute building, built for that purpose. Mr. James Stevenson, for over half a century, school trustee of the city, will lay the stone and the chairman for the event will be Dr. Burnham, one of the oldest members of the present Board of Education, and the acting chairman, in the absence of Mr. Robt. Fair. In addition to the addresses by these two gentlemen there will be other prominent men present, who will give addresses. Among them will be the members of parliament and of the legislative assembly, the mayor, ex-members of parliament, the chairman of the special Collegiate Institute Committee and other members of the Board of Education, as well as prominent private citizens who are interested in the cause of education.

The program for the ceremony in connection with the laying of the corner stone has been arranged, and is as follows;—

Dr. Burnham, chairman.
Introduction by the chairman.
Laying of the corner stone by Jas. Stevenson, Esq.
Dr. Morrison, chairman of the Collegiate Institute Building Committee.
Mayor McWilliams.
Warden McNulty.

MAGISTRATES SHOULD HAVE GREATER POWER

A Correspondent Advocates Corporal Punishment on Juniors

Instead of Suspended Sentence as at Present.

(To the Editor of The Times.)

Dear Sir,—As a subscriber of several years standing to The Times, I would ask your indulgence to insert my views on a matter affecting the future of many of our growing boys and girls.

You will doubtless remember, or your reporters will, that in many cases in the police court, Police Magistrate Dumble has, when children were clearly proven guilty of serious crimes, allowed them to "go on suspended sentence." I do not, in this short note, desire to criticise the motives or reasons of Mr. Dumble's decisions. To do this might bring me were I misunderstood, under arrest for contempt of court.

However, apart from all such argument, I believe the magistrate has not, so much made mistakes, as he is hampered by, not conventionality, but by absolute law. To quote one case, some months ago several boys were charged with breaking into several private houses. The charges in every instance were proven. Now, had these boys broken into one house, in one night, as the result of a boyish freak or "dare," one might forgive them, if they were duly punished at home. However, in this case, the boys, as a body, deliberately broke, night after night, into, possibly, half a dozen residences, stealing more or less from each. Now what what was the result? Whilst the magistrate allowed them to go on "suspended sentence," we believe, such sentence or punishment (with a marked interrogation point behind the word "punishment,") was his desire partly to save the boys from intermingling with acknowledged young criminals in the House of Correction or whatever juvenile prisons are termed, that the local poobah of justice also took into consideration the cost to the city of maintaining such prisoners.

I cannot but think that Mr. Dumble's anxiety to save expenses to the city comes from a deep-rooted loyalty to his native town and actuated by the most philanthropic motives. still there are other telescopes through which to look at juvenile delinquencies and their just punishment. As a frequent follower of local police news, I have too often seen the magistrate, partly out of his large heartedness and partly out of a desire, presumably to save the city's expenses, allow absolutely proven prisoners of tender age to go practically free (under "suspended sentence") where a severe punishment was manifestly deserved.

It seems to me, Mr. Editor, that if the local force of the police arresting boys, often with much trouble, going to expense of summonsing witnesses, and leaving lawyers' fees out of argument, finding such boys guilty of most culpable offences, and letting them go on "suspended sentences," that such administrations of justice tends to make a laughable farce of the code of Canada.

In this connection I do not desire or intend, nor could I, throw any aspersion upon the motives of our local police magistrate. He means well and does what the law allows him. It is however, now up to a period when incorrigible boys should be patently shown that when they break the law, they will get more than that now, most certainly, derided and laughable verdict of "suspended sentence."

The Province of Ontario contains as many and many more worse boys than this city. It is now up to the attorney-general and his department to have laws passed whereby a magistrate be empowered to inflict corporal punishment in juvenile lawbreakers. The young incipient in the ways of the greater crimes, the sentence of so many lashes with a strap or birch rod, even though, and possibly preferably so, in the presence of his parents, would do a mite of good when a "suspended sentence," only makes a league of laughing stock.

PEACH CROP WILL BE VERY LIGHT.

St. Catharines, July 31.—City Clerk J. Albert Pay, who is a well-known fruit man, says he was positive from personal observation and reports received that the peach crop this year would be more than half the size of that of last year. The cause of the immense destruction of fruit trees in the fruit belt was the very severe winter, which the trees, weakened as they were by the San Jose scale, were unable to stand. Peaches will be scarce for the next few years until the new trees begin bearing.

Mr. Pay, as an illustration of the havoc being wrought by the San Jose scale, cited his own case. He does not go in very largely for peach growing, but a couple of years ago he had about 600 peach trees. "Today I have about a dozen left," said he. He, similar to other growers, kept spraying the trees, until the scale got ahead of him and then the trees had to be cut down.

"The outlook is decidedly bad in the fruit situation," went on Mr. Pay. "The only fruit that will be anything like a full crop is grapes. Plums will be fair, but pears will be decidedly scarce. Last year the canning factories were paying only 1 1-4c and 1 1-2c a pound for pears, but now they are skirmishing around offering to pay 2 1-2c a pound for pears."

Speaking of tomatoes of which he is a large grower, Mr. Pay said that while the crop was looking fairly well the very backward season will undoubtedly have a bad effect. Last year by this time thousands of baskets had been shipped away from here, whereas this year hardly any had as yet gone. James Titterington, one of the principal tomato shippers, up to Friday last had shipped 25 baskets against about a thousand by that date a year ago.

Complimentary Letters To Lady Managers

Messrs. E. L. Goodwill and D. Davidson Acknowledge Funds

The secretary of the committee of young ladies, representing the various churches in the city, under whose auspices the recent moonlight excursion was run, has received letters from the secretary of the Children's Aid Society, Peterborough, and the secretary-treasurer of the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto, acknowledging $13.50 each as a result of the moonlight excursion, and expressing thanks for the same. The letters are as follows.

Dear Madam,—

I beg to convey to you, on behalf of the Children's Aid Society of Peterborough, the warmest thanks of the society for your generous contribution of $13.50, half of the proceeds of the moonlight excursion, which was held under the auspices of the committee of young ladies from the leading churches of the city.

Will you kindly convey for us to each member of the committee our highest appreciation of their kindness and also of their sympathetic interest in our work?

Yours truly,
E. L. GOODWILL.

Secretary-treasurer.

Lawn Social At Zion, Otonabee

Pleasant Way of Spending This Evening in the Country

Those who enjoy a six-mile country drive on a summer evening, especially when such is combined during its progress with a very pleasant entertainment, have a good opportunity tonight.

At Zion, Otonabee, a lawn social, is to be held at the residence of Mr and Mrs W Dickson, in aid of the building fund of the Zion Methodist church. A good program, assisted by the splendid band of the Salvation Army, will be given. Tea will be served from 6 p.m. until 9 p.m. Tickets 25c.

A Thirty Two Pound 'Lunge Captured

Mr. Alf. Le Plante Lands the Best of the Season in This City.

Yesterday morning Mr. Alf. Le-Plante got out of bed early and went a fishing just as the dawn was breaking. Before he had been out in his canoe twenty minutes he felt a tug at the line that made him think either the father of all the fish had bitten or that he had struck a snag. His first guess was pretty nearly right, as after a hard tussle he hauled out a 'lunge that turned the scale at 32 1-2 pounds. This splendid fish was caught just behind the Geo. Matthews packing house. Only two days ago Mr. Le Plante caught a lunge weighing 13 1-2 pounds. If he keeps on like this the Ontario Government will have to pass a law to stop him fishing.

Killed Summer Resort

Now There is a Law Suit Between the Holy Jumpers and Officials

Milwaukee, Wis., July 30.—Waukesha's determined effort to drive out the Holy Jumpers, the peculiar religious sect which has established its international headquarters in the Fountain House, once a famous summer resort until the last two seasons, and the equally determined fight being made by the Jumpers, is arousing wide interest.

Damage suits aggregating $30,000 against Sheriff George L. Grinnell, brought by members of the Metropolitan Church Association—the formal name of the Jumpers—on the charge of false imprisonment and inhuman treatment; special meetings of the Common Council and an ordinance prohibiting street meetings except on special permit and continued vigilance in making arrests when street meetings are held are the latest developments in the battle.

Citizens of Waukesha are antagonistic to the Holy Jumpers, whose advent, they say, has killed Waukesha as a summer resort. It was because of this antagonism and the fear of mob violence that the mayor advised the ordinance prohibiting the holding of street meetings. Members of the sect, which has branches in many large cities, declare that they are being maliciously persecuted and seem to find special delight in posing as martyrs. Of the 19 members of the sect who have been arrested within the last month charged with disorderly conduct and creating disturbances on the street each has refused to pay the $2 and costs imposed by the court declaring that "they preferred to rot in jail."

Sheriff Dwinnell's disciplinary measures in turning the hose on his prisoners in a vain effort to make them keep quiet at night and in giving them the unruly prisoners' fare of bread is responsible for the damage suits. A small fraction of Waukesha residents sympathize with the Jumpers, but the majority feel that the religious enthusiasts provoked all the punishment which they received.

Telephone Burn Out Was Fixed

Canada's Greatest Utility Has Employees to Look After Subscribers Interests

Yesterday a gang of men were at work, with the proverbial quickness and alertness of the Bell Telephone Co., in the interests of their customers, under orders of the company, making connections between a burnt out cable, the central office and the various subscribers affected.

It seems that, on Monday, an electric light wire, just to the east of the White House, on Charlotte St., effectively burnt the Bell cables by an accidental crossing.

Yesterday, several men were engaged in repairing the damages done. To begin with, the lead covered cables of the telephone company, which ran from the cross bars on the poles, in front of the east end of the White House grounds were burnt through; in fact, the cedar pole upholding the telephone wires was charred to a depth of perhaps an inch.

Mr. Dean, the capable manager of the local Bell Company, early yesterday morning, had a gang of men at work on the burnt cables. These men quickly gathered up the severed or partly severed wires of the burnt cables and, gathering them in pairs, as regards each individual subscriber, tagged them together with a string or wire, with a paper tag attached noting which connection they belonged to.

It might be mentioned that this accident, whilst in no ways accountable to the Bell Co., was met by the latter company in possibly less time than an accident of similar character was ever handled in the history of up-to-date electrical matters before.

Yesterday afternoon a Times representative who had, at 11 a.m., asked for information and who, like the Hibleian hero who asked for a fig, banana, bun, John Collins or such just time refreshment, was given a structurally scripture answer but, of more brevity. Whilst not being answered in these exact words, his reply actually corresponded with the words, "To them that have nothing, nothing shall be given!" This answer effectually, whilst not literally conveyed the impression mentally that our scribe might with benefit to himself, attend to his own business and not look after that of the phone employes for keeping the terms of their instructions. Still, we do claim the credit, of at least the value of, say, a streak of blue, red and white sugar sticks, in presenting the facts of this burn-out, which was no fault of the Bell Co., even though several subscribers may have used unparliamentary language when they called up the family butcher and got the information over the wire that, "D. L. & W. was at 98 3-8," or that "Mamie would meet Ned at Jackson Park, by the first car, at 8.36 1-2."

To get back to the stern realities of life, the Bell Company's employees did quick, good and most satisfactory service in the interests of their subscribers affected.

An Exciting Experience

Mr Thos. Marshall, the well known local lumber foreman who has been out with the Cavendish Lumber Company, arrived in the city yesterday. During his trip down the Missisenaga creek, Mr. Marshall had a very exciting experience. As he was riding down one of the fierce rapids rolling a log swiftly under foot, he tried to catch another log with his peevie which broke. He was thrown into the raging current but fortunately escaped.

Guggenheim-Greenwater

Copper Prospect at Ely

GUGGENHEIM GREENWATER

I want every reader of this paper who has a spark of spunk in him to buy a few shares in the Guggenheim Greenwater Copper Company. I can sell it to you now for a mere song—5 cents a share. Every share is of treasury stock, par value $1, full paid up and non-assessable.

I have a poor idea of that man's courage who dares not risk $5 on the chance to make $100. If there is any better buy in the mining market today than a $100 certificate for five dollars, I have never heard of it. This company owns two groups of claims in two copper districts—Ely and Greenwater. It is developing first its group at Ely, and has a shaft down 50 feet with indications of a strike of ore in the next 50 feet.

Every man who reads this advertisement has read the stories from Ely, Nev. He knows as well as I do that experts report there is enough copper ore already in sight in the Ely district to keep ten smelters of immense capacity going for the next one hundred years. One 15,000 ton smelter is already being built by the Guggenheims, and other reduction plants of gigantic capacity are projected. Ely is unquestionably one of the greatest copper districts in the world.

This property is located on the great zone of porphyry which carries the copper values, and I tell you honestly that I would as soon put a few dollars into this prospect and take a chance of its making a big mine as into any mining investment within the range of possibility.

See me about this investment at once. I can fill all orders today for anything up to 10,000 shares at 5 cents. That price is sure to advance sharply any day that news comes of a strike. Buy now at 5 cents.

Pale Faced Girls

Thousands Using Successful Cure For Paleness and Anaemia

At night she is restless, she dozes, but doesn't sleep soundly.

Vital force must be increased, new blood must be supplied and a general rebuilding take place before she will feel like she ought.

Dr. Hamilton had invaluable experience in these cases and found nothing so prompt in building up the young women as his vegetable pills of Mandrake and Butternut.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills begin by cleansing the system and purifying the blood; they also improve digestion and render food ready for absorption. Additional nourishment is quickly supplied and the patient is fast strengthened and invigorated.

"In using Dr. Hamilton's Pills I find my system is wonderfully built up. It is certainly the most effective remedy I ever used. I have now a good appetite, sleep more soundly and awaken in the morning feeling quite refreshed.

"Formerly I felt tired and depressed. I looked as if a severe illness was hanging over my head.

All dealers sell Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. per box or five boxes for $1, by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S. A., and Kingston, Ont.

A PROTECTORATE IN NAME AND IN FACT

All doubt has been removed by the new Korean-Japanese convention as to the actual nature of the relationship between these two countries. Korea is now a protectorate in name as well as in fact. What was merely implicit in the treaties of 1905 has been made plain and definite and certain, so that even he who runs as he reads will have no excuse for misapprehension.

A few days ago Hayashi, the Japanese foreign minister, issued a statement in which he expressed satisfaction with the drift of western opinion and comment on the Korean situation. He has found it intelligent, correct and fair, in the main, although he regretted to see a general disposition to attribute the abdication of the Korean emperor to pressure or suggestion from his Government. He insisted that Japan had had nothing whatever to do with that move; the Korean ministers and elder statesmen themselves, in accordance with ancient law, had brought about the change of sovereigns as the only way out of a painful dilemma. Be that as it may, it is clear that Japan was fully prepared for the crisis and has shown how to utilize it. The new agreement with Korea must have been carefully elaborated. It covers the whole situation and provides against "surprises" like the mysterious Hague delegation from Seoul in the future.

The Government of the Mikado-tion, of Korea, now passes into the hands of Japan. No law can be enacted henceforth, no administrative measure can be carried out, without the "previous approval" of the Japanese resident general. No appointments, either of natives or foreigners, can be made without such approval, and no dismissals either.

This means that Korea is henceforth to be a sort of "crown colony," but with an emperor and a throne. Japan has promised "to observe due forms" after the orthodox fashion, and she has done so. Korea will have her emperor, her cabinet, her governmental machinery, but the direction of legislative and administrative affairs will be in Japanese hands.

This is what the world has expected, and the mission to The Hague has only hastened the inevitable somewhat.

THE SCHOOL BOOKS

The Ontario Government seem to have taken right hold of the school book problem in earnest. This has been a vexed question for years. It is one in which the vast majority of people are deeply interested. And if the Government succeed in carrying out what are said to be their present intentions, they will confer a boon upon parents as a large sum of money will be left in their pockets which formerly found its way into the coffers of the school book publishers, while the latter will still be allowed fair remuneration for their labor and capital. We believe in giving the devil his dues. And if the Government succeed in the good work in the direction indicated, which they have evidently begun, The Times will be only too pleased to award them the due measure of praise and credit. They have taken the first step in the right direction. They have broken up the monopoly of publishers and have given a new contract for the production of the public school readers at a price which will permit of the purchase of the books at about half their former cost. This is good as far as it goes but there is a good deal more yet to be done and it seems that steps are now being taken in that direction. It is now given out that Hon. Dr. Pyne, Minister of education, has requested all present publishers of authorized school books other than the readers already dealt with to submit to the Department a statement of any reduction they are prepared to make in the price of books for the interim time until the preparation of the new and improved series shall be completed. It is understood to be the intention of the Government to secure an immediate and substantial reduction in the price of all school books. It will be necessary for the publishers to volunteer the reduction or the Government will have to authorize an optional textbook at a reduced price for the time being.

Preparations are, however, well under way for the adoption of an entirely new and improved system of text books. It is anticipated that two years will be necessary to fully perfect it and bring the prices down to the figure the Government had determined upon. The general reduction will be nearly 72 per cent.

In the meantime a material drop in the prices of arithmetics, grammars, geographies, histories and other textbooks may be looked for ere the end of the summer holidays.

A GREAT COPPER MINE

Rare Chance to Secure Stock in a Promising Proposition.

It is generally known that the world's demand for copper has vastly increased during the past few years, and is daily growing greater owing to the enormous quantities necessary in electrical manufactures of all kinds. Last year the production of copper was the greatest in the world's history. During 1906 the world's production of this metal was 717,326 tons, 2240 pounds to the ton, as compared with 602,792 the previous highest record. Of this enormous output America contributed 60 per cent, of which Mexico and Canada supplied 100,000 tons. In the United States Montana leads in copper with Arizona second and Michigan third. Now Nevada is ranking high in the copper producing states. Now, seemingly inexhaustible supplies of rich copper ore has been found at Greenwater, Cal., and Ely, Nevada. At Ely, Nevada, the Guggenheims are erecting a $10,000,000 smelter, which will handle 10,000 tons a day. This rich firm owns one group of mines there from which it is estimated 40,000,000 tons of ore will be extracted. The Giroux Consolidated Mines Co., of Ely, have a fully developed mine with over 30,000 feet of underground workings which is turning out 3 per cent copper ore, with $1.40 in gold per ton. Other Ely mines are prosperous. At Greenwater, Cal., equally good copper has been located in enormous quantities. The Guggenheim-Greenwater Copper Co. has three claims at Willow Creek in Inyo county, which outcrop with ore for 300 feet. This ore is rich in gold, silver and copper. The company also has three claims. Their Ely claims are within ten miles of the Guggenheim smelter and connected by a good road so that their ores will be cheaply handled. This company is now offering a small block of treasury stock for development purposes at 5 cents per share, par value $1 each, which will probably advance rapidly in price. For full particulars or stock write A. L. Markwell, Fiscal Agent, 240 Byrne Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal., or call on W. K. Hall, Peterborough.

The Daisy.

I am only a perfect daisy,
Not tall like the lily or the red;
Mid the flowers of the wealth I am seen;
I have only to blossom each day in the green.

The violet has fragrance the rose and the pink,
The primrose is sweet by the river's brink;
The gold of the cowslip is bright on the lea—
All these have a sweetness not granted to me."

But into the meadows a child strayed one day,
She passed by the lily and rose on the way,
Nor gathered the primrose, the violet blue,
But went to the field where the small daisy grew.

And all through the hours of that bright sunny day
Where the sweet daisy blossomed she lingered to play,
And the daisy was glad when, at soft fall,
She said that its blossom was sweetest of all.

A LITTLE DEAD BIRD.

How the Boy Felt Who Shot and Laid Low a Golden Pheasant.

The celebrated Russian novelist, Turgeneff, tells a touching incident from his own life, which awakened in him sentiments that have colored all his writings.

When he was a boy of ten his father took him out one day bird shooting. As they tramped across the brown stubble a golden pheasant rose with a low whir from the ground at his feet, and with the joy of the sportsman he raised his gun and fired, wild with excitement when the creature fell fluttering at his side. Life was ebbing fast, but the instinct of the mother was stronger than death itself, and with a flutter of her wings the mother bird reached the nest where her young brood was huddled, unconscious of danger, says a writer in Our Dumb Animals. Then, with such a look of pleading and reproach that his heart stood still at the ruin he had wrought (and never to his dying day did he forget the feeling of guilt that came to him at that moment), the little brown head toppled over, and only the dead body of the mother shielded her nestlings.

"Father, father," he cried, "what have I done?" as he turned his boyish stricken face to his father. But not to his father's eye had this tragedy been enacted, and he said: "Well done, my son. That was well done for your first shot. You will soon be a fine sportsman."

"Never, father. Never again shall I destroy any living creature. If that is sport, I will have none of it. Life is more beautiful to me than death, and since I cannot give life I will not take it."

Symbolic Precious Stones.

The list of precious stones belonging to the different months and the sentiment of each are as follows: January, garnet, constancy; February, amethyst, sincerity; March, bloodstone, courage; April, diamond, innocence; May, emerald, success in love; June, agate, health and long life; July, carnelian, content; August, sardonyx, married happiness; September, chrysolite, antidote to madness; October, opal, hope; November, topax, fidelity; December, turquoise, prosperity.

Prod-uce, Prog-ress, Proc-ess.

The editor wishes to caution the boys and girls against falling into the common error of mispronouncing these three words pro-duce, pro-gress and pro-cess. The o is short in each of them, and the syllables are divided as in the heading of this paragraph.—Chicago News.

Habits of Monkeys.

In their wild state monkeys live in the woods, on the trees, and feed on fruits, leaves and insects. They live together in companies and never go alone when they wish to rob an orchard or find their food. It seems as if they laid regular plans, for part of them stand to watch the approach of enemies and part enter the field. They form a straight line, reaching from those within to some place beyond which is a retreat for them. When they are all arranged in due order those in the orchard near the trees throw the fruit to those outside as fast as they can gather it. These pass it over to those nearest to them till the fruit is all nicely lodged in their hut or retreat. If the one who acts as sentinel perceives any one coming, he makes a loud noise, and they all run away. Yet even then they will take some fruit under each of their arms or forepaws and also in their mouths. They are mischievous animals and annoy travelers exceedingly by throwing stones and sticks at them, and they will frequently follow them for some distance when they are passing through the woods by leaping from tree to tree. They are capable of forming strong attachments even with other animals, and they exhibit mildness, affection and docility.

The Money That's Being Made in Western Canada

LAND

In October, 1906 we sold 5,000 acres of Saskatchewan lands to an Indiana party of men at $8 per acre, and resold it this year at $12, making just about 100 per cent. on the money invested.

A Montreal party of men who bought 10,000 acres from us at $8 per acre last September, resold through us within three months at $10.00 per acre.

A Chicago client writes us, that after making some improvements on a section she bought near Regina, one year ago, she sold out recently for exactly twice what she paid for the land.

We resold a section of land located near Lipton for a man at $18.00 per acre last April, which we sold him in December at $12.00.

Men here are growing wealthy who never knew success in any other line. You can make money here too if you think your amount too small club it with a few friends. Some of the most prominent financial men in the United States and Eastern Canada are now interested in this country heavily.

We own about 200,000 acres of the finest wheat and mixed farming lands in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.—Picked lands on which we are prepared to give accurate trustworthy information, and these tracts being portions of extremely large purchases, we can sell them at prices that cannot be equalled, quality of land considered, by any firm in this country.

Prices range from $6.00 per acre upwards Reasonable Terms in every case

Write us for further information but when doing so tell us the class and amount of an investment you desire, and whether you want the land for your own use or for investment purposes purely. $1,000 is about the minimum we can handle. References Union Bank and Traders' Bank, Winnipeg.

SIREN WAFERS DEVELOP THE BUST

SHE'S A QUEEN! SHE'S A SIREN!

Is an expression that is always heard at sight of a well developed woman. If you are flat chested, with BUST undeveloped, a scrawney neck, thin lean arms—the above remark will never be applied to you. "SIREN" wafers will make you beautiful, bewitching. They DEVELOP the BUST in a few weeks from 3 to 6 inches and produce a fine firm, voluptuous bosom. They fill out the hollow places. Make the cheeks plump and rosy, and arms handsome and well molded and the neck and shoulders shapely and of perfect contour.

Send for a bottle today and you'll be pleased and grateful. "SIREN" wafers are absolutely harmless, pleasant to take and convenient to carry around. They are sold under guarantee to do all we claim or MONEY back.

Price $1.00 per bottle. Inquire at good drug stores or send DIRECT to us.

FREE!

During the next 30 days only—we will send you a sample bottle of these beautifying wafers on receipt of 10 cents to pay cost of packing and postage if you will mention that you saw the Advertisement in this paper. The sample alone may be sufficient if defects are trivial.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry must be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made on certain conditions, by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of the homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Six months' notice in writing should be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of intention to apply for patent.

THE CONQUEST of CANAAN

By BOOTH TARKINGTON,
Author of "Cherry," "Monsieur Beaucaire," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1905, BY HARPER & BROTHERS

"I never thought ye had the temper to git somebody to split yer head," said he. "Where'd ye collect it?"

He unwound the handkerchief and removed it from Joe's head gently. "Whee!" he cried as a long gash was exposed over the forehead. "I hope ye left a mark somewhere to pay a little on the score o' this!"

Joe chuckled and dropped dizzily back upon the pillow. "There was another who got something like it," he gasped feebly, "and, oh, Mike, I wish you could have heard him going on! Perhaps you did. It was only three miles from here."

"Nothing I'd liked better!" said the other, bringing a basin of clear water from a stand in the corner. "It's a beautiful thing to hear a man holler when he gits a grand one like ye're wearing tonight."

He bathed the wound gently and, hurrying from the room, returned immediately with a small jug of vinegar. Wetting a rag with this tender fluid, he applied it to Joe's head, speaking soothingly the while.

"Nothing in the world like a bit o' good cider vinegar to keep off the festerin'. It may seem a trifle scratchy fer the moment, but it assassinates the blood p'ison. There ye go! It's the fine thing fer ye, Joe. What are ye squirmin' about?"

"I'm only enjoying it," the boy answered, writhing as the vinegar worked into the gash. "Don't you mind my laughing to myself."

"Ye're a good one, Joe!" said the other, continuing his ministrations. "I wisht, after all, ye felt like makin' me known to what's the trouble. There's some of us would be glad to take it up fer ye, and"—

"No, no; it's all right. I was somewhere I had no business to be, and I got caught."

"Who caught ye?"

"First some nice white people"—Joe smiled his distorted smile—"and then a low down black man helped me to get away as soon as he saw who it was. He's a friend of mine, and he fell down and tripped up the pursuit."

"I always knew ye'd git into large trouble some day." The red bearded man tore a strip from an old towel and began to bandage the boy's head with an accustomed hand. "Yer taste fer excitement has been growin' on ye every minute of the four years I've known ye."

"I've got $7," Joe said, without replying to Mike, "and I'll leave the clothes I've got on. Can you fix me up with something different?"

"I'll have the things fer ye, and I'll let ye know I have no use fer $7," re-

He looked up as Joe appeared in the doorway.

"I'm thinking of the poor fellow that got the mate to this," said Joe, touching the bandage. "I can't help crying when I think they may have used vinegar on his head too."

"Git to sleep if ye can!" exclaimed the Samaritan as a hideous burst of noise came from the dance room, whereupon one seemed to be breaking a chair upon an acquaintance. "I'll go out and regulate the boys a bit." He turned down the lamp, fumbled in his hip pocket and went to the door.

CHAPTER VI.

THE day broke with a scream of wind out of the prairies and such cloudbursts of snow that Joe could see neither bank of the river as he made his way down the big bend of ice. The wind struck so bitterly that now and then he stopped and, panting and gasping, leaned his weight against it. The snow on the ground was caught up and flew like sea spume in a hurricane; it swirled about him, joining the flakes in the air, so that it seemed to be snowing from the ground upward as much as from the sky downward. Fierce as it was, hard as it was to fight through, snow from the earth, snow from the sky, Joe was grateful for it, feeling that it veiled him, making him safer, though he trusted somewhat the change of costume he had effected at Beaver Beach. A rough workman's cap was pulled down over his ears and eyebrows; a knitted comforter was wound about the lower part of his face; under a ragged overcoat he wore blue overalls and rubber boots, and in one of his red mittened hands he swung a tin dinner bucket.

He bent his body against the wind and went on, still keeping to the back ways, until he came to the alley which passed behind his own home, where, however, he paused only for a moment to make a quick survey of the premises. A glance satisfied him; he ran to the next fence, hoisted himself wearily over it and dropped into Roger Tabor's back yard.

The place seemed empty, and he was on the point of going away when he heard the click of the front gate and saw Ariel coming toward him. At the sound of the gate he had crouched close against the side of the house, but she saw him at once.

She stopped abruptly and, throwing the waterproof back from her head, looked at him through the driven fog of snow. One of her hands was stretched toward him involuntarily, and it was in that attitude that he long remembered her—she looked an Undine of the snow.

Suddenly she ran to him, still keeping her hand outstretched until it touched his own.

"How did you know me?" he said.

"Know you!" was all the answer she made to that question. "Come into the house. I've got some coffee on the stove for you. I've been up and down the street waiting for you ever since it began to get light. There's no one here."

She led him to the front door, where he stamped and shook himself. He was snow from head to foot.

She wasted no time in getting him to the kitchen, where, when she had removed his overcoat, she placed him in a chair, unwound the comforter and, as carefully as a nurse, lifted the cap from his injured head. When the strip of towel was disclosed, she stood quite still for a moment, with the cap in her hand. Then, with a broken little cry, she stooped and kissed a lock of his hair which escaped, discolored, beneath the bandage.

"Stop that!" he commanded, horribly embarrassed.

Samp and How to Cook It.

Give us the bowl of samp and milk
By homespun beauty poured!

So sang Whittier. Whittier didn't know how to eat. He lived on air. The very suggestion of milk with samp is nauseating. It is worse than mush and milk and grits and cream. Roger Williams knew all about samp, and this is how he had it cooked: Crack the corn into about four pieces to the grain. Soak it all night in water. Skim off the skims which float in water. Boil on a slow fire until tender, with a piece of salt pork in the pot. When the water is dried out, introduce some good butter, some salt and pepper and serve hot. The Indians of Massachusetts used any kind of fresh meat for a flavoring and called the dish "saupac." You may have all your oatmeal, hominy, grits, mush, meal, polenta, etc., but let me have the samp—when I can't get "lye hominy."

The Old English Dames' Schools.

The descriptions of some of the dames' and other schools of the early part of the nineteenth century are exceedingly interesting. Many of these ancient teachers were unable to write an intelligent answer to a simple question. One on being asked as to the terms on which she gave instruction replied: "Not understanding the question, I answer thus: With a view of reading the Bible." We have the authority of the late Lord Shaftesbury for the statement that one of these poor creatures, being asked if she gave moral instruction to her scholars, replied, "No, I can't afford it at 3 shillings a week." A more amusing answer, however, was that of the teacher who was asked whether proper attention was paid to the morals of the boys under his care. His answer was that "they did not teach morals there, as they belonged to the girls' department."

The Goat's Change of Faith.

Near a small Baptist church not far out of the city there lives an old Irishman who keeps a goat. One day, finding the church door open, the goat wandered inside and browsed around among cushions and books, much to the detriment of those articles. The pastor chanced to catch the animal at his mischief and lost no time in going to the owner to complain. "You will have to keep that goat tied up," began the minister. "He went into my church just now and"— But we was allowed to proceed no further. The old Irishman held up both hands in amazement. "Wint into your church, did he? Thin I can't be responsible for him no more, th' ongrateful baste. If that goat has turned Protestant I wash me hands of him."

A Bad Twist.

There was a boy in school who was chewing gum and had his feet out in the aisle. His teacher said, "Johnny, take the gum out of your mouth and put your feet in."

Rheumatism

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism! Not a remedy that will straighten the distorted limbs of chronic cripples, nor turn bony growths back to flesh again. That is impossible. But I can now surely kill the pains and pangs of this deplorable disease.

In Germany—with a Chemist in the City of Darmstadt—I found the last ingredient with which Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was made a perfected, dependable prescription. Without that last ingredient, I successfully treated many, many cases of Rheumatism; but now, at last, it uniformly cures all curable cases of this heretofore much dreaded disease. Those mad-like granular wastes, found in Rheumatic Blood seem to dissolve and pass away under the action of this remedy as freely as does sugar when added to pure water. And then, when dissolved, these poisonous wastes freely pass from the system, and the cause of Rheumatism is gone forever. There is now no real need—no actual excuse to suffer longer without help. We sell, and in confidence recommend

This Company was formed for the purpose of manufacturing all kinds of Iron, Steel, Metal and Wooden Goods, Agricultural Implements, etc., and to carry on the business of a foundry.

They are now turning out specialties in Ornamental Iron Work, Fences, Crestings, etc., for which there is a great demand far in excess of the present facilities of the Company.

There is a limited amount of stock for sale, and this opportunity to purchase will not return.

The encouragement, coupled with the unexcelled opportunities open to such an enterprise, are in themselves sufficient guarantee of absolute safety and large profits.

Write for our Prospectus. Investigate to-day—to-morrow may be too late.

To know how quickly, how surely Ferrozone cures, to see how it rebuilds and restores, you have only to read the following letters—read them carefully—see if the symptoms resemble yours.

Miss Evelyn M. Gaetz, of Kingston, writes: "I have had an attack of blood disorder which broke out in horrid looking pimples. They were ugly, red, disfiguring blotches that ruined the appearance of my face. I tried all sorts of medicine, but the pimples didn't leave. I was recommended Ferrozone and gave it a trial. I noticed an improvement after the second box, and kept up the treatment which finally cleared my skin. As the result of Ferrozone I have a clear healthy complexion and can recommend it to all other young women similarly affected."

Another young lady well known in society circles of Springfield, who derived exceptional benefit from Ferrozone, says: "I felt it my duty to make known the value of Ferrozone. My trouble was poor, weak blood, and as a consequence my lips were pallid, and my cheeks had no color. I wasn't at all strong, and required a bracing tonic. Ferrozone soon brought color to my cheeks, improved my appetite and made me stronger than I have been in years. I favor Ferrozone because it is so simple to take and works so quickly."

No blood remedy exists that has the power to cure, to heal, to restore like Ferrozone; try it, 50c per box at any drugstore.

Church for Stewart Settlement

The congregational meeting of St. Andrew's church, have considered an application from the people of the Stewart Settlement for erecting a new Presbyterian church there. Rev. J. G. Potter presided, and, St. Andrew's congregation give their assent. St. Paul's and Knox churches had approved of it, so that the matter is now settled. In the first place the Presbytery was petitioned, and that body left the matter with the local Presbyterian churches.

W. J. Johnston a Shorthand Expert

Yesterday Mr. W. J. Johnston, of the local law firm of Messrs. Dumble & Johnston, in response to a request, by a Pittman shorthand expert, gave an exhibition of his own powers of putting words on to paper as per the system of shorthand he writes Mr. Johnston, who has of late taken verbatim reports of several legal and other important matters, displayed what the Pernin system of shorthand enables one to place on record a speech or sermon in short time. Mr. Johnston, in Monday's trial, before his Honor Judge Weller, of the alleged pickpockets of June 25th, demonstrated beyond cavil or contradiction, that he, by that system, is able to take down every word spoken by each witness and possibly the "cuss" words of those who are "sore" at the length of time taken up in cross-examination.

Times Interviews Jamaica Residents

West Indian People Who Went Through Recent Earthquake in the City

Two gentlemen now in the city, who came from Jamaica, W.I., were yesterday interviewed by a Times representative as to their opinion and sensations experienced during the recent earthquake in that island, and also as to the fruit and fishing and other general points of interest in that country, i.e., interesting to those living in this Canada of ours. These gentlemen both noted that when the first shock came they at once, with others, after seeing the ladies out, rushed to the street. Here the sensation was that that might be experienced aboard ship when the bow and stern of a ship seem to be in competition as to which can or will raise to the highest point and make the quickest time, not to but against establishing an equilibrium. These gentlemen, whilst having the kindest words, and (judging "sub rosa") almost eager longings for their former home, express the kindliest sentiments towards the land of their adoption. Their description of the fruit of Jamaica is enough to make a man whose lonely two or three apple or plum trees produce yearly, only a few moth eaten, worm devoured, bud-blighted samples of the unpaid debt of nature to the man who pays the taxes, is enough to make the owners of such trees commit homicide, if not suicide. There they get rich, juicy guavas, alligator-pears, pineapples that do not require dynamite to dismember them, oranges that will not turn the teeth of a comb on edge from sourness, or require hydraulic pressure to get an ounce of juice. These gentlemen whose parents occupy high positions in Jamaica, will shortly leave for the great North-west.

An Important Ennismore Wedding

Miss Maggie O'Gorman is the Bride of Mr. W. O'Connor

Yesterday morning at ten o'clock an interesting wedding ceremony was celebrated at St. Martin's church, Ennismore, when Miss Maggie O'Gorman, daughter of the late Edward O'Gorman of that township, was married to Mr. William O'Connor, late of Douro, but who for the last number of years has resided in Alberta, N. W. T., the nuptial mass being said by Rev. Father Fitzpatrick, parish priest. The bride, who wore white silk was attended by her niece, Miss Mary Sullivan, while Mr. John O'Gorman, of Douro, supported the groom. After the nuptial ceremony the bridal party, with some 30 invited guests, drove to the home of Mr. Edward O'Gorman, brother of the bride, where a wedding breakfast was served. In about two weeks Mr. and Mrs. O'Connor will leave for their home in the far west. The bride was the recipient of a large and valuable number of presents.

Taking the Hint.

At home stations the private soldiers' washing is usually done by the married soldiers' wives, who are expected to sew on missing buttons and do repairs, for which a small sum is deducted from the private's pay.

Pat McGinnis had a good deal of trouble with his laundress. Sunday after Sunday had his shirt come back with the neck button off or else hanging by a thread. He had spoken to her on the subject, and she had promised to see to it, but still the button was not on properly.

He got out of patience one Sunday when the missing button had made him late for parade and exclaimed:

"Bother the woman! I'll see if I can't give her a hint this time, anyhow."

He then took the lid of a tin blacking box about three inches in diameter, drilled two holes in it with a fork and sewed it on to the neck of the shirt that was next to be washed. When his washing came back he found she had taken the hint. She had made a buttonhole to fit it.—London Answers.

Cutaneous of Old Time Doctors.

Synge's "Social Life in England" quotes a number of fourteenth century hints to success for physicians which indicate that as far back as 500 years ago the medical man, in popular opinion at least, had in him the stuff that alienists are made of:

Suppose you know nothing, say there is an obstruction of the liver. Perhaps the patient will say, "Nay, master, it is my head or legs that trouble me." Repeat that it comes from the liver, and especially use the word "obstruction," for patients do not understand it, which is important.

Never dine with a patient who has not paid you; it will be cheaper to get your dinner at an inn, for such feasts are usually deducted from the surgeon's fee.

When you are treating a wound or accident, the friends of the patient should be excluded, for they may faint and cause a disturbance, but sometimes a higher fee may be got from persons present fainting and breaking their heads against wood and the like, than from the principal patient.

COMMON SENSE

Leads most intelligent people to use only medicines of known composition. Therefore it is that Dr. Pierce's medicines, the makers of which print every ingredient entering into them upon the bottle wrappers and attest its correctness under oath, are daily growing in favor. The composition of Dr. Pierce's medicines is open to everybody. Dr. Pierce being desirous of having the search light of investigation turned fully upon his formulæ, being confident that the better the composition of these medicines is known the more will their great curative merits be recognized. Being wholly made of the active medicinal principles extracted from native forest roots, by exact processes original with Dr. Pierce, and without the use of a drop of alcohol, triple-refined and chemically pure glycerine being used instead in extracting and preserving the curative virtues residing in the roots employed, these medicines are entirely free from the objection of doing harm by creating an appetite for either alcoholic beverages or habit-forming drugs. Examine the formula on their bottle wrappers—the same as sworn to by Dr. Pierce, and you will find that his "Golden Medical Discovery," the great blood-purifier, stomach tonic and bowel regulator—the medicine which, while not recommended to cure consumption in its advanced stages (no medicine will do that yet does cure all those catarrhal conditions of head and throat, weak stomach, torpid liver and bronchial troubles, weak lungs and hang-on-coughs, which, if neglected or badly treated lead up to and finally terminate in consumption.

Take the "Golden Medical Discovery" in time and it is not likely to disappoint you if only you give it a thorough and fair trial. Don't expect miracles. It won't do supernatural things. You must exercise your patience and persevere in its use for a reasonable length of time to get its full benefits. The ingredients of which Dr. Pierce's medicines are composed have the unqualified endorsement of scores of medical leaders—better than any amount of lay, or non-professional, testimonials. They are not given away to be experimented with but are sold by all dealers in medicines at reasonable prices.

will mail you free, to prove merit, samples of my Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and my Book on either Dyspepsia, The Heart or The Kidneys. Troubles of the Stomach, Heart or Kidneys are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak Stomach nerves—the inside nerves—mean Stomach weakness always. And the Heart, and Kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves, and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves." Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion, as Dr. Shoops Restorative. Write me today for sample and free Book. GREATER POWER boys or girls as (were I an Irishman) I might have been either. Still in Peterborough, the police court records of the past year show that many juveniles have been brought into court, tried, shown to have weak kneed and, often, almost simple minded parents acknowledged unable to manage them, who have been handed out that thread-bare sentence of "suspended sentence."

Now, Sir, I have trespassed on your patience and space, but the future of Canada's growing youth is the measure of Canada's future prosperity and greatness. I may sound to the, in too many cases, pampered youth of our country, as being old fogyish, and behind the times. Still with professed or proven criminals getting off on that "chestnutty" sentence of "suspended sentence," I quite agree with Magistrate Dumble, in his often heard regret that he could not have such "boys given the strap or flogged." Asking your indulgence for taking so much space, I am, Sir,

Yours truly,
FATHER.

THE CORNER STONE LAID YESTERDAY

Corner Stone of New Collegiate Institute Laid by Mr. Jas. Stevenson--An Important Ceremony.

Many Prominent Citizens Witnessed the Affair -- Dr. Burnham Officiated as Chairman.

Splendid Speeches Were Made by Messrs. Stevenson, R. R. Hall, T. E. Bradburn, Dr. Morrison and Other Prominent Men.

Yesterday afternoon a most important ceremony was enacted at Central Park when the corner stone of the new Collegiate Institute, now in the building, was well and truly laid by Mr. James Stevenson, ex-mayor, ex-M.P., and for 56 years a member of the Board of Education of Peterborough. The Board of the present day had made good preparations and arrangements for this ceremony. The south-east corner of the massive foundations now completed had been floored over and covered with a huge canvas covering tent. Flags fluttered from ropes stretched above the building. A plank walkway had been raised from the ground to the height on which the ceremonies were conducted.

The proceedings were opened a few minutes after four o'clock, when after some trouble, with those present to collect on the official platform, Dr. Geo. Burnham, acting chairman, in place of Mr. Fair, now in Europe. Dr. Burnham said that this is a most important occasion we have been a town or city for some 80 years and have never yet had a Collegiate Institute building. We are now able to cope with the pressing necessities for educational purposes. The teaching staff of our city is of the highest class. A Collegiate Institute is the backbone of the schools. There may be those who decry a Collegiate Institute, but is needed badly.

He then went on to speak in high terms of Mr. Stevenson's 64 years services in both the educational and civic wants of Peterborough. He then handed a handsome silver trowel to Mr Stevenson, who took it and went to the north-west corner of the building. Here he read the following speech;—

"Fifty years ago I as mayor of the then small town of Peterborough and a member of the Building Committee of the School Board had the honor of laying the foundation stone of the "Union," now the Central school." He then expressed his appreciation of the compliment paid him in asking him to lay the foundation stone of the new Collegiate Institute. Mr. Stevenson then said. "I therefore declare this stone well truly laid and hope the institution may have th divine blessing." Mr. Stevenson said further that his recollection of educational institutions in Peterborough went back to days when in a log school house Rev. Samuel Armour, father of the late Chief Justice, taught both the high and the common school under one roof, though when the speaker arrived in Peterborough Mr. Armour had gone and Rev. M. Williamson was teaching in his stead. Situated in the rear of the present Central school where the play ground now is. The school was surrounded by woods and was a great resort of wild pigeons, that were easily knocked off the roof. This was, for years, the only school in the village and received Government aid. Then a Common school overlooked the Otonabee from what had been a Methodist church on the north side of Hunter street, east of Sheridan and about the spot where Rev. J. C. Davidson now lives. These represent our educational institutions until 1853 when the old log house was unfit for the purpose and in 1857 the common and high schools were quartered int he Hunter Street Methodist church. In 1857 a Committee of seven was appointed with the late Mr. Jas. Ball, father of the Sheriff, was made chairman. On this committee were W. S. Conger, W. Curtin, F. Ferguson, Rev. Mark Burnham and the speaker. The speaker is the only member of that committee now alive. That the building is still used is good proof of the foresight of the committee. At one time it was advocated that the school should be placed on what is now known as Victoria Park and 3 acres were granted by county council and city council but fortunately not used. As the then site was settled the next question was that of finance, which was most difficult. The Board sold a lot on King street and another on London street, the two sites netting $800. Then the council appropriated the money for the Board, derived from the Clergy Reserve, amounting to $4,000, and finally the members of the Board gave their individual notes for $16,258, the cost of the school. Then they tried to sell debentures before maturity of the notes, and finally their 6 per cent securities were disposed of to W. McMaster, the founder of McMaster Hall, Toronto, at 85 cents on the dollar, but not before the private notes of the members had been presented for payment, protested and sued. The original estimate of the school was $16,000 but its actual cost was $16,258. The speaker trusted that the results of the present building would be more apparent and widespread that what accrued from the efforts of the 3500 people of Peterborough 50 years ago.

After completion of the Union school no great pressure for more accommodation was felt until 1865 when the Baptist church at the corner of Dublin and Aylmer streets was secured on a 5 years lease. In 1868 the late Col. Boulton moved by Mr. D. W. Dumble, that tireless worker in educational matters, that want schools should be built. In September, 1870, a contract for $5000 was let to T. Lasher which resulted in the erection of the Collegiate Institute then called "Central School." The speaker then went on to speak of the salar with present wages. In February, les paid in these days as compared 1872, the Central school was completed, its cost being $5060, on an estimate of $5000 and accommodation for 38 4pupils. Shortly after completion of the school, when Hon. G. A. Cox was chairman of the committee, lot 13, north of Sherbrooke street and west of Gedrey, was bought for $600. A building committee composed of Georg eHilliard, A. Rutherford, J. McClelland and the speaker, expended $5797 on the South Ward school where the original estimate was $6,000. By this time the common school punils had increased from 384 to 582. Two years later the Board purchased another lot for the western section of the town's school for $600 and the West Ward school was built for $3,433. The most recent history of Peterborough's schools is well known. Much has been done to meet the growing demands. The North Ward school has been built. The Ashburnham school has been acquired and the King Edward school been erected. The Board has done well and has met all demands on it grandly. They should follow the policy of the past and success must crown their efforts. They should employ the best teachers and pay good salaries. (Much applause).

After Mr Stevenson had completed his address, Dr. Burnham read several letters of regret from prominent men who were unable to be present. The first was from Hon. J. R. Stratton, who came down from the lakes to attend but a telegram called him away.

Rev. Mr. Keith also explained his absence; this was followed by a telegram from Hon. Senator Cox, to the same effect.

Dr. Morrison then made a really eloquent speech. It afforded him the pleasure of his life to be present on such an occasion. The present building will be an ornament to the city and a great impulse to local education. As chairman of the Building Committee he noted the financial difficulties the board had overcome. They found that the people had voted $50,000, but in the meantime building expenses had so increased, they had to get more money. Architect Belcher drew the plans for a $50,000 building, but to heat, light, and furnish it would take more money. The people then voted $21,000 more. This present building will accommodate 450 pupils. it will have 12 class rooms, a reading room and other facilities that the speaker gave in detail. Referring to Mr Stevenson's speech, Dr. Morrison went on to show that the present building will accommodate the city's requirements for years to come. He then called attention to the splendid superstructure and promised that the remainder of the building will be in keeping. In regards to cost, the board thought they could build the institute for $61,000. The tenders were opened with fear, but tthey were justified in accepting the tenders of two men, who whilst over-riding their price by $1300, put in a price that could not be touched today. They have already placed contracts for $58,705. He then congratulated Mr. Stevenson on the good work he has done and hoped that his birthday, today, will be many times celebrated.

Mayor McWilliams then was called on and said that this was one of the most important periods in Peterborough's history. Whilst not able to go back to the past history of Peterborough's educational institutions he had been born and brought up in Peterborough and educated here. He then spoke in strong terms of the benefit of a Collegiate Institute. It is the duty of every man and woman to place their children on an educational ladder that will enable them to climb to any height. In our collegiate system we give to every boy or girl to help themselves to any possible height. In the collegiate system we are giving children a chance to learn subjects hitherto forbidden by lack of education. This is our highest aim that of making good citizens. The matter of material prosperity is second to the education of our boys and girls. Peterborough stands, in his opinion, as high as any town or city in the Dominion. He congratulated the board and Building Committee on the splendid work they had done.

Warden McNulty on behalf of the county congratulated the city on the magnificent building now under construction. He greatly appreciated the invitation he had received to be present at this ceremony. He also spoke for the county. In 1904 the county did its best to assist the Collegiate Institute. He then referred to Mr. Stevenson as the pioneer promulgator of Peterborough's educational institutions.

Mr. R. R. Hall, M.P., said he would cut his speech short as others were to follow. He congratulated the board on their good work they had accomplished as well as Messrs. Langford and Sheely, the contractors, and Mr. Belcher, the architect. The laying of the corner stone of a Collegiate Institute, was always an important event. It is like laying the corner stone of a human character. Nations who have neglected education have decayed. He then specified several countries that have gone back through lack of education, and instanced England and Japan as countries that prosper through a good educational system.

Mr. Bradburn, M.P.P., amid applause arose and said, we have a building here that will be a monument to the good work of the Board of Education.

Rev. Mr. Potter, the next speaker, said it was an honor to represent the Ministerial Association. He in the absence of Rev. Canon Davidson, was the senior member of the association. It augurs well for the community that all classes unite in backing up the erection of this splendid building. The truths that are now being taught will have their effect in coming generations. Mr. Hall's speech told the whole truth as to the effects of education. There is no doubt so great in any community as education.

Rev. Father McColl next arose and said he represented his lordship, who was not able to be present. Here we have one of the best educational institutions in the world. Any man here has a chance to rise to any point. A community's success depends upon the education of its leaders. It is only the few that attain the highest education. The Collegiate Institute is doing a good work. It is in the institute that a majority of our teachers are trained. This institution gives an opportunity for training our teachers, and this is most important. This institute is a stepping stone to the highest places in the country. Rome conquered Greece simply because the great men of Greece had declined. We have no leaders who are not educated men, even though they be not university men. He did not think that Spain declined through lack of education but through too much money. He then congratulated the Board of Education on the good work they have done. He congratulated Mr. Stevenson in living to see this splendid building erected.

Mr. D. W. Dumble then said he congratulated the Board on this auspicious day. The building they had before was not suitible for its purpose. The new building will be suitable and fill the requirements of the next generation. He congratulated the people on putting up a building for both the sons of the poor As well as the rich. A Collegiate Institute is more for the poor than for the rich as the rich man can send his children to the universities. The struggle of the poor man's son for education fits him for any battle of life. The great game in education is more for the poor than for the rich. The money left by rich men to their sons is more often a curse than a blessing. (Applause.) England today is completing of the rivalry of Germany. This is due to the enforced education of Germany. If England would shut up her gin mills and her breweries, her supremacy would be supreme. We of Canada look to the south for capital, but this will cease with education. Our country has the raw material to raise prosperity and place us amid the highest of nations. He then went on to speak of the audience room of the new building that will enable scholars to meet and exchange ideas. No boarding school has as brilliant a staff of teachers as we have right here in Peterborough.

Here the proceedings were terminated by Dr Burnham calling for three cheers for the King, which were heartily rendered.

POLICE MAGISTRATE AGREES WITH TIMES

Mr. Dumble In Entire Sympathy with Article Advocating Corporal Punishment

Magistrates Handicapped in the Matter of Properly Punishing Boys

At the conclusion of yesterday morning's Police Court, Magistrate Dumble requested The Times reporter present to come to the rostrum. This the wielder of pencil and numble exponent of current news did in fear and trembling, thinking that possibly something had been said in his paper by accident or mistake, as happens occasionally in every paper published in the world. When our scribe reached the desk from behind which fines, forgiveness and fair play are fulminated or fixed, he was saved an attack of nervous prostration by noticing that his Worship was in evident good humor.

The Magistrate began by saying, "Mr. —— I read that attack in your paper this morning." The scribe was pleased to learn that his words had come to the attention of the poobah of local justice. He, of course, knew which article was referred to and proceeded to explain that such arguments as were used therein were well based and beyond contradiction, that Mr. Dumble might attempt to refute said arguments. However, Mr. Dumble went on to say, "What your paper said was well put and absolutely correct. You have got the right idea on this matter of advocating that police magistrates should be given the power to order corporal punishment inflicated on juvenile criminals or incorrigible boys." He then explained further that, as noted in our issue of Yesterday that he and other magistrates were handicapped in the matter of properly punishing boys by law. Some years ago the county judge, the county magistrate and himself had written the Attorney-General on this subject, showing that by sending bad boys to reformatories would bring them into contact with seasoned criminals and put the city to expense, and also that the too frequent custom of letting them go on suspended sentence did not accomplish the desired results. The Attorney-General had replied to their letter in sympathetic terms, but explained that parliament would not pass legislation placing the power in magistrate's hands to inflict sentences of flogging. Now, whilst not wanting to "throw boquets" at our esteemed City Police Magistrate, there is no doubt but that if all the magistrates of Ontario of the same mental calibre and possessed of the same legal acumen and discernment that characterizes the decisions of Mr. Dumble, parliament would quickly trust them with the power of exercising their discretion in the matter of applying a strap or birch rod to incorrigible boys who are too often under the curse of having weak-kneed, careless, improvident or drunken parents. By a somewhat singular coincidence yesterday morning's Police Court had a case that absolutely and uncontradictably corroborated our article noticed by Mr Dumble. A small boy was proven guilty of stealing an express cart from still another boy. This small prisoner only three days before was found guilty of stealing a watch but was allowed to go on "suspended sentence." Now, what use is there in this farce of suspended sentence when a boy handed out such a punishment (?) for a proven crime, will in three days commit another crime of similar nature?

Mr Dumble in his remarks yesterday told our scribe that he had clipped our article on this subject out and was sending it to the Attorney-General, Toronto.

Council Vote Hilliard Homestead For A Children's Shelter

The City Council met at 10.40 last night, with the following present;—Mayor McWilliams, and Aldermen Stevenson, Morgan, Leary, McIntyre, Elliott and Johnston.

Ald. Leary moved, seconded by Ald Johnston,—That this council with the permission of the City Trust Commissioners, give the Children's Aid Society a lease of the old Hilliard homestead and adjacent land—a little over an acre—for a children's shelter, at a nominal rental of $1 a year; said lease to run for 21 years with the provision that at the end of five years the lease can be cancelled on the city giving six months notice, and pay for cost of improvements; the society to make their own improvements and keep the property in good repair.

Carried.

The council then adjourned.

THE PROPOSED NEW CHILDREN'S HOME

Disoussed by Property Com. and Members of City Trust and Children's Aid Society

SOCIETY WILL SPEND $700

In Improvements on the Hilliard Property for Which They May Get 21 Years' Lease

The Property Committee of the City Council met Mr. Burnham and Mr P. Campbell, president and treasurer, respectively, of the Children's Aid Society; and Mr. W. H. Moore, chairman of the Commissioners of the Town Trust, with a view to arranging for a site for a permanent home for the Children's Aid Society, as the present shelter may have to be vacated on short notice.

Mr. Burnham offered that the Hilliard house on the town property would be admirably suited for a children's shelter, although the whole building would be needed, the society could not do with the back portion only, as proposed by some people. The society would have to spend from $500 to $,00 in providing an artificial sewer, installing water connection covering 500 feet, installing electric lights, etc. The society is doing admirable work, and ranks fourth in the Province. Mr. and Mrs. Henry, who are splendid managers of the shelter, are well pleased with the Hilliard building for a permanent home, and urged that an acre and a half of land would be a highly appreciated and very valuable adjunct to the house. Mr. Burnham concluded with the contention that the city might very well let the society have this property on lease at a very nominal rent, and also continue the annual grant of $300. The demands on the Children's Aid Society, will naturally grow year by year, especially in view of the large number of immigrants coming to the country; and the present building is totally inadequate for present needs.

Mr. W. H. Moore, chairman Town Trust Commissioners, agreed that the property in question is a very desirable site for a shelter, but the commissioners could not move in the matter without the city council's approval. He pointed out that the property is valued at $3000 at least, and the city is at present getting a revenue of $120 a year for the front half of the house, while with an expenditure of $50 or $60 the rear portion could be rented for another $120; this would mean a yearly revenue of $240. Mr. Moore did not think the Water Commissioners would allow the water main fronting the Hilliard property, as that is the main feed pipe. Mr. Moore also pointed out that the building in question is and would be an expensive house to heat, to which Mr. Burnham acquiesced.

Mr. Stenton has a lease of the front portion of the Hilliard house which has eight years to run yet.

Mr. Burnham offered that Mrs. Stenton had informed him she was quite willing to meet the Children's Aid Society when they are ready to take possession of the property.

To the mayor, Mr. Moore agreed should the council agree to let the society have this property on a 21-years' lease, at a nominal rental of $1 a year, which is the proposition in sight, then the Town Trust and Property Committee will hold a joint meeting at an early date, with a view to reaching an agreement on the question. REMODELLING OF THE OLD FIRE HALL

Decided on by the City Council Last Night-- Will Cost $800

Several plans for remodelling the old fire hall and present city offices were again considered by the Property Committee of the City Council last night. While it has been advanced that it would be better to remodel the old fire hall for rent, erect a new $100,000 city hall, it is generally conceded that in view of the demands for so much permanent work in the way of sewers and sidewalks, together with the city's indebtedness for the new Collegiate Institute, King Edward and north ward schools, and the waterworks, it would be useless to ask the ratepayers to vote $100,000 for city hall purposes until the lapse of at least another ten years. The committee therefore would not agree committee therefore would not entertain any scheme for new city buildings, but have spent considerable time in discussing plans for thoroughly remodelling both the old fire hall and present city offices, at an expenditure of $3,000, or for remodelling the fire hall only at a cost of about $1,000. It is absolutely advisable to provide at least increased accommodation of committee purposes, for the treasurer, and for the city engineer and tax collector, the present rent for the latter two offices standing the town $150 a year. The council, of course, are anxious to save this rent as soon as possible.

After considerable deliberation on this vexed question in Committee of the Whole, Ald. Stevenson moved, seconded by Ald. Leary, that the Committee of the Whole considered it inadvisable at present to proceed with any general alterations of the city buildings at present, and recommended the council to accept the original plans prepared by the Property Committee for repairing and fitting up the old fire hall only for city offices; and also recommended that the present committee room be enlarged by extending it westward to the vaults.—Carried.

Ald. Morgan moved, seconded by Ald McIntyre,—That the city engineer have the supervision of this work, which shall be done by day labor. This labor to be paid for on certificate of the engineer.—Carried.

REPAIR MARKET SCALES

Ald. Stevenson moved, seconded by Ald. McIntyre,—That the engineer be instructed to repair the market scales according to previous recommendations.—Carried.

The committee did not take any definite action on Mr. Denham's request for permission to divert the road line of Hunter street, parallel to the Quaker Oats building.

NO BAIL FOR PETTIBONE

Boise, Idaho, Aug. 1.—Formal application was made in the District Court yesterday to have George A. Pettibone admitted to bail. The motion was submitted without argument, and was promptly denied by Judge Wood.

Guggenhein-Greenwater

Copper Prospect at Ely

I want every reader of this paper who has a spark of spunk in him to buy a few shares in the Guggenheim Greenwater Copper Company. I can sell it to you now for a mere song—5 cents a share. Every share is of treasury stock, par value $1, full paid up and non-assessable.

I have a poor idea of that man's courage who dares not risk $5 on the chance to make $100. If there is any better buy in the mining market today than a $100 certificate for five dollars; I have never heard of it. This company owns two groups of claims in two copper districts—Ely and Greenwater. It is developing first its group at Ely, and has a shaft down 50 feet with indications of a strike of ore in the next 50 feet.

Every man who reads this advertisement has read the stories from Ely, Nev. He knows as well as I do that experts report there is enough copper ore already in sight in the Ely district to keep ten smelters of immense capacity, going for the next one hundred years. One 15,000 ton smelter is already being built by the Guggenheims, and other reduction plants of gigantic capacity are projected. Ely is unquestionably one of the greatest copper districts in the world.

This property is located on the great zone of porphyry which carries the copper values. And I tell you honestly that I would as soon put a few dollars into this prospect and take a chance of its making a big mine as into any mining investment within the range of possibility.

See me about this investment at once. I can fill all orders today for anything up to 10,000 shares at 5 cents. That price is sure to advance sharply any day that news comes of a strike. Buy now at 5 cents.

GUGGENHEIM GREENWATER

HARDIE SHOULD EXPLAIN

"In the person of Mr. Kier Hardie British Socialism sent us its foremost champion. It might have been too much to expect that as a passing guest he should go into the main question and tell us precisely what Socialists mean to do and how they mean to do it," says Goldwin Smith. "What is the form of Government which they desire? How do they propose to set it up, and with what powers will they invest it? What measure of private liberty would they leave? How far would they respect the right of private property? On all these points most of us are still much in the dark. Mr. Kier Hardie tells us that when Socialism reigns every child shall have a square meal once a day. Are the children of the improvident to be fed at the cost of the provident? If they are will not improvidence be apt to increase? How long will the largess fund hold out? Will those whose earnings and savings have been expropriated go to work again, like bees whose hive has been taken, to furnish funds for a second expropriation? A clear, exact and practicable statement of the Socialist policy stamped by such an authority as that of Mr. Kier Hardie would be very welcome. Personally Mr. Hardie made a very favorable impression. Unhappily while it is in the hands of such men that revolutions may begin, it is not in the hands of such men that revolutions end.

STILL HELD GUILTY

The verdict of the jury at the great trial at Haywood free, but public opinion has rendered this verdict. Under the Idaho statute the jury could not convict on Orchard's testimony, even if they believed it, unless it was supported by corroborative evidence of the character described by the judge. Public opinion is not bound by the Idaho statute. Among those who are not ardent sympathizers of Haywood and his federation the belief of the greater number is that Orchard's repentance, or confession, is genuine, and his story—which there was considerable outside evidence to corroborate—substantially true.

Haywood has been [illegible] is a reasonable assumption that Moyer and Pettibone will be [illegible] But they will remain in public estimation "undesirable citizens", and the Western Federation of Miners, of which they were the ruling spirits, an undesirable organization. The trial has given the general public full information as to its criminal methods in Cogorado and elsewhere. It has been exposed as a murderous organization, and, though the crimes it has committed may go unpunished from that exposure, it cannot recover.

Now that the trial is over there can be no impropriety in saying a word about Mr. Darrow's so-called argument. What effect it may have had upon the jury is unknown, though it probably provoked a feeling of disgust. There is no room for doubt as to the effect upon the reading public. It was that the defendant had blundered grossly in the choice of his counsel. The Idaho jury heard the most unseemly, abusive, inflammatory speech ever delivered in an American courtroom. It was not an argument. It was a tirade against religion, morality and law. For these Mr. Darrow had only scoffs and sneers. Of the question before the court he had little to say. He preferred to use the time in arousing passion and prejudice. "What are constitutions for," said he, "except to be used for the rich and destroy the laws made for the poor? This is the willingness of an anarchist, not the language of a lawyer who has taken an oath to support at least one constitution. There are a great many people in America as well as Canadian, who have never heard of Mr. Darrow before the Haywood trial. His introduction to them has been of such a nature that they will not care to hear any more of him.

Prisoner Made to Run at Point of Revolver

New York, July 31.—Compelling one prisoner at the point of a revolver to run with him, Detective Campbell, of the West 125th street station, yesterday afternoon pursued a second man for nearly half a mile, and finally captured him in an open street car, which was surrounded by a frightened crowd of one thousand persons.

With his revolver levelled at them, and followed by a big crowd, Campbell then marched his two prisoners from 141st street to the 125th street station, where they were locked up.

The detective started after the two men, William Ryan and James Higgins, after they had left a pawnshop, where they tried to sell a typewriter. He quickly came up with Ryan, but Higgins was a fleet runner, and Campbell saw that he could for the time it he expected to overtake him. Drawing his revolver, he pointed it at Ryan and told him he would shoot him if he didn't run with him. Ryan did the best he could but he greatly delayed the detective. Campbell fired several shots to alarm Higgins, and [illegible] persons who were sitting on their verandahs along Bradhurst avenue.

The neighborhood had been aroused by the cry of "Thief!" and as Higgins turned into 141st street he was pursued by a large crowd. He sped through to Eighth avenue and leaped into an open car which had just stopped at the crossing. When Campbell and his prisoner arrived there were 1,000 persons around the car and Higgins was trying to get the motorman to go on. Campbell pushed his way through the crowd, aimed his revolver at Higgins and threatened to shoot him unless he surrendered. Higgins did so, and the crowd cheered Campbell as he started off single-handed with the two men.

The men declared that the pawnbroker had been given to them by a small boy.

BETRAYED BY A SNEEZE

New York, July 31.—Ragged and with the whites of the eyes shining through a heavy coating of grime, two small boys were dragged from the coal bin in a vacant house in No. 23 West 127th street last night by Detectives McManus and Fullerton and locked up on the charge of burglary. A sneeze betrayed them.

According to their own confession, the boys lived in the house two nights ago with their leader, known only as "Rusty." They got a great lot of lead pipe and decamped with it. Yesterday the two boys returned without "Rusty."

A woman who lives across the street from the vacant house saw the boys climb down the coal chute and she notified the police. The detectives searched from the roof to the cellar, and although they found that the plumbing had been torn apart to get lead pipe, they could not find the boys. The men were standing in the cellar, about to give up the search, when they heard a rustle in a coal bin which was filled. Then they [illegible] They soon [illegible]

Sandbags in a Coffin

Copenhagen, July 31.—A Swedish insurance company recently paid the well-known painter Lindstroem, then residing at Ekstroem, $25,000 upon the death of his wife subsequently upon examining the death certificate it was found to be irregular.

An order was obtained for the exhumation of the body, and it was found that the coffin contained three sacks of sand.

Lindstroem and his wife are supposed to have gone to America.

THE PLATE RACK.

It May Be a Decorative Bit or a Discordant Note.

Plate racks tell many a tale of taste, or, rather, of the lack of it. One's collection, made by a series of contributions, may consist of many and varied ideas on the subject, but the plates displayed around a wall should be simple and dignified in style anything that is garish carefully preserved in the darkest, deepest corner of a closet or intrusted to the hands of a servant who has made herself famous for her "outbreaks in china."

Seriously, though, that plate rack is either a bit of attractive decoration or an inharmonious something which spoils the whole room, no matter how carefully every other part of the furnishings has been chosen.

So called handsome pieces are to be avoided. They are usually conspicuous in every sense of the word—a confusion of color and design without a single really attractive feature about them. They are usually expensive, these monstrosities in the shape of gift plates, for surely nobody ever went so far as to buy one to live with! Less expensive plates are passed over purposely in spite of the fact that their dignity of style and an exquisite simplicity of coloring make for the prettiest sort of decoration.

Avoid those plates which are gay with a profusion of highly colored roses, perhaps made still more striking (?) by a broad band of green—the strong, insistent shades of the fields and trees in midsummer—touched off (save the mark!) with irresponsible splashes of gilt. They cost probably $1.50 and make, as one woman said, with unconscious irony, "such a showing for your money."

There is a rule that is worth adhering to in choosing such plates, and that is to choose only simple designs and colorings, unless you do, as one woman did, make a hobby of collecting plates of certain [illegible] kind. She went in for Chinese plates and used only the pretty variations of porcelain and its kindred wares, with the result that the plate rack was interesting in its orientalism.

Another woman, whose dining room is quite house, in fact—was a copy of quaint old English styles, used only old plates of English make on her rack, picking them up one at a time.

SLEEVE HOLDER.

Ingenious Contrivance For Preventing Crushing of the Sleeve.

If it were permissible, many a young lady would be tempted to use a cuss word every time she puts on her coat. We have all watched her struggle in the attempt to tuck the big balloon sleeves of her waist into the armholes of the coat. Naturally it must be uncomfortable to have the inner sleeve bunched at the shoulder. An ingenious Englishwoman has invented a simple contrivance which does away with all these trying perplexities, and she thinks so highly of the device that she has had it patented in the United States. As shown in the illustration, it comprises a narrow elastic band, having on each end a ring, one being larger than the other. Attached to the band is a double cord. In using this device the band is formed into a lasso (by slipping the smaller ring through the larger one), which is slipped over the end of the sleeve of the waist. The free end of the band is then secured to the thumb by the ring. The cord is attached to the little finger. After slipping the arm into the sleeve of the coat the ring on the thumb is released and the band pulled out of the armhole by means of the cord.

SLEEVE HOLDER.

To Broil a Steak.

Few housewives understand the art of broiling, and consequently chops and steaks are often robbed of their delicate flavor by frying in a pan.

A steak or chop properly broiled should have a thin, well browned crust. Beyond this crust the meat should be red and juicy, hardly a shade less done in the middle than near the surface.

If the broiling is to be done on a range, have the fire very bright and clear. Open every draft, that smoke and flames may be drawn up the chimney. Place the piece of meat in the double broiler and hold it as near the coals as possible until the surface is brown, turning frequently. It will take three or four minutes for this. Now raise the broiler several inches above the bed of coals and continue the cooking until the meat is done.

The broiler must be turned often. A good rule is to count ten slowly, then turn the broiler. A steak or chop cut a little more than an inch thick will cook slowly in ten minutes. If liked well done, it should be cooked for twelve minutes.

The Money That's Being Made in Western Canada LAND

In October, 1906 we sold 5,000 acres of Saskatchewan lands to an Indiana party of men at $8 per acre, and resold it this year at $12, making just about 100 per cent, on the money invested.

A Montreal party of men who bought 10,000 acres from us at $8 per acre last September, resold through us within three months at $10.00 per acre.

A Chicago client writes us that after making some improvements on a "section" she bought near Regina, one year ago, she sold out recently for exactly twice what she paid for the land.

We resold a section of land located near Lipton for a man at $18.00 per acre last April, which we sold him in December at $12.00.

Men there are growing wealthy who never knew success in any other line. You can make money here too, if you think your amount too small club it with a few friends. Some of the most prominent financial men in the United States and Eastern Canada are now interested in this country heavily.

We own about 200,000 acres of the finest wheat and mixed farming lands in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.—Picked lands on which we are prepared to give accurate trustworthy information, and these tracts being portions of extremely large purchases, we can sell them at prices that cannot be equalled, quality of land considered, by any firm in this country.

Prices range from $6.00 per acre upwards Reasonable Terms in every case

Write us for further information and when doing so tell us the class and amount of an investment you desire, and whether you want the land for your own use or for investment purposes purely. $1,000 is about the minimum we can handle. References Union Bank and Traders' Bank, Winnipeg.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry must be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made on certain conditions, by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) If the father (or mother if the father is deceased) of the homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Six months' notice in writing should be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of intention to apply for patent.

THE CONQUEST of CANAAN

By BOOTH TARKINGTON,
Author of "Cherry," "Monsieur Beaucaire," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1905, BY HARPER & BROTHERS

"Oh, Joe," she cried, "I knew! I knew it was there, but to see it! And it's my fault for leaving you. I had to go or I wouldn't have—I"—

"Where'd you hear about it?" he asked shortly.

"I haven't been to bed," she answered. "Grandfather and I were up all night at Uncle Jonas', and Colonel Pitcroft came about 2 o'clock, and he told us."

"Did he tell you about Norbert?"

"Yes—a great deal." She poured coffee into a cup from a pot on the stove, brought it to him, then, placing some thin slices of bread upon a gridiron, began to toast them over the hot coals. "The colonel said that Norbert thought he wouldn't get well," she concluded, "and Mr. Arp said Norbert was the kind that never die, and they had quite an argument."

"What were you doing at Jonas Tabor's?" asked Joe, drinking his coffee, with a brightening eye.

"We were sent for," she answered.

"What for?"

She toasted the bread attentively without replying, and when she decided that it was brown enough piled it on a warm plate. This she brought to him and, kneeling in front of him, her elbow on his knee, offered for his consideration, looking steadfastly up at his eyes. He began to eat ravenously.

"What for?" he repeated. "I didn't suppose Jonas would let you come in his house. Was he sick?"

"Joe," she said quietly, disregarding his questions—"Joe, have you got to run away?"

"Yes, I've got to," he answered.

"Would you have to go to prison if you stayed?" She asked this with a breathless tensity.

"I'm not going to beg father to help me out," he said determinedly. "He said he wouldn't, and he'll be spared the chance. He won't mind that; nobody will care! Nobody! What does anybody care what I do?"

"Now you're thinking of Mamie!" she cried. "I can always tell. Whenever you don't talk naturally you're thinking of her!"

He poured down the last of the coffee, growing red to the tips of his ears. "Ariel," he said, "if I ever come back"—

"Wait," she interrupted. "Would you have to go to prison right away if they caught you?"

"Oh, it isn't that," he laughed sadly. "But I'm going to clear out. I'm not going to take any chances. I want to see other parts of the world, other kinds of people. I might have gone, anyhow, soon, even if it hadn't been for last night. Don't you ever feel that way?"

"You know I do," she said. "I've told you—how often! But, Joe, Joe, you haven't any money! You've got to have money to live!"

"You needn't worry about that," returned the master of $7 genially. "I've saved enough to take care of me for a long time."

"Joe, please! I know it isn't so. If you could wait just a little while—only a few weeks—only a few, Joe"—

"What for?"

"I could let you have all you want. It would be such a beautiful thing for me, Joe. Oh, I know how you'd feel. You wouldn't even let me give you that dollar I found in the street last year, but this would be only lending it to you, and you could pay me back some time"—

"Ariel!" he exclaimed and, setting his empty cup upon the floor, took her by the shoulders and shook her till the empty plate which had held the toast dropped from her hand and broke into fragments. "You've been reading the 'Arabian Nights!'"

"No, no!" she cried vehemently. "Grandfather would give me anything. He'll give me all the money I ask for."

"Money!" said Joe. "Which of us is wandering? Money? Roger Tabor give you money?"

"Not for a while. A great many things have to be settled first."

"What things?"

"Joe," she asked earnestly, "do you think it's bad of me not to feel things I ought to feel?"

"No."

"Then I'm glad," she said, and something in the way she spoke made him start with pain, remembering the same words, spoken in the same tone, by another voice the night before on the verandah. "I'm glad, Joe, because I seemed all wrong to myself. Uncle Jonas died last night, and I haven't been able to get sorry. Perhaps it's because I've been so frightened about you, but I think not, for I wasn't sorry even before Colonel Pitcroft told me about you."

"Jonas Tabor dead?" said Joe. "Why I saw him on the street yesterday!"

"Yes, and I saw him just before I came out on the porch where you were. He was there in the hall. He and Judge Pike had been having a long talk. They'd been in some speculations together, and it had all turned out well. It's very strange, but they say now that Uncle Jonas' heart was weak—he was an old man, you know, almost eighty—and he'd been very anxious about his money. The judge had persuaded him to risk it, and the shock of finding that he'd made a great deal suddenly"—

"I've heard he'd had that same shock before," said Joe, "when he sold out to your father."

"Yes, but this was different, grandfather says. He told me it was in one of those big risky businesses that Judge Pike likes to go into. And last night it was all finished, the strain was over, and Uncle Jonas died happy. His house is only a little way from the Pikes', you know, but he dropped down in the snow at his own gate, and some people who were going by saw him fall. He was dead before grandfather got there."

She put her hand on the boy's arm, and he let it remain there. Her eyes still sought his with a tremulous appeal.

"God bless you, Ariel!" he said. "It's going to be a great thing for you."

"Yes—yes; it is." The tears came suddenly to her eyes. "I was foolish last night, but there had been such a long time of wanting things, and now—and now grandfather and I can go"—

"You're going, too!" Joe chuckled.

"It's heartless, I suppose, but I've settled it. We're going"—

"I know," he cried. "You've told me a thousand times what he's said ten times a thousand. You're going to Paris."

"Paris! Yes; that's it. To Paris, where he can see at last how the great ones have painted—where the others can show him! To Paris, where we can study together, where he can learn how to put the pictures he sees upon canvas, and where I"—

"Go on," Joe encouraged her. "I want to hear you say it. You don't mean that you're going to study painting. You mean that you're going to learn how to make such fellows as Eugene ask you to dance. Go ahead and say it."

"Yes—to learn how to dress," she said.

Joe was silent for a moment. Then he rose and took the ragged overcoat from the back of his chair. "Where's that muffler?" he asked.

She brought it from where she had placed it to dry, behind the stove.

"Joe," she said huskily, "can't you wait till"—

"Till the estate is settled and you can coax your grandfather to"—

"No, no! But you could go with us."

"To Paris?"

"He would take you as his secretary."

HENPECKED.

A half a hundred hens one day—
At least the story goes—
Talked o'er their rights and wrongs and then
In hot rebellion rose.

The rooster had been lord of all—
A cruel tyrant he.
They sought to take him down a peg
Or two or maybe three.

One squawk, then at him did they fly
And picked and scratched like mad.
They drove him here and dragged him there,
And used him very bad.

The wrath of months fell on his head;
The job was very clean.
He looked as though he'd filtered through
A harvesting machine.

And since that day the world has come
To this conclusion terse—
A henpecked man looks bad enough,
A henpecked rooster worse.

Weak Women

To weak and ailing women, there is at least one way to help. But with that way, two treatments, must be combined. One is local, one is constitutional, but both are important, both essential.

Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is the Local.

Dr. Shoop's Restorative, the Constitutional.

The former—Dr. Shoop's Night Cure—is a topical mucous membrane suppository remedy, while Dr. Shoop's Restorative is wholly an internal treatment. The Restorative reaches throughout the entire system, making the repair of all nerve, all tissue, and all blood ailments.

The "Night Cure", as its name implies, does its work while you sleep. It soothes sore and inflamed mucous surfaces, heals local weaknesses and discharges, while the Restorative, eases nervous excitement, gives renewed vigor and ambition, builds up wasted tissues, bringing about renewed strength, vigor, and energy. Take Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—as a general tonic to the system. For positive local help, use as well

A Rebuff For Dr. Johnson.

Dr. Johnson called one morning on Benjamin West to converse with him on American affairs. After some time Mr. West said that he had a young American (Gilbert Stuart) living with him, from whom he might derive some information, and introduced Stuart. The conversation continued (Stuart being thus invited to take a part in it), when the doctor observed to Mr. West that the young man spoke very good English and, turning to Stuart, rudely asked him where he had learned it. Stuart very promptly replied: "Sir, I can better tell you where I did not learn it. It was not from your dictionary."

An Egg in a Bottle.

A chemist has discovered a simple means of getting an egg (with unbroken shell) into a bottle of, say, the ordinary kind, used for ginger ale. All you have to do is to soak a boiled egg in vinegar for three days. The shell becomes so soft that it can easily be forced through the narrow aperture of the bottle. And once it is inside if it is soaked in water for a little while the eggshell resumes its original hardness—and there you are!

Nothing will build you up with the certainty of Ferrozone. Thousands it has cured who never hoped to be well and here is ample proof—substantiated by one of Nova Scotia's prominent writers.

"Before taking the first box of Ferrozone," writes Mrs. Annie Jeffry, of Sandy Cove, N. S., "my condition was deplorable. Though I employed the most skilful medical aid, I grew steadily weaker. In fact, I was in such a low condition that it was impossible for me to walk across the room. My heart was very weak, and I suffered from terrible palpitations, which the doctors said were from troubles peculiar to women. Friends urged me to try Ferrozone, and I bought six boxes. When I had used the third box my old-time vigor and strength returned. The palpitation ceased, my appetite increased, and I got a good rosy color in my cheeks. It would be impossible to speak too highly of Ferrozone. All weak women should use it. I hope many suffering sisters will use Ferrozone for it will surely cure them."

Rev. J. C. Morse, D.D., pastor of the Baptist Church, Sandy Cove, bears witness to the recovery of Mrs. Jeffry, and writes: "This is to certify that Mrs. Annie Jeffry is a lady upon whose word you can depend. I have known her since childhood, and believe her to be a truthful, honest woman." This adds additional force to the testimony of Mrs. Jeffry, and gives assurance to other sufferers that Ferrozone does what is claimed for it. Three weeks' treatment costs 50c., or six boxes for $2.50 at all druggists.

Carters Must Use Shelter

At a meeting of the city police commissioners held yesterday, the Carters' Bylaw was amended according to the request of the city council, the amendment prohibiting the carters using any part of the public streets as a stand. This will probably result in the newly-erected shelter coming into general use by the carters.

Port Hope Pedestrian Honored

Port Hope's 56-year-old walking barber, Jimmie Reynolds, who recently made a plucky attempt to walk from Port Hope to Toronto and return in 38 hours, was the recipient on Tuesday evening of a purse of $250 in gold at a public reception given in his honor in the drill shed by the local band and citizens of the town. Ex-Mayor White made the presentation and Reynolds made a suitable reply, in the course of which he announced his intention to again attempt the feat in October.

PROPOSED NEW SHELTER

missioners will have to consent to relinquishing the present revenue of $120, and a possible revenue of $240, from this property before the city council can definitely act in this matter. The tenor of Mr. Moore's remarks pointed to his personal sympathy with the proposition, but as a trustee of city property he felt it his duty to draw attention to the loss to the city in present revenue and a possible increased revenue, which would result in leasing the building for shelter purposes.

P. C. Newhall Gets Leave of Absence

At a meeting of the city police commissioners held yesterday morning, P. C. Newhall was given six weeks leave of absence. It is understood that Mr. Newhall will leave shortly on a trip to London, England. Mr. Newhall was on the police force of that city for some time, when he learned many useful wrinkles in the detection of criminals.

Omemee Parson Offered a Job

It is rumored that the assistant rectorship of St. John's church, Toronto, has been offered to the Rev. J. H. Teney, rector of Omemee. The present rector, Rev. Alex. Williams, is about to retire from the active ministry, and has written Rev. Mr. Teney regarding the matter. Whether Mr. Teney will accept the offer could not be ascertained.

A Buckhorn Man Talks

Mr. Alex. Spence of Buckhorn, has been in the city for a few days. He reports that the hay is all in and that the fall wheat is ripe. He says that the county is fed with the plentiful crop of raspberries. He left last night for home. Mr. Spence further noted that Mr. Pearson's "Rockland Hotel" in Harvey township is full up, 47 boarders being present. Tom Eastwood's hotel is also filled to its utmost capacity, mainly Americans from Pennsylvania. The fishing out about Buckhorn is better than it has been for years.

$100 REWARD, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood an dmucous surfaces of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer one hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Peterboro Market Is a Forgotten Event

Those good housewives who yesterday visited the city market in search of butter met with disappointment. There was not a pound of butter to be had, although there were enough housekeepers there to purchase a few hundred pounds. By actual count there were pails of berries and three chickens offered for sale. Butter, light weight, right weight, or over weight, was not there; it was sought for in vain. On the market square five hogs were offered for sale, and the buyers numbered fourteen.

Miss Thompson Left Last Night for London

Miss Birdie Thompson, Peterborough's successful representative with the 11 young ladies who will take the trip to London as guests of the Toronto World, left the city yesterday. A special coach was attached to the C.P.R. train leaving Toronto at ten o'clock, and passed through here at 12.26. Miss Thompson joined the party here, and a number of her friends in the city were at the station to wish her bon voyage. Upon arrival at Montreal this morning the party will be taken on a tour around the city, and will go aboard the steamer Virginian tonight, ready for sailing at daybreak the following morning.

Miss Thompson's many friends here will wish her a pleasant and safe journey. Peterborough is being well represented on the trip.

Local Cheese Board Met Yesterday

Cheese in Peterboro Has Taken a Drop in Price

The local Cheese Board met yesterday morning and cheese dropped in price. There were eleven buyers about the board, who were anxious to get the cheese but would not go beyond the price named to secure it.

The number of cheese boarded yesterday were 4,595 boxes, and all, except four factories, were sold, the greater portion selling at 10 13-16 cents, and the balance at 10 3-4 cents. The board adjourned for two weeks.

The buyers present were Messrs. Cook, Whitton, Gillespie, Squires, Jones, Grant, Wrighton, Morton, Clemes, Weir and Brentnell.

Mr. Wrighton opened the bidding at 10c, and it was raised by Mr. Whitten to 10 1-16c, when other bidders quickly raised the prices as noted.

Pretty Wedding Celebrated at Residence of Mr. Johnston Greer

Yesterday morning at the residence of Mr. Johnston H. Greer, 704 George street, his daughter, Miss Violet J., was united in marriage to Mr. Harry J. Bakes, son of Mr. Wm. Bakes, of Campbellford. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. E. A. Pearson, of the George street Methodist church, and was attended by about forty-five guests, many of them being from out of the city. The bride was prettily attired in a costume of dotted Swiss with lace insertion and white ribbon trimmings. Mabel Ash, of Cobourg, who was bridesmaid and was attended by her cousin, Miss Harly dressed. Mr. Harry Shore of Campbellford, a cousin of the groom, was groomsman. The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome silver tea service, and to the bridesmaid a gold locket and chain.

Mr. and Mrs. Bakes left on the two o'clock G.T.R. train for their future home in Campbellford, accompanied by the best wishes of their numerous Peterborough friends for a long and prosperous wedded life.

Lord Douglas in Trade

Marquis of Queensbury's Son Works for Jewellery House

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 1.—Lord Sholto Douglas, son of the late Marquis of Queensbury, the framer of the prize ring rules, whose detention in the jail at Portland, Me., created a stir all over the country until it was proved that the police had arrested the wrong man, has come to Spokane country to recoup the fortune he lost in South African and American railway securities. He has dropped his title and is working early and late in the interest of a jewellery house of Detroit, Mich. He takes his losses in a philosophical way, declaring he never knew the value of a dollar until he was forced to earn it through his own endeavors.

Speaking of his arrest at his summer home on the main coast a year ago, he said;

"I spent three days in jail at Portland, and ought to remember it. That was one of the most peculiar experiences of my life. It seems that an Englishman, a man as big as two of me, was alleged to have eloped with another mans wife. It was believed the couple had gone to Portland, Me., I sailed into town, and, being the first Englishman in sight, the police nailed into me.

Lord Douglas is not a stranger in Spokane or in the inland empire of the Pacific Northwest. He was a rancher for a time in the Kootenay valley just across the British Columbia line, northeast of Spokane, and built a home as a settler under the Dominion homestead laws.

Words of Praise

For the several ingredients of which Dr. Pierce's medicines are composed, as given by leaders in all the several schools of medicine, should have far more weight than any amount of non-professional testimonials. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has THE BADGE OF HONESTY on every bottle-wrapper, in a full list of all its ingredients printed in plain English.

If you are an invalid woman and suffer from frequent headache, backache, gnawing distress in stomach, periodical pains, disagreeable, catarrhal, pelvic drain, dragging-down distress in lower abdomen or pelvis, perhaps dark spots or specks dancing before the eyes, faint spells and kindred symptoms caused by female weakness, or other derangement of the feminine organs, you can not do better than take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

The hospital, surgeon's knife and operating table may be avoided by the timely use of "Favorite Prescription" in many cases. Thereby the abominations and local treatment of the family physician can be avoided and a thorough course of successful treatment carried out in the privacy of the home. "Favorite Prescription" is composed of the very best native medicinal roots known to medical science for the cure of woman's peculiar ailments, contains no alcohol and no harmful or habit-forming drugs.

Do not expect too much from "Favorite Prescription;" it will not perform miracles; it will not dissolve or cure tumors. No medicine will. It will do as much to establish vigorous health in most weaknesses and ailments peculiarly incident to women as any medicine can. It must be given a fair chance by perseverance in its use for a reasonable length of time.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free. All correspondence is guarded as sacredly secret and womanly confidences are protected by professional privacy. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets the best laxative and regulator of the bowels. They invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. One a laxative; two or three, a cathartic. Easy to take as candy.

HOODLUM CONDUCT CONDEMNED BY HIS HONOR JUDGE WELLER

The Judge Orders the Court Cleared Yesterday Afternoon

Because Manifested Disapproval of Witness Was Shown

Phelps, Bradford, and Goldfarp were Given 18 Months in the Central

Yesterday at 11 o'clock, his honor Judge Weller ascended the throne of justice at the county court room and the trial of the four alleged pickpockets. Phelps, Lewis, Bradford and Goldfarb, enlarged from Monday evening was resumed. The four prisoners all looked well though somewhat pale after their nearly six weeks' confinement.

The first witness called was Street Railway Con. O'Conners, who saw the four prisoners on his car at four p.m., June 25th, circus day. P. C. Newhall pointed out the prisoner Phelps. Newhall was not in full uniform.

Mr. O'Connell, counsel for two of the prisoners, objected to this evidence.

To Mr. O'Connell, witness said the schedule was laid down for the run from the suth end of the line to Central Park was four minutes. It takes 42 minutes for this round trip.

Harry Fowler, another street railway conductor, saw Phelps on his car, circus day, about 3 p.m. He got on at Crescent and Lock streets. He saw him doing nothing wrong.

Engineer Sam Wainwright, said he was at the Exhibition Grounds on June 25th. Saw the prisoners there. He found a pocket book at the second exhibition ground gate. He recognized the pocketbook produced in court. He gave it to P. C. Newhall next day.

To Mr. Kerr.—He found it about four feet inside the gate and just where hundreds of people were passing by.

Mr. J. H. Learmonth, managing director of the Peterborough Radial Railway Co., said he saw three of the prisoners. Bradford, Goldfarb and Phelps at the corner of Charlotte and George streets and again at Brock and George streets. The three jumped on an empty car going north. He took the number of the empty car and in a few minutes came back on a crowded car. They got off at Charlotte and George streets and got on another crowded car, and went to the circus grounds.

To Mr. O'Connell, witness said shortly after seeing the prisoners, he went to the police station, and notified P. C. Newhall, who went down on a car with him to the circus grounds. They all got off at the Exhibition grounds, and the prisoners went into the grounds.

Joseph Thomas, a street railway motorman, saw two of the prisoners get on his car June 25th, and the other two get aboard later on. They all sat together on the car.

For the defence, Mr. O'Connell called Inspector McCann of the Street Railway Co. He testified to the car schedule. The usual time from the river to Central Park is 14 minutes. On circus day the regular schedule was kept on George street with eight extra cars, the latter coming on about 12 o'clock. The traffic was very heavy from then to three p.m. The witness was closely examined and afterwards cross-examined by Mr. Wood as to the time on which the cars ran on circus day.

Mr. Fowler, teller of the Bank of Montreal here, said he has had long experience in counting up bank bills. Each day it is the custom during the day to keep count of the bills and as a certain sized bunch of bills, whether $20.50 or any other amount. Then the teller marks the top bill so as to save counting the lot beneath again. The result of this is that one can hardly pick up a bundle of bills without some of them being marked.

This closed the defence. Mr. O'Connell in speaking for his clients, said the crown had charged the four prisoners with picking pockets. No evidence had been brought against them except by the police constable. He had on June 25th, charged, that being ambitious, to distinguish himself, he started out that morning fully prepared to hunt down criminals as there would be large crowds of people in the city that day. He had a disguise prepared although he had no reason to believe that these or any other criminals would be picking pockets. The speaker, went on to describe the policeman's acts throughout the whole morning. After making as strong a plea as possible for the prisoners, he wound up by stating that even if three of the men were found guilty that nothing had been proven against the prisoner Lewis.

Mr Kerr followed in a strong plea for the prisoners, asserting their absolute innocence in the eyes of the law. It would be dangerous to the custom of the Canadian code, to convict, man upon such evidence as given by the Toronto detectives. He stated that police officers are anxious always to make convictions to satisfy their personal ambitions. He noted that Mr. Burl's evidence had no

Who Will Serve 18 Months in the Central Prison for Picking Pockets

Is There Another Josie Carr?--Girl Thieves Get Carts

Toronto, Aug. 2.—Are the children who were associated with Josie Carr at the time of the tragedy of two years ago trying to emulate her method of systematic thieving from baby carriages left in front of stores by women shoppers?

Or is there a new Josie Carr, liable to develop the same dangerous tendencies as her predecessor, if she, and her child companions, are not taken in charge and placed in some institution where they will be out of harm's way?

Several complaints have been made recently that parcels left in baby carriages and go-carts, and even the go-carts themselves, are being again systematically stolen from the alleyway between the T. Eaton Co.'s store and that of Gough Bros., the same that figured before in the Carr case.

The thieving is being done by small girls, from 9 to 14 years of age, who make a practice of playing about the entrance to the alleyway until a woman is seen to leave a baby carriage there. Then, as soon as she is out of sight, they take from the carriage such small articles as the owner may have left.

A go-cart was stolen from the alley-way yesterday morning — the owner came back in the afternoon in time to see a girl of 12 steal a parcel out of another go-cart — she caught hold of the child, and before she jerked herself away she admitted stealing the go-cart also. Then she fled.

A few minutes later a woman coming out of an adjoining store found she had lost a cup and saucer and two pairs of stockings from a baby carriage that she had left in the same alleyway.

The police have been notified.

Exception Taken to Brick in Col. Institute

It is Charged That the Board of Education is Using Cheap Material

A local man who seems not only to be well posted on the subject of various kinds of brick, and observant as to use, apparently found out that the Board of Education was using only common brick for the facing on the outside walls of the Collegiate Institute, instead of pressed brick. The Board of Education should not be permitted to erect an expensive building like that with common brick.

When one of the building committee was spoken to about it, he said that the board had to do it. They wanted to cut the price down as low as possible. The committeeman ventured to say that the difference would only be about $640 between common brick and pressed brick. An architect was asked to make an estimate of the difference and he put it at $1000. Then a well known contractor figured it out at $2,000. Even at $2,000 the change should be made, and at once.

Banks and McCallum will do an extensive business.

ARABS SLAUGHTER WHITE PEOPLE IN MOROCCAN CITY

Several Spanish and French Residents Were Cruelly Murdered

The Escort Provided by Pasha Were Forced to Make Their Escape.

France to Take Vigorous Action if Germany Will Agree

Phelps and Lewis

Convicted of Picking pockets

Acquitted of Picking Pockets

Tangier, Aug. 2.—Dr. Merel, who arrived here last night on the German ship which brought a number of Jews and other refugees from Casablanca is the bearer of a report to the French Charge d'Affairs here, showing that the slaughter of Europeans in Casablanca was an outcome of a holy war preached by the Arabs for the extermination of Europeans.

On Monday a number of Arab chiefs entered Casablanca and demanded that the harbor improvement works cease. The Pasha of Casablanca pointed out that this work was being done with the sanction of the Sultan, whereupon the chiefs replied that the Sultan was no longer their ruler, as he obeyed the Christians, they then began to incite the natives to exterminate all Jews and Europeans in the town.

MEN HACKED TO PIECES.

On Tuesday morning the natives began their attack by stoning a European, and when the man tried to flee he was surrounded and hacked to pieces. This was the signal for a general attack, and as soon as the danger became known the French and Spanish residents rushed to their respective consulates for protection. During this flight at least eight were murdered.

M. D'Euville, the French Consul, demanded that the pasha provide an escort for the recovery of the bodies. The Pasha pleaded at first that he had no cartridges, but upon further representations he finally supplied an escort. When this rescue party, however, reached the scene of attack it was charged by a number of Arab cavalrymen and forced into flight.

In the meantime, while the Jews and Christians were taking refuge on board the German ship the Mussulmans fired on the shore boat and the men employed on the harbor works, killing several men, whose bodies subsequently were burned. One woman who tried to swim off to a ship was shot down.

There was one German and one French steamer in the harbor at Casablanca when the German steamer pulled out.

It is feared that Casablanca will be invaded by twenty thousand Arabs today.

Judge Edminson Imposes a Fine 15 Cts. and Costs

Yesterday a case came up before his Worship Judge Edmison, county magistrate, where the significance of the fine imposed is not, for one moment, to be regarded as a precedent. It is well known that a splendid new steamer, the Otonabee, has this season been placed mainly on the Rice Lake route, though as well demonstrated, already well equipped and prepared to take, as she has so efficiently done, the Stony Lake route.

It seems that a charge of d. & d. against John Perkins, an employe of a local hotel was ventilated in the county police court yesterday before County Magistrate Edmison. Perkins, who is not altogether right in his head, was charged with having created a disturbance on board the steamer Otonabee during one of its Thursday afternoon trips. It was shown that a bunch of hoodlums had tormented him until he had used bad language and caused a disturbance.

The magistrate imposed a fine of 15c and costs, amounting in all to $5. The sum was paid. It might be noted right here that from the president of the Ontario Navigation Co., down to their humblest deck hand, there is a fixed and enforced idea that no man under influence of liquor will be permitted to disturbe the other travellers by this steamer or all Idyl Wyld. The moment a man shows visible symptoms of being under the influence of liquor, he will be landed in a nice sequestrated spot along the river where he may either sober up and catch the boat on its home trip or test the quality of his shoe leather in his walk home. All joking aside, this company will not stand for one instant for any alcoholic ticket buyer making himself a nuisance to others aboard.

CANDIAN PACIFIC'S GRAIN ROUTE TO SEA

Sir Thos. Shaugnessy to Visit Peterboro in This Connection

The Canadian Pacific Railway with its proverbial and unanimously admitted enterprise and unremitting efforts to advance the growth and prosperity of Canada, is again seeking the ways and means of accomplishing this purpose whilst at the same time extending its own sphere of action and consequent profit. There is no doubt but what the city of Peterborough, both from its consequence as a manufacturing center and its strategic location as regards railroad interests, commands much attention in the minds of these busy and well posted financiers and nation builders, the management of the Canadian Pacific Railway Co. It might be noted that Sir Thos. Shaugnessy, the president of this vast trans-continental railroad, accompanied by Mr. J. W. Leonard, the efficient assistant general manager, left Montreal Tuesday night on an inspection tour over the new lines which the company are building in Ontario—the new line through Muskoka to Sudbury, which is now in operation as far as Bala, and the new line from Guelph to Goderich. While on this important inspection trip Sir Thos. Shaugnessy will give special attention to the new grain route, so often noted in previous issues of The Times, between Victoria Harbor and the city of Peterborough. There is every reason to firmly believe that the C. P. R. president will not only give this important addition to their present system a most comprehensive and careful consideration but that he will take such steps as will assure Peterborough being given every accommodation and attention. When this new route is in full accomplished the immense traffic that will thus be ensured cannot but accomplish great results for this city. The large amount of new freight thus passing through our city will have a tendency to give work to many more men and will thus be of untold advantage to the city. It will do for Peterborough what every new railroad or canal has always done for the more important points through which it passes. In this case Peterborough will, in one sense, be a comparative terminal point. The very fact of the G. T. P. Railway being built as an ultimate competitor of the C. P. R. has impelled the latter road to spend millions of dollars in the Middle or Eastern Provinces, to meet the newly arisen conditions, and Peterborough, as a result of Sir Thos. Shaugnessy's present trip will gain a good share of this expenditure and reap never ending good results from the building of the new line referred to.

SIR THOMAS SHAUGNESSY

President Canadian Pacific Railway, Who Will, It is Expected, Visit Peterborough Shortly in Reference to the Proposed New C.P.R. Grain Route.

Power Questions are Under Consideration

A Toronto despatch says that the council of Peterborough has made formal application to the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission for the development of power on the Otonabee river and transmission to the city.

A letter has also been received from the village of Bancroft asking for particulars as to the cost of developing three hundred horse-power on the York Branch River.

Mr. Fairchild, C.E., of Simcoe, is in charge of the fourth party of surveyors, which will take up the route from Hamilton to Guelph, Berlin, Stratford and other points. He will have charge of six men.

The commissioners held a meeting Wednesday afternoon, when a great deal of routine business was transacted.

Drunken Man's Narrow Escape

It seems that once more the extract of corn, rye, wheat or drugs, or whatever spirituous liquors these days are made of, was very nearly responsible for the death of a local young man. This man was driving a livery rig on Hunter street, and was passing the corner of Chambers street about eleven o'clock when he suddenly fell out of the rig on his head. He was very much under the influence of liquor, and had the horse not been walking he would have been very seriously injured. A young man jumped into the rig and drove it back to the livery barn, and the drunk went on up the street, using language that would put our linotype machine out of order if reproduced.

KOREAN ARMY DISBANDED--JAPS KILL 40

Seoul, Aug. 2.—At ten o'clock last night Japanese troops surrounded the Korean barracks, after an imperial proclamation had been issued, disbanding the Korean army, composed of 7,000 men. Several hundred Koreans gathered at the great bell during a thunderstorm were dispersed by a company of Japanese soldiers. The outlets from the Korean army barracks are guarded by machine guns. Two thousand of the Seoul garrison will be disarmed and disbanded today.

The proclamation disbanding the troops says that they will be granted one year's pay. The emperor's bodyguard will not be disbanded.

KILLED FORTY KOREANS.

Washington, Aug. 2.—A despatch received at the state department yesterday from Consul General Summons at Seoul, Korea, says that forty Koreans were killed or wounded yesterday in a fight precipitated by the disarmament of the Korean army. The casualties on the Japanese side, the despatch adds, were slight.

New York, Aug. 2.—Hoping to induce the United States government to intervene and prevent Japan from obtaining further domination in Korea, Prince To Yong Qui and Yi Sang Sul, two of Korea's delegates to The Hague, who were denied admission to the Peace Tribunal, arrived here yesterday on the steamer Majestic. They hope to see President Roosevelt at Oyster Bay.

An edict of punishment has been passed by Japan against Prince Yi, who is twenty-three years of age.

"Japan is bitter against the United States and against Great Britain," said Prince Yi. "You in America do not realize this, but if the United States does not watch Japan closely, she will force the Americans and English out of the Far East."

A Safe and Paying Plan of Investment

Subscribers to Cobalt Mining Proposition in on Ground Floor

In this issue of The Times appears the advertisement of the Larder Lake Exploration and Development Co., which is well worth careful consideration by those seeking a safe and lucrative channel for investment of funds in either large or small sums. This company has been formed with a capital of $500,000 in shares of a par value of $1 each. The modus operandi of this company is to unite the efforts and money of many subscribers and thus form one company in which each subscriber will have as great an interest as any other, thus saving the expense and doubtful payment of promoters' fees. Each investor becomes himself a promoter. The company intends to incorporate a series, not to exceed five, of subsidiary mining companies upon proven properties. In each of these the Exploration Company will take 90 per cent of the capital stock of each company so incorporated and put 10 per cent of the capital stock of each company into its treasury. It will probably never be necessary to sell any of this treasury stock. Out of the total capital stock of each subsidiary company, the Exploration Co. will retain 10 per cent as its holding stock. It will take 40 per cent of the mutual benefit of the Exploration Co. and will be sold as a market is created and the proceeds divided pro rata among stockholders in the Exploration Co. Mining properties will be acquired and developed as stock is subscribed for. The properties to be acquired are in the Cobalt, Montreal River Silver Districts, Larder Lake and other gold and silver producing spots. The company are until August 5th, offering a block of 50,000 shares, par value $1 each, at 15 cents each. After August 5th no subscriptions will be received at this price. For free particulars address Robert Morton & Co., Financial Agents, 84 Victoria St., Toronto.

Mr. Jas. Stevenson's 84th Birthday

Yesterday one of Peterborough's pioneers, a man who has seen the Electric City grow from a small aggregation of humble log cabins to its present prosperity, in the person of Mr. James Stevenson, ex-M.P., ex-mayor for many years, and for over half a century member of the Board of Education, attained the venerable age of 84 years. Mr. Stevenson's services to the present City of Peterborough are too well known to our older citizens to need comment. Suffice to say that The Times extends its heartiest congratulations to this octogenerian and over and extends to him, its heartiest wishes that at 94 he will be as hale and hearty as today.

Drunken Man Kicks Woman on Water St

Sad Scene Enacted in Victoria Park at Noon Yesterday

Yesterday afternoon at 1.30 a sad scene was enacted at the very front of Victoria Park. A drunken man wearing a white felt soft hat dropped onto one of the benches just beside the Water street pavement. Soon after a woman, presumably his wife arrived on the scene, and began to remonstrate with him. The woman was short, stout, and dressed throughout (as far as could be seen) in white, and bore apparent evidence of being one of the English immigrants who, of late seem to occupy undue prominence in the local police court. The woman, whilst, in one way, deserving pity over the condition of her husband, it must be confessed, by a Times man, who saw the trouble, acted in a way to aggravate not only a drunken man, but the veriest beast, who ever wore or was entitled to wear a 7x9 halo. She jeered at the man and pointing her parasol at his face made use of words, that whilst not audible to The Times representative, evidently got this "mad up." The man proceeded to administer to her a kick on the north-west gable and then deliberately slapped her twice on the face. This got The Times man's "dander up," and he started to go to telephone for the police. However, before he could do this, the man left for another bench. Here he sat for a few minutes, leaving the woman sitting on the bench he had just left. Within a few minutes he departed to George street, and dropped into a dispensary of wet goods. The woman followed him in. The man had a "glauss of beer," and came out. After walking together for a block or so the man turned in one direction and the woman in another. Enquiries made of onlookers by The Times elicited a reply, "Oh that's nothing, they are always having scraps like that!" Should this drunken brute who kicked a woman, no matter how she aggravated him, as she had cause for being worried, be brought before the court, it is to be hoped that he will get the limit. About six months twice a year would fill the bill exactly in such a case. Talk of English patriotism and English chivalry, a drunken brute who would slap, let alone kick a woman, should have a heart to heart introduction, and connection with an insensate creature entitled "The Cat," and that "Cat" has nine tails.

IMPROVE YOUR COMPLEXION

Give Up Cosmetics And Seek The Cause of Your Bad Color.

When it's so easy to bring back the bloom of youth, to remove the blemishes and fill the hollows, isn't it foolish to plaster on cosmetics?

Remove the cause—correct the condition that keeps you from looking as you ought. Use Dr. Hamilton's Pills and very soon you'll have a complexion to be proud of.

Just imagine how much happier you will feel when those pimples and murky look have gone.

Beauty looks came to Miss Vrooman, a well known resident of Belfast, from using Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I used to look so yellow I thought it might be jaundice. There was simply no color in my cheeks at all. Today my skin is clear and never gets that murky, dull appearance, it had before. Dr. Hamilton's Pills have also given me a good appetite and improved my general health also."

Not only the complexion, but every organ of the body is strengthened, cleansed and made healthy by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Buoyancy, vim and a feeling of vigor invariably follow their use. Sold in yellow boxes by all dealers; 25c. per box or five boxes for $1.00, or by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U.S.A., and Kingston, Ont.

TEACH YOUR BOY TO SWIM

The other day a 57 year old woman entered a ten mile swimming race which was held at St. Louis, Mo. Four years ago her physician told her that her lungs were affected and her general health run down. He advised her to take up swimming, because that exercise inflates and deflates the lungs like a bellows, spreading out the tissues and follicles and the full and airing them thoroughly. She followed the wise doctor's advice, and now she is an athlete at the age when most women are only half alive physically.

Several American colleges require every one of its students to swim before they allow him to graduate with a degree of bachelor of arts. It holds that swimming is a more useful art for 999 men out of a thousand than scanning Aeschylus. Many of the boarding schools in the neighboring republic make swimming compulsory. So do Annapolis and West Point.

As a life saver swimming is a good deal like the Texan's gun, which he said he didn't need often, but when he did need it he needed it big-expletively bad. But, unlike the gun, swimming is also the best kind of fun for a boy. It gives him big lungs, a deep chest, a strong, regular heart. It doesn't develop big bunches of muscles on the outside of him at the expense of the organs within, but it increases his vitality while keeping his muscles long, flexible, and quick. It's a moral amusement; whiskey and late hours don't mix with swimming. It's cheap; nature has provided all the necessary impediments of the sport.

If you have a boy growing up and you are conscientious about his education don't make him spend all his time at Latin, spelling, and so on. See that he learns to swim. It may save his life some day, and it will certainly add to his grace and strength.

CANADA'S NEW CITIZENS

It has been said in the House of Commons, notably by Mr. Bourassa, of Labelle, that the immigrants arriving in Canada are not a desirable element, but are the scourings of Continental Europe. What are the facts?

For the last fiscal period ending March 31, 1907, British immigration to Canada totalled 65,781, an increase of 18,176 over the same period in 1905-6. The increase in English immigration was 37 per cent and in Scotch immigration 34 per cent. Since 1901-02 the ratio of increase in nglish immigration, year by year, has been as follows;

1901-02	39 per cent.
1902-03	148 per cent.
1903-04	13 per cent.
1904-05	39 per cent.
1905-06	83 per cent.
1906-07	37 per cent.

Scotch immigration has increased as follows;

1901-02	26 per cent.
1902-03	147 per cent.
1903-04	39 per cent.
1904-05	11 per cent.
1905-07	54 per cent.

A further examination of the statistics proves beyond a doubt that Canada has the preference as a field for emigration, and excepting the United States. By far the greater number of immigrants to this Dominion hail from the Mother Country. The objective point of British emigration is shifting to Canada as will be seen by the following figures;

1902	151,617	14,730	4,366	28,044

This disposes of another slanderous attack made upon the immigration branch of the Interior Department. It will be seen that British immigrants are coming to Canada in greatly increased numbers, although the statement has been went broadcast throughout the land by the Conservatives that only the worst class of immigrants are being brought to Canada.

These figures would furnish sufficient reply, and also the encouraging information that the population problem of Canada would be solved in a highly desirable manner.

Execution Postponed

Toronto, Aug. 1.—Mr. Justice Britton yesterday morning granted an order postponing the execution of Frank Capelli, the Italian convicted at Lisl Parry Sound assizes of the murder of one Dow and sentenced by Mr. Justice Teetzel to be hanged today, August 1st, until August 15th to enable the case to be enquired into by the Minister of Justice.

The order was obtained by Mr. C. A. Moss, and will be taken up by Mr. Hugh Hoyles and delivered in person to the sheriff. As Mr. Hoyles can soon to the sheriff.

The order was granted on the strength of an affidavit of Mr. Frank H. Keefer of Port Arthur, who acted as counsel for Capelli at the trial. It appears that Capelli was tried along with one Eugenio Marano. Marano was acquitted and Capelli convicted. The affidavit states that Mr. Keefer took up Capelli's case at the last moment, that he has since found from a Dr. Robertson that some years ago aCpelli was seriously injured in the head by the fall of a derrick, and that ever since he has been subject to sudden excitement and strain. He has also been informed by an eye-witness who was sick at the time of the trial and unable to be present that the affair was a drunken row, and that in the course of it Capelli was struck on the head just where the old wound was located. Under the circumstances he feels convinced that the crime should be reduced to simple manslaughter.

He further says that he made application to the Minister of Justice, but was only notified the other day that he declined to interfere, and he wishes to lay before him the new evidence.

The case has created considerable commotion among the Italians, many of whom sympathized with Capelli, and the Italian consul-general has also interested himself in Capelli's behalf.

I will mail you free to prove merit, samples of my Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and my book on either Dyspepsia, The Heart or The Kidneys. Troubles of the stomach, heart or kidneys, are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment and not the cause. Weak stomach nerves—the inside nerves—mean stomach weakness, always. And the heart, and kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves, and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves." Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion, use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write me today for sample and free book. Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. The Restorative is sold by all dealers.

Four Pairs of Twins

Lake St. John District is Out After New Record.

Quebec, Aug. 1.—The work of populating the Lake St. John country is going on. During last week, four pair of twins were born there, two of them at Roberval and two at Normandin. The godmothers of two of the twins weret hemselves twins. The two families at Normandin whose families have been increased by the birth of twins are neighbors, living just opposite each other, with only the road between.

Neither Side Are Willing to Give In Yet

London, Ont., Aug. 1.—Two meetings were held last night in connection with the barbers' strike, one by the masters and one by the men and the resolution of both was to the same effect, to stand firm and not to give in.

The result in that a settlement is apparently as far off as ever. The master barbers passed the following resolution; "We the undersigned, agree not to pay the wages demanded by the journeymen barebrs, and furthermore, that we will not hire a barber that was working in another shop previous to July 25, in this city, except by permission from his late boss, and no man can rent a chair in any shop that is represented here.

Off for the South Pole

British Expedition Left England Today on Steamer Endurance

London, Aug. 1.—The Endurance, originally a Newfoundland sealing vessel of 227 tons, but which has been refitted as a steam barquentine, sailed down the Thames today with the English South Polar expedition, commanded by Lieutenant Shckelton, on board.

Winter quarters for twelve persons with provisions for two years will be established on King Edward VII. land and an attempt will be made to reach the South Pole during the summer of 1908. The equipment on board the Endurance includes a motor car provided with different sets of runners for travel over surfaces of varying softness, twelve Siberian ponies and 24 dogs. Several scientists with elaborate apparatus accompany the expedition.

Two other Antarctic expeditions are now being made ready. France has granted Dr. Jean Charcot $120,000 for Antarctic explorations, and certain Belgian societies are raising $250,000 to permit Henryk Arctowski, the Belgian explorer, to resume his efforts to reach the South Pole.

The Money That's Being Made in Western Canada

LAND

In October, 1906 we sold 5,000 acres of Saskatchewan lands to an Indiana party of men at $8 per acre, and resold it this year at $12, making just about 100 per cent. on the money invested.

A Montreal party of men who bought 10,000 acres from us at $8 per acre last September, resold through us within three months at $10.00 per acre.

A Chicago client writes us, that "after making some improvements on a section she bought near Regina, one year ago, she sold out recently for exactly twice what she paid for the land.

We resold a section of land located near Lipton for a man at $18.00 per acre last April, which we sold him in December at $12.00.

Men here are growing wealthy who never knew success in any other line. You can make money here too, if you think your amount too small club it with a few friends. Some of the most prominent financial men in the United States and Eastern Canada are now interested in this country heavily.

We own about 200,000 acres of the finest wheat and mixed farming lands in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.—Picked lands on which we are prepared to give accurate trustworthy information, and these tracts being portions of extremely large purchases, we can sell them at prices that cannot be equalled, quality of land considered, by any firm in this country.

Prices range from $6.00 per acre upwards Reasonable Terms in every case

Write us for further information but when doing so tell us the class and amount of an investment you desire, and whether you want the land for your own use or for investment purposes purely. $1,000 is about the minimum we can handle. References Union Bank and Traders' Bank, Winnipeg.

SIREN WAFERS DEVELOP THE BUST

SHE'S A QUEEN! SHE'S A SIREN!

Is an expression that is always heard at the sight of a well developed woman. If you are flat chested, with BUST undeveloped, a scrawney neck, thin lean arms —the above remark will never be applied to you. "SIREN" wafers will make you beautiful, bewitching. They DEVELOP the BUST in a few weeks from 3 to 6 inches and produce a fine firm, voluptuous bosom. They fill out the hollow places. Make the cheeks plump and rosy, and arms handsome and well molded and the neck and shoulders shapely and of perfect contour.

Send for a bottle today and you'll be pleased and grateful. "SIREN" wafers are absolutely harmless, pleasant to take and convenient to carry around. They are sold under guarantee to do all we claim or MONEY back..

Price $1.00 per bottle. Inquire at good drug stores or send DIRECT to us.

FREE!

During the next 30 days only—we will send you a sample bottle of these beautifying wafers on receipt of 10 cents to pay cost of packing and postage if you will mention that you saw the Advertisement in this paper. The sample alone may be sufficient if defects are trivial.

Guggenhein-Greenwater

Copper Prospect at Ely

GUGGENHEIM GREENWATER

I want every reader of this paper who has a spark of spunk in him to buy a few shares in the Guggenheim Greenwater Copper Company. I can sell it to you now for a mere song—5 cents a share. Every share is of treasury stock, par value $1, full paid up and non-assessable.

I have a poor idea of that man's courage who dares not risk $5 on the chance to make $100, if there is any better buy in the mining market today than a $100 certificate for five dollars, I have never heard of it. This company owns two groups of claims in two copper districts—Ely and Greenwater. It is developing first its group at Ely, and has a shaft down 50 feet with indications of a strike of ore in the next 50 feet.

Every man who reads this advertisement has read the stories from Ely, Nev. He knows as well as I do that experts' report there is enough copper ore already in sight in the Ely district to keep ten smelters of immense capacity going for the next one hundred years. One 15,000 ton smelter is already being built by the Guggenheims, and other reduction plants of gigantic capacity are projected. Ely is unquestionably one of the greatest copper districts in the world.

This property is located on the great zone of porphyry which carries the copper values, and I tell you honestly that I would as soon put a few dollars into this prospect and take a chance of its making a big mine as into any mining investment within the range of possibility.

See me about this investment at once. I can fill all orders today for anything up to 10,000 shares at 5 cents. That price is sure to advance sharply any day that news comes of a strike. Buy now at 5 cents.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry must be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made on certain conditions, by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of the homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Six months' notice in writing should be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of intention to apply for patent.

W. W. CORY,
Deputy of the Minister of the Interior.

N.B.—Unauthorized publication of this advertisement will not be paid for.

THE CONQUEST of CANAAN

By BOOTH TARKINGTON,
Author of "Cherry," "Monsieur Beaucaire," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1905, BY HARPER & BROTHERS

"Aha!" Joe's voice rang out gayly as he rose, refreshed by the coffee, toast and warmth she had given him. "You've been story reading, Ariel, like Eugene. 'Secretary!'"

"Please, Joe!"

"Where's my tin dinner pail?" He found it himself upon the table where he had set it down. "I'm going to earn a dishonest living," he went on. "I have an engagement to take a freight at a water tank that's a friend of mine, half a mile south of the yards. Thank God, I'm going to get away from Canaan!"

"Wait, Joe!" She caught at his sleeve. "I want you to"—

He disappeared in a white whirlwind.

CHAPTER VII.

THE passing of Joseph from Canaan was complete. It was an evanishment for which there was neither sackcloth nor surprise, and, though there came no news of him, it cannot be said that Canaan did not hear of him, for surely it could hear itself talk. The death of Jonas Tabor and young Louden's crime and flight incited high doings in the National House windows. Many days the sages lingered with the broken meats of morsels left over from the banquet of gossip.

Very little of Joseph's adventures and occupations during the time of his wandering is revealed to us; he always had an unwilling memory for pain and was not afterward wont to speak of those years which cut the hard lines in his face. The first account of him to reach Canaan came as directly to the windows of the National House as Mr. Arp, hastening thither from the station, satchel in hand, could bring it.

This was on a September morning two years after the flight, and Eskew, it appears, had been to the state fair and had beheld many things strangely affirming his constant testimony that this unhappy world increaseth in sin; strangest of all, his meeting with our vagrant scalawag of Canaan. "Not a blame bit of doubt about it," declared Eskew to the incredulous conclave. "There was that Joe, and nobody else, stuck up in a little box outside a tent at the fair grounds and sellin' tickets to see the Spotted Wild Boy!" Yes, it was Joe Louden! Think you Mr. Arp could forget that face, those crooked eyebrows? Had Eskew tested the recognition? Had he spoken with the outcast? Had he not! Aye, but with such peculiar result that the battle of words among the sages began with a true onset of the rezulars, for, according to Eskew's narrative, when he had delivered grimly at the boy this charge "I know you you're Joe Louden!" the extraordinary reply had been made promptly and without change of countenance, "Positively no free seats!"

"There was that Joe, and nobody else, stuck up in a little box outside a tent."

"What's the matter with you?" Mr. Arp whirled upon Uncle Joe Davey at intervals the unreasonable words, "Couldn't of be'n Joe," without any explanation. "Why couldn't it?" shouted Eskew. "It was! Do you think my eyes are as far gone as yours? I saw him, I tell you. What's more, that boy Joe 'll turn up here again some day. You'll see if he don't. He's a seed of trouble and iniquity, and anything of that kind is sure to come back to Canaan!"

Mr. Arp stuck to his prediction for several months. Then he began to waver and evade. By the end of the second year following its first utterance he had formed the habit of denying that he had ever made it at all and, finally having come to believe with all his heart that the prophecy had been deliberately foisted upon him and put in his mouth by Squire Bucknlew, became so sore upon the subject that even the hardiest dared not refer to it in his presence.

Eskew's story of the ticket seller was the only news of Joe Louden that came to Canaan during seven years. Another citizen of the town encountered the wanderer, however, but under circumstances so susceptible to misconception that in a moment of illumination he decided to let the matter rest in a golden silence. This was Mr. Bantry, and the cause of his silence was the fact that his meeting with Joe occurred in the "Straw Cellar," a tough New York resort, in which neither of them should have been.

EUGENE did not inform Canaan or any inhabitant of his adventure of the "Straw Cellar," nor did any hear of his meeting with his stepbrother, and after Mr. Arp's adventure five years passed into the imperishable before the town heard of the wanderer again, and then it heard at first hand. Mr. Arp's prophecy fell true, and he took it back to his bosom again, claimed it as his own the morning of its fulfillment. Joe Louden had come back to Canaan.

The elder Louden was the first to know of his prodigal's return. He was alone in the office of the wooden butter dish factory, of which he was the superintendent, when the young man came in unannounced. He was still pale and thin. His eyebrows had the same crook, one corner of his mouth the same droop. He was only an inch or so taller, not enough to be thought a tall man, and yet for a few moments the father did not recognize his son, but stared at him, inquiring his business. During those few seconds of unrecognition Mr. Louden was somewhat favorably impressed with the stranger's appearance.

"You don't know me," said Joe, smiling cheerfully. "Perhaps I've changed in seven years." And he held out his hand.

Then Mr. Louden knew. He tilted back in his desk chair, his mouth falling open. "Good God!" he said, not noticing the outstretched hand. "Have you come back?"

Joe's hand fell.

"Yes, I've come back to Canaan."

Mr. Louden plainly received this as no pleasant surprise. "What for?" he asked slowly.

"To practice law, father."

"What?"

"Yes," said the young man. "There ought to be an opening here for me. I'm a graduate of as good a law school as there is in the country."

Mr. Louden leaned forward, a hand on each knee, his brow deeply corrugated.

Wonderful Builders.

A personal inspection of the pyramids made by an English quarry owner led him to the conclusion that the old Egyptians were better builders than those of the present day. He found blocks of stone in the pyramids weighing three or four times as much as the obelisks on the banks of the Nile. He saw a stone the estimated weight of which was 800 tons. Many of the stones were found to be thirty feet in length and fitted so closely together that the blade of a penknife could be run over the surface without discovering the break between them. There is no machinery, he claims, so perfect that it will make two surfaces thirty feet in length which will meet together in unison as the stones in the pyramids meet.

Ruskin to an Admirer.

Ruskin, it is known, had his own ways of publishing his works, with the result that they were sometimes hard to get and expensive. According to the Great Central Railway Journal, he once sent this letter to a stranger who wrote to him complaining of the price of his books:

84 Woodstock Road, Oxford, 4th Nov., '84.

My Dear Sir—I have ordered my publisher to send you in gift a book of mine ("Munera Pulveris") you have not read. Be content with that at present, and Carlyle. Have not you Shakespeare, cheap? And the Bible nowadays for nothing? What good do they do you? Faithfully yours, J. RUSKIN.

A Curious Superstition.

Among the superstitions of the Seneca Indians was this most beautiful one: When a young maiden died they imprisoned a young bird until it first began to try its powers of song, and then, loading it with caresses and messages, they loosed its bonds over her grave in the belief that it would not fold its wings nor close its eyes until it had flown to the spirit land and delivered its precious burden of affection to the loved and lost one.

Decay of Laughter in England.

I am perfectly certain that half our ills are due to the fact that we do not laugh enough. A good, sincere smile is something rare in these times, a "laughing face" is scarce, and it is seldom indeed that one hears a good, ringing laugh.—London World.

Neither Still Nor Small.

"When you do something you know is wrong, doesn't a still, small voice keep reminding you of it eternally?"

"A still, small voice! I guess you never met my wife, did you?"

PAIN

Pain in the head—pain anywhere, has its cause. Pain is congestion, pain is blood pressure—nothing else usually. At least, so says Dr. Shoop, and to prove it he has created a little pink tablet. That tablet—called Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablet—coaxes blood pressure away from pain centers. Its effect is charming, pleasingly delightful. Gently, though safely, it surely equalizes the blood circulation.

If you have a headache, it's blood pressure.

If you are sleepless, restless, nervous, it's blood congestion—blood pressure. That surely is a certainty, for Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets stop it in 20 minutes, and the tablets simply distribute the unnatural blood pressure.

Bruise your finger, and doesn't it get red, and swell, and pain you? Of course it does. It's congestion, blood pressure. You'll find it where pain is—always. It's simply Common Sense.

"Before taking the first box of Ferrozone," writes Mrs. Annie Jeffry, of Sandy Cove, N. S., "my condition was deplorable. Though I employed the most skilful medical aid, I grew steadily weaker. In fact, I was in such a low condition that it was impossible for me to walk across the room. My heart was very weak, and I suffered from terrible palpitations, which the doctors said were from troubles peculiar to women. Friends urged me to try Ferrozone, and I bought six boxes. When I had used the third box my old-time vigor and strength returned. The palpitation ceased, my appetite increased, and I got a good rosy color in my cheeks. It would be impossible to speak too highly of Ferrozone. All weak women should use it. I hope many suffering sisters will use Ferrozone for it will surely cure them."

Rev. J. C. Morse, D.D., pastor of the Baptist Church, Sandy Cove, bears witness to the recovery of Mrs. Jeffry, and writes: "This is to certify that Mrs. Annie Jeffry is a lady upon whose word you can depend. I have known her since childhood, and believe her to be a truthful, honest woman." This adds additional force to the testimony of Mrs. Jeffry, and gives assurance to other sufferers that Ferrozone does what is claimed for it. Three weeks' treatment costs 50c., or six boxes for $2.50 at all druggists.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS

DASHES HERE AND THERE BY TIMES' REPORTERS.

Improvements at Local Customs

Important improvements are being made to the interior of the local customs house. A large staff of men is busy at the work. The building has been entirely re-wired, and the lighting system greatly improved. The interior is being repainted and the place generally embellished.

Good Returns at Custom House

The receipts at the local customs house for the month of July were $26,642.77 or over $1,000 per day, for every day the office was open. This is splendid record for July which in past years has always been one of the dull months if it can be said that there are any dull months at the customs house.

Made a Good Fight for Their Clients

Both Messrs. O'Connell & Kerr made a hard, intelligent, persistent and consistent legal battle for their respective clients, the gentlemen of light fingers. Both of these gentlemen left no stone unturned to upset the crown's evidence or adduce proof for their clients. The fact that the latter, in so, uphill a fight, only got such comparitively light sentences is due to the good work of their counsel.

A Correction re Children's Shelter

In our report of proceedings of City Council Committee on the question of offering the Hilliard homestead for children's shelter purposes, we unintentionally, in the hurry of getting out a morning paper, said the present tenant's lease of Hilliard property has yet eight years to run. It should have read eight months and not years. It is understood that when the society are ready to assume the lease of said property, they will be allowed possession, even should the present lease have not expired, through the courtesy of the present tenant.

—Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Sanderson and family have returned from Montreal, where they spent several days. Mrs. Sanderson and children are now visiting friends at Madoc while Mr. Sanderson has gone back to the lakes for a few days before ending his holidays and resuming work on the G.T.R.

City Topics

IN SHORT FORM FOR BUSY READERS

—The rainfall during the month of July, in the district, amounted to 1 inch and 86-100.

—It rather surprised those who applauded when P. C. Newhall was cornered in examination and told the truth like a man to get fired out of court.

—The Zion Methodist church social held on the grounds of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Dickson, Wednesday night, was well attended and a great success.

—Mr. J. H. Larmonth yesterday stated that a number of boys are engaged by the Radial Railway Company to pick up all the paper and refuse in Jackson Park every morning.

—The first huckleberries that have been received this season, were offered for sale by the green grocers yesterday at 15c per quart.

—Whilst this journal has nothing either pro or con, as far as Policeman Newhall is concerned, a public court is hardly the place to demonstrate that lack of the observance of law is paramount.

—Remember the 5th annual excursion under auspices of the C. G. E. Angling Club, on Saturday afternoon August 3rd, to Idyl Wyld, per str. Otonabee. Boat leaves Wolfe street wharf at 1.30 p.m., returning at 9.30. Good music for dancing. Come along and have a good time.

—Yesterday was Mr. Jas. Stevenson's 84th birthday. It might be noted that before the old gentleman had had his breakfast, several of his many grandchildren arrived with a birthday offering which included so humble an offering, but acceptable to him as a fruit pie and other articles.

—There will be nothing doing at the city hall for the next month. Wednesday night's meeting cleaned up the slate, and the mayor, aldermen and city clerk are going away for a rest. The only meeting likely to be held will be an informal session of the Property Committee to look after the plans for the public library.

Knights of Columbus Excursion

The Knights of Columbus held a splendid excursion to Mount Julian and Burleigh Falls, Wednesday. There were about 150 left the G.T.R. station in the morning for Lakefield, where they took the steamer Stony Lake and had a most enjoyable trip through the Lakes. The stop at Burleigh was made where they had dinner. On board were several members of the clergy, including Rev. Father Bretherton, of Hastings; Rev. Father Roach, of Texas; Rev. Father Phelan, of Lindsay; Mr. A. J. Gough, of Lindsay, and Mr. McCabe, of Toronto, were also present.

Hastings Oddfellow Lodge Opened

Another I.O.O.F. lodge began business on Tuesday night, when lodge No. 382, was organized at Frankford in Hastings county. Mr. J. A. Tully, of Peterborough, special organizer of the Oddfellows' Relief Association, was present and assisted Col. Johnson, of Toronto, grand master, in installing the officers of the new lodge. The work of putting on the different degrees was done by Oddfellows from Stirling, Belleville and Trenton. The new lodge starts off with a membership of 30 and has bright prospects. After the lodge room work was over a banquet was held to which 150 sat down.

A Square Deal

Is assured you when you buy Dr. Pierce's family medicines—for all the ingredients entering into them are printed on the bottle-wrappers and their formulas are attested under oath as being complete and correct. You know just what you are paying for and that the ingredients are gathered from Nature's laboratory, best selected from the most valuable native medicinal roots found growing in our American forests and while potent to cure are perfectly harmless even to the most delicate women and children. Not a drop of alcohol enters into their composition. A much better agent is used both for extracting and preserving the medicinal principles used in them, viz.: pure triple-refined glycerine. This agent possesses intrinsic medicinal properties of its own, being a most valuable antiseptic and ferment, nutritive and soothing demulcent.

Glycerine plays an important part in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, the cure of indigestion, dyspepsia, weak stomach, attended by sour risings, heart-burn, foul breath, coated tongue, poor appetite, gnawing feeling in stomach, biliousness and kindred derangements of the stomach, liver and bowels.

Besides curing all the above distressing ailments, the "Golden Medical Discovery" is a specific for all diseases of the mucous membranes, as catarrh, whether of the nasal passages or of the stomach, bowels or pelvic organs. Even in its ulcerative stages it will yield to this sovereign remedy if its use be persevered in. In Chronic Catarrh of the Nasal passages, it is well while taking the "Golden Medical Discovery" for the necessary constitutional treatment, to cleanse the passages freely two or three times a day with the Improved Catarrh Remedy. This thorough course of treatment generally cures the worst cases.

In coughs and hoarseness caused by bronchial, throat and lung affections, except consumption in its advanced stages, the "Golden Medical Discovery" is a most efficient remedy, especially in those obstinate, hanging coughs caused by irritation and congestion of the bronchial mucous membranes. The "Discovery" is not so good for acute coughs arising from sudden colds, nor must it be expected to cure consumption in its advanced stages—no medicine will do that—but for all the obstinate, chronic coughs, which, if neglected, or badly treated, lead up to consumption, it is the best medicine that can be taken.

A Good Catch of Black Bass

Yesterday Mr. Isaac Eastwood, the local capitalist, at Dam No. 5, while out fishing had good luck. He caught 29 splendid bass ranging from the least legal weight to several that turned the scales at 4 1-2 and even 4 3-4 pounds each. One interesting feature of this fishing trip was that Mr. Eastwood let out 150 feet of line below the dam, and feeling a pressure on the line hauled it in. Some weight was felt as the line was hauled in. This was explained on pulling in the bait, by a large sucker that had been gaffed through its stomach by the hook.

Mr. Eastwood told a Times representative that Mr. Parker, the wheelman was with him, and that Mr. P. after assiduously angling all afternoon captured a splendid specimen of sunfish. This latter statement however is not guaranteed in any respect.

$100 REWARD, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer one hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

CONDUCT CONDEMNED

weight. Regarding Newhall's evidence, doubts will arise in one's mind, so it was the duty of his honor to give the prisoners the benefit of the doubt. The legal certainty of proof against Phelps and Goldfarb was lacking. He then objected to the way in which the Toronto detectives brought in written and printed evidence from abroad against the prisoners. He thought the case must stand or fall by Newhall's evidence.

Mr. Wood said that whilst possibly not a man either in this room or the police court had any doubt as to the guilt of each and every man of the four, still they only wanted strict justice done on the merits of the case. He then went on to speak of the doubts thrown on Newhall's evidence. The prisoners were seen in Woodstock and Stratford when the same circus was there. They came to Peterborough together. There was nothing to show that they had any connection with the circus.

His honor said that he was going to take Newhall's evidence, he had no reason to doubt it. He wanted to review the evidence of P. C. Newhall as given at the police court. He did not think there was much evidence against Lewis, but he had his private opinion. He reserved judgment until three o'clock in the afternoon.

At three o'clock yesterday afternoon the court reopened when Mr. Kerr arose and noted that the evidence against Goldfarb showed that there was no evidence to convict him. The evidence simply showed that he was riding up and down on the street cars with the other men.

His honor said the charge they had been investigating was that these four men had been tried on a charge of stealing a sum of money from Mr Hurl. The evidence is clear by P. C. Newhall's testimony that Bradford did take the pocketbook, and that Phelps aided and assisted him. He, the speaker said Phelps was equally guilty with Bradford in assisting him to commit the crime. He found these two men guilty of stealing the money. As far as Goldfarb is concerned, he is shown by Newhall's evidence, though not corroborated,—but this is not necessary—he was engaged in the act of picking pockets. Goldfarb was one of the gang. They are engaged together for a criminal purpose, so all are equally guilty. They went out to pick the pockets of Tom, Dick or Harry, or whomever they could. Goldfarb changed his headgear. He gave a false report of his coming to the city. Goldfarb said he came here from Montreal on a freight car, whilst Conductor Mitchell's evidence showed he came here on a G.T.R. passenger car. He then referred to Goldfarb saying he had only $1.50, but on being searched a $50 bill was discovered. Where people do not usually carry money. His firm opinion was that Phelps, Goldfarb and Bradford came here on the G.T.R. midday train for the special purpose of picking pockets. These men came here to Peterborough to do up what people they could, in the way of robbing them. He found that Phelps, Bradford and Goldfarb are guilty of the crime as charged. As regards Lewis he had some doubts in his mind as to the proof of his guilty. Still on the evidence there is no direct proof to show that he is guilty on this charge, he therefore acquitted him.

THE COURT CLEARED.

During the trial of yesterday there was what looked like a pre-conceived effort to show the animus of a certain class of the community against P. C. Newhall. As Mr. O'Connell cross examined him in the case against the alleged pickpockets, Mr. O'Connell did not seem to make as much out of P. C. Newhall's evidence as concurred with the results naturally looked for by a lawyer for the defence of prisoners. Mr. O'Connell whilst not in the least transgressing the powers accorded to lawyers, asked certain questions, the compulsory answers to which impelled the witness to make certain statements and admissions, that in the scales of absolute justice did not reflect on the actions or character of the police officer. After Mr. O'Connell had asked a certain question and the officer answered it, as far as noticeable, correctly, a certain clique in the back seats of the court room applauded and clapped their hands. This unusual affront to the dignity of the court was noticed by Judge Weller, who remarked, "If this occurs again I will have the court room cleared. After about twenty minutes, Mr. O'Connell somewhat sarcastically asked Newhall, "Oh, you were looking for all the glory yourself?" This started another round of applause, and hand-clapping. Then his honor ordered the court cleared and deputy Sheriff F. Hall, took a staff in hand and drove those sitting in the back seats from the court room. This ended all such unseemly disturbances.

It seems that there is a marked feeling against Constable Newhall, simply because he is neither to be bought, frightened or bulldozed in the performance of the duty he has sworn to carry out. If the hoodlum element of this city thinks that by giving vent, and thus insulting the majesty of the law and the county judge, by applauding any cheap display against a constable who does his duty, they are liable to be quickly undeceived.

Because a police officer does what he has taken a solemn oath to perform it is against the dictates of common sense, justice, fair play or precedent, that any man or body of men should insult the long established precedents of justice and right, by showing a marked sign of their disapproval in a court of justice. Of course in this matter no animus is or intended against Mr. O'Connell. He was retained to defend certain prisoners, and it is within his prerogation to cross-examine a witness. As he pleases consistently with law, and no doubt but what Mr. O'Connell himself deprecated the enthusiasm shown by those nourishing ill-feeling against a police officer who has shown his honesty, ability and determination to enforce the laws of our county and city.

THE PENALTIES.

After further evidence was heard, his honor sized up the evidence, and, whilst patent to all, his personal judgment might have convicted Lewis, he, in his position as an impartial and strictly honorable judge not justified by the evidence adduced in convicting Lewis. On both charges, tried yesterday, Phelps, Goldfarb and Bradford were each sentenced to one and one-half years in the Central Prison. Lewis was let go, and took the first available train for parts unknown.

Our Option on this small block of Underwriters' Stock expires August 8th, 1907—Subscriptions Post-marked at later date will be returned

Do you realize that investments of a hundred or a thousand will grow rapidly into hundreds and thousands and millions of dollars? The over-conservative and skeptical will smile they will laugh at these predictions, some will even consider this a joke but remember COBALT, if you please, two or three years ago? Then it was a "vision," it was a "dream," "a flash in the pan," "a bubble," somebody Was "crazy"; bu now it is different. Those crazy men are now classed among the smart and keenest business men of the day. The actual value of a few mines are worth at the present date more than one hundred millions of dollars. These are facts.

In presenting this investment for subscription we appeal to the good judgement of sensible persons as to its merit.

It embodies, we believe, a correct method of developing and establishing successful and paying mining enterprises.

We desire to conduct, first of all a successful Mine Developement. We intend this to be done in a way that will be absolutely fair and honest, and bring the largest profit possible to those who co-operate with us.

We, therefore, desire this proposition to be well understood by investors. We wish it to be known just how we propose to develope, establish and operate dividend paying Mining Companies by and through this investment.

THE PLAN.—The plan involved in this proposition is that of uniting or consolidating the investments of a limited number of persons into one sum, and under one management, to be used in acquiring and developing mining properties in this wonderful region.

THE PRINCIPLE involved in this investment we believe, is one of absolute fairness to all interested. The "promotion interest" common to all mining companies, and which is the great unfair feature to investors who put their money into stocks of these companies, and whose money develops and makes the mine, if a mine is developed—does not exist in this proposition. There is no "promotion interest set aside, and against the interest bought and paid for by the investors.

In this proposition the investors, and all the investors, become promotors. They take the "promotion interest" and all the interest. They own the whole enterprise. No matter how large or how small the investment—all stand on an equal basis. Our field of operation is probably one of the greatest, and without doubt the richest, mineralized region in the world.

For its basis, upon which we will establish and build us several great producing, paying mining companies, we will exploit and develop in a mining like and careful manner exclusive mining properties now known to us, other properties which we may acquire for the mutual benefit of all investors in this Company.

SUBSIDIARY COMPANIES.—The Larder Lake Exploration and Development Comany will incorporate a series, not to exceed five, of Subsidiary Mining Companies upon only the real proven properties acquired.

In each and every subsidiary Company incorporated, whether Mining, Milling, Smelting, Water Power, or Electric Light, the Exploration Company will take 90 per cent. of the capital stock of each Company so incorporated, and will put 10 per cent. of the Capital Stock of each Company in its treasury. It will probably never become necessary to sell any of this Treasury Stock.

Out of the total Capital Stock of each Subsidiary Company, the EXPLORATION COMPANY will retain 50 per cent. as its "Holding Stock." This will always control the Company. It will take and hold 40 per cent. for the mutual benefit of all stockholders in the EXPLORATION COMPANY. This 40 per cent will be known as "Selling Stock," and as a market is created it will be sold, and the proceeds received will be distributed pro rata to the stockholders in the EXPLORATION COMPANY, as their interests may appear.

The stock of the Subsidiary Companies will be inlisted on the New York Curb and Mining Exchanges of the country, and started at 50 cents a share, where it can be bought and sold according to the daily market quotations. This will afford a channel by which stockholders can sell the 40 per cent. "Selling Stock" from time to time, if they wish.

PROPERTIES.—Many different mining properties will be acquired and developed as stock in the EXPLORATION COMPANY, is subscribed for. All properties will be described, and reports submitted regarding same, as soon and as often as they can be examined by the engineer.

The mining properties that will be acquired for this proposition will be located in the gold and silver belt, extending from the Montreal River through Northern Ontario, eastward into Quebec, and will include properties in the Lady Evelyn District, the new Montreal River Silver District, Cobalt District, and the gold districts around Round Lake, Larder Lake, Lake Abitibi, and in the great undeveloped mineralized section of Quebec lying just east of Larder Lake and extending northward to Lake Abitibi.

We shall try and make every dollar count, and make as few mistakes as possible. We hope to create such an interest in this enterprise with investors, that will result in extensive and widespread co-operation.

Under this plan no one can truthfully say that it is not a great mining investment. We want every investor to feel a personal interest in this Mine Development. The investors in this Company will own this enterprise, and we want them to co-operate with us and our associates to make it a great success.

We are now organizing THE LARDER LAKE EXPLORATION AND DEVELOPMENT COMPANY with what we consider sufficient capital ($500,000). We now have options on, and propose to acquire five distinct and separate properties which will be incorporated at $100,000 each (100,000 shares—par value $1.00). The Exploration Company will at all times hold a controlling interest in each of these companies, so that sixty per cent. of the dividends earned and declared will be paid into the treasury of the parent company, and the other forty per cent. distributed among the stockholders on record. This in our opinion will enable us to pay dividends and large ones in the very near future.

The Board of Directors of THE LARDER LAKE EXPLORATION AND DEVELOPMENT COMPANY will be composed only of engineers of national repute, setting a precedent in this line. Mr. Robert Morton will be president, which fact in itself guarantees conservative and able management.

Investors have been pouring their money into over capitalized mining companies, they have been plunging about wildly in the hope of some day "striking it rich" never stopping to think for one instant that the greater part of their money never reaches the ground, as a rule 75 per cent. of the money invested in stock schemes goes into the broker's hands. He pays his salesmen 20 to 50 per cent. on every dollar turned in, he must get his own commission and engineers must be paid.

We never had associated with us a stock salesman, we require no commission and our engineers will be our directors, so that every dollar invested with us on this proposition will be honestly used in the purchasing and development of the different properties.

We are now offering for subscription the first allottment of stock in THE LARDER LAKE EXPLORATION AND DEVELOPMENT COMPANY—every hundred shares entitles the holder to forty shares of stock in each of the subsidiary companies to be incorporated, making in all 200 shares of stock in five separate companies, which, as soon as development work is started and dividends announced, will make the stock of the Larder Lake Exploration and Development Company almost invaluable. This first allottment of only 50,000 shares ($1.00 par value) will probably be largely over-subscribed in a few days.

The next allottment will be put out Sept 25, 1907, at 75c per share or higher.

This price (15c.) will positively be withdrawn Aug. 8, 1907. If this allottment is over-subscribed remittances will be promptly returned. Checks, drafts and money orders must accompany all applications and be made payable to the financial agents.

Interim certificates will be promptly returned to subscribers. The stock certificates of the Company representing the shares purchased will be issued and delivered as soon as allottment can be made, after the 8th of August, to all subscribers who purchase at the first underwriting price prior to that date.

Don't wait! Be wise! Act NOW! NOW IS THE TIME! Here is an opportunity that excels that which you had two or three years ago at Cobalt. Perhaps you will say as you did then, "How do we know they have got any silver up there? Perhaps you say now "How do you know there is any gold at Larder Lake?"

CHIEF AND MEDICINE MAN MURDER SQUAW

They Choked Squaw to Death to Prevent Evil Spirit Escaping--Chief and Medicine Man of Cree Tribe Arrested by Authorities and Will be Tried for Murder.

Ottawa, Aug 3.—Tribal customs and Canadian justice have clashed in the wilds of Keewatin, and Joseph and Jack Fidler, the chief, and the medicine man of the Sandy Lake Crees, are under arrest at Norway House. They will be tried for the murder of a squaw.

The woman, who is of the same name and blood as the two prisoners, fell sick in the spring and became delirious. The Indians of this district believed that when a sick person becomes delirious an evil spirit or Wendogo has entered him or her. They believe that if the person dies naturally the Wemdigo escapes to the woods, pursues and frightens away game and famine follows. Therefore the band assembled, and, according to custom, appointed their chief and medicine man to perform the task of choking the sick squaw that the spirit might not escape with the passing of breath, but might remain imprisoned in the dead body.

In the presence of the whole band, the chief and the medicine man carried out the instructions. A piece of canvas was placed about the squaw's neck and then the noose of a rope. This being tightened by the two leaders of the band, the ravings of the woman were stopped, the evil spirit was imprisoned, and the game preserved.

This piece of barbarism was executed within two hundred miles of Kenora. Word of it reached the authorities and the arrests followed. The Fidlers asked the officials not to be too severe with them, as they had no idea that they were doing wrong. They were merely doing their duty by the band and following the custom of their fathers. The execution of this duty was a high honor and according to custom the executioners were handsomely fed by the parents of the victim. The justice department is to decide whether it will be better to send a judge to Norway House to try the case or bring the prisoners and witnesses to Edmonton for trial.

MRS. EVELYN THAW TO GET DELMAS' HELP?

On Her Way to San Franolsoo to Get Delmas to be Counsel for Her Husband--Traveled Incog in Western Canada but Everyone Knew Her from Her Plotures.

Toronto, Aug. 3.—Is Mrs. Evely Nesbit Thaw on her way to San Francisco to get Delmas to be counsel for her husband?

Various telegraphic accounts have come from the West of her tour of Canada. The last issue to hand of the Vancouver World contains the following;

"On her way to San Francisco with the object of again trying to induce Attorney Delmas to take up the defence of her husband, accused of murdering Stanford White, Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw arrived in the city by C.P.R.

"She has been traveling incog and stopped for a time at Banff and Field, but her face has been pictured too often in the press, both with and without a veil, to allow of her getting through unrecognized. The transportation that she and the elderly lady who accompanied her possessed showed that they intended visiting this city, Victoria and Seattle; from which city she would doubtless take new tickets for the city of quakes.

"Mrs. Thaw is looking pale," but otherwise seems to be in good spirits, vivacious in fact, and her delight over the scenery through the mountains was expressed as outspokenly and brightly as would be expected of a girl in her teens. Though the long strain through which she went may have told on her, she has evidently recuperated wonderfully and she entered into the pleasures of the trip in a whole-hearted manner."

East Ward Cess Pool

The city engineer has started filling in the raceway from the old McAllister mill across Hunter street east. For many years this creek has flowed under the street. The Board of Works entered into negotiations with the owners of the raceway and got their consent to fill it up.

Former Local Citizen Writes from Mexico

Mr. Mike Smith Gives Full Details as to His Doings in Mexico

Yesterday, Mr. William Robinson of this city, formerly of Gooderham, received a letter from an old Peterborough county boy, for many years foreman of the Dickson Lumber Co., Mr. Michael Smith, whose brother is still with the Cavendish Lumber Company. Mr. Smith writes from Chihuahua, Mexico. He is with the Sierra Madre Land & Lumber Co. at San Pedro Springs. The letter says in part. "I am away down in old Mexico. I have been here two months. George Armstrong came here with the manager of the Sierra Madre Land & Lumber Co., who visited me today. I expect to start a steam skidder in a few weeks. The timber down here is the very best. In fact you can drive through with four horses easily as there is no undergrowth. We are 8000 feet above the sea level. We are near the gulf stream. This country is thickly populated with burros, Mormons and Mexicans. All they have on is a blanket. We are expecting to see Jim Cosgrove here any day. I am getting along well with the hotel. Remember me to the boys. I suppose people round Peterborough, miss me and if I get my hands on Mike Smith there will be trouble in the air. Remember me to Mike Tooley and all the other good heads in Peterborough."

The letter was signed;

"MICHAEL SMITH."

When Pickpockets will go to Central

Difference Between Prisoners for Toronto and Kingston

As a Times representative was several times asked yesterday concerning when the prisoners, Phelps, Bradford and Goldfarb, convicted of picking pockets, would be taken to the Central Prison, Toronto, this exponent of public news got busy and found out from the Poobah of Castle Neabitt. It seems that whilst the term of sentence of these prisoners dates from the moment of their sentence by Judge Weller, whether in the local jail or at Central Prison, Toronto, it might possibly, though not probably, be a month before a guard be sent here from Central Prison to take them up to that place of retirement from the giddy whirl and attractions of modern society.

In the case of prisoners committed to Kingston Penitentiary for a long or short term, Sheriff Hall or a sub of his would have to take them to Kingston. When prisoners are committed to Central Prison, however, it is necessary that the Provincial Government authorities be communicated with and that an officer be sent here from Toronto. It may be a week, two or even three weeks before the pickpockets are taken to the Central. Still their term of sentence is lessened so much by the time they are detained here. Every day counts on their sentence.

Peary's Last Dash for the North Pole

Believes His Expedition will be a Success This Time.

New York, Aug. 3.—Mr. Peary was asked yesterday regarding his dash for the Pole. To your correspondent he turned in his chair, the muscles in his face half relaxed. Peary seldom smiles.

"I hope to make it," he said, quietly. "This will be my last attempt. I believe it will be successful."

Despite the softness of his voice one felt the conviction of conquest. He gave no promise, no hint of the breaking of the Far North record in 1906, when he advanced within two hundred miles of the goal. There was no boasting of past achievement; no speculating on future glories.

Peary is perhaps better qualified than any other in his quest of the pole. He began it twenty years ago, and on each of the seven journeys he has made to the Arctic zone he has been pushing farther north. In his heart is the confidence of success on his eighth journey.

"The beginning and the end of a polar expedition may be expressed in one word," said the commander. "That is food. It is not the cold, it is not the exposure, but the failure of supplies that wrecks the enterprise. Three things are actually needed for food in the north; pemmican—a dried meat that can be made into soup—ship-biscuit, and tea. Tea is a stimulant, so one can get along without it; but pemmican is a necessity that one must have in the Arctic region.

But a man who confesses to have eaten raw dog with a relish may not be generally considereddd as a purveyor of tempting menus.

"Dog meat?" Peary repeated. "Why, one who can eat hog meat or craves the delicacy of Limburger cheese can have nothing to say against dog. To be sure, the hind leg of an overworked dog is a little rank and tough sometimes, but a man who has eaten mutton stew in a cheap restaurant cannot complain, nor is he apt to complain when the gnawings of his appetite attack him with the temperature seventy degrees below zero. The dogs readily eat their comrades when they fall by the way, and this, to a great extent, solves the problem of feeding the animals. I have considered the question of taking dog biscuit with me on my dash to the pole; but while the Siberian dogs will eat it, the dogs which I use on my expeditions—practically all wolf—will eat nothing but meat.

"How about alcoholic drinks?" I asked.

The answer came decisively;

"No man can drink alcoholic liquor who goes to the north. It would mean death to the man and a menace to the expedition."

"And smoking?"

The man who is dependent on his cigar or his pipe might better remain at home. Why, I should as soon think of taking a man who had to have a piece of pie ever so often. The personnel of your men is the first consideration. Upon them depends everything. In the first place they must be of cheerful temperament and not subject to fits of the blues, and every man must understand in advance that he must meet the greatest hardships and self-denials. He must be willing to suffer cold and hunger, to forego sleep—in a word, to be ready to sacrifice his life, if need be, for the success of the undertaking."

"Have you found such men?"

He nodded.

"Yes, for the most part they are the same men who went with me before. I can trust every one of them under every circumstance."

Peary has been so long in the Arctic game that the question of dress for the North has ceased to concern him. While on his sledge trips he sleeps in the open air on the ice in a sleeping-bag of fur, clad only in an undershirt. When he arises he hastily pulls on a pair of drawers which have frozen during the night. His trousers and socks are filled with snow, but he puts them on undaunted, and, quickly thrusting his feet into a pair of kamiks, or shoes, also gifted with snow and ice, and pulling on a big fur overcoat, he is ready for his day's journey.

One does not mind the cold in the north," said he. "The temperature ranges from fifty above to seventy-five below zero, and if a man takes care of himself he need suffer no inconvenience on account of the weather. There is real danger of freezing to death in the arctic zone."

A NEW THEORY REGARDING HELL

Washington Preacher Finds Reasons for Believing in this Theory

ONLY USE FOR FIRE BODY

Earth, Says Rev. Mr. Copp, Could be Heated and Lighted by the Glory of God

Washington, August 3.—Where is hades? The question has been asked often—and answered variously.

The variety of the answers made an inquiring world begin to think the question was unanswerable. But now, out of the silence, it is answered once again, this time literally, definitely, confidently, dogmatically.

A minister at the national capital proclaims his discovery of hell. He points triumphantly to it, displayed in all its vast expanse of undying flames, so radiant as to illuminate the face of the earth. So vast in extent as to hold all the sinners who have departed from earth through a million years.

GIVES REASON FOR OPINION.

"If hell were any part of the earth or situated in it, the biblical promise that the curse placed upon the ground at the time of the expulsion of Adam from Eden could not be carried out except by the creation of a new hell or the removal of the old one to a new location.

That its substance is one of the chief reasons why Rev. Zed Hetzel Copp, whose ancestors are buried on Copp's Hill in Boston, believes hell is in the sun.

"According to Revelations," said Rev. Zed Copp, "when the curse is removed from the ground there will no longer be need the sun, the moon or the stars. The capital of the new world, the new Jerusalem, will be lighted by the glory of God. The sun will have disappeared.

"By the process of elimination the uselessness of the sun except as a place of punishment for transgressors of the divine law is shown much more clearly than any proposition that hell is in or over the earth."

SMALL COMPANY HEARS THEORY.

Mr. Copp laid down these propositions to a small congregation in Bethany Chapel, a mission in the "red light" district of Washington, and thereby acquired a notoriety from which he does not shrink, because he believes he has come nearer answering the ungodly scoffer's inquiry, "Where is hell?" than any other man claiming to be an orthodox christian.

Bethany Chapel is a part of the New York Avenue Presbyterian church establishment in Washington. Associate Justice Harland of the Supreme Court of the United States is one of the church's members. In addition to being an assistant pastor Mr. Copp is a probation officer of the Juvenile Court. His days, therefore, are devoted to ministrations to the social outcasts and the incorrigible children.

BIBLE IS BEST AUTHORITY.

"I was brought up in the orthodox way," said Mr. Copp, "but in the days of my young manhood I read Ingersoll, Paine and Voltaire and for a time was inclined to an acceptance of their principles, or whatever you desire to call them. But I was saved from that by a desire to know the truth, which led me to a reading of the Bible and a consultation of its own words for the explanation of its mysteries. It is its own best authority and expounder.

"The question "Where is Hell?" has always been one needing an answer. I thought about the matter and prayed about it too. But one day while riding along a country road in California it came to me not as a revelation, because I did not claim to have ever been made the recipient of such attention, but as you writers would say, as an inspiration, that the sun must be the place of punishment.

NOT FOUND ON EARTH.

"An orthodox hell must be as ever burning brimstone. The lake of burning brimstone spoken of in the Bible cannot be supplied with anything found on earth. Everything on earth that gives forth light and heat or either without the other decreases in bulk. There is no substance known to scientists that can supply heat or light without a reduction in bulk that can easily be measured.

"The sun is the only object in the universe that fills the bill of particulars of having an everlasting fire which existed before the advent of man and the earth."

R. Hall & Son Entertain Employees

About one hundred employes of Messrs. Rich. Hall & Son, enjoyed the hospitality of Mr. Hall and had a delightful sail down the Otonabee river and across Rice Lake to Gores Landing Thursday afternoon on the steamer Monarch. A most pleasant time was spent. This is twice that Mr. Hall has given his employes a pleasant outing.

ATROCIOUS AS THE CONGO HORRORS

Dr. Maokay Denounces the Japanese--Gives His ImpressionS of a Visit to Korea--No Justice for That People--He Blushes for Britain's Action in Supporting Japan.

Toronto, Aug 3.—"It is atrocious oppression."

Such are the words that are used in reference to the treatment of the Koreans by the Japanese in a letter received by Mr. Hamilton Cassels, K.C., from Rev. Dr. R. P. MacKay, of Toronto, general secretary of Foreign Missions for the Presbyterian Church.

Dr. MacKay is on a tour of inspection of the various foreign missions of the Presbyterian Church in the East, and is at present in Manchuria. He expresses the most intense indignation at the treatment accorded the Koreans by the Japanese, and states that it is scarcely less atrocious than the horrors of the Congo.

ATROCIOUS OPPRESSION!

"It is oppression—atrocious oppression. I was a Japanese enthusiast until I came here, but I have changed in spite of myself. They have spent tens of thousands in writing themselves up and winning the confidence of Europe and America, and thus securing moral support and funds. Yet in reality they are barbarians. Their treatment of the Koreans is scarcely less atrocious than the horrors of the Congo.

"It would be incredible if I did not see it before my eyes and hear it from every missionary on the ground.

"Mr. Hulbert, who has written on Korea, and has given his life to them, is now in Europe trying to get a hearing for the Koreans at The Hague. I see in the Montreal Witness a paragraph from Tokio describing Mr. Hulbert as an agitator and American adventurer, who is trying to make himself notorious. That is the kind of thing that Japan has reduced to a system. I have not yet met one foreigner who is not intensely indignant at the cruelty and injustice of Japan in this land.

NO JUSTICE FOR KOREANS.

"I am told by one of the oldest missionaries in Korea today that there is not a case on record in which a Korean got justice against a Japanese, however great the offence. And this is done, made possible it is believed, because of British alliance. An old courteous Korean gentleman called on me the other day and asked whether this was Western civilization. He knew Britain's influence is in this, although too courteous to say so. I never before blushed for my country.

"But you will think me excited. No. I am greatly disappointed, and ruminating how far it may be in my power to enlighten America as to the real conditions. Japan's loans and successes have been so far aided by Western sympathy that probably nothing else will be so effective as exposure in compelling decency in administration. Somebody has summed up the Japanese in two words—conceit and deceit. I am afraid it is correct."

FOY TO FIGHT FOR THE TWO-CENT RATE

The Attorney-General Says That the Ontario Government Should Oppose the Grand Trunk's Appeal--Will Reoommend That Counsel be Appointed to Assist in Argument.

Toronto, Aug. 3.—It is understood that the Ontario Government will appoint special counsel to combat the Grand Trunk Railway if the threatened appeal from the judgment of the commission calling for a two-cent-a-mile obligatory service is taken by the company.

When interviewed by a reporter this morning Hon. J. J. Foy, the acting-prime minister and attorney-general, confirmed this intimation.

"My present impression is," he observed, "that the government should appoint counsel to assist in argument in the supreme court if there is an appeal from the decision of the Railway Commission. I will probably recommend this to the government."

CAREER OF PICK-POCKETS MOST CLEARLY SHOWN

Now that the trial of the four pickpockets, Phelps, Bradford, Goldfarb, and Lewis, is over, and all but the last named, have been handed, by Judge Weller, a ticket entitling them to 18 months board and lodging in the Central Prison, Toronto, we might note that the whole four, even including Lewis, who fortunately for himself, was let go and quickly took a train out of town, are described in reports received by the local police in unmistakable terms.

Chief Ruzel has given the matter of these pickpockets much attention and has done his duty nobly. Also P. C. Newhall, whom the circumstances of chance possibly, placed him in a position to accomplish a great result, accomplished possibly more than the recognized doctrine of chance would grant. Newhall "got there!" and that is the test.

Still the point we are driving at is that the prisoners, so often referred to in the local press, have an established record, to wit;

HARRY GOLDFARB.

Criminal record of Harry Goldfarb No. 6348, alias Abe Rosenburg, alias Sam Goodman, alias Joe. Werner alias, the "Goldtooth Kid." Arrested as Abe Rosenburg, alias Sam Goodman, alias Joe Werner, alias the Goldtooth Kid, November 9, 1903. Charge, grand larceny at New York City. Discharged.

Keener Brain

Grape-Nuts

Try the change.

You will feel "fit as a lord" in a week's time by breakfasting on Grape-Nuts and cream, a little fruit, a soft boiled egg, some nice, crisp toast, and a cup of well made Postum.

If you ever try this experiment, you will always bless the day you woke up.

There's a reason why Grape-Nuts food furnishes power to body and brain. It is made of selected parts of the field grains that furnish phosphate of potash in a natural state that can be assimilated by the human body. This joins with the albumen of food and forms the gray matter of the brain and nerve centres.

Feed skillfully and you can "do things."

The greatest brain workers eat Grape Nuts.

Ask one or two, they'll tell you

You meat eaters who are ailing in any sort of way should take the hint.

A prominent authority says:

"There is no doubt of the fact that meat-eating is not essential to human life and that men can be well nourished without resorting to flesh diet.

"I think the statement may be accepted without question that, as a rule, we eat too much, not only of meat but of all forms of food. The question of limiting the diet is based primarily not on the principle of economy but on the requirements of hygiene.

"At the early breakfasts which Americans are wont to indulge in, that is, a hearty meal before going to their daily work, the omission of meat is to be earnestly advised.

"It is well known that men who are nourished very extensively on certain cereals are capable of the hardest and most enduring labor."

You can depend on the energy from Grape-Nuts longer than from any meal of meat.

Good Work Done on Charlotte Street

Mr. Harry Evan's Gang of Men Neces sarily Shutt Off Thoroughfare

Next spring, should what is generally known as "English's Creek," i.e., the creek passing to the south and washing the foundations of the English Canoe Co., have the power of speaking, it would tell a tale of great changes. As the spirit of this creek accompanies its babbling music to the lake and reaches Charlotte street it finds a great change there. Instead of the andante key as of yore, across Charlotte street, the hand of man, particularly the men employed under Harry Evans, has confined the course of this creek so that pianissimo is the tone now.

The whole crossing at this creek is torn up, only enough of the surface of the bridge being left to accommodate the street cars. Just in front of the English Canoe Company's works, a bridge of planks has been built in arch shape for the accommodation of pedestrians. Teams or horse conveyances of all kinds must go north or south to get west or east.

Are You Often Bilious?

Read This and Learn How to Prevent Attacks.

Biliousness is merely a term applied to a condition that exists when the body is over-loaded with bile.

Biliousness has two great causes, constipation and defective liver action.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills do cure biliousness and liver ills under all circumstances.

We prove this by the statement of Mr. Fenwick Luddington, of New Harbor, N.S., who writes: "Three months ago I had no expectation of ever getting free from periodical bilious attacks. They were preceded by dizziness and dreadful headaches. If I stooped over my head would swim and a nauseous feeling crept into my stomach.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills fixed up my liver, drove all the bile out of my blood and made me a well man in a few months. Today I enjoy a good appetite, excellent digestion, and the best of health. Dr. Hamilton's Pills did it all."

Get Dr. Hamilton's Pills today. Sold by all dealers; 25c per box or five boxes for $1.00. By mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn, U.S.A., and Kingston, Ont.

PETERBOROUGH, AUGUST 3, 1907.

A GOOD ARCHBISHOP

In England, where the law has long made vaccination compulsory, there is indication now of a relaxation of vigilance, which is alarming the physicians and sanitarians, who best know how great a protection the old rule has given to the country. Almost without discussion and with the indorsement of merely one-fifth of the members of the house of commons a bill which in effect does away with the compulsory feature of the law has passed second reading in the house. That is equivalent to approving the bill in principle, and unless the full house, upon more mature consideration, alters its policy the bill will probably become law. Meantime the government has already issued general orders so changing the enforcement of the law that it will be much easier hereafter for reluctant persons to escape the attention of the public vaccinator.

It is probable that nine-tenths of the people actively approve of the vaccination laws, and that of the remainder only a small proportion are positively hostile to it. But this small proportion is so persistent that its agitation counts for more than it properly should count in the long run. Mosquitolike, it has probably annoyed the members of the house of commons until in mere desperation they have done something to relieve themselves of the pest.

Of course if smallpox can once be thoroughly stamped out, then there will be no longer any reason for retaining the vaccination system. That system would become a nuisance and would be sooner or later abandoned. If, however, it is abandoned before that happy time of no more smallpox arrives the evil results may be delayed for a few years, but sooner or later the pest will recur, and the country will have to go back to vaccination for relief. That, however, would be paying a frightful price for a little relief from temporary discomfort. When any effort is made to modify such laws the only safe and wise course for any legislative body is to seek and accept the advice of experts. In the British case there is a fair probability that a public sentiment in favor of the old law will develop with such strength that the house of commons will be forced to accept experts' advice. If it does that the old law will stand and be modified.

AN ATTACK ON VACCINATION

Archbishop Bruchesi, of Montreal, has accepted the post of third arbitrator, in the commission which will look into the claims of the longshoremen of Montreal for an increase of wages, proceedings having been instituted under the Lemieux Act. This young prince of the church—for he is still a young man—might lay claim to a position among the foremost of Canadian publicists and philanthropists. He visited the Young Women's Christian Association the other day and delivered an address upon the temperance movement which he personally instituted a couple of years ago. The movement itself has had a fair measure of success. It will lose nothing in prestige through the wide tolerance of the man who steps without his own fold to invite co-operation in a work of the highest importance to society. His crusades against vice in all forms have borne fruit in practical results. His warm sympathy with the people, his great grasp of affairs, are sufficient assurance that in this capacity as arbitrator—a task to which he is in no way new—he will render valuable service.

Fish Need No Closed Season

Government Hatcheries Would Make It Unnecessary

Windsor, Ont., Aug. 2.—C. W. Gauthier, one of the most prominent of Canadian fishermen, told the Canadian Fish Commission that there should be no closed season for any kind of fish. Government hatcheries would rapidly re-establish the stock in the great lakes. Salmon trout should not be protected because they eat the eggs of whitefish and do not seem to be decreased in numbers, thus the annual catch.

Gauthier discussed the exportation of almost the entire number of fish caught by Canadians to American shores. He said if this exportation were prevented by the government it would kill the fishing industry along the great lakes. Government hatcheries are the only remedy for the present condition, he said. The people of Canada would receive the same supply of fish that the Americans receive from Canadian fishermen at the present time if they were willing to pay the same price. He also outlined a plan to have the government establish canneries along the shores of the northern lakes and supply canned herring to the people at an estimated cost of about six cents per pound.

Red Tape Let Marshall Escape

Barrie Police Refused to watch.

Lindsay, Aug. 1.—The latest development in the alleged fur-smuggling case is the escape in his nightgown from Barrie Hospital of Simon Marshall, who was said to be wanted in this connection. The story is illustrative of the evils of too much red tape.

A man was arrested in Orillia Friday, because of his apparently demented and disorderly conduct. He gave the name of Peter McDonald, and said he was buying horses for a man in Lindsay. On Friday evening he developed such symptoms as required the calling of a doctor, and he was removed to the Barrie hospital, suffering, it is said, from alcoholic pneumonia. The chief of police of Orillia on Saturday morning called up the Barrie chief and told him that this man was Simon Marshall and was wanted in Lindsay in connection with the alleged fur-smuggling case. He asked his Barrie colleague to keep a watch over the sick man, but this the chief of Barrie promptly refused to do.

On Saturday evening Chief Vincent, of Lindsay, phoned to Barrie for particulars and was told that the man watched, and saying that Lindsay would pay the expenses.

On Tuesday morning the chief received a reply from the chief of police in Barrie to the effect that Simon Marshall had escaped from the hospital in his night-shirt about midnight Sunday evening, that the Barrie police had searched for him, but all they had discovered was that the escaped man had taken another man's clothes and has not been seen since.

The explanation of the chief at Barrie for not handling the case is that he was waiting for a warrant from Lindsay and thus allowed the escape of the sick man. The police are convinced that the sick man will not be able to go far.

London, Aug. 2.—The bye-election for a member of parliament for the north-west division of Staffordshire has resulted in the return of Albert Stanley, Liberal candidate, with the substantial majority of 2,349 over the Unionist candidate. The seat was made vacant by the death of Sir Alfred Billson.

The result indicates that the Unionists have little prospects of success at the polls except in constituencies where special conditions have caused a split in the Liberal-Labor elements.

New York, Aug. 2.—No arrests have been made so far in the cases of the two young women found choked to death in this city Monday and yesterday, and the police today are seeking a trail that will lead to the detection of the strangler. The bodies of the dead women are at the morgue unclaimed.

One of the bodies has been identified as that of Sophie Kehrer of Buffalo, formerly of Toronto. Her maiden name was Trainer. She was about 27 years of age. The body of the other strangled woman has not been identified.

Pueblo, Colo., Aug. 2.—Dwight Lawrence Bathurst, formerly stamp clerk in the postoffice here, who has been working years to establish his claim to the estates and title of the earl of Bathurst, has proved his case to the satisfaction of the British government. He left this morning to secure his patrimony. He travelled all over America and England before obtaining necessary proofs. One of his ancestors came to Georgia and then went to Pennsylvania.

Hand Granades 100 Years Old Found

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 2.—While examining the contents of the ordnance storehouse at Fort McHenry, Lieut. J. L. Holcombe, of the One Hundred and Twenty-eighth Coast Artillery, discovered several boxes of old hand grenades which are supposed to be nearly 100 years old. The missiles are of the earliest make used by the United States government and were probably placed in the historic old fort when it was first erected in 1812. Owing to the way in which they were packed the grenades had only the slightest trace of rust upon them.

In explaining their use, Lieut. Holcombe said that the grenades were handled only by the grenadiers of the ship, who, walking out upon the yard arms of the old-fashioned fighting vessels, threw them into the ranks of the enemy. An explosion followed which created havoc. They weigh about four pounds and are shaped after the fashion of the bombs used by Anarchists, and are iron and loaded with gun powder.

The Money That's Being Made in Western Canada LAND

In October, 1906 we sold 5,000 acres of Saskatchewan lands to an Indiana party of men at $6 per acre, and resold it this year at $12, making just about 100 per cent. on the money invested.

A Montreal party of men who bought 10,000 acres from us at $8 per acre last September, resold through us within three months at $10.00 per acre.

A Chicago client writes us that after making some improvements on a section she bought near Regina, one year ago, she sold out recently for exactly twice what she paid for the land.

We resold a section of land located near Lipton for a man at $18.00 per acre last April, which we sold him in December at $12.00.

Men here are growing wealthy who never knew success in any other line. You can make money here too, if you think your amount too small club it with a few friends. Some of the most prominent financial men in the United States and Eastern Canada are now interested in this country heavily.

We own about 200,000 acres of the finest wheat and mixed farming lands in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.—Picked lands on which we are prepared to give accurate trustworthy information, and these tracts being portions of extremely large purchases, we can sell them at prices that cannot be equalled, quality of land considered, by any firm in this country.

Prices range from $6.00 per acre upwards Reasonable Terms in every case

Write us for further information but when doing so tell us the class and amount of an investment you desire, and whether you want the land for your own use or for investment purposes purely. $1,000 is about the minimum we can handle. References Union Bank and Traders' Bank, Winnipeg.

SIREN DEVELOP THE BUST

SHE'S A QUEEN! SHE'S A SIREN!

Is an expression that is always heard at sight of a well developed woman. If you are flat chested, with BUST undeveloped, a scrawney neck, thin lean arms—the above remark will never be applied to you. "SIREN" wafers will make you beautiful, bewitching. They DEVELOP the BUST in a few weeks from 3 to 6 inches and produce a fine firm, voluptuous bosom. They fill out the hollow places. Make the cheeks plump and rosy, and arms handsome and well molded and the neck and shoulders shapely and of perfect contour.

Send for a bottle today and you'll be pleased and grateful. "SIREN" wafers are absolutely harmless, pleasant to take and convenient to carry around. They are sold under guarantee to do all we claim or MONEY back.

Price $1.00 per bottle. Inquire at good drug stores or send DIRECT to us.

FREE!

During the next 30 days only—we will send you a sample bottle of these beautifying wafers on receipt of 10 cents to pay cost of packing and postage if you will mention that you saw the Advertisement in this paper. The sample alone may be sufficient if defects are trivial.

50% in Annual Dividends

This is a straight Business Undertaking.

We have fifteen mining properties, located in Kern County, California, carrying good values in Gold, Silver and Copper.

We propose to install on our properties a smelter to treat the ores from our own mines and to do custom smelting for others.

50 per cent. per annum is a moderate estimate of the profits we can earn. If you want to make a safe and profitable investment send for full information and investigate our proposition.

Guggenheim-Greenwater

Copper Prospect at Ely

GUGGENHEIM GREENWATER

I want every reader of this paper who has a spark of spunk in him to buy a few shares in the Guggenheim Greenwater Copper Company. I can sell it to you now for a mere song—5 cents a share. Every share is of treasury stock, par value $1, full paid up and non-assessable.

I have a poor idea of that man's courage who dares not risk $5 on the chance to make $100. If there is any better buy in the mining market today than a $100 certificate for five dollars, I have never heard of it. This company owns two groups of claims in two copper districts—Ely and Greenwater. It is developing first its group at Ely, and has a shaft down 50 feet with indications of a strike of ore in the next 50 feet.

Every man who reads this advertisement has read the stories from Ely, Nev. He knows as well as I do that experts report there is enough copper ore already in sight in the Ely district to keep ten smelters of immense capacity going for the next one hundred years. One 15,000 ton smelter is already being built by the Guggenheims, and other reduction plants of gigantic capacity are projected. Ely is unquestionably one of the greatest copper districts in the world.

This property is located on the great zone of porphyry which carries the copper values, and I tell you honestly that I would as soon put a few dollars into this prospect and take a chance of its making a big mine as into any mining investment within the range of possibility.

See me about this investment at once. I can fill all orders today for anything up to 10,000 shares at 5 cents. That price is sure to advance sharply any day that news comes of a strike. Buy now at 5 cents.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry must be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made on certain conditions, by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother, or sister of an intending homesteader.

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of the homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Six months' notice in writing should be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of intention to apply for patent.

W. W. CORY,
Deputy of the Minister of the Interior.

THE CONQUEST of CANAAN

By BOOTH TARKINGTON,
Author of "Cherry," "Monsieur Beaucaire," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1905, BY HARPER & BROTHERS

"Who do you think in Canaan would put a case in your hands?"

"With your reputation?"

"But that's seven years ago, and I suppose the town's forgotten all about it and forgotten me too. So, you see, I can make a fresh start. That's what I came back for."

"I don't believe," said Mr. Louden, with marked uneasiness, "that Mrs. Louden would be willing to let you live with us."

"No," said Joe gently. "I didn't expect it. Well, I won't keep you from your work. I suppose you're pretty busy."

"Yes, I am," responded his father promptly. "But I'll see you again before you go. I want to give you some advice."

"I'm not going," said Joe. "Not going to leave Canaan, I mean. Where will I find Eugene?"

"At the Tocsin office; he's the assistant editor. Judge Pike bought the Tocsin last year, and he thinks a good deal of Eugene. Don't forget I said to come to see me again before you go."

Joe came over to the older man and held out his hand. "Shake hands, father," he said. Mr. Louden looked at him out of small implacable eyes, the steady hostility of which only his wife or the imperious Martin Pike, his employer, could quell. He shook his head.

"I don't see any need in it," he answered. "It wouldn't mean anything. All my life I've been a hard working man and an abiding man. Before you got in trouble you never did anything you ought to. You ran with the lowest people in town, and I and all your folks were ashamed of you. I don't see that we've got a call to be any different now." He swung round to his desk emphatically on the last word, and Joe turned away and went out quietly.

But it was a bright morning to which he emerged from the outer doors of the factory, and he made his way toward Main street at a lively gait. As he turned the corner opposite the National House he walked into Mr. Eskew Arp. The old man drew back angrily.

"Lord 'a' mercy!" cried Joe heartily. "It's Mr. Arp! I almost ran you down!" Then, as Mr. Arp made no response, but stood stock still in the way, staring at him fiercely: "Don't you know me, Mr. Arp?" the young man asked. "I'm Joe Louden."

Eskew abruptly thrust his face close to the other's. "No free seats!" he hissed savagely and swept across to the hotel to set his world afire.

Joe looked after the irate receding figure and watched it disappear into the Main street door of the National House. As the door closed he became aware of a mighty shadow upon the pavement and, turning, beheld a fat young man wearing upon his forehead a scar similar to his own waddling by, with eyes fixed upon him.

"How are you, Norbert?" Joe began. "Don't you remember me? I"— He came to a full stop as the fat one, thrusting out an under lip as his only token of recognition, passed balefully on.

Joe proceeded slowly until he came to the Tocsin building. At the foot of the stairway leading up to the offices he hesitated for a few moments. Then he turned away and walked toward the quieter part of Main street. Most of the people he met took no notice of him, only two or three giving him second glances of half cognizance, as though he reminded them of some one they could not place, and it was not until he had come near the Pike mansion that he saw a full recognition in the eyes of one of the many whom he knew and who had known him in his boyhood in the town. A lady, turning a corner, looked up carelessly and then half stopped within a few feet of him as if startled. Joe's cheeks went a sudden crimson, for it was the lady of his old dreams.

As she came to her half stop of surprise, startled, he took his courage in two hands and, lifting his hat, stepped to her side.

"You—you remember me?" he stammered.

"Yes," she answered, a little breathlessly.

"Ah, that's kind of you!" he cried and began to walk on with her unconsciously. "I feel like a returned ghost wandering about—invisible and unrecognized. So few people seem to remember me!"

"I think you are wrong. I think you'll find everybody remembers you," she responded uneasily.

"No; I'm afraid not," he began. "I"—

She interrupted him. They were not far from her gate, and she saw her father standing in the yard directing a painter who was at work on one of the cast iron deer. The judge was apparently in good spirits, laughing with the workman over some jest between them, but that did not lessen Mamie's nervousness.

"Mr. Looden," she said in as kindly a tone as she could, "I shall have to ask you not to walk with me. My father would not like it."

Joe stopped with a jerk.

"Why, I—I thought I'd go in and shake hands with him—and tell him I"—

Astonishment that partook of terror and of awe spread itself instantly upon her face.

"Good gracious!" she cried. "No!"

"Very well," said Joe humbly. "Good-by."

Joe got him meditatively back to Main street and to the Tocsin building. This time he did not hesitate, but mounted the stairs and knocked upon the door of the assistant editor.

"Oh," said Eugene. "You've turned up, have you?"

"I've come back to stay, Gene," said Joe.

Bantry dropped his book. "Exceedingly interesting," he said. "I suppose you'll try to find something to do. I don't think you could get a place here. Judge Pike owns the Tocsin, and I greatly fear he has a prejudice against you."

"I expect he has," Joe chuckled, somewhat sadly. "But I don't want newspaper work. I'm going to practice law."

"By jove, you have courage, my festive prodigal! Vraiment!"

Joe cocked his head to one side with his old look of the friendly puppy. "You always did like to talk that nasselty way, Gene, didn't you?" he said impersonally.

Eugene's color rose. "Have you saved up anything to starve on?" he asked crisply.

"Oh, I'm not so badly off. I've had a salary in an office for a year, and I had one pretty good day at the races"—

"You'd better go back and have another," said his stepbrother. "You don't seem to comprehend your standing in Canaan."

"I'm beginning to." Joe turned to the door. "It's funny, too, in a way. Well, I won't keep you any longer. I just stopped in to say good day." He paused, faltering.

"All right, all right," Eugene said briskly. "And, by the way, I haven't mentioned that I saw you in New York."

"Oh, I didn't suppose that you would."

"And you needn't say anything about it, I fancy."

"I don't think," said Joe—"I don't think that you need be afraid I'll do that. Goodby."

"Be sure to shut the door, please. It's rather noisy with it open. Goodby." Eugene waved his hand and sank back upon the divan.

Joe went across the street to the National House. The stages fell as silent as if he had been Martin Pike. Joe had begun to write his name in the register. "My trunk is still at the station," he said. "I'll give you my check to send down for it."

"Excuse me," said the clerk. "We have no rooms."

"What?" cried Joe innocently. He looked up into the condensed eyes of Mr. Brown. "Oh," he said, "I see."

Deathly silence followed him to the door, but as it closed behind him he

A Lost Dollar.

A missionary bishop told at a dinner in New York, according to the Sun, this story about F. Marion Crawford, the famous novelist:

"Mr. Crawford went to school," he said, "in Concord, and one day he was taken to call at a Concord clergyman's. The clergyman had a missionary box on his drawing room table, and, time hanging heavily on the boy's hands, he amused himself with trying whether a silver dollar—it was all the money he had in the world, and he had converted it into that gigantic coin for safety—would go into the slit in the box's top. It was a close fit, but unfortunately it did go, and the coin slipped out of the embryo author's fingers. There was a terrible crash of silver falling among the coppers, and then the boy, as the novelists say, 'knew no more.' When he came to himself he found the clergyman and his family in raptures over his generosity."

You Could Slip Off the Edge.

There was a time—centuries ago, of course—when the learned men of the world really thought that the world was a square—not merely flat, but that it was a cube. The primitive geographers of Egypt, Assyria and China all taught that the world was a "square plane." One of the most curious discoveries ever made in Central America concerning Toltec beliefs, symbols, etc., is that they also had a similar idea concerning the form of what we now speak of as the "globe." A writer on the discoveries made among the monumental ruins of that country says, "They (meaning the Peruvians, Toltecs and Quiches) believed the world to be a cube, suspended from the heavens by cords of gold fastened to each of its corners."

Good in Everything.

The late Sir Wilfred Lawson, well known as an English temperance reformer as well as a wit, invariably took a cheerful view of life and conduct. In conversation with him one day an ardent person railed forcibly against the practice of christening vessels with champagne before being launched. Sir Wilfred did not altogether agree and said a good temperance lesson might be learned from the practice.

"How can that be?" demanded the other.

"Well," replied the baronet, "after the first taste of wine the ship takes to water and sticks to it ever after."

The Rivals.

"My work," remarked the baldheaded dentist, "is so painless that my patients often fall asleep in the chair while I am operating."

"Hum! That's nothing," retorted his rival. "My patients nearly all insist on having their pictures taken while I am at work in order to catch the expression of delight on their faces."—London Express.

Another Comparison.

"She has a face like an incandescent globe."

"Mercy, what a shape!"

"I wasn't referring to the shape."

"What then?"

"To the fact that it lights up so beautifully."

Constipation

Baked sweet apples, with some people, bring prompt relief for Constipation. With others, coarse all-wheat bread will have the same effect. Nature undoubtedly has a vegetable remedy to relieve every ailment known to man, if physicians can but find Nature's way to health. And this is strikingly true with regard to Constipation.

The bark of a certain tree in California—Cascara Sagrada—offers a most excellent aid to this end. But, combined with Egyptian Senna, Slippery Elm Bark, Solid Extract of Prunes, etc., this same Cascara bark is given its greatest possible power to correct constipation. A toothsome Candy Tablet, called Lax-ets, is now made at the Dr. Shoop Laboratories, from this time-honored and most effective prescription. Its effect on Constipation, Biliousness, Sour Stomach, Bad Breath, Sallow Complexion, etc., is indeed prompt and satisfying.

No griping, no unpleasant after effects are experienced, and Lax-ets are put up in beautiful Ribbon-banded metal boxes at 5 cents and 10 cents per box.

APPEARANCE

Is such an important feature on the table. It makes a heap of difference to the pleasure of the meal whether you have a good or a poor looking Sugar on the table.

St. Lawrence Extra Granulated Sugar

Is the whitest and best looking Sugar to be had and besides it has the advantage of being the best quality and greatest strength.

Are You a Woman Needing Strength?

Not long ago you were able to enjoy life.

You had vigor, strength, ambition—did everything with zest and pleasure

Upon you cheeks was the hue of health, in your eyes the sparkle of vim and animation.

Today—all is a drudge.

Not actually sick, but if your work were less imperative, how gladly you would rest.

You are breaking down.

Nervous system is out of gear.

Digestive powers are weak.

Blood lacks nourishment.

No remedy restores so fast, builds up so permanently, instills such vigor or surplus strength like Ferrozone.

"Six months ago I experienced a serious illness. It commenced with splitting headaches, dull pains through my chest and shoulders. I found it hard to get satisfying sleep—would roll and toss and in the morning felt tired all over. Then I grew nervous, lost flesh, got pale and had heavy dark circles under my eyes. My strength got so low I couldn't do housework. I was worried and unable to eat and feared I would not get well. Ferrozone braced me up in a few weeks. It seemed to supply wonderful strength. I gained in flesh, looked better and was able to sleep. In all I took twelve boxes of Ferrozone and my cure was complete."

If Ferrozone doesn't help and cure you—then nothing ever will; your druggist sells it in 50c. boxes—Better try Ferrozone.

Horse Thieves at Work

Mr. Herb. York who lives a short distance from the city called at the police station yesterday and complained that he had lost his horse standing at the corner of Aylmer and Sherbrooke streets and was away from it about twenty minutes. When he returned, it was gone. Mr. York had just bought the horse from a man in Otonabee. A diligent search was made for the lost animal, but as yet no trace of it has been found.

Action Against C. G. E. Co.

Mr. R. F. McWilliams on behalf of David J. Moore has issued a writ against the Canadian General Electric Co., for $2,000 damages for injuries sustained by him two months ago, whilst engaged on the construction work of the new transformer building. A quantity of scantling was being hoisted up, and as Moore was walking past, the rope slipped, and the wood came down, and struck him on his right foot. The foot was badly smashed and he will be lame for the rest of his life.

Local Oddfellow in Orillia

The Orillia Packet says;

Mr. J. T. C. Lang, of Peterborough, was in Orillia on Monday making arrangements for the accommodation of the Peterborough delegates during the meeting of the Grand Lodge of Oddfellows. There will be about 20 delegates from that city and they wish to be all together. Mr. Lang succeeded in making arrangements with Mr. Hessey to have a hall fitted with cots and to get their meals at the Orillia House. They will make the hall the Peterborough headquarters for the three days.

Carters Have Settled Place

The carters of the city are now doing business in their new quarters on Water street, near the Peterborough Canoe Co., and henceforth should anyone want to procure a carter he will know where to get one. It certainly is a great improvement to see them off the main street. This is a most wise proceeding on the part of the City Council, and most advantageous to the carters. Now when a man's wife goes to a sale of household goods and buys a third piano, because it was cheap, she will know where to go and find a carter to bring it home.

The Engineering Magazine

The Engineering Magazine for August is even more than usually marked by contributions of close importance to the leading interests of the day. The opening paper, by J. G. G. Kerry, describes the working of the Canadian Railway Commission, an example of governmental regulation which is of much value for suggestion in the present movement toward control of public-service corporations in the United States. H. Coley Estep contributes an illustrated study of the Puget Sound Navy Yard—the main reliance for the maintenance of a fleet on the Pacific if the United States were engaged in military operations in the Far East. Frederick Keffer's description of the smelting practice of one of the great copper producers—the British Columbia Copper Co.—is instructive and important in view of the peculiar condition of the copper market just now. G. B. Werner throws light on another question of public interest by his clear analysis of the operating costs and revenue of the Interborough Company of New York—one of the most typical urban railway systems of the world. And George F. Stratton's paper on "Opportunity for the Young Workman" offers valuable suggestions in answer to one of the most pressing problems for the modern industrial manager—the supply of the skilled workman of the future.

There are illustrated articles on the traffic museum at Berlin, by Dr. A. Gaudewitz, and on efficiency in the boiler furnace, by W. D. Ennis. C. U. Carpenter continues his excellent series on "Profit-Making Management," and Dr. J. H. Hart explains the use of the indicator in refrigeration work. The number carries, as usual, the full Review of the Engineering Press and the Engineering Index.

Team Traffic Off on Charlotte Street

Great Changes Made in English's Creek Through New Bridge Work

Yesterday Charlotte street was, between George and Aylmer streets, a forbidden way. This street, except for a space reserved for the Street Railway Co., was forbidden ground for general traffic. The meaning and raison d'etre of this order was, as foretold in former issues of The Times, that the city is replacing the former wooden plank bridge by a modern and up-to-date concrete structure. Yesterday hundreds of rigs of all kinds passing along Charlotte street, whether from east to west or from west to east were stopped in transit and no thoroughfare was available. This was no reflection on either the Board of Works in this city, or any other Council, starts operations to construct or erect any public works or city buildings, it is easily supposably that those voting for such work must necessarily submit to certain temporary inconvenience. In any case Mr. Harry Evans, the very efficient Street Commissionar, has done all that lies in his power to place abutments between his sphere of action as carried on by his men and the public of Peterborough. Mr. Evans is in a peculiar position. To begin with, the men directly interested in public improvements have an axe to grind. Then there are those who pay taxes for local improvements to consider. In this latter matter of the Charlotte street bridge, whether Charlotte street residents or those wanting to pass along Charlotte street were disturbed in the progress of their regular business Mr. Harry Evans has done the best that any man, unless wearing the halo of a person divinely inspired, could do. There is no doubt but what the work on this Charlotte street bridge will be pushed as quickly as consistent with desired results by Street Commissioner Evans, and that the same civic employes will, at the terminus of the work, turn over a job to the city that will command respect from the city and county.

Impossible Restrictions on Tax Collector

Yesterday, Tax Collector Green was asked by a Times man, "How much have you taken in in taxes so far this Year?" To this he replied, "Oh about $100,000." Mr. Green's clerk then went on to demonstrate the absolute absurdity of the present system of the city demanding that he, Mr. Green, have in hand, only a certain sum We forget whether this is $100, or $50, but certainly not more than $200 Now the local banks close at specified hours About the time taxes are due many large owners of property or owners of large property (a distinction with a difference) drop in and pay anywhere from the amount specified by the city by-law as being allowed the tax collector to hold on hand, and far above that limit.

If the tax collector's bond is worth the paper and ink composing it, it might readily cover a far greater sum than the by-law allows him to have on hand If Mr. Green were to comply strictly with the terms of the by-law, he would have to take, say, ten minutes trips to the bank in his busy seasons.

Verdict for Dr. Pierce

AGAINST THE

Ladies' Home Journal.

Sending truth after a lie. It is an old maxim that "a lie will travel seven leagues while truth is getting its boots on," and no doubt hundreds of thousands of good people read the unwarranted and malicious attack upon Dr. R. V. Pierce and his "Favorite Prescription" published in the May (1906) number of the Ladies' Home Journal, with its great black display headings, who never saw the humble, groveling retraction, with its inconspicuous heading, published two months later. It was boldly charged in the slanderous and libelous article that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, for the cure of woman's weaknesses and ailments, contained alcohol and other harmful ingredients. Dr. Pierce promptly brought suit against the publishers of the Ladies' Home Journal, for $300,000.00 damages.

Dr. Pierce alleged that Mr. Bok, the editor, maliciously published the article containing such false and defamatory matter with the intent of injuring his business; furthermore, that no alcohol, or other injurious, or habit-forming drug, are, or ever were, contained in his "Favorite Prescription"; that said medicine is made from native medicinal roots and contains no harmful ingredients what ever; and that Mr. Bok's malicious statements were wholly and absolutely false.

When the action was pending in court and Journal they were forced to acknowledge that they had obtained analyses of "Favorite Prescription," from eminent chemists, all of whom certified that it did not contain alcohol or any of the alleged harmful drugs.

These facts were also proven in the trial of the action in the Supreme Court of the business of Dr. Pierce was greatly injured by the publication of the libelous article with its great display headings, while hundreds of thousands who read the wickedly defamatory article never saw the humble, groveling retraction, set in small type and made as inconspicuous as possible. The matter was, however brought before a jury in the Supreme Court of New York State which promptly rendered a verdict in the Doctor's favor. Thus his traducers came to grief and their base slanders were refuted.

CAPITAL, 500,000 SHARES—PAR VALUE $1.00 PER SHARE

15c FULLY PAID AND NON-ASSESSABLE 15c

First allottment of 50,000 Shares at Fifteen Cents per Share

Our Option on this small block of Underwriters' Stock expires August 8th, 1907—Subscriptions Post-marked at later date will be returned

Do you realize that investments of a hundred or a thousand will grow rapidly into hundreds and thousands and millions of dollars? The over-conservrtive and skeptical will smile—they will laugh at these predictions, some will even consider this a joke—but remember COBALT, if you please, two or three years ago? Then it was a "vision," it was a "dream," "a flash in the pan," "a bubble," somebody Was "crazy"; bu now it is different. Those crazy men are now classed among the smart and keenest business men of the day. The actual value of a few mines are worth at the present date more than one hundred millions of dollars. These are facts.

In presenting this investment for subscription we appeal to the good judgement of sensible persons as to its merit.

It embodies, we believe, a correct method of developing and establishing successful and paying mining enterprises.

We desire to conduct, first of all a successful Mine Developement. We intend this to be done in a way that will be absolutely fair and honest, and bring the largest profit possible to those who co-operate with us.

We, therefore, desire this proposition to be well understood by investors. We wish it to be known just how we propose to develope, establish and operate dividend paying Mining Companies by and through this investment.

THE PLAN.—The plan involved in this proposition is that of uniting or consolidating the investments of a limited number of persons into one sum, and under one management, to be used in acquiring and developing mining properties in this wonderful region.

THE PRINCIPLE involved in this investment we believe, is one of absolute fairness to all interested. The "promotion interest" common to all mining companies, and which is the great unfair feature to investors who put their money into stocks of these companies, and whose money develops and makes the mine, if a mine is developed—does not exist in this proposition. There is no "promotion interest set aside, and against the interest bought and paid for by the investors.

In this proposition the investors, and all the investors, become promotors. They take the "promotion interest" and all the interest. They own the whole enterprise. No matter how large or how small the investment—all stand on an equal basis. Our field of operation is probably one of the greatest, and without doubt the richest, mineralized region in the world.

For its basis, upon which we will establish and build us several great producing, paying mining companies, we will exploit and develop in a mining-like and careful manner exclusive mining properties now known to us, other properties which we may acquire for the mutual benefit of all investors in this Company.

SUBSIDIARY COMPANIES.—The Larder Lake Exploration and Development Comany will incorporate a series, not to exceed five, of Subsidiary Mining Companies upon only the real proven properties acquired.

In each and every subsidiary Company incorporated, whether Mining, Milling, Smelting, Water Power, or Electric Light, the Exploration Company will take 90 per cent. of the capital stock of each Company so incorporated, and will put 10 per cent. of the Capital Stock of each Company in its treasury. It will probably never become necessary to sell any of this Treasury Stock.

Out of the total Capital Stock of each Subsidiary Company, the EXPLORATION COMPANY will retain 50 per cent. as its "Holding Stock." This will always control the Company. It will take and hold 40 per cent. for the mutual benefit of all stockholders in the EXPLORATION COMPANY. This 40 per cent will be known as "Selling Stock," and as a market is created it will be sold, and the proceeds received will be distributed pro rata to the stockholders in the EXPLORATION COMPANY, as their interests may appear.

The stock of the Subsidiary Companies will be enlisted on the New York Curb and Mining Exchanges of the country, and started at 50 cents a share, where it can be bought and sold according to the daily market quotations. This will afford a channel by which stockholders can sell the 40 per cent. "Selling Stock" from time to time, if they wish.

PROPERTIES.—Many different mining properties will be acquired and developed as stock in the EXPLORATION COMPANY, is subscribed for. All properties will be described, and reports submitted regarding same, as soon and as often as they can be examined by the engineer.

The mining properties that will be acquired for this proposition will be located in the gold and silver belt, extending from the Montreal River through Northern Ontario, eastward into Quebec, and will include properties in the Lady Evelyn District, the new Montreal River Silver District, Cobalt District, and the gold districts around Round Lake, Larder Lake, Lake Abitibi, and in the great undeveloped mineralized section of Quebec lying just east of Larder Lake and extending northward to Lake Abitibi.

We shall try and make every dollar count, and make as few mistakes as possible. We hope to create such an interest in this enterprise with investors, that will result in extensive and widespread co-operation.

Under this plan no one can truthfully say that it is not a great mining investment. We want every investor to feel a personal interest in this Mine Development. The investors in this Company will own this enterprise, and we want them to co-operate with us and our associates to make it a great success.

We are now organizing THE LARDER LAKE EXPLORATION AND DEVELOPMENT COMPANY with what we consider sufficient capital ($500,000). We now have options on, and propose to acquire five distinct and separate properties which will be incorporated at $100,000 each (100,000 shares—par value $1.00). The Exploration Company will at all times hold a controlling interest in each of these companies, so that sixty per cent. of the dividends earned and declared will be paid into the treasury of the parent company, and the other forty per cent. distributed among the stockholders on record. This in our opinion will enable us to pay dividends and large ones in the very near future.

The Board of Directors of THE LARDER LAKE EXPLORATION AND DEVELOPMENT COMPANY will be composed only of engineers of national repute, setting a precedent in this line. Mr. Robert Morton will be president, which fact in itself guarantees conservative and able management.

Investors have been pouring their money into over capitalized mining companies, they have been plunging about wildly in the hope of some day "striking it rich" never stopping to think for one instant that the greater part of their money never reaches the ground, as a rule 75 per cent. of the money invested in stock schemes goes into the broker's hands. He pays his salesmen 20 to 50 per cent. on every dollar turned in, he must get his own commission and engineers must be paid.

We never had associated with us a stock salesman, we require no commission and our engineers will be our directors, so that every dollar invested with us on this proposition will be honestly used in the purchasing and development of the different properties.

We are now offering for subscription the first allottment of stock in THE LARDER LAKE EXPLORATION AND DEVELOPMENT COMPANY—every hundred shares entitles the holder to forty shares of stock in each of the subsidiary companies to be incorporated, making in all 200 shares of stock in five separate companies, which, as soon as development work is started and dividends announced, will make the stock of the Larder Lake Exploration and Development Company almost invaluable. This first allottment of only 50,000 shares ($1.00 par value) will probably be largely over-subscribed in a few days.

The next allottment will be put out Sept 25, 1907, at 75c per share or higher.

This price (15c.) will positively be withdrawn Aug. 8, 1907. If this allottment is over-subscribed remittances will be promptly returned. Cheques, drafts and money orders must accompany all applications and be made payable to the financial agents.

Interim certificates will be promptly returned to subscribers. The stock certificates of the Company representing the shares purchased will be issued and delivered as soon as allottment can be made, after the 8th of August, to all subscribers who purchase at the first underwriting price prior to that date.

Don't wait! Be wise! Act NOW! NOW IS THE TIME! Here is an opportunity that excels that which you had two or three years ago at Cobalt. Perhaps you will say as you did then. "How do we know they have got any silver up there? Perhaps you say now "How do you know there is any gold at Larder Lake?"

DID EARL GREY DECLINE TO GRANT DISSOLUTION?

Sensational Story in Montreal Star States That Sir Wilfrid Sought to Get Ratification for New Cabinet and Dissolution, But Governor-General Demurred--Quebec Elections to Take Place in September.

Montreal, Aug. 4.—The Star of Saturday's date, gives currency to a report that since the return of Sir Wilfrid Laurier from abroad he prepared the personnel of a new cabinet, which was in due course presented to his excellency for ratification with the understanding that dissolution should follow the announcement.

It is alleged that Earl Grey, knowing of the premier's promise to Borden to hold another session before dissolution, suggested that the plan, in view of the promise, should have Mr. Borden's consent.

The Opposition leader, it is stated, was in Montreal at the time, and intended remaining here for several days, but only remained one day, proceeding to Ottawa.

It is not stated what happened but there was some delay and the announcement has not yet been made.

Incidentally it is stated that Sir Richard Cartwright has been making a strenuous kick against the retention of Sir Frederick Borden in the cabinet and that the minister of militia as strongly objected to vacating his office.

It is said there will be no change for the present.

QUEBEC ELECTIONS.

Another item of interest in the Star's article is that Premier Gouin has secured the consent of the lieutenant-governor to dissolution of the Provincial legislature and will go to the country the last week of September. Premier Gouin's speech at Chateauguay at the Liberal demonstration Saturday was of the program variety.

Ten Chinamen Shot Down In China-town, Boston.

Boston, Aug. 4.—Although none of the seven Chinamen who were taken to the hospital after last night's shooting in Chinatown, as a result of which three men are dead, had died during the night, several were reported to be in a serious condition today.

At the emergency hospital it was said that the four men there had passed a comfortable night and would recover, with the exception of Lee Kai, who had bullet holes through his right side and both thighs.

At the relief station Charlie Yiek, whose heart had been penetrated by a bullet, was in a critical condition.

The Chinamen who did the shooting are supposed to be New York members of the society of the Hep Sing Tong. The killing of a member of their body in Philadelphia recently, in which Boston men were supposed to be implicated, is believed to be the reason for their descent upon Boston's Chinatown last night.

The police have arrested five Chinamen believed to be members of the band, and they have been charged with murder. The police today were still looking for others, as it was believed that the party of murderers numbered from ten to fifteen.

Marconi Making Thunder and Lightning in Paris Shops

The asphalted floor is covered with a carpet of rubber. The walls and ceilings are in hardwood. Strange instruments lie in each corner of the room. On a platform raised a yard above the floor, says a writer in La Revue, is a table with a transmitting key upon it and a large wooden lever also used in transmitting. Marconi is on the platform, his hand grasping the lever.

"Now," he says, "be careful. When I signal to the electrician 50,000 volts will enter the room. Stand behind me and touch nothing. Do not approach those oils, because the current will not wait for you to touch them; it will leap out upon you."

The signal given, a lever is pulled and a dull noise is heard. The needle of the voltameter begins to move on the dial and to attain all sorts of high figures.

"Now," said Marconi, "I will communicate with the nearest station," and he presses the key of the transmitter.

There is a blinding blue flash and at each pressure on the key, sparks nearly two feet in length start from between the two silvery balls of the induction reel. One of these balls is in communication with the earth and the other with a rod. Each spark represents an impulsion which is communicated from the battery to the rod and from this rod the electrician sets in motion the vibrations of the ether called Hertzian waves.

These waves expand in space in every direction at a speed of 300,000 kilometers a second; that is to say, seven times the circumference of the earth. They are independent of wind and temperature and glide above the surface of the earth and sea, striking on their way the wireless stations that lie far beyond the horizon.

At each blinding flash that accompanies the movement of the key a noise like the report of a rifle is heard. It is an awe-inspiring spectacle, the inventor calmly standing there pressing the key amid the lightning and the thunder. The operator is obliged to stuff his ears with wool. It appears, however, that recently Marconi has found means of doing away with the noise almost completely.

More Fatal Than War

Killed on Railroads in Three Month Exceed Number at Gettysburg

Washington, Aug. 5.—During the first three months of the present calendar year more people were killed on the railroads of the United States than during the war with Spain and the casualties were greater than during the three days' fight at Gettysburg during the civil war.

During the months of January, February and March the total number of casualties to passengers and employes compared with preceding three months. Passengers and employes to the number of 421 were killed in train accidents and 4,929 were injured, being fifty-three less killed and twenty less injured than during the three preceding months. There were 2,674 collisions and 1,913 derailments, passenger trains being in 323 collisions and 229 derailments. Property losses and damages suffered by the railroads on account of these accidents amounted to $3,558,118.

There was a notable decrease of 25 per cent in deaths due to coupling accidents, but there was shown no other important decrease in deaths due to other causes. The accidents covered in the report included two collisions and two derailments, in which eighty-two persons were killed.

Brings a Unique Specimen of Zinc Ore From New Jersey

Mr. Alfred Thomas, an old Peterborough boy formerly with Mr. Belcher, C. E., who is Mr. Chas. S. McClelland's brother-in-law, but who some 17 years ago accepted an important position with the New Jersey Zinc Co., is in the city spending his holidays at his cottage on Stony Lake. Mr. Thomas brought Mr. McClelland a most interesting collection of the various ores, ground to the consistency of coarse sand of the various mineral ores taken from his company's mines. These are placed in a glass urn in strata. The ores are of all colors from gold, green, pink, orange, red, etc. From the top sample which is red oxide of zinc the samples run through green willamite, franklinite, calcite, garnet, feldspar, rhodonite, red willamite, tailings, (waste rock), mixed willamite, red brick of zinc to caucite. Of these the red oxide is the most valuable, while the calcite and tailings have no commercial value. All these samples are taken from one mine of the company situated at Franklin, Sussex Co., New Jersey. This company treats four hundred tons of ore hourly at this mine. Mr. Thomas' many friends were glad to see him back at Peterborough.

PETERBORO 18, COBOURG 6.

The Peterborough Baseball team journeyed to Cobourg on Saturday to play the return game with the fast bunch of ball tossers of the pretty Lakeshore town, who played here the previous Saturday, defeating Peterborough by a score of 6—3, in one of the snappest ball games seen here for many a day. The locals went down on Saturday determined to wipe out the stigma of defeat and handed the Americus artists a nice bunch of rhubarb despite the rank decisions given against them by Umpire Weeks of Bowmanville. "Cornie" Burns was on the firing line for Peterborough, and never pitched better ball, whilst "Smiley" Downs, alias Phelan, the American club artist, did the twirling for Cobourg, and oh! it was said to tell what the locals did to him, 18—6. The Port Hope fans came down on bicyles, automobiles, busses, and buggies, to witness the game. And it was a shame the way they handed the lemons out to Cobourg—just in basketfulls—It was puzzling to the bunch from the Port, as to how Peterborough were defeated on their own grounds the previous Saturday they needed Saturday's game just to keep in the running, for the championship, as it looks like Peterborough all the way.

Harry Burridge was the "kandy" boy with the bat.

Peterborough started the scoring in the first, when Burns singled,—then Port Hope yelled—Cheatham hoed one down to second but it beat "Cornie" out, then Burridge walked—but the boys had an off day and up to bat, and angered at the saucy smile of Downs, planted out a swo-bagger and the Port Hope aggregation tore themselves lose. Connors angled and brought in Cheatham and Burridge, and the Port Hopers handed Cobourg their first basket of lemons, but Haliburton and Callaghan fanned, retiring the side

There was nothing doing until the last of the second when the Peterborough bunch took a little flight in the air, and when they got back to earth Cobourg had scored four runs on costly errors in the field. Then the Cobourg fans wrapped the Port Hope people hard, calling them "sore heads," on account of being defeated on their own grounds by Cobourg. Both teams landed one each in the third, Cobourg adding another in the fourth, to Peterborough's duck. Peterborough scored in the fifth and Cobourg drew a blank.

In the sixth Port Hope fans got a chance to get their lungs in shape when Peterborough jumped in the lead, getting over the sacks for two runs, while Cobourg scored one, making the score 7 to 6. It was right at this period that Downs lost that "smile that won't come off." Everybody began hitting in the seventh and the Port Hopers got joyful and it was a shame to tell the tale as the score read 11—6 in Peterborough's favor as Cobourg was retired without scoring. In the 8th and 9th Johnston's pets kept up their batting streak adding three and two respectively while Cobourg got one in the 8th and another in the ninth—and the game was over, score 18—6.

First Innings—Burns singled. Cheatham lined one to second, got first, but Burns was out at second. Burridge got a two-bagger, Cheatham went round to third, Connors singled, bringing in Cheatham and Burridge. Haliburton and Callaghan fanned—2.

and adding two, Cobourg getting ound for one.

Peterborough got three in the eighth, Cobourg one.

Port Hope had their innings when Burridge hit Downs for a three bagger—and then the lemons were passed around.

A three-bagger, two two-baggers and a single for Burridge. Wonder what's the old man's batting average. Cobourg up to be the best team that ever played ball in the Midland think of Manager Johnston's bunch now.

Double Crops in 1908

London, Aug. 4.—Old Moore, wizard and almanac maker, has been dreaming of the year 1908, and if the familiar white-covered tale of his vision, just published, it has acquired an unwonted Jules Verne flavor.

For instance, he says that in March, 1908, we must look out for trouble on battleships. "Their greatest enemy is in their holds; the effects of earth current, acting on the vast magnetic body of metal, will be automatic in their destruction.

Still dreaming of the navy, he foretells, for December, "a new idea of coast defence in floating circular iron-clads impenetrable for any shots, owing to the want of a striking point. If necessary, they can reverse quickly on a dropped pivot anchor."

September will be marked by a laboratory discovery which "will cause double crops in many parts of the country," and October by the invention of reflected ceilings, the effect of which "will be funny in the ballroom."

In December a "new and very beautiful flower will appear and make a great sensation."

The rest of the story of 1908 is an extraordinary medley of good and evil, and to place some of the scenes in the prophetic pageant in close conjunction with one another is to create the suspicion that the hoary wizard is chuckling in his sleeve all the time.

Lady Writes Judge Weller re Pickpockets

For the past day or two it has been currently whispered that just before the termination and sentence of the four pickpockets, Phelps, Bradford, Goldfarb and Lewis, his Honor Judge Weller, received a threatening letter from some young woman who signed herself as "Minnie." His honor was out of the city on Saturday, and nothing could be learned from that source. Accordingly Chief Rozzel was approached and asked if he had heard anything about the matter. The chief admitted that there had been a letter but refused to give it for publication or disclose its contents.

However, rumor was busy in the meantime and it was generally said that the writer had referred to one of the four men who seemingly had made a mash on the writer. She considered that he was too good looking to be guilty of such a crime as picking a man's pocket. Of course in Judge Weller's long career a letter of this nature must be but one of very many, from hysterical people, whose feelings and sympathy sometimes prompt them to write in behalf of the accused.

The writer did not think that her hero was not guilty but it is stated she said she knew who the real pickpocket was, but it is not known whether she made any direct reference. She also warned the judge to be careful in passing sentence upon the man referred to, and to be sure that he had weighed all the evidence.

Will Not Visit Montreal

Doukhobors Preferred at Last Minute the Dakotas

Winnipeg, Aug. 3.—Contrary to expectations, the Doukhobors suddenly decided to leave for the Dakotas. They left immediately on making up their mind, and are already on the big south trail leading to the States, paralleling the Red River. The Doukhobors earnestly desired to seek an ocean port on the Atlantic, Montreal preferred, and, with child-like faith, were preparing to march from Winnipeg through Canadian territory to Montreal. It was explained to them that the difficulties of such a hazardous undertaking made the feat almost impossible, and then they gave up Montreal for the Dakotas.

Quarter of a Century with Local Police

Robert Adams Celebrates His 25th Year on Local Force

Saturday last was Police Constable Adams' twenty-fifth anniversary as a member of the police force of the city. Bob Adams has done well. For 25 years he has been out in the heat of hot summer days and endured the zero weather of cold winter nights, and never a complaint has there been heard or even whispered against his conduct as an officer. Mr. Adams has pursued his course as an officer of the city without fear or favor. To be sure, existing circumstances in a small town like Peterborough have not given him the chances he might have had in a larger city to display his abilities that are acknowledged by all who know him. Bob Adams is, in the general estimation of our citizens, a decent man, an honest policeman (and this says a lot) and a highly esteemed officer of Peterborough's department of the administration of justice. Mr. Adams is fortunate in being on a police force, the members of which are universally respected by the best classes of the community, and a force that is rapidly gaining a name among the criminal element as being a good one to avoid.

When Mr. Adams joined the force 25 years ago the police court office was in the old opera house block. The cells were then in the cellar of the old fire hall, which had to be reached by going down the rear stairs with prisoners.

P. C. Adams was on the force when the present station and court were erected, and that is about 20 years ago. Mr. Adams Saturday received many congratulations from friends.

The Game Today

The Young Torontos will go up against the local lacrosse team in a championship game on the Riverside Park this afternoon and it is up to the home team to redeem their defeat in Toronto early in the season. The visitors have a fast bunch of stick handlers, and are a well balanced team, and the locals will have to step some to win out. The game will be keenly contested and should draw a large crowd of spectators. The following will be the line-up of the Young Torontos: Mitchell, Mardill, Woods, Brenton, Moore, Crocker, Whale, McArthur, Mara, Murphy, Lewis, Holmes, Heal and Tod.

BARTER IN PEERAGES IS BARRED

Lee Again Makes Investigation of Charges Made in House

London, Aug. 5.—Hugh Cecil Lea, M. P., nothing daunted by the frigid reception his demand for parliamentary investigation into the alleged traffic in peerages, baronetcies, and knighthoods met in the house of commons, returned to the charge last week in a speech at a meeting at St. Pancras.

During the last two years of the Balfour administration, said Lea, it was openly stated that baronetcies and peerages were being sold in the city at prices varying from $50,000 to $25,000, the only stipulation being that South African magnates should be barred. Any one who introduced a new customer usually got a commission of 10 per cent.

LEA SUPPORTS CHARGES.

Lea read in support of his charges a letter from Gilbert K. Chesterton, in which that brilliant paradoxer said a rich man paid a sum into party funds and was made a peer and a poor man was paid out of funds and made a slave. A correspondent saw Chesterton and asked what in his opinion should be done to meet this evil. "I dislike to tell to such an organ of democracy as the Times just what a rabid democrat am," said Chesterton, "but my chief desire would be to see the house of lords abolished altogether and replaced by an upper house purely elective. The present state of public opinion, I fear, renders this impossible. The alternative suggests that the house of lords be made purely hereditary, and thus be log-clogged, as it is now in peril of becoming, by selfish millionaires who have attained a peerage at a price."

CITES DIVORCE SITUATION.

The discussion of the subject gives rise to this interesting query. If as Lea reminded the commons the minister was at one time held to be open to impeachment because he proposed to make a dozen peers, what may be said of a man who creates a dozen peerages—peers who divorce a wife or are divorced by her, and marry again, repeating the process indefinitely. There are now two Lady Rosslyns, for instance, and when the decree pronounced last Saturday is made absolute, a third, and Lord Rosslyn is still in his 30s. No wonder the lord chamberlain strictly enforces the rule that widows of peers or peeresses who divorce husbands and marry again be invited to court functions under their new names. Lily, duchess of Marlborough, is known at court only as Lady William Beresford; Eva Countess Strafford as Mrs. Kennard, and the dowager Lady Limerick as Mrs Eliot.

After Mother-in-law

Cleveland, Aug. 5.—Eugene C. Mathivet, an attorney, began action today in the Probate Court to regain possession of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Bessie R. Robinson. Mathivet resorted to a habeas corpus proceeding, declaring that Mrs. D. B. Strickler had induced Mrs. Robinson to leave the Mathivet home and remain with her. He says that Mrs. Robinson, on account of her age, is easily persuaded, and that all of his attempts to see her have failed. All the parties concerned in the action reside in the fashionable East End neighborhood. Mrs. Strickler is no relation to Mrs. Robinson, but the two have been lifelong friends.

HUGE FINE LEVIED ON THE STANDARD OIL COMPANY.

It Was Found Guilty of Accepting Rebates from a Railway Company--Maximum Penalty was Over Twenty Nine Million Dollars--Decision Two Hours Long--The Trial Lasted for Over Six Weeks.

Chicago, Aug. 4.—Judge Landis in the United States District Court today will name the amount of the fine the Standard Oil Company of Indiana will be obliged to pay for accepting rebates from the Chicago and Alton Railroad on shipments of oil from Whiting to East St. Louis, Ill. The maximum penalty that the Oil Company may be compelled to pay is $29,240,000 and the minimum is $1,462,000.

The corporation to be punished is capitalized at $1,000,000. Its visible assets, including refineries, pipe lines etc., have a value, it is declared, of $10,000,000.

The trial of this case began March 4 and was concluded April 13. After a deliberation of two hours the jury returned a verdict of guilty. After arguments for a new trial had been heard Judge Landis called for information concerning the relations of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, their financial status and holdings, so that he might be guided in determining the amount of the fine. When this was refused by the defence the court issued subpoenas for John D. Rockefeller and fourteen other officials connected with the two companies.

GOT THE INFORMATION.

The examination of Mr. Rockefeller and his associates July 6, showed that the Indiana corporation is owned by the New Jersey corporation and all other information desired by the court was obtained. Judge Landis then took the case under advisement and yesterday marked the climax so far as the United States district court is concerned. A number of indictments are still pending against the company.

TWO HOURS LONG.

Judge Landis will commence reading his decision at 10.30 o'clock. It will be of considerable length, requiring at least two hours in the reading. The amount of the fine assessed the Standard Oil Company of Indiana will not be announced until the conclusion of the reading.

CHILD WHO STIRS LARGE AUDIENCES

Power and Pathos of Youths' Sermons Cause Revival in More Than One County in England--Over Three Hundred Men and Women Converted in One Month.

London, Aug. 5.—The latest recruit to the ranks of child preachers is a little Doncaster girl, who is electrifying Yorkshire just as Evan Roberts roused Wales.

Frances Bradley Storr is the name of the new evangelist. She is the daughter of a working woman, who is at present the police court missionary at Doncaster, for the British Women's Temperance Association. The child's stepfather is a laborer employed in the town at the Great Northern Plant Works.

Although she was only 12 years old last September, in one month alone she has addressed more than 5,000 people, and it is said that something like 300 men and women have been converted as a result of her simple preaching.

In ten months she has caused a wave of revivalism to sweep over the county and spread to neighboring counties, to the astonishment of the grey beards of the Primitive Methodist Church.

She is a girl of somewhat full oval features, and of marked intellectualism. A little older in appearance by reason of unusual thoughtfulness, her years lead one to expect, but bright, eager and sparkling, as a child should be.

She is no actor, she holds her mother's Bible in a very natural way, with the finger between the leaves of the closed volume at the place where the text from which she is speaking is to be found. Sometimes she varies the pose, and the book is pressed to the side, while light emphasis is secured to enforce a particular sentence by a little raising of the left hand.

Already this wonderful little girl has preached in several counties besides Yorkshire.

BELFAST BUILDS OCEAN LINERS

Although Ireland is supposed to be a very poor country, it is a curious fact that in her city of Belfast is built a larger percentage of magnificent ocean liners than anywhere else in the world. For there is one "yard" in that city turning out with monotonous regularity monsters like the Adriatic of the White Star line. The gross tonnage of this enormous ship is 25,000. And she transports nearly 4,000 souls across the broad Atlantic in less than a week.

Imagine what a hive of industry and machinery must be the place where such colossal ships are born. Think of 14,000 men, assisted by a whole world of thunderous engines, extending over eighty acres, and all at work upon great skeletons, which in a few brief months will be floating palaces of the sea.

In one year eight of these giants have been launched, and they developed altogether the power of more than 160,000 horses. Most of them have nine decks, and carry about 3,000 passengers, and a crew of 500 or 600. Glance for a moment at the very latest product, the immense Adriatic, now the largest vessel in the world.

Her length—about 750 feet—exceeds that of two towering skyscrapers placed one on top of the other, and her funnels, being twenty-four feet in diameter, would easily admit a couple of full-sized trolley cars driven abreast throughout their whole length of 155 feet. Passengers taking their morning stroll on deck will understand that a circuit of the ship three and a half times means covering almost exactly a mile.

A BUSY SCENE

As the monster lies on the ways, one obtains an admirable idea of her vastness. It is like looking up at one of the fir trees, only instead of rising from a desert, the towering hull commands one of the busiest industrial hives of men. Stand on the forecastle in the very eyes of the figurehead, and the ground is nearly a hundred feet below. A confused hum from the joiners' and fitters' shops, for all are busy upon the giant carcass which, even in this bare state, weighs over 17,000 tons—even without engines, boilers and the partial accommodation for passengers.

These with the water in her boilers, her stores, and her 7,000-ton coal bunkers, filled with the heat the ship's produce, will raise the ship's weight, without cargo, to 45,000 tons. The lowest deck of all is known as the tower "orlop," then rising tier by tier we have the orlop, lower, main, upper, shelter, promenade, upper promenade, and boat—nine decks in all. A ship of this kind, the very latest, most luxurious, and largest product of the marine architect, is absolutely unsinkable, being divided into no less than 375 separate water-tight compartments.

Her vast ribs are covered with 26,000 steel plates, the largest forty feet long, and weighing about five tons. To fasten these to the mighty structure of framework took 4,500,000 rivets, and some of these weighed three pounds. The rudder alone weighs 65 tons; or, including the castings for the stem, sternpost and shaft-bracket, 280 tons. Three anchors of ten tons each are carried to control the giant, and each is provided with 1,800 feet of cable, made up of twenty-two inch links the iron in which is nearly four inches in diameter. Think of a chain of which every link weighs a hundredweight and a half.

There are seven electric elevators for both passengers and meals. As to the electric light, there are over 5,000 lamps and 200 miles of cable. One novel feature is a kind of central inquiry bureau which may be rung up by any one of the thousands of passengers upon any matter on which information is desired. Is it any wonder that such a ship would require a strength of 30,000 horses to drive her across the ocean?

And in the place where such ships are built there is also a kind of marine hospital where surgical operations on a vast scale are conducted. The great Indus liner, China, for example, was a patient. She sank in the Red Sea near Perim, and her bottom had to be entirely reconstructed. Another case was the Paris, now re-named the Philadelphia. She had run on to the dreaded Manacles rocks off the coast of Cornwall, England, and required an entirely new stern, as well as new engines and boilers which were ruined.

A GREAT SAFEGUARD.

A recent incident showing the value of these water-tight compartments is that of the steamship Suevic, which ran upon the rocks of the Lizard on the English coast this year. The forward part of the vessel was badly crushed, but the water-tight compartments prevented the water from filling the vessel. After the high sea had shaken the rivets of the frame work and outer plates were loosened, and, assisted by a blast of dynamite, the vessel was separated into two parts—the forward one-third remaining on the rocks, while the after two-thirds proceeded to Liverpool under her own steam.—W. G. Fitzgerald, in August St. Nicholas.

Look For Blood Humors

They Crop Out Constantly, Showing the System Needs Purifying.

Blood is full of humors, and it's no wonder you look and feel poorly.

You are languid,
Appetite is miserable,
Sleep is hard to get,
Snap and vim are lacking.

High time to improve matters—but what's the proper remedy?

Experience proves that Dr. Hamilton's give instant effect. They tone the entire system, fortify the blood, and impart a feeling of new life in a few days.

Unlike strong purgatives, Dr. Hamilton's Pills are exceedingly mild. They are made from concentrated vegetable extracts such as Mandrake and Butternut, and can be taken by young or old, with absolute safety.

"I learnt something very valuable after using Dr. Hamilton's Pills," writes Miss Effie Thompson of Meriden. "I used to have ugly pimples that much embarrassed me. The tonic and purifying effect of Dr. Hamilton's Pills completely restored me. My health is splendid and my complexion a great credit to this marvelous medicine."

Let your medicine be Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They do cure so thoroughly. Sold by all dealers, 25c per box, or five boxes for $1. By mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont., and Hartford, Conn., U.S.A.

JAPAN AND RUSSIA

The treaty of peace between Russia and Japan was signed nearly two years ago. Not long thereafter the diplomatists of the two nations set to work on the drafting of treaties defining their relations in the far east as regards commerce, navigation, and the fisheries. They have only just completed their labors. Perhaps the Japanese set out by asking for too much, and the Russians, stung by defeat, wished to concede as little as possible. The treaties have been signed, and it is said that the publication of a political entente "wiping out the last traces of the contentions and hostilities arising from the late war" will follow. The terms of agreement covering the fisheries in the Okhotsk and Yellow seas will interest only those who fish in those waters, but that "political entente" will be studied carefully when published. It may cast some light on the destiny of Manchuria and, perhaps, of China.

It is said that Japan and Russia will do more than France and Japan have recently done—that is mutually guarantee their rights and territories. Such a guarantee would be a welcome assurance of peace. It would, if adhered to, give the Russian government an opportunity to carry out its alleged policy of peaceful colonization and development in the province bordering on the Pacific.

If the two nations have decided that permanent friendship is expedient, and have come to an agreement about rights and territories, there may be clauses in that agreement which will not be made public. It is in the power of Russia and Japan to determine absolutely what shall be done with that Chinese territory which Russia would have practically absorbed if it had not been for the luckless war with Japan, but they might not choose to take the world into their confidence on the subject.

If Russia and Japan have agreed to pull together the line to China to mend its ways recently given by the Japanese minister of foreign affairs would have double force. It would be equivalent to an order. It would mean that China's two powerful neighbors would, if necessary, regulate matters to suit themselves.

Whatever the result might be as regards China, it would be comforting to be assured that Russia has given up all thoughts of "revenge" and is ready to accept in good faith the results of the war. When it came to a close many Russians said that there would be peace for a few years only; that Russia would create a new navy, strengthen its army, and return to the attack. Perhaps after two years of domestic strife they are in a soberer frame of mind.

AN INDICTMENT OF CHILDREN

The National Education Association of the United States recently drew up an indictment of American children. In it children were arraigned on four counts:

A lack of respect for age as a superior wisdom.

A disposition to follow pleasure and interest rather than obligation and order.

It is plain that this terrific indictment was drawn up by adults and those in authority. Still it will do us no harm to consider it. The counts naturally divide themselves into two groups. The two last can hardly be said to be the exclusive properties of the present race of children. Particularly do we fear that "a disposition to follow pleasure and interest rather than obligation and order" has characterized children—and likewise children of larger growth—ever since the origin of the human species. We fear also that the cognate fault of weakness of "appreciation of the demands of duty" must be admitted to have been always with us. Doubtless what the American teachers meant was that this weakness is on the increase. On that subject it would not be safe to dogmatize. We all know the old time recitation with the familiar refrain, "Aunt Tabithy says she never did so." If devotion to duty is growing less, it is certainly a matter for serious reflection and serious effort at amendment, but we are seized with a suspicion that "grown ups" are a little apt to be forgetful of juvenile naughtiness and slackness in the attention to the 'oughts' of life.

The two first counts, which are likewise cognate to each other, occupy a different position. On these counts the Indianapolis News finds the charges of the American teachers proven. It says:

"Those two tendencies which are but branches of one and the same thing, are not only a national lack with us, but are a weakness in a double sense. We have made them a matter of boast; and secretly do boast of them. It is the unquenchable American spirit, we say in our heart, that defies any law but our own will and pleasure. 'Young America' is a proud term with us, the praise of which implies a recognition of just these two grievous faults. "America the young man's country," is another. We are not as other people. They may plod on in the old and irksome ways. We feel of the tree of knowledge and we do not die. Beyond all question the teachers have here touchedd a national trait that needs amending."

Are these words of condemnation applicable to our children in Canada? On the whole, at least to the same degree, we think not. Unfortunately, however, this spirit of the pride of youth does occasionally make itself heard among us. The greater advantages which children now have over those enjoyed by their parents, and the importance given to "book-learning" as compared to its subordination to practical experience and common sense in other days—these influences create a danger that the young may look down on the aged in the superiority of "culture." In truth this attitude of mind is the very antithesis of genuine culture. We are glad to think that it is not general among the youth of today, and we hope that it may decrease and not increase. We will do well as a nation, however, to take to heart early the warning which has been given to the American people by their educational leaders.—Montreal Star.

Salvation Army Band Was Very Weak

Correspondent Writes re Thursday's Concert in Victoria Park

Editor of Morning Times.

Sir,—Thursday night a large assembly of both sexes but mainly children gathered at Victoria Park to listen to the strains played by the Salvation Army Band. Whilst a fairly good programme was rendered there is no doubt but what the excellent musical aggregation did not turn out as good a number of musicians or music as their splendid band of a Sunday evening would lead a hearer to anticipate. The Salvation Army Band, as noted for several successive Monday issues of The Times, has each preceding Sunday evening demonstrated their musical abilities. Still Thursday night no man in his common senses could but say that performance seemed to be more a perfunctory show adapted to the necessities of playing for possibly an annual grant by the city. The music Thursday night, to tell the plain truth, about what one would expect from a Hiawatha Indian River or Chemong Brass Band. When the Salvation Army can, and does turn out such splendid music as is heard in their own efforts every Sunday night, why do they inflict such insipid twaddle on the general public of Peterborough in Victoria Park? I have the greatest respect for the good work done by the Army here and elsewhere but when one hears their band give so insipid a performance "pro bono publico" when they can and really do give excellent music for their own interests of a Sunday night, there seems to me to be a lack of good faith unbecoming an organization that accomplishes so much good. On Thursday night the cold reception given most of the selections demonstrated what those present thought. Had the band played that night as they do every Sunday to draw the crowd to their barracks, applause would have rung out after each piece played.

Yours respectfully,
HARMONY.

The Money That's Being Made in Western Canada

LAND

In October, 1906 we sold 5,000 acres of Saskatchewan lands to an Indiana party of men at $8 per acre, and resold it this year at $12, making just about 100 per cent. on the money invested.

A Montreal party of men who bought 10,000 acres from us at $8 per acre last September, resold through us within three months at $10.00 per acre.

A Chicago client writes us, that after making some improvements on a section he bought near Regina, one year ago, he sold out recently for exactly twice what he paid for the land.

We resold a section of land located near Lipton for a man at $18.00 per acre last April, which we sold him in December at $12.00.

Men here are growing wealthy who never knew success in any other line. You can make money here too, if you think your amount too small club it with a few friends. Some of the most prominent financial men in the United States and Eastern Canada are now interested in this country heavily.

We own about 200,000 acres of the finest wheat and mixed farming lands in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.—Picked lands on which we are prepared to give accurate trustworthy information, and these tracts being portions of extremely large purchases, we can sell them at prices that cannot be equalled, quality of land considered, by any firm in this country.

Prices range from $6.00 per acre upwards Reasonable Terms in every case

Write us for further information but when doing so tell us the class and amount of an investment you desire, and whether you want the land for your own use or for investment purposes purely. $1,000 is about the minimum we can handle. References Union Bank and Traders' Bank, Winnipeg.

SIREN WAFERS DEVELOP THE BUST

SHE'S A QUEEN! SHE'S A SIREN!

Is an expression that is always heard at sight of a well developed woman. If you are flat chested, with BUST undeveloped, a scrawney neck, thin lean arms —the above remark will never be applied to you. "SIREN" wafers will make you beautiful, bewitching. They DEVELOP the BUST in a few weeks from 3 to 6 inches and produce a fine firm, voluptuous bosom. They fill out the hollow places. Make the cheeks plump and rosy, and arms handsome and well molded and the neck and shoulders shapely and of perfect contour.

Send for a bottle today and you'll be pleased and grateful. "SIREN" wafers are absolutely harmless, pleasant to take and convenient to carry around. They are sold under guarantee to do all we claim or MONEY back.

Price $1.00 per bottle. Inquire at good drug stores or send DIRECT to us.

FREE!

During the next 30 days only—we will send you a sample bottle of these beautifying wafers on receipt of 10 cents to pay cost of packing and postage if you will mention that you saw the Advertisement in this paper. The sample alone may be sufficient if defects are trivial.

50% in Annual Dividends

This is a straight Business Undertaking.

The Smelting of Ore is the safest and most profitable business in the world.

We have fifteen mining properties, located in Kern County, California, carrying good values in Gold, Silver and Copper.

We propose to install on our properties a smelter to treat the ores from our own mines and to do custom smelting for others.

50 per cent. per annum is a moderate estimate of the profits we can earn. If you want to make a safe and profitable investment send for full information and investigate our proposition.

Guggenheim-Greenwater

Copper Prospect at Ely

GUGGENHEIM GREENWATER

I want every reader of this paper, who has a spark of spunk in him to buy a few shares in the Guggenheim Greenwater Copper Company. I can sell it to you now for a mere song—5 cents a share. Every share is of treasury stock, par value $1, full paid up and non-assessable.

I have a poor idea of that man's courage who dares not risk $5 on the chance to make $100. If there is any better buy in the mining market today than a $100 certificate for five dollars, I have never heard of it. This company owns two groups of claims in two copper districts—Ely and Greenwater. It is developing first its group at Ely, and has a shaft down 50 feet with indications of a strike of ore in the next 50 feet.

Every man who reads this advertisement has read the stories from Ely, Nev. He knows as well as I do that experts report there is enough copper ore already in sight in the Ely district to keep ten smelters of immense capacity going for the next one hundred years. One 15,000 ton smelter is already being built by the Guggenheims, and other reduction plants of gigantic capacity are projected. Ely is unquestionably one of the greatest copper districts in the world.

This property is located on the great zone of porphyry which carries the copper values, and I tell you honestly that I would as soon put a few dollars into this prospect and take a chance of its making a big mine as into any mining investment within the range of possibility.

See me about this investment at once. I can fill all orders today for anything up to 10,000 shares at 5 cents. That price is sure to advance sharply any day that news comes of a strike. Buy now at 5 cents.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry must be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made on certain conditions, by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of the homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Six months' notice in writing should be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of intention to apply for patent.

W. W. CORY,
Deputy of the Minister of the Interior.

THE CONQUEST of CANAAN

By BOOTH TARKINGTON,
Author of "Cherry," "Monsieur Beaucaire," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1905, BY HARPER & BROTHERS

heard the outbreak of the sages like a tidal wave striking a dump heap of tin cans.

Two hours later he descended from an evil ark of a cab at the corral attached to Beaver Beach and followed the path through the marsh to the crumbling pier. A red bearded man was seated on a plank by the water edge fishing.

"Mike," said Joe, "have you got room for me? Can you take me in for a few days, until I find a place in town where they'll let me stay?"

The red bearded man rose slowly, pushed back his hat and stared hard at the wanderer; then he uttered a howl of joy and seized the other's hands in his and shook them wildly.

"Glory be on high!" he shouted. "It's Joe Louden come back! We never knew how we missed ye till ye'd gone! Place fer ye! Can I find it? There ain't a imp o' perdition in town, includin' myself, that wouldn't kill me if I couldn't! Ye'll have old Maggie's room, my own aunt's. Ye remember how she used to dance? Ha, ha! She's been burnin' below these four years! And we'll have the celebration of yer return this night. There'll be many of 'em will come when they hear ye're back in Canaan! We'll all hope ye're goin' to stay awhile!"

"Excuse me," said the clerk. "We have no rooms."

CHAPTER IX.

IF any echo of doubt concerning his undesirable conspicuousness sounded faintly in Joe's mind, it was silenced effusions. Canaan had not forgotten him. Far from it, so far that it began pointing him out to strangers on the street the very day of his return. His course of action, likewise that of his friends, permitted him little obscurity, and when the rumors of his finally obtaining lodging at Beaver Beach and of the celebration of his installation there were presently confirmed he stood in the lime light indeed, as a Mephistopheles upsprung through the trap door.

The welcoming festivities had not been so discreetly conducted as to accord with the general policy of Beaver Beach. An unfortunate incident caused the arrest of one of the celebrators and the ambulancing to the hospital of another on the homeward way, the ensuing proceedings in court bringing to the whole affair a publicity devoutly unsought for. Mr. Happy Fear (such was the habitual name of the imprisoned gentleman) had to bear a great amount of harsh criticism for injuring a companion within the city limits after daylight and for failing to observe that three policemen were not too distant from the scene of operations to engage therein.

"Happy, if he had it in mind to harm him," said the red bearded man to Mr. Fear upon the latter's return to society, "why didn't ye do it out here at the beach?"

"Because," returned the indiscreet, "he didn't say what he was goin' to say till we got in town."

Extraordinary probing on the part of the prosecutor had developed at the trial that the obnoxious speech had referred to the guest of the evening. The assaulted party, one "Nashville" Cory, was not of Canaan, but a bit of driftwood haply touching shore for the moment at Beaver Beach, and strange is this world—he had been introduced to the coterie of Mike's Place by Happy Fear himself, who had enjoyed a brief acquaintance with him on a day when both had chanced to travel incognito by the same freight. Naturally Happy had felt responsible for the proper behavior of his protege—was, in fact, bound to enforce it; additionally, Happy had once been saved from a term of imprisonment (at a time when it would have been more than ordinarily incovenient) by help and advice from Joe, and he was not one to forget. Therefore he was grieved to observe that his own guest seemed to be somewhat jealous of the hero of the occasion and disposed to look coldly upon him. The stranger, however, contented himself with innuendo (mere expressions of the face and other manner of things for which one could not squarely lay hands upon him) until such time as he and his sponsor had come to Main street in the clear dawn on their way to Happy's apartment, a variable abode. It may be that the stranger perceived what Happy did not—the three bluecoats in the perspective. At all events, he now put into words of simple strength the unfavorable [illegible] he had [illegible] of [illegible] split was mediaevally immediate, and the period of Mr. Cory's convalescence in the hospital was almost half that of his sponsor's detention in the county jail.

When Happy Fear had suffered, with a give and take simplicity of patience, his allotment of months in durance and was released and sent into the streets and sunshine once more, he knew that his first duty lay in the direction of a general apology to Joe. But the young man was no longer at Beaver Beach; the red headed proprietor dwelt alone there and, receiving Happy with scorn and pity, directed him to retrace his footsteps to the town.

"Ye must have been in the black hole of incarceration indeed if ye haven't heard that Mr. Louden has his law office on the square and his livin' room behind the office. It's in that little brick buildin' straight acrost from the sheriff's door o' the jail. Ye've been neighbors this long time. A hard time the boy had persuadin' any one to rent to him, but by payin' double the price he got a place at last. He's a practicin' lawyer now, and all the boys and girls of our acquaintance go to him with their troubles. Ye'll see him with a murder case to try before long as sure as ye're not worth yer salt! But I expect ye can still call him by his name of Joe, all the same!"

It was a bleak and meager little office into which Mr. Fear ushered himself to offer his amends. The cracked plaster of the walls was bare, save for dust. There were no shelves. The fat brown volumes, most of them fairly new, were piled in regular columns upon a cheap pine table. There was but one window, small paned and shadeless. An inner door of thin pad chamber stood half ajar, permitting the visitor unreserved acquaintance with the domestic economy of the tenant, for it disclosed a second room, smaller than the office and dependent upon the window of the latter for air and light. Behind a canvas camp cot, dimly visible in the obscurity of the inner apartment, stood a small gas stove surmounted by a stewpan, from which projected the handle of a big tin spoon, so that it needed no ghost from the dead to whisper that Joseph Louden, attorney at law, did his own cooking. Indeed, he looked it!

Upon the threshold of the second room reposed a small, worn, light brown scrub brush of a dog, so cosmopolitan in ancestry that his species was almost as undeterminable as the cast from dogs of the Pike mansion. He greeted Mr. Fear hospitably, having been so lately an offcast of the streets himself that his adoption had taught him to lose only his old tremors, not his hopefulness. At the same time Joe rose quickly from the deal table, where he had been working, with one hand in his hair, the other splattering ink from a bad pen.

HIS GREATEST HIT.

The Batter Was Home All Right, but the Run Didn't Count.

"Talking of home plates, that reminds me," began Brick Morse, "of the greatest hit I ever made. It was back at the recreation grounds in San Francisco, final game of the series with Stanford, score 3 to 2 against us.

"Remember the way that angle of the fence came in at center field? There was one of those wooden drags used to smooth off the infield. It had been left tilted up against that corner of the fence, supposedly out of the way.

"I missed the first ball up, let three bad ones pass, had a rotten high one called on me, and it looked all off for yours truly. The next one came easy. I just shut my eyes and swung with all my might. I felt my hands sting on the bat. I went to first! Second! Three thousand people were up yelling like maniacs. 'Oh, you Brick! Home run, home run!' I tagged third and went for the plate. 'Slide! You gotta slide!' sounded in a roar like an express train crossing a trestle. Something struck me a terrible smash on the left side of the head. 'Out!' yelled the umpire. 'Hit by his own batted ball!' My big hit had gone to the center fence, struck the seat on that smoother—seat was mounted on old spiral bed spring—and the ball had rebounded clear back to the plate!"

"How near were you to home, Clinton?" inquired a listener.

"Oh, I was home all right. When I came to my fingers were touching the corner of the"—

"Nope. The bureau."

Heart Strength

Heart Strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve Strength, or Nerve Weakness—nothing more. Positively, not one weak heart in a hundred is, in itself, actually diseased. It is almost always a hidden tiny little nerve that really is all at fault. This obscure nerve—the Cardiac, or Heart Nerve—simply needs, and must have, more power, more stability, more controlling, more governing strength. Without that the heart must continue to fail, and the stomach and kidneys also have these same controlling nerves.

This clearly explains why, as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the past done so much for weak and ailing hearts. Dr. Shoop first sought the cause of all this painful, palpitating, suffocating heart distress. Dr. Shoop's Restorative—this popular prescription—is alone directed to these weak and wasting nerve centers. It builds; it strengthens; it offers real, genuine heart help.

If you would have strong Hearts, strong digestion, strengthen these nerves—re-establish them as needed, with

This Company was formed for the purpose of manufacturing all kinds of Iron, Steel, Metal and Wooden Goods, Agricultural Implements, etc., and to carry on the business of a foundry.

They are now turning out specialties in Ornamental Iron Work, Fences, Crestings, etc., for which there is a great demand far in excess of the present facilities of the Company.

There is a limited amount of stock for sale, and this opportunity to purchase will not return.

The encouragement, coupled with the unexcelled opportunities open to such an enterprise, are in themselves sufficient guarantee of absolute safety and large profits.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS

DASHES HERE AND THERE BY TIMES' REPORTERS.

Improvements to George Street

A marked improvement has been made to George street, west of the car tracks, between King street, and the C.P.R. station. It has been gravelled, rolled and graded, the street roller having been used and it is a pity that the east side is not accorded similar treatment, and also the space between the rails, which the railway company is supposed to see to.

Mr. Stenton will Not Quit at Once

Mr. Chas. Stenton emphatically denied the report attributed to Mr. J. H. Burnham that he, Stenton said he was willing to vacate his present premises, to make way, on the Hilliard Farm for the Children's Shelter. Now, Mr. Stenton says that he has taken considerable trouble to clean up the property which he had found in a bad condition, the land being overrun with weeds. He had spent many hours looking after his garden which was now very promising and would certainly not vacate the house at present. He has a year's lease of the place which will not expire until next April.

Mr. Stenton also said that Mr. Burnham had no authority to tell the council that he was willing to leave the premises at any time.

$100 REWARD, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood an dmucous surfaces of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer one hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Good Program at Centreville

The ice cream social held under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Presbyterian church at Centerville, was a decided success. An excellent program was given consisting of addresses by Rev Mr. Emberson of Bensfort, Rev. Dr. Metherell, of Fraserville, Rev. Dr. Marsh, Springville; recitation by Miss Maggie Berry; solo by Miss Amy Donaldson; duet by Misses Eva and Fanny Porter; quartette by Misses Donaldson and Berry and Messrs. Ling and Ishister.

Cobourg Excursion Coming Here

The Cobourg Sentil-Star says:—Owing to the Grand Trunk being unable to furnish an excursion train yesterday, the Sunday school picnic of the Methodist and Presbyterian churches had to be postponed until next Thursday, August 8th, when no doubt Jackson Park will be the recreation ground for a big crowd from Cobourg. A feature of the day will be a baseball match between teams from the two Sunday schools.

Rochester Wedding of Local Interest

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at 56 Waverly street, Rochester, at five o'clock on Tuesday, July 9th, when Miss Minnie F. Baxter, of Peterborough, Ont., was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Geo. D. Weldy, of Mount Morris. U. S. Rev. E. P. Hubble, of the Methodist Episcopalism church, officiated. After their return from a short wedding trip the happy couple will reside at 56 Waverly street where the groom has a handsome home.

More English Immigrants

On Saturday a train passed through this city with a large number of recently arrived English immigrants. They were perhaps a little above the average and should make good. The heavy influx of foreigners has not made any appreciable effect on the country, but even now with work so much more plentiful than in winter there are many men walking the streets. The question being asked is, what will become of them in the winter? This may be a source for the charitable people to exert themselves. However winter is not here and it is hoped that the worst fears will not be realized.

Inspector Ball is Busy

Lakefield News says; Sanitary Inspector George Ball, of Peterborough, was in the village on Friday last on his regular "weekly official visit", and reports everything that came under his notice in good condition. There had been some complaints that refuse was being allowed to drop into the river from the lumber mills, and float down stream. But on examination he found that the only refuse he could see was that falling off the logs on the drive. Bark and pieces of wood frequently dropped off the logs and it was probably this, and not the refuse from the mill, which is burnt up, that the complaints were made about.

Barnardo People Have Trouble

A Hamilton despatch received Saturday says:—At the instigation of Superintendent Owen of the Barnardo Home, Toronto, the law firm of Washington and Martin this morning issued a writ against William Moore of Seneca township, claiming $1,000 damages for seduction. The real plaintiff in the case is Lillian Boothe, a sixteen-year-old girl. She was sent by the Barnardo Home authorities to work for a farmer named McAdams in Seneca township. Recently she became a mother, and she claims that Moore, who is a stepson of Adams, is the father of her child.

Youngest Manager, Of Electric Plant

Mr. John Davidson, general manager of the Smith's Falls Electric Power Company, has just launched an enterprise of his own, which has in it the promise of success. He has purchased the electric light plant at Millbrook, a small town of something less than 2000 population, between Peterborough and Port Hope, and enters into possession today. In connection with the deal, he secured an exclusive franchise from the town of lighting the streets at $700 a year, and exemption from taxation. His son, Jas. Davidson, left last night for Millbrook, and will be in charge of the plant. He is probably the youngest superintendent of an electric lighting plant in Canada, being only 16 years old, but he is his father's son, has grown up in the lighting station at Sly's, and knows pretty much what there is to know about the business. Mr. Roy Barnes accompanied him from here, and will be his assistant.—Rideau Record, Smith's Falls.

Spark From Locomotive Destroys Residence

Mr. P. J. Murphy of Olps a Heavy Loser by Fire

Intelligence was received here Saturday by Mr. T. J Begley to the effect that the house of his father-in-law, Mr P. J. Murphy, in South Ops, about two miles from Lindsay, was destroyed by fire Friday afternoon about five o'clock, the fire originating from a spark from the engine on the C.P.R express. The track passes very close to the house, and as there was a high wind blowing it is supposed that the spark was blown onto the roof and fanned into a flame. The house, which was a substantial brick structure, was soon a mass of flames, and, in spite of the heroic work of the neighbors, who quickly gathered on the scene, it was completely destroyed. Only a small portion of the furniture was saved. Fortunately, the new barn erected only a short time ago, was on the side of the house from which the wind was blowing, and it was not destroyed. There is some insurance on both the house and its contents, but not enough to cover the loss.

Mrs. Murphy and her daughter, Julia, were in the city at the time, visiting the former's daughter, Mrs. T. J. Begley. They left, accompanied by Mr. Begley, at noon for Lindsay.

What Ails You?

Do you feel weak, tired, despondent, have frequent headaches, coated tongue, bitter or bad taste in morning, "heartburn," belching of gas, acid risings in throat after eating, stomach gnaw or burn, foul breath, dizzy spells, poor or variable appetite, nausea at times and kindred symptoms?

If you have any considerable number of the above symptoms you are suffering from biliousness, torpid liver with indigestion, or dyspepsia. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is made up of the most valuable medicinal principles known to medical science for the permanent cure of such abnormal conditions. It is a most efficient liver invigorator, stomach tonic, bowel regulator and nerve strengthener.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" is not a patent medicine or secret nostrum, a full list of its ingredients being printed on its bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. A glance at its formula will show that it contains no alcohol, or harmful habit-forming drugs. It is a fluid extract made with pure, triple-refined glycerine, of proper strength, from the roots of the following native American forest plants, viz., Golden Seal root, Stone root, Black Cherrybark, Queen's root, Bloodroot, and Mandrake root.

The following leading medical authorities, among a host of others, extol the foregoing roots for the cure of just such ailments as the above symptoms indicate: Prof. R. Bartholow, M. D., of Jefferson Med. College, Phila.; Prof. H. C. Wood, M. D., of Univ. of Pa.; Prof. Edwin M. Hale, M. D., of Hahnemann Med. College, Chicago; Prof. John King, M. D., Author of American Dispensatory; Prof. Jno. M. Scudder, M. D., Author of Specific Medicines; Prof. Laurence Johnson, M. D., Med. Dept. Univ. of N. Y.; Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., Author of Materia Medica and Prof. in Bennett Medical College, Chicago. Send name and address on Postal Card to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and receive free booklet giving extracts from writings of all the above medical authors and many others endorsing in the strongest possible terms, each and every ingredient of which "Golden Medical Discovery" is composed.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. They may be used in conjunction with "Golden Medical Discovery" if bowels are much constipated. They're tiny and sugar-coated.

Dr. Johnston Continues Suit

Lakefield News says;

Editor Lakefield News,

Sir,—In your last week's issue you stated that you are informed that the suit for slander which was to have been instituted by me against Mr. Dodge had been withdrawn. This is not correct. A writ claiming damages has been issued and served upon Mr. Dodge and the suit instituted has not been settled. I trust you will make this correction in your next issue.

Yours truly,
J. N. JOHNSTON.

THE LARDER LAKE EXPLORATION AND DEVELOPMENT CO.

CAPITAL, 500,000 SHARES—PAR VALUE $1.00 PER SHARE

FULLY PAID AND NON-ASSESSABLE

15c First allottment of 50,000 Shares at Fifteen Cents per Share 15c

Our Option on this small block of Underwriters' Stock expires August 8th, 1907—Subscriptions Post-marked at later date will be returned

Do you realize that investments of a hundred or a thousand will grow rapidly into hundreds and thousands and millions of dollars? The over-conservative and skeptical will smile—they will laugh at these predictions, some will even consider this a joke—but remember COBALT, if you please, two or three years ago? Then it was a "vision," it was a "dream," "a flash in the pan," "a bubble," somebody Was "crazy"; bu now it is different. Those crazy men are now classed among the smart and keenest business men of the day. The actual value of a few mines are worth at the present date more than one hundred millions of dollars. These are facts.

In presenting this investment for subscription we appeal to the good judgement of sensible persons as to its merit.

It embodies, we believe, a correct method of developing and establishing successful and paying mining enterprises.

We desire to conduct, first of all a successful Mine Developement. We intend this to be done in a way that will be absolutely fair and honest, and bring the largest profit possible to those who co-operate with us.

We, therefore, desire this proposition to be well understood by investors. We wish it to be known just how we propose to develope, establish and operate dividend paying Mining Companies by and through this investment.

THE PLAN.—The plan involved in this proposition is that of uniting or consolidating the investments of a limited number of persons into one sum, and under one management, to be used in acquiring and developing mining properties in this wonderful region.

THE PRINCIPLE involved in this investment we believe, is one of absolute fairness to all interested. The "promotion interest" common to all mining companies, and which is the great unfair feature to investors who put their money into stocks of these companies, and whose money develops and makes the mine, if a mine is developed—does not exist in this proposition. There is no "promotion interest set aside, and against the interest bought and paid for by the investors.

In this proposition the investors, and all the investors, become promotors. They take the "promotion interest" and all the interest. They own the whole enterprise. No matter how large or how small the investment—all stand on an equal basis. Our field of operation is probably one of the greatest, and without doubt the richest, mineralized region in the world.

For its basis, upon which we will establish and build us several great producing, paying mining companies, we will exploit and develop in a mining-like and careful manner exclusive mining properties low known to us, other properties which we may acquire for the mutual benefit of all investors in this Company.

SUBSIDIARY COMPANIES.—The Larder Lake Exploration and Development Comany will incorporate a series, not to exceed five, of Subsidiary Mining Companies upon only the real proven properties acquired.

In each and every subsidiary Company incorporated, whether Mining, Milling, Smelting, Water Power, or Electric Light, the Exploration Company will take 90 per cent. of the capital stock of each Company so incorporated, and will put 10 per cent. of the Capital Stock of each Company in its treasury. It will probably never become necessary to sell any of this Treasury Stock.

Out of the total Capital Stock of each Subsidiary Company, the EXPLORATION COMPANY will retain 50 per cent. as its "Holding Stock." This will always control the Company. It will take and hold 40 per cent. for the mutual benefit of all stockholders in the EXPLORATION COMPANY. This 40 per cent will be known as "Selling Stock," and as a market is created it will be sold, and the proceeds received will be distributed pro rata to the stockholders in the EXPLORATION COMPANY, as their interests may appear.

The stock of the Subsidiary Companies will be inlisted on the New York Curb and Mining Exchanges of the country, and started at 50 cents a share, where it can be bought and sold according to the daily market quotations. This will afford a channel by which stockholders can sell the 40 per cent. "Selling Stock" from time to time, if they wish.

PROPERTIES.—Many different mining properties will be acquired and developed as stock in the EXPLORATION COMPANY, is subscribed for. All properties will be described, and reports submitted regarding same, as soon and as often as they can be examined by the engineer.

The mining properties that will be acquired for this proposition will be located in the gold and silver belt, extending from the Montreal River through Northern Ontario, eastward into Quebec, and will include properties in the Lady Evelyn District, the new Montreal River Silver District, Cobalt District, and the gold districts around Round Lake, Larder Lake, Lake Abitibi, and in the great undeveloped mineralized section of Quebec lying just east of Larder Lake and extending northward to Lake Abitibi.

We shall try and make every dollar count, and make as few mistakes as possible. We hope to create such an interest in this enterprise with investors, that will result in extensive and widespread co-operation.

Under this plan no one can truthfully say that it is not a great mining investment. We want every investor to feel a personal interest in this Mine Development. The investors in this Company will own this enterprise, and we want them to co-operate with us and our associates to make it a great success.

We are now organizing THE LARDER LAKE EXPLORATION AND DEVELOPMENT COMPANY with what we consider sufficient capital ($500,000). We now have options on, and propose to acquire five distinct and separate properties which will be incorporated at $100,000 each (100,000 shares—par value $1.00). The Exploration Company will at all times hold a controlling interest in each of these companies, so that sixty per cent. of the dividends earned and declared will be paid into the treasury of the parent company, and the other forty per cent. distributed among the stockholders on record. This in our opinion will enable us to pay dividends and large ones in the very near future.

The Board of Directors of THE LARDER LAKE EXPLORATION AND DEVELOPMENT COMPANY will be composed only of engineers of national repute, setting a precedent in this line—Mr. Robert Morton will be president, which fact in itself guarantees conservative and able management.

Investors have been pouring their money into over capitalized mining companies, they have been plunging about wildly in the hope of some day "striking it rich" never stopping to think for one instant that the greater part of their money never reaches the ground, as a rule 75 per cent. of the money invested in stock schemes goes into the broker's hands. He pays his salesmen 20 to 50 per cent. on every dollar turned in, he must get his own commission and engineers must be paid.

We never had associated with us a stock salesman, we require no commission and our engineers will be our directors, so that every dollar invested with us on this proposition will be honestly used in the purchasing and development of the different properties.

We are now offering for subscription the first allottment of stock in THE LARDER LAKE EXPLORATION AND DEVELOPMENT COMPANY—every hundred shares entitles the holder to forty shares of stock in each of the subsidiary companies to be incorporated, making in all 200 shares of stock in five separate companies, which, as soon as development work is started and dividends announced, will make the stock of the Larder Lake Exploration and Development Company almost invaluable. This first allottment of only 50,000 shares ($1.00 par value) will probably be largely over-subscribed in a few days.

The next allottment will be put out Sept 25, 1907, at 75c per share or higher.

This price (15c.) will positively be withdrawn Aug. 8, 1907. If this allottment is over-subscribed remittances will be promptly returned. Checks, drafts and money orders must accompany all applications and be made payable to the financial agents.

Interim certificates will be promptly returned to subscribers. The stock certificates of the Company representing the shares purchased will be issued and delivered as soon as allottment can be made, after the 8th of August, to all subscribers who purchase at the first underwriting price prior to that date.

Don't wait! Be wise! Act NOW! NOW IS THE TIME! Here is an opportunity that excels that which you had two or three years ago at Cobalt. Perhaps you will say as you did then, "How do we know they have got any silver up there? Perhaps you say now "How do you know there is any gold at Larder Lake?"

—A foot bridge has been temporarily constructed over the north side of the creek on Charlotte street so that passage is open to pedestrians.

—Rev. R. J. Hunter, B.A., of Greeley, Colorado, preached in St. Paul's Presbyterian church, Peterborough yesterday morning and evening.

—The service in the Orange Hall was taken yesterday by Rev. Dr. Langfeldt. After the service the Sacrament of Holy Baptism was administered.

—The comet is now visible to the naked eye, and is seen as a star of the third magnitude. It is situated about half way between Aldebaran and the Pleides group.

—Rev. Dr. Langfeldt administered the holy sacrament of the Lord's Supper at the park yesterday morning at eight o'clock. The service was held on the verandah of Mr. D. H. Charles.

—Mr. E. Hartley on Saturday afternoon called at The Times office to say that he had made a bet that he could run from Peterborough to Bailieboro and back, a distance of 34 miles, return in six hours.

—A peddler of cheap jewellery did a thriving business Saturday morning on the market square. In fact one of our local wags once spent a quarter for a handful of junk.

—A despatch received Saturday, said that Rockefeller, the Oil King, had been fined 29 million dollars. This means a gun from John D. and a dime of three cents a gallon in oil and, within six months the $29,000,000 will be made up with good interest. These Yankee mult.millionaires have things right in their own keeping and they keep it.

The Chemong Park Cottagers' Association & Yacht Club have arranged for an excursion per Str. Ogemah to the Sturgeon Point Regatta on Thursday, August 8th, and Stony Lake Regatta, Monday, August 12th, leaving Chemong each morning at 9.30 and returning about 9 in the evening. Return fare each excursion 75 cents; children under 15, 40 cents. Parties going from Peterborough will please arrange with Bruce Lee & Co. as to transportation to and from Chemong, N.B.—Chemong Regatta will take place August 13th.

Private Telephone Line for Kinmount

The Lindsay Post says that for some time a number of the more progressive business men and farmers between here and Kinmount have been endeavoring to get the Bell Telephone Co. to extend its line from either the Falls or Coboconk into that section.

The article goes on to say that as the Bell Co. consider the line would not pay, the residents of the northern section of that county are considering the building and maintenance of a private line. Should this be carried into effect we venture to assert that some misguided agriculturist will gain a whole lot of knowledge about telephone matters and the ease with which money may be sunk in telephone poles, wires, etc. They will also require a powerful lens to see any dividends on their stock. Private telephone lines are about the hungriest devourer of man's good hard earned coin and the most reluctant to disgorge profits.

COAL MINERS GIVE UP STRIKE THREAT

Announcement of Peace Has Been Declared and 13,000 Miners in the Pittsburg District are Going Back to Work--Operators were Firm in Their Stand at the Conference.

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 3.—There will be no strike of miners in the Pittsburg district at this time. The conference settling this, lasted all day and it is understood that the formal announcement of peace will be declared. The meeting yesterday was rather bitter, according to information leaking out during the evening. The operators were firm in their stand that the miners' officials at this time were acting unfairly and breaking faith, and it was asserted with some warmth that if a strike was declared at this time there would be withdrawn support which the operators have long given the union in collecting dues for the miners. The Pittsburg Coal Company has long been collecting the monthly dues for the union from the pay of its 15,000 workmen and handing the same over to the union.

At the conference yesterday afternoon the miners' representative was told plainly that any move towards a strike at this time would be considered as an unfriendly move and an abrogation of the agreement to collect dues by the operators and they would refuse to collect another dollar. This, it is asserted, would spell ruin to the local mine workers' union, as not more than half the miners who are now assessed by the employers would pay their money to the union.

Moors Continue Terrorism--Burn Bodies of the Christians

Paris, Aug. 5.—The government received yesterday, through the French charge d'affaires at Tangier, the excuses of the Moroccan governing board for the troubles at Casablance and its usual assurances that orders have been given to the governors of the various ports that they will be held responsible for the security of foreigners.

But these platonic assurances will not affect the program the government is elaborating with Spain, for which active preparations are proceeding. The second naval division, consisting of the cruisers Cueydon, Gloire and Jeanne d'Arc, sailed from Toulon yesterday for Morocco. The entire coast of that country will probably be patrolled by French and Spanish fleets until the international police are installed.

Generals A. M. B. Drude, commanding the first regiment of the 4th Algerian Tirailleurs, an energetic officer, who has spent his entire career in the colonies, campaigning successively in Tonkin, Dahomey and China, has been given command of the French expeditionary force that is embarking at Oran for Casablanca. The impression is general here that that in order to put an end to anarchy in Morocco a punitive expedition must march on Fez.

WILL BE ANOTHER SESSION THIS FALL

Ottawa, Aug 5.—The story appearing in the Montreal Star to the effect that Sir Wilfrid Laurier applied to Earl Grey for a dissolution of parliament and an appeal to the country this fall, but that his excellency refused a dissolution because of an agreement with Mr R. L. Borden that there would be another session before an election, is without foundation. In fact, Sir Wilfrid Laurier has not seen Earl Grey since he (the Premier) returned to Canada, and preparations will be made for another session of the present parliament this fall as usual.

The story was to the effect that since the return of Sir Wilfrid Laurier from abroad he prepared the personnel of a new Cabinet, which was in due course presented to his excellency for ratification, with the understanding that dissolution should follow the announcement. It is alleged that Earl Grey, knowing of the premier's promise to Mr. Borden to hold another session before dissolution, suggested that the plan, in view of the promise, should have Mr. Borden's consent. The opposition leader, it is stated, was in Montreal at the time, and intended remaining here for several days, but only remained one day, proceeding to Ottawa. It is not stated what happened, but there was some delay, and the announcement has not yet been made. Incidentally it is stated that Sir Richard Cartwright has been making a strenuous kick against the retention of Sir Frederick Borden in the Cabinet, and that the Minister of Militia strongly objected to vacating his portfolio. It is said there will be no changes for the present.

Twenty Miles of Ships

Portsmouth, Aug. 5.—Wonderfully inspiring, picturesque, stately and significant was the ceremonial in the fair, quiet waters of the Solent today, when King Edward and Queen Alexandra reviewed from the royal yacht Victoria and Albert a magnificent assemblage of ships of war led by the leviathan, Dreadnought. This great display, unprecedented under the supreme command of one admiral, constitutes the new home fleet and spread out in seven long lines, with the softest and richest scenery in all England on either hand telling of the delights of peace, it formed more than twenty miles of frowning might and showed every type of naval construction from the battleship to the submarine.

Every vessel was decorated with a rainbow of bunting and manned by blue jackets, whose cheers as the King and Queen steamed through the lines re-sounded through the wooded slopes of the Isle of Wight and from the Hampshire shore to the New Forest.

FORTY PEOPLE DROWN LIKE RATS IN A TRAP

Passengers in a Third-class Railroad Car and the Engineer of the Train were Drowned in a Railroad Accident--Locomotive Jumped the Track and Plunged Into River.

Angers, France, Aug. 5 — Forty passengers in a third-class railroad car and the engineer of the train were drowned yesterday afternoon in a railroad accident, three miles southeast of this town.

The locomotive of a crowded local train jumped the track when entering the bridge over the River Loire at Les Ponts-de-Ce. The stone railing gave way, and the engine plunged into the river, 50 feet below, dragging down with it its tender and the baggage and third-class car.

Fortunately no other cars went into the water, as the coupling between the second and third cars broke.

The conductor and fireman were the only persons whose lives were saved. They escaped by swimming.

The third-class car was filled with passengers, but although part of the roof was blown off by the confined air as it sank, not a single passenger extricated himself, and all were drowned like rats in a trap.

The engineer perished beneath the locomotive.

MORE OUTRAGES

New York, Aug. 5.—Another murderous assault was added tonight to the police record of recent crimes against defenceless women and girls. Tonight's victim was Miss Ellen Bulger, a woman of middle age, who was attacked in her apartments in the Bronx, cruelly beaten and left in a helpless state.

There was evidence that the woman had made a courageous fight.

From what the police were able to learn from her, she was surprised by a smooth-faced stranger, perhaps 40 years of age. He was coatless and wore an outing shirt and dark trousers. He escaped.

Just before Miss Bulger was assaulted George Kestner, a Russian, charged with attempted assault upon an eight-year-old girl, was set upon by a crowd of men, and all but killed. The clothes were torn from his body and he was taken to a station house, wrapped in a blanket.

Another mob set upon Hyle Saloda, an Indian palmist, who was similarly accused, and only the timely interference of police reserves saved him from rough handling.

Montreal, Aug. 5.—Mr. D. McNicoll, vice-president and general manager of the C.P.R., returned from the west yesterday, after inspecting the company's lines. "The wheat crop promises well," he said. "It may be a little later than usual on account of the unusually late summer, but from what I have seen there is no reason for alarm."

"How about the supply of cars to handle it?" was asked.

"With business growing as it is in this country," said Mr. McNicoll, "cars are always short; but I do not think there will be any particular difficulty in handling the western harvest, as we have very greatly increased our rolling stock since last year. At the Angus shops we are turning out twenty-eight freight cars a day. This year, there will be 6,000 new cars available for use when the season for movement of crops arrives. The company has spent something like $10,000,000 in rolling stock for the movement of passengers and freight. By the fall we should have 200 new locomotives in use. That includes seventy which will have been built at our own shops, where we are building a new locomotive every five days, in addition to repairs that are always in progress.

"Two hundred locomotives per year we are now adding to the system. I do not think that record is bad."

Mr. F. E. Bell Leaving for San Francisco

Yesterday the Times was Given a Call by Mr. Bell Who Leaves Tomorrow for the Coast

Yesterday afternoon The Times was given a valedictory call by Mr. Fred E. Bell, who tomorrow morning leaves to live in San Francisco. Mr. Bell's many friends whilst congratulating him on an assured better and more lucrative life in the city of the Golden Horn, will learn with regret that he is leaving Peterborough, the city, that for so many years has been the scene of his varied channels of usefulness. Mr. Bell, who leaves tomorrow for San Francisco, "for keeps", has two sons there occupying prominent positions in the banking circles of that re-constructed city. Mr. Bell, before leaving has called on Mr James Stevenson, who has relatives occupying high and far-reaching positions in San Francisco. Mr. Stevenson has arranged with Mr. Bell that he, the latter will receive a cordial welcome on arrival, and, consequently, on his getting there, together with the influence of Mr. Bell's sons, be assured of a good start in his adopted home. We hope, trust and are really assured that Mr. Bell's own merits, irrespective of extraneous assistance by friends or relatives, will result, on his arrival, in Mr. Bell dropping into a good and well paying position.

It is well known to most of our readers that Mr. Bell, during his present life's career here, has demonstrated that he is not only an expert bookkeeper and accountant but also an accomplished musician. This latter statement is verified by the years he so ably played St. John's church organ, the largest and, possibly, the best in this city. We hope for the best for Mr Bell's new life in the city of the Golden Gate, and this wish will be re-echoed by hundreds of his friends in this city.

Toulon Marksmen were Beaten Here

Toulon, August 3. — Three men were killed and seven others wounded by the explosion of a gun during target practice today on board the French training ship Couronne. Two of the wounded men sustained dangerous injuries.

Why we know where a few days ago a prominent G.T.R. official with other friends went with rifles back of Armours' Hill, and had a rifle practice at a home-made target placed on a stump at the east side of the hill. The G.T.R. expert on railroad rates took up his rifle, seemingly aimed it and at the appointed time pulled the trigger. The last heard of the bullet from his gun was a whizzing sound heard by some folk living out near Auburn. In any event the course of that bullet has not yet been located.

Police Court

When his worship ascended the ostrum yesterday he had to deal with a quartette of bad boys, who were out Saturday and as a result appeared before the bench with tearful eyes.

Two boys about twelve years of age were charged with stealing some fruit from a Hunter street fruit store on Saturday. They pleaded guilty.

Two others also pleaded guilty to the temporary theft of a horse and rig, who were about the same age. One of the latter two also pleaded guilty to stealing some $2 from a Peterborough gentleman. The quartette were all remanded until Friday.

Crime among the juvenile population of the city is on the increase and although the magistrate has been lenient with young offenders in the past, it is likely that that worn out and seemingly useless sentence, of "suspended sentence" will be relegated to the oblivion of worn out and useless matters.

Miss Birdie Thompson is Heard From

Yesterday relatives of Miss Birdie Thompson, who came so nearly winning first place in the Toronto World's competition, but who done well nevertheless in Peterborough people generally do, heard from this young lady, who is en route on her long voyage. Miss Thompson says:

"We arrived in Montreal about eight o'clock Friday morning and had the morning at our own disposal. After luncheon at the Windsor, which was our headquarters, we were driven around the mountain and the other places of interest in the city. The steamer "Virginian," of the Allan Line, was boarded after dinner, about half-past nine. Several of us had callers, and you may depend, they were very welcome, for every girl was feeling a little lonely at leaving.

"The girls are quite congenial, and we are getting along splendidly. The weather so far has been ideal and we are now about 150 miles below Quebec.

Large Crowd of Spectator

Yesterday afternoon fully sixty local citizens gathered round the operations now being carried on by a gang of men under Street Commissioner Harry Evans, at English's creek bridge on Charlotte street, watching the work done. The re-entered current, impelled in the creek by water thrown from a three-inch hose from the water works hydrant seemed to catch their attention. The men to the west side who are excavating in preparation for the concrete walls on that side of the creek, were yesterday compelled to work in, possibly, six inches of water that even the artificially impelled current could not carry off, but which seeped through the creek's bottom. This bridge is causing considerable trouble to Mr Evans and the city engineer but it will be "well and truly laid."

Capt. and Adjt. Guy Rogers Coming Home

Son of Local Postmaster Home for a Month from India

Col. H. C. Rogers, postmaster, Peterborough, expects a visit from his fifth son, Captain and Adjutant Guy H. Rogers, of the XI Regiment of the Indian army, tomorrow. He is on furlough, having spent a month in Japan, three months in British Columbia with his friends, and intends stopping a month here with his father, and then a month in England, returning to India in October via Suez Canal, after encircling the globe. Captain Rogers has not been here for the past five years, and his many friends will be greatly pleased to see him again.

P. C. Newhall Leaves for England Soon

Prominent Member of Local Police Force May be Married

During the past few days since it has been generally known that P. C. Newhall, of the local police force, has asked for and obtained six weeks' leave of absence from service on the Peterborough police force, rumors have been current that this efficient officer on the local force is simply going to England with no idea of returning on expiration of his term of leave of absence.

Now The Times is in a position to state most positively that Mr. Newhall will, on termination of his absence, re-enter on a recount of the duties he has performed so well. It might be noted that The Times has good reason for absolutely knowing that this efficient officer will, on termination of his holidays be "Johnny on the spot," as far as pursueing the duties he has looked after so faithfully in the past.

Again another rumor is current that P. C. Newhall is going to England to get him a bride, presumably promised. Now this is a delicate subject to tackle, and The Times can only say that an interview with Mr. Newhall, simply resulted in that gentleman saying practically, "You fellows want an awful lot you can't get. I would not marry any woman over 60 years of age or——" and then he closed up like an oyster, when the years below were suggested. Still, if this good member of the local force is going abroad to seek a life's companion, his replies are worthy of the sleuth-like attitude he assumes in his business.

Further Trouble Regarding Express Carts

Correspondent Gives Further Proof of Trouble Caused on George Street

Editor of The Morning Times.

Dear Sir,—Whilst not desiring to cast on the proven acknowledged and the influence admitted by articles and letters in one particular a matter you have in your esteemed paper, I must say that most strenuously advocated, and, in every case backed up by undeniable argument, your efforts seem to be unavailing as far as public protection goes. I will say, and any reader must admit, that your articles on the danger involved and the danger admitted of Victoria Park being in darkness at night, have accomplished the results desired and demanded by the public of Peterboro.

Still another matter that your readers as correspondents and your articles, in ipso, have called attention to, does not seem to awake the police to a sense of their duty to those whose rates pay them. I refer to the danger to life and limb, the affront to auditory sense, and the infernal nuisance created by boys' express carts using George street pavements to drag or use such for coasting. Now, only yesterday my recollection of several articles and letters read in The Times on this subject was recalled forcibly to this matter when I was telescoped between two express carts in front of Kennedy's meat market on the east side of George street on the pavement. As I was going north on this pavement, two boys, each dragging an express cart southwards with full speed, collided at the spot mentioned and I happened to be the "Buffer-mate" between these noisy, irresponsible colliding vehicles. The consequence was one bruise 3 1-2 by 1 on the calf of the left leg, three punctures, leaving other marks on the right leg calf, possibly about 3 inches in circumference each. Not only this, but some 17 inches of a brand new pair of trousers were indelibably blackened by the grease from the wheel hubs of these carts that should be on the street. At the time of discovering my injuries, personal and pocket, I stopped the boys to remonstrate. They only laughed at me and one said, "Why the ——don't an old—— like you jump off the sidewalk and let us go by?" Now, if irresponsible non-taxable boys can monopolize our pavements for their express carts, either the the city ordinances or our police are greatly to blame. I remember that when your paper first called attention to this nuisance on our pavements, the police made a spasmodic attempt to stop such nuisance. It may seem that a boy's wagon on the pavement is a small thing to kick about. Let anyone, at any time in the day time, any day walk down George street and he will see the undoubted and intolerable nuisance these express carts create. I venture to say that 90 per-Cent of the women of Peterborough have found them a nuisance.

PAVEMENT FOR PEDESTRIANS.

Regatta Notes

Lindsay Launches to Enter at Stony Lake and Orillia

That the success of the Stony Lake regatta on Aug. 12th, Peterborough's Civic Holiday, is an assured success is demonstrated by the fact that Lindsay yachtsmen will be present in full force at Stony Lake on that occasion. During this year a number of new power launches have appeared on the Sturgeon waters, and the majority of these will be at the regatta, and will participate in the races for that close Mr. George Wilson, of the Lindsay Post, has a racing launch that can make the best of them travel fast to win.

Orillia people will hold a regatta on August 14th, two days after that at Stony Lake, and a number of those owning boats will take it in this year.

Mr. Downham to Inspect Local Milk

It will be pleasing intelligence to the mothers of Peterborough families to learn that yesterday Sanitary Inspector Ball announced that arrangements are practically completed with Mr P. Downham, of the Peterborough Creamery, to test the milk supplied the city by dairymen and others, every week. It is claimed by some that the test Mr Downham gives the milk is practically the same as is made in Toronto. Having it done here will be more convenient and there will be no danger of the milk spoiling before it reaches its destination. The first local test will be made this week.

Misunderstanding re Street Cars

It seems that some misunderstanding arose Saturday night when the C.G.E. Angling Club patrons on the excursion of the club of that name did not, or could not get cars to bring them from the street car wharf to the city. Now it is evident to the merest tyro that the Otonabee Navigation Co. boat, the Otonabee, had to come up in any event to Wolfe street wharf and it was just as easy for her to carry the few passengers who might have got off at the street car wharf. On the other hand the street railway people have never yet been known to turn down a chance for raking in a few dollars. With the immense expenditure that company is under, who could reasonably ask otherwise. The whole thing is that a mistake was made, and, anyhow the Otonabee brought her passengers to the Wolfe street wharf.

I will mail you free, to prove merit, samples of my Dr Shoop's Restorative, and my Book on either Dyspepsia, The Heart or The Kidneys. Troubles of the Stomach, Heart or Kidneys, are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak Stomach nerves—the inside nerves—mean Stomach weakness, always. And the Heart, and Kidneys as well. Have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves and you inevitably have weak and organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative gives its work its remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves." Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion use Dr Shoop's Restorative. Write me today for sample and free Book. Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. The Restorative is sold by all dealers.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

Local Sports Go Fishing at Jubilee Point

On Sunday a number of local sports went to Hiawatha for a day's fishing. In this connection no names shall be mentioned. Still, during their outing, these men, some of them dispensers of wet goods, had a good time. One of the incidents of their dinner was that a local wine clerk accepted a glass of foaming extract de malt originally made by the Calcutt B. & M. Co. Unfortunately for the ultimate convenience of the absorber, a joke perpetrated a year ago, and at the time chronicled in The Times was repeated. A friend of his attracting his attention to some extraneous matter plumped a small green frog into the glass of lager. Mr. Busty started to absorb the extract of malt and hop, but was surprised to feel his nose scratched by the front paws of a Batchanlow down green spotted yellow ringed bolt frog. He tenderly lowered the glass of lager and carefully, between first and second finger removed the reptile, which was allowed to depart to its native element. Mr. Nellie Harrie acted as usual in his accustomed style as caterer.

Port Hope Paper's Advice Applicable Here

The Port Hope Guide of last issue has an article that, were some of our City Fathers to read and act by, would result in the granting to The Guide by long suffering citizens of, at least, a leather medal. The Guide says:

"Last evening's council meeting was the merriest for 1907, and some hard knocks were handed out by the members. It was carried altogether too far, and the only movement of the evening which didn't meet with opposition was the resolution to adjourn. It took just three hours and ten minutes to do thirty minutes' business. Here we are entering upon the eighth month of the year, and it is time the City Fathers settled down to business. It might be well in the future if the angry passions of the members should happen to rise, for His Worship to adjourn the meeting. Nothing gained in such burlesques."

Work was Resumed on the Ore Docks

Duluth, Aug 5.—Work was resumed on the ore docks of Duluth and Superior yesterday morning, and the strikers at Two Harbors are expected to follow their example immediately. But on the iron range, conditions are still so critical that it is believed that troops will have to be sent there immediately to guard the mine property and prevent bloodshed.

Governor Johnson last night sent a commission into the mining districts north of Duluth to investigate and report on conditions there and the advisability of sending troops. Their reports will probably be made today.

Armed resistance by the strikers was advocated last night by Strike Leader Petriella at a mass meeting at Chisholm. Petriella's speech was repeated in four different languages and it had a most noticeable effect on the men. He said the moment was at hand when the miners should take the law into their own hands. He ordered them to arm themselves and be prepared to strike to kill. Petriella said he had wired the governor, who replied that he would make a personal investigation. "I want you to give them twenty-four hours," he said, "and if at the end of that time justice is denied us, be ready to strike at the head of any man who tries to crush you."

He advised the men to keep within their halls and guard them with rifles. The Western Federation of Miners, he said, was behind them.

Sheriff Bates of St. Louis county, went to Hibbing last night, and after hurriedly looking over the situation, ordered one hundred deputies from Proctor, and they have been sent to the Monroe Tenner mines.

Many of the mines, both in the Hibbing and Eleventh districts, are operating heavily in stripping, and also in taking out ore, and the ore is being shipped to Duluth and Two Harbors. At the ore docks at Oneota, 200 men were at work yesterday unloading nine big lake freighters with ore. The Illouez docks at Superior were also operating.

Britain and Russia Reach an Agreement To Protect India

New York, Aug. 5.—The Herald has received the following cable despatch from London: — The British Government is about to conclude an arrangement with Russia by which the outstanding difficulties regarding the Indian frontier of Persia are to be amicably settled. The arrangement will come in the ordinary way before the house of commons, and it is feared it may meet some opposition from the labor party.

It is not a matter which forms the dominant issues of Russian policy, neither implies nor states the approval of the Czar's government. It pertains merely to the delimitation of the boundaries in that part of the world where the interests of two great empires meet.

The arrangement, which will, of course, be sanctioned by the house of commons, is one of great importance to Great Britain. It will enable Great Britain for the time being, at all events, to remove the danger of any conflict of interests with Russia on the north-west frontier of India and in Persia. This is a great gain, for while it will relieve Great Britain from the nightmare of the Russians at the gates of Herat, it will enable the government to direct its attention and interest to other more pressing problems of foreign policy.

An Appeal Made for More Funds

Ottawa, Aug. 6—Mayor Scott has received an appeal forwarded by Percy Treasider, formerly of Ottawa, and now of St Louis, Mo., for funds to carry on the legal fight to save Frederick A. Barrington Seymour from the death penalty for murder. Mr. Treasider asserts his belief in Seymour's innocence, claims that he is most unjustly treated and asks funds from Ottawa to carry on the prisoner's fight for liberty.

A statement from the prisoner asserting his innocence and appealing for help is also enclosed.

Seymour appeals to the citizens of Ottawa for funds, declaring his innocence and claiming that he has not received a fair trail. He says: "Since my arrest on June 27, 1907, I have been constantly confined in a small steel cage without even being able to step outside of the jail or court room. Subject to all manner of indignities of ordinary justice. My attorneys and friends have been refused admittance to me by the hand which, if properly run down and investigated, would clear up the mystery of the alleged crime of which I was wrongly convicted, and bring to justice the known crooks and gamblers who manufactured the circumstantial evidence they testified to."

Attached to Seymour's appeal is a recommendation from Western Regional Esq., British vice consul, at St. Louis, Missouri, who says, "I believe the above to be a fair representation of the case and will use any funds sent through me in his defence."

Mr Treasider in his letter states:

"I am a former citizen of Ottawa and still a British subject. I served with Mr Seymour during the South African war, and always found him to be a gentleman and a man of his word. He was arrested, tried and convicted on manufactured evidence and convicted on manufactured circumstantial evidence. The body that was found was never properly identified and there has always been a doubt whether McCann (supposed to have been murdered) was dead or alive. He was never proved to be dead during the trial.

"They are trying to hang this poor man because they think he may have committed a murder. In this station, God forbid that we call it so. It is a travesty on justice, and I call on Ottawa as an justice loving people, to come forward to lend a hand to save the life of a true Englishman who is being persecuted in a county jail of the United States.

"Let us remember, he served with us in one of the hardest fought wars in English history. He was willing to protect his country's flag not only in South Africa, but in India and Egypt.

—The excursion for Midland August 7th promises to be well patronized. Yesterday at least seven citizens expressed their intention to a Times man of taking in the trip.

Sin Against Health

Most important to health and comfort is the proper action of the bowels.

By nature these organs are intended for the removal of the waste particles of matter which accumulate in the system.

Jas. McConnell, of Walkerton, writes; "Since I was comparatively a young man I have not enjoyed real good health.

"My appetite was good and strength kept up, yet I knew something was wrong.

"Frequently I took bilious attacks and violent headaches. My stomach was disordered, skin was murky, under my eyes were heavy dark rings.

"Last winter I read through the Poison's almanac and decided my trouble was constipation. I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and can hardly tell the help they have been. I am now as fresh, strong and well as a boy."

Just try the wonderful magic of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Sold by all dealers. 25c. per box, or five boxes for $1.00. By mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn, U.S.A., or Kingston, Ont.

Good Advice

The Canadian Government commercial agent at South Africa handles out a piece of sensible advice for the benefit of manufacturers, exporters, and in fact all who are in any way interested in the development of the export trade. What he asserts about the South African trade is equally applicable to other countries. He notes:

"The interest of Canadian exporters would be facilitated by supplying this agency with catalogues and price lists of their goods. The quotations in all cases to be c.i.f., as merchants and others desire to know the cost of merchandise landed at Cape Town or other South African steamship service. This seems necessary in view of the fact that exporters of the United Kingdom, the United States and some other countries are represented here by local agents, who can at short notice furnish buyers with prices in all the principal lines of merchandise required. This is especially so in the case of manufactured goods.

Philosophy of Cowardice

It is safe to say that no brave man would be a coward if he could. It is equally safe to assume that there lives no coward who would not be brave if it were possible for him to exchange the one quality for the other. Cowardice per se is not a voluntary condition. Its acquirement not sought. Its possession is despised by those in whom it is inborn, for it is as surely a part of the psychological equipment of some natures as courage is the equipment of other natures.

The ancient Greeks stoned their cowards to death. The North American Indians tortured them with fire. The early Romans lashed them in the streets. The women of Brittany jeered them and spat upon them as they writhed and trembled in the pillory. But the stoning, the tortures, the lashings and the infliction of indignities never made a brave man out of a coward. As civilization advanced, scorn, disdain and humiliating penalties took the place of capital punishment and physical chastisement, and this became a greater agony to the coward than death itself. To be stripped of his uniform and drummed out of the army with his comrades as witnesses was a more poignant torture for the coward soldier than to sit on his own coffin and have his heart torn with bullets—because he was a coward.

Neither environment nor education can alter a mental condition which does not exist from choice and whose existence is hated by him in whom it exists. The physical coward is deserving of pity rather than condemnation, but even while we pity we should detar him from any place in the army, the navy or the constabulary where bravery is the essential quality of membership, just as we debar the armless man from participation in a boat race or the legless man from a contest of speed against men with legs.

Training Ships

In behalf of the State of New York, the United States government has asked Great Britain to allow another "training ship"—some old cruiser—to be stationed in Lake Erie for the benefit of those sad sea dogs of Buffalo who may desire to become expert bluejackets. To prevent Canadians taking fright at the proposal, it is explained that there will be no guns with the cruiser, and that gun practice will be had ashore. We do not think that Canadians will be very much alarmed; but a good many of them know how long it would take to put guns on board a "training" ship. It is understood that Mr. Hull favors this scheme, and it is said that the permission given is regarded as a neighborly act." Canada likes to be neighborly without sacrificing important interests; but there is a feeling in this country that it might be as well to check this "training" ship business before the great lakes are dotted with armed vessels maintained at great expense by two nations.

Aftermath of Old Grand Trunk Strike

Toronto Despatch says it May be Fought over Again

Toronto, Aug. 6.—A despatch from Toronto says that the old G.T.R. strike between the company and the machinists is liable to be fought all over again. The men claim that the company have not lived up to their agreement or the finding made by the Railway Commission. The trouble appears to be as to the re-engagement of hands whom it is stated were given sixty days in which to apply for their positions and get back their jobs. The men claim that they made application to Master Mechanic Kennedy, but were told the only place they could be located was in Ottawa or on the Ottawa division. The men claim there is plenty of work in Toronto, and that they do not want to move their families.

So far as is known locally there have been no applications for positions by men from Toronto, and the shops in Ottawa are well filled by local men. Mr. Morley Donaldson, superintendent of the G.T.R., was out of town today.

Correspondent advocates corporal punishment on juniors who commit crime instead of suspended sentence as at present limited by the government to magistrates to inflict.

Fine Railroads for Hauling Consumptives

Houston, Texas, Aug. 6.—Dr. William M. Crumby, State Health Officer, who is here, says the Governor will shortly issue a proclamation will put the railroads on notice and it will be a statutory offence punishable by a fine of $500 to haul a person afflicted with a contagious disease into the state. If in interstate travel a passenger demand that the carrier bring him to Texas, the health officer will require that the railroad notify the authorities at destination and the patient will be required to submit to an examination, and if not satisfactory will be subject to deportation.

The Money That's Being Made in Western Canada LAND

In October, 1906 we sold 5,000 acres of Saskatchewan lands to an Indiana party of men at $8 per acre, and resold it this year at $12, making just about 100 per cent. on the money invested.

A Montreal party of men who bought 10,000 acres from us at $8 per acre last September, resold through us within three months at $10.00 per acre.

A Chicago client writes us that after making some improvements on a section she bought near Regina, one year ago, she sold out recently for exactly twice what she paid for the land.

We resold a section of land located near Lipton for a man at $18.00 per acre last April, which we sold him in December at $12.00.

Men here are growing wealthy who never knew success in any other line. You can make money here too, if you think your amount too small club it with a few friends. Some of the most prominent financial men in the United States and Eastern Canada are now interested in this country heavily.

We own about 200,000 acres of the finest wheat and mixed farming lands in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.—Picked lands on which we are prepared to give accurate trustworthy information, and these tracts being portions of extremely large purchases, we can sell them at prices that cannot be equalled, quality of land considered, by any firm in this country.

Prices range from $6.00 per acre upwards Reasonable Terms in every case

Write us for further information but when doing so tell us the class and amount of an investment you desire, and whether you want the land for your own use or for investment purposes purely. $1,000 is about the minimum we can handle. References Union Bank and Traders' Bank, Winnipeg.

SIREN WAFERS DEVELOP THE BUST

SHE'S A QUEEN! SHE'S A SIREN!

Is an expression that is always heard at sight of a well developed woman. If you are flat chested, with BUST undeveloped, a scrawney neck, thin lean arms —the above remark will never be applied to you. "SIREN" wafers will make you beautiful, bewitching. They DEVELOP the BUST in a few weeks from 3 to 6 inches and produce a fine firm, voluptuous bosom. They fill out the hollow places. Make the cheeks plump and rosy, and arms handsome and well molded and the neck and shoulders shapely and of perfect contour.

Send for a bottle today and you'll be pleased and grateful. "SIREN" wafers are absolutely harmless, pleasant to take and convenient to carry around. They are sold under guarantee to do all we claim or MONEY back.

Price $1.00 per bottle. Inquire at good drug stores or send DIRECT to us.

FREE!

During the next 30 days only—we will send you a sample bottle of these beautifying wafers on receipt of 10 cents to pay cost of packing and postage if you will mention that you saw the Advertisement in this paper. The sample alone may be sufficient if defects are trivial.

This is a straight Business Undertaking.

We have fifteen mining properties, located in Kern County, California, carrying good values in Gold, Silver and Copper.

We propose to install on our properties a smelter to treat the ores from our own mines and to do custom smelting for others.

50 per cent. per annum is a moderate estimate of the profits we can earn. If you want to make a safe and profitable investment send for full information and investigate our proposition.

Guggenheim-Greenwater

Copper Prospect at Ely

GUGGENHEIM GREENWATER

I want every reader of this paper who has a spark of spunk in him to buy a few shares in the Guggenheim Greenwater Copper Company. I can sell it to you now for a mere song—5 cents a share. Every share is of treasury stock, par value $1, full paid up and non-assessable.

I have a poor idea of that man's courage who dares not risk $5 on the chance to make $100. If there is any better buy in the mining market today than a $100 certificate for five dollars, I have never heard of it. This company owns two groups of claims in two copper districts—Ely and Greenwater. It is developing first its group at Ely, and has a shaft down 50 feet with indications of a strike of ore in the next 50 feet.

Every man who reads this advertisement has read the stories from Ely, Nev. He knows as well as I do that experts report there is enough copper ore already in sight in the Ely district to keep ten smelters of immense capacity going for the next one hundred years. One 15,000 ton smelter is already being built by the Guggenheims, and other reduction plants of gigantic capacity are projected. Ely is unquestionably one of the greatest copper districts in the world.

This property is located on the great zone of porphyry which carries the copper values, and I tell you honestly that I would as soon put a few dollars into this prospect and take a chance of its making a big mine as into any mining investment within the range of possibility.

See me about this investment at once. I can fill all orders today for anything up to 10,000 shares at 6 cents. That price is sure to advance sharply any day that news comes of a strike. Buy now at 5 cents.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry must be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made on certain conditions, by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of the homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Six months' notice in writing should be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of intention to apply for patent.

W. W. CORY,
Deputy of the Minister of the Interior.

THE CONQUEST of CANAAN

By BOOTH TARKINGTON,
Author of "Cherry," "Monsieur Beaucaire," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1905, BY HARPER & BROTHERS

"Good for you, Happy!" he cried cheerfully. "I hoped you'd come to see me today. I've been thinking about a job for you."

"I don't want a job, nohow!" said Mr. Fear, going to the door. "I don't want to work. There's plenty ways fer me to git along without that. But I'll say one thing more. Don't you worry about gittin' law practice. Mike says you're goin' to git all you want, and if there ain't no other way, why, a few of us'll go out and make some fer ye!"

These prophecies and promises, over which Joe chuckled at first, with his head cocked to one side, grew very soon, to his amazement, to wear a supernatural similarity to actual fulfillment. His friends brought him their own friends such as had sinned against the laws of Canaan, those under the ban of the sheriff, those who had struck in anger, those who had stolen at night, those who owed and could not pay, those who lived by the dice, and to his other titles to notoriety was added that of defender of the poor and wicked. He found his hands full, especially after winning his first important case, on which occasion Canaan thought the jury mad and was indignant with the puzzled judge, who could not see just how it had happened.

Joe did not stop at that. He kept on winning cases, clearing the innocent and lightening the burdens of the guilty. He became the most dangerous attorney for the defense in Canaan. His honorable brethren, accepting the popular view of him, held him in personal contempt, but feared him professionally, for he proved that he knew more law than they thought existed. Nor could any trick him, failing which many tempers were lost, but never Joe's. His practice was not all criminal, as shown by the peevish outburst of the eminent Buckalew (the squire's nephew, esteemed the foremost lawyer in Canaan), "Before long there won't be any use trying to foreclose a mortgage or collect a note unless this shyster gets himself in jail!"

The wrath of Judge Martin Pike was august—there was a kind of sublimity in its immenseness—on a day when it befell that the shyster stood betwixt him and money.

That was a monstrous task—to stand, between these two and separate them, to hold back the hand of Martin Pike from what it had reached out to grasp. It was in the matter of some tax titles which the magnate had acquired, and in court Joe treated the case with such horrifying simplicity that it seemed almost credible that the great man had counted upon the ignorance and besottedness of Joe's client, a hard drinking, disreputable old farmer, to get his land away from him without paying for it. Now, as every one knew such a thing to be ludicrously impossible, it was at once noised abroad in Canaan that Joe had helped to swindle Judge Pike out of a large sum of money—it was notorious that the shyster could bamboozle court and jury with his tricks, and it was felt that Joe Louden was getting into very deep waters indeed. This was serious. If the young man did not look out he might find himself in the penitentiary.

Joe did not move into a larger office; he remained in the little room with its one window and its fine view of the jail. His clients were nearly all poor, and many of his fees quite literally nominal. Tatters and rags came up the narrow stairway to his door—tatters and rags and pitiful tineries; the bleared, the sodden, the flaunting and rouged, the furtive and wary, some in rags, some in tags and some the sorriest—in velvet gowns. With these, the distressed, the wrongdoers, the drunken, the dirty and the very poor, his work lay and his days and nights were spent.

When Joe went about the streets he was made to feel his condition by the elaborate avoidance, yet furtive attention, of every respectable person he met, and when he came home to his small rooms and shut the door behind him he was as one who has been hissed and shamed in public and runs to bury his hot face in his pillow. He petted his mongrel extravagantly (well he might) and would sit with him in his rooms at night holding long converse with him, the two alone together. The dog was not his only confidant. There came to be another, a more and more frequent partner to their conversations, at last a familiar spirit. This third came from a brown jug which Joe kept on a shelf in his bedroom, a vessel too frequently replenished. When the day's work was done he shut himself up, drank alone and drank hard. Sometimes when the jug ran low and the night was late he would go out for a walk with his dog and would awake in his room the next morning not remembering where he had gone or how he had come home. Once, after such a lapse of memory, he woke amazed to find himself at Beaver Beach, whither, he learned from the red bearded man, Happy Fear had brought him, having found him wandering dazedly in a field near by. These lapses grew more frequent until there occurred that which was one of the strange things of his life.

It was a June night, a little more than two years after his return to Canaan, and the Tocsin had that day announced the approaching marriage of Eugene Bantry and his employer's daughter. Joe ate nothing during the day and went through his work dumbly, visiting the bedroom shelf at intervals. At 10 in the evening he went out to have the jug refilled, but from the moment he left his door and the fresh air struck his face he had no clear knowledge of what he did or of what went on about him until he woke in his bed the next morning.

And yet, whatever little part of the soul of him remained that night still undulled, not numbed, but alive, was in some strange manner lifted out of its pain toward a strange delight. His body was an automaton, his mind in bondage, yet there was a still small consciousness in him which knew that in his wandering something incredible and unexpected was happening. What this was he did not know, could not see, though his eyes were open, could not have told himself any more than a baby could tell why it laughs, but it seemed something so beautiful and wonderful that the night became a night of perfume, its breezes bearing the music of harps and violins, while nightingales sang from the maples that bordered the streets of Canaan.

CHAPTER X.

HE woke to the light of morning amazed and full of a strange wonder because he did not know what had amazed him. A chime of bells sounded from a church steeple across the square, ringing out in assured righteousness, summoning the good people who maintained them to come and sit beneath them or be taken to task, and they fell so dismally upon Joe's ear that he bestirred himself and rose, to the delight of his mongrel, who leaped upon him joyfully. An hour later or thereabout the pair emerged from the narrow stairway and stood for a moment, blinking in the fair sunshine, apparently undecided which way to go. The church bells were silent. There was no breeze. The air trembled a little with the deep pipings of the organ across the square, and, save for that, the town was very quiet. The paths which crossed the courthouse yard were flecked with steady shadow, the strong young foliage of the maples not moving, having the air of observing the Sabbath with propriety. The organ ceased to stir the air, and all was in quiet, yet a quiet which for Louden was not peace. He looked at his watch and, without intending it, spoke the hour aloud, "A quarter past 11." The sound of his own voice gave him a little shock. He rose without knowing why, and as

SINKING FUNDS.

The general public has no idea of the meaning of "sinking fund." The term had its origin in a scheme devised by Lord Stanhope in 1716 whereby certain taxes on the South Sea (Bubble) and general funds were made perpetual, and it was enacted that the surplus should be annually invested and applied to the discharge of the national debt. By means of it between the years 1716 and 1733 the sum of $52,240,000 of the debt was actually discharged. So rich became the sinking fund that it excited the cupidity of parliament, and the grafters laid violent hands on it, diverting it to other purposes, so that in the succeeding twenty-five years only $42,500,000 more had been paid off.

The fund got into a condition so wretched that it did little in time of peace and nothing in time of war to discharge the national debt. Dr. Price persuaded William Pitt to adopt his plan of investing $5,000,000 every year at compound interest until with the accumulations the sum amounted to $20,000,000, when it was to be invested at simple interest only, leaving the amount of interest annually redeemed at the disposal of parliament. Dr. Price said: "Let a state be supposed to run in debt $10,000,000 a year, for which it pays interest at 4 per cent. In seventy years a debt of $700,000,000 would be incurred. But an appropriation of $2,000,000 a year employed as a sinking fund at compound interest would at the end of this time leave the nation beforehand $30,000,000."

Indigestion

Stomach trouble is but a symptom of, and not in itself a true disease. We think of Dyspepsia, Heartburn, and Indigestion as real diseases, yet they are symptoms only of a certain specific Nerve sickness—nothing else.

It was this fact that first correctly led Dr. Shoop in the creation of that now very popular Stomach Remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Going direct to the stomach nerves, alone brought that success and favor to Dr. Shoop and his Restorative. Without that original and highly vital principle, no such lasting accomplishments were ever to be had.

For stomach distress, bloating, biliousness, bad breath and sallow complexion, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—and see for yourself what it can and will do. We sell and cheerfully recommend

The Dread of Death.

Granted that it is the will of God that we shall remain on earth and live our appointed lives there, it is essential that mankind should feel the dread of death. Without that dread the world could hardly remain peopled. The dread of death is to the soul what the law of gravity is to the body. It anchors us to the earth. Without that dread to weigh us down and keep us to the globe half mankind would be driven by curiosity, by the love of change, by the dread of ennui, by what Bacon calls "niceness and satiety," to push open the closed door and see what is beyond. Children and a few very happy and easily pleased people might perhaps say they would not explore farther and that they were perfectly content with things as they are.

Life's Pleasures Rest on Nourishing Blood.

Is Yours Rich, or Weak?

If you lack strength, can't get full cap de your work, it's because your blood is too thin to nourish the body.

Your condition is like an expiring fire. Fuel must be added or the fire goes out.

Nutriment, new building material must be instantly infused into the blood—the vital stream must be quickened and enriched. Do this and your health is assured.

Simply take Ferrozone.

Its marvellously stimulating influence upon the appetite upon the formation of rich, red blood makes available for building up of the system the very nutriment it requires.

The heart, strengthened by the increased nutrition Ferrozone supplies, is more regular in its action, and imparts an impetus to the circulation that ensures the proper discharge of all the functions of the body.

There very quickly sweeps through the whole body a stream of vitalized, strength-giving blood.

Quickly color is restored to the cheeks.

Elasticity, endurance and vigor come to the muscular system.

In brief, the old time strength and vigor are restored, and those inestimable charms that spring from good health, high spirits and endurance, are gained by even a short use of Ferrozone.

A true, uplifting tonic, a medicine that goes to the root of things—one that MAKES the weak strong, makes the sick well—makes the despondent ones happy—that is Ferrozone. Truly a wonderful remedy, try it, 50c. per box at all druggists.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS

DASHES HERE AND THERE BY TIMES' REPORTERS.

Excursion from Belleville

We are informed that an excursion is being run here from Belleville tomorrow. The outing is under the auspices of one of the Sunday schools of that place, and a big crowd is coming.

Sons of Scotland for Campbellford

The local Sons of Scotland have their work cut out for August 14th, when that organization will run an excursion to Campbellford. Arrangements have been made for four special trains, leaving Toronto, Lindsay, Madoc and Belleville, calling at intermediate stations, returning same night or next day. The 48th Highlanders Band have been engaged, and the prizes are unusually large.

Employees First Excursion

Mr Chas. Notes, the old time gateman at the Charlotte street crossing of the G.T.R. will, among many others, patronize the excursion of the Mark street church Ladies' Aid Society to Stony Lake today. Although a resident of Peterborough for a quarter of a century, Mr. Noyes has never yet been to Stony Lake or over the lift lock and is looking forward to the trip with much pleasure. He has been at Lakefield frequently, but never was at the lakes.

$100 REWARD, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood an dmucous surfaces of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer one hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

ANCIENT TRADES UNION.

The Company of Pewterers, Which Was Composed of Masters Only.

Unlike the trades unions of today, the Company of Pewterers of olden times was composed of the masters only, and disobedience of the rules was punished with a vigor far exceeding anything of the kind at the present day. The laws were made for the protection of the general public and not for the workingman alone; consequently the articles turned out by a master pewterer and bearing his "touch" had to be up to a given standard of excellence. Before a man could set up as a master pewterer he was obliged to serve an apprenticeship of about six years, after which he had to produce his "essay" pieces under certain test conditions, and only after these pieces had been approved by the authorities of the craft was he allowed his freedom and permitted to register his private "touch" at the company's hall and set up as a master pewterer.

The company was not content merely to pass upon the work of a craftsman, but came very near regulating the minor details of his life. The penalty was very heavy for employing a helper who had not served a regular apprenticeship, and any master so daring as to employ a foreigner was fined £10, and all articles made by him were confiscated, the object being to keep the trade secrets from spreading.

CONFECTIONERY.

The Sugar Plum is the Most Ancient Kind of Sweetmeat.

The most ancient kind of sweetmeat is the sugar plum. It was the invention of Julius Dragatus, a noted Roman baker and confectioner, who belonged to the family of Fabius. According to an authority on ancient history, it was in 177 B. C. that he made the great discovery which for twenty centuries has done so much damage to teeth.

These bonbons, called dragati, after their inventor (dragees in French), remained the exclusive privilege of the family of Fabius. But at the birth or marriage of one of that family a great distribution of dragati took place as a sign of rejoicing. The custom is still observed by many of the nobility of Europe.

Burned almonds are purely of French origin, owing their inception to the gluttony of a certain French merchant. One day Marshal Duplessis-Praslin, an old gourmet, sent for Lassagne, who had already invented many a toothsome dainty, to concoct a new bonbon for him. Lassagne searched, reflected, combined, until finally he conceived a delicious bonbon, which he baptised gluckonity after the name of his master, praline, the French for burned almonds.

The Old Time Stagecoach.

Before there were, strange as it now seems, any stagecoaches running [illegible] and of course these were the only public vehicles for travelers. Even these were a novelty, and a person named John Crosset thought they were such a dangerous innovation that he wrote a pamphlet against them. "These coaches," he wrote, "make gentlemen come to London upon every small occasion, which otherwise they would not do except upon urgent necessity. May, the convenience of the passage makes their wives come often up, who rather than come such long journeys on horseback would stay at home. Then when they come to town they must be in the wade, get fine clothes, go to plays and treats and by these means get such a habit of idleness and love of pleasure that they are unwary after."

The Chameleon Goshawk.

I know no bird which passes through so many changes of plumage and color of eyes as the goshawk. A young one which I have mounted is about the size of a small hen and is covered with white down. His eyes are pale blue. I colored the eyes exactly from life. When fully grown, the first plumage is dark brown above and the eyes are pale yellow. No one would be likely to suspect this being a goshawk who had seen only adult birds. Later it changes to the dark slaty blue of the adult, and the eye, after passing through all the intermediate changes in color from ashy yellow, orange yellow and pink, finally assumes the deep rich red of the adult. I know no other hawk, adds Manly Hardy, writing in Forest and Stream, so handsome as the goshawk.

The Letter G.

The letter G furnishes us a curious bit of orientalism. Its Hebrew name is gimel, camel, from the resemblance of the Hebrew character to the head and neck of that animal. The character was thus almost certainly derived from a picture of that animal, which, reduced to a hieroglyphic and then simplified, still distinctly indicates the shape of the head and neck of the beast of burden familiar to every Mediterranean-eastern lands.

Infantile Chicken Broth.

Customer—What on earth is this beef made of, waiter? Surely it isn't chicken broth? Waiter—Well, sir, it's chicken broth in its infancy. It's made out of the water that the eggs were boiled in.

Sure Proof.

"Is Plapdaffle truthful?"

"Well, he confesses that he covered his head the other night and didn't dare get out of bed when he thought he heard a burglar in the house."

Do You Open Your Mouth

Like a young bird and gulp down whatever food or medicine may be offered you? Or, do you want to know something of the composition and character of that which you take into your stomach whether as food or medicine?

Most intelligent and sensible people now-a-days insist on knowing what they employ whether as food or as medicine. Dr. Pierce believes they have a perfect right to insist upon such knowledge. So he publishes broadcast and on each bottle-wrapper, what his medicines are made of and verifies by under oath. This he feels he can well afford to do because the more the ingredients of which his medicines are made are studied and understood the more will their superior curative virtues be appreciated.

For the cure of woman's peculiar weaknesses, irregularities and derangements, giving rise to frequent headaches, backache, dragging-down pain or distress in lower abdominal or pelvic region, accompanied, ofttimes, with a debilitating, pelvic, catarrhal drain and kindred symptoms of weakness, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a most efficient remedy. It is equally effective in curing painful periods, in giving strength to nursing mothers and in preparing the system of the expectant mother for baby's coming, thus rendering childbirth safe and comparatively painless. The "Favorite Prescription" is a most potent, strengthening tonic to the general system and to the organs distinctly feminine in particular. It is also a soothing and invigorating nervine and cures nervous exhaustion, nervous prostration, neuralgia, hysteria, spasms, chorea or St. Vitus's dance, and other distressing nervous symptoms attendant upon functional and organic diseases of the distinctly feminine organs.

A host of medical authorities of all the several schools of practice, recommend each of the several ingredients of which "Favorite Prescription" is made for the cure of the diseases for which it is claimed to be a cure. You may read what they say for yourself by sending a postal card request for a free booklet of extracts from the leading authorities, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., and it will come to you by return post.

—Misses Maude and Alma Foote have returned from Stony Lake, where they spent two weeks' pleasant holidays.

—The Misses Clara and Bernice Garside have left for Hamilton, where they will be the guests of Mrs. Jos. Locke for a few weeks.

—Mr. Teddy Warren, formerly of Lakefield, but now of Toronto, returned home yesterday after a pleasant visit with friends in Peterborough and Lakefield.

—Mr. Wadely, assistant manager of the Brinton Carpet works, who has been in England on business for some time is expected back in the city this week.

—Mrs. Scott, a lady well known by our older citizens, and a sister of Mrs. (Dr.) Boucher, but now engaged in missionary work, simply for the good of the cause, in Winnipeg, arrived in the city yesterday morning and left at two p.m. for Campbellford.

Organist Devey in Accident

On Sunday evening after Mr. R. J. Devey, the accomplished organist of St. John's church, had completed his duties at that sacred edifice, he, with Mrs. Devey, was on his way home. Unfortunately he tripped over a hydrant at the south-east corner of the church, close to the sidewalk, and in the partial darkness scarcely to be seen. The result was an ugly wound on the knee cap, which bled freely through his clothing, with a few bruises and missing pieces of epidermis, which will compel Mr. Devey to remember where the church hydrants are located. Whilst using a light tone in describing Mr. Devey's unfortunate accident, we are most pleased that he sustained no further injuries.

Angling Club Outing

Yesterday a member of the Canadian General Angling Club called at The Times office and noted that their outing to Idyl Wyld, Saturday was most enjoyable. Nearly 300 people boarded the steamer Otonabee. What with good strains on the piano, and Mr P. Kane at the business end of a violin the club did not lack for music. At Idyl Wyld, every convenience was in evidence for their reception and comfort. The hotel served good meals and all had a good time. The tug of war between the machine shop and the tool makers' department was well contested, resulting, owing to weight possibly to the machine men winning out.

THE LARDER LAKE EXPLORATION AND DEVELOPMENT CO.

CAPITAL, 500,000 SHARES—PAR VALUE $1.00 PER SHARE

15c FULLY PAID AND NON-ASSESSABLE 15c

First allottment of 50,000 Shares at Fifteen Cents per Share

Our Option on this small block of Underwriters' Stock expires August 8th, 1907—Subscriptions Post-marked at later date will be returned

Do you realize that investments of a hundred or a thousand will grow rapidly into hundreds and thousands and millions of dollars? The over-conservative and skeptical will smile—they will laugh at these predictions, some will even consider this a joke—but remember COBALT, if you please, two or three years ago? Then it was a "vision," it was a "dream," "a flash in the pan," "a bubble," somebody Was "crazy"; bu now it is different. Those crazy men are now classed among the smart and keenest business men of the day. The actual value of a few mines are worth at the present date more than one hundred millions of dollars. These are facts.

In presenting this investment for subscription we appeal to the good judgement of sensible persons as to its merit.

It embodies, we believe, a correct method of developing and establishing successful and paying mining enterprises.

We desire to conduct, first of all a successful Mine Developement. We intend this to be done in a way that will be absolutely fair and honest, and bring the largest profit possible to those who co-operate with us.

We, therefore, desire this proposition to be well understood by investors. We wish it to be known just how we propose to develope, establish and operate dividend paying Mining Companies by and through this investment.

THE PLAN.—The plan involved in this proposition is that of uniting or consolidating the investments of a limited number of persons into one sum, and under one management, to be used in acquiring and developing mining properties in this wonderful region.

THE PRINCIPLE involved in this investment we believe, is one of absolute fairness to all interested. The "promotion interest" common to all mining companies, and which is the great unfair feature to investors who put their money into stocks of these companies, and whose money develops and makes the mine, if a mine is developed—does not exist in this proposition. There is no "promotion interest set aside, and against the interest bought and paid for by the investors.

In this proposition the investors, and all the investors, become promotors. They take the "promotion interest" and all the interest. They own the whole enterprise. No matter how large or how small the investment—all stand on an equal basis. Our field of operation is probably one of the greatest, and without doubt the richest, mineralized region in the world.

For its basis, upon which we will establish and build us several great producing, paying mining companies, we will exploit and develop in a mining-like and careful manner exclusive mining properties now known to us, other properties which we may acquire for the mutual benefit of all investors in this Company.

SUBSIDIARY COMPANIES.—The Larder Lake Exploration and Development Comany will incorporate a series, not to exceed five, of Subsidiary Mining Companies upon only the real proven properties acquired.

In each and every subsidiary Company incorporated, whether Mining, Milling, Smelting, Water Power, or Electric Light, the Exploration Company will take 90 per cent. of the capital stock of each Company so incorporated, and will put 10 per cent. of the Capital Stock of each Company in its treasury. It will probably never become necessary to sell any of this Treasury Stock.

Out of the total Capital Stock of each Subsidiary Company, the EXPLORATION COMPANY will retain 50 per cent. as its "Holding Stock." This will always control the Company. It will take and hold 40 per cent. for the mutual benefit of all stockholders in the EXPLORATION COMPANY. This 40 per cent will be known as "Selling Stock," and as a market is created it will be sold, and the proceeds received will be distributed pro rata to the stockholders in the EXPLORATION COMPANY, as their interests may appear.

The stock of the Subsidiary Companies will be inlisted on the New York Curb and Mining Exchanges of the country, and started at 50 cents a share, where it can be bought and sold according to the daily market quotations. This will afford a channel by which stockholders can sell the 40 per cent. "Selling Stock" from time to time, if they wish.

PROPERTIES.—Many different mining properties will be acquired and developed as stock in the EXPLORATION COMPANY, is subscribed for. All properties will be described, and reports submitted regarding same, as soon and as often as they can be examined by the engineer.

The mining properties that will be acquired for this proposition will be located in the gold and silver belt, extending from the Montreal River through Northern Ontario, eastward into Quebec, and will include properties in the Lady Evelyn District, the new Montreal River Silver District, Cobalt District, and the gold districts around Round Lake, Larder Lake, Lake Abitibi, and in the great undeveloped mineralized section of Quebec lying just east of Larder Lake and extending northward to Lake Abitibi.

We shall try and make every dollar count, and make as few mistakes as possible. We hope to create such an interest in this enterprise with investors, that will result in extensive, and widespread co-operation.

Under this plan no one can truthfully say that it is not a great mining investment. We want every investor to feel a personal interest in this Mine Development. The investors in this Company will own this enterprise, and we want them to co-operate with us and our associates to make it a great success.

We are now organizing THE LARDER LAKE EXPLORATION AND DEVELOPMENT COMPANY with what we consider sufficient capital ($500,000). We now have options on, and propose to acquire five distinct and separate properties which will be incorporated at $100,000 each (100,000 shares—par value $1.00). The Exploration Company will at all times hold a controlling interest in each of these companies, so that sixty per cent. of the dividends earned and declared will be paid into the treasury of the parent company, and the other forty per cent. distributed among the stockholders on record. This in our opinion will enable us to pay dividends and large ones in the very near future.

The Board of Directors of THE LARDER LAKE EXPLORATION AND DEVELOPMENT COMPANY will be composed only of engineers of national repute, setting a precedent in this line—Mr. Robert Morton will be president, which fact in itself guarantees conservative and able management

Investors have been pouring their money into over capitalized mining companies, they have been plunging about wildly in the hope of some day "striking it rich" never stopping to think for one instant that the greater part of their money never reaches the ground, as a rule 75 per cent. of the money invested in stock schemes goes into the broker's hands. He pays his salesmen 20 to 50 per cent. on every dollar turned in, he must get his own commission and engineers must be paid.

We never had associated with us a stock salesman, we require no commission and our engineers will be our directors, so that every dollar invested with us on this proposition will be honestly used in the purchasing and development of the different properties.

We are now offering for subscription the first allottment of stock in THE LARDER LAKE EXPLORATION AND DEVELOPMENT COMPANY—every hundred shares entitles the holder to forty shares of stock in each of the subsidiary companies to be incorporated, making in all 200 shares of stock in five separate companies, which, as soon as development work is started and dividends announced, will make the stock of the Larder Lake Exploration and Development Company almost invaluable. This first allottment of only 50,000 shares ($1.00 par value) will probably be largely over-subscribed in a few days.

The next allottment will be put out Sept 25, 1907, at 75c per share or higher.

This price (15c.) will positively be withdrawn Aug. 8, 1907. If this allottment is over-subscribed remittances will be promptly returned. Checks, drafts and money orders must accompany all applications and be made payable to the financial agents.

Interim certificates will be promptly returned to subscribers. The stock certificates of the Company representing the shares purchased will be issued and delivered as soon as allottment can be made, after the 8th of August, to all subscribers who purchase at the first underwriting price prior to that date.

Don't wait! Be wise! Act NOW! NOW IS THE TIME! Here is an opportunity that excels that which you had two or three years ago of Cobalt. Perhaps you will say as you did then, "How do we know they have got any silver up there? Perhaps you say now "How do you know there is any gold at Larder Lake?"

The grape, whose purple blood man for century after century has converted into wine, is a Persian by birth. Its cradle was on the sunny hills to the south of the Caspian sea, and there the ancients ate it and enjoyed its acid taste. The men of Caubul ground it to a dry powder and ate it with relish, half as a medicine, half because they liked it. And then those days went by, and we hear of the renowned grapes of Palestine, which grew in immense clusters and weighed fifteen pounds to the bunch. Noah planted the vine immediately after the deluge. The book of Genesis mentions bread and wine, and the Israelites complained that Moses and Aaron had brought them out of Egypt into a dry and barren land where there were neither figs nor vines.

A Difficult Feat.

Have you ever tried to stand upright on a log perhaps a foot across the butt out in an open lake, keeping your balance to every roll and dip of the log? Well, if you had you would realize better the marvelous balance of the man who not only has to do this, but also maneuver other logs down the current with a long pike pole, chain booms together with numbed fingers, and, in fact, do the whole of his day's work while balancing on a twirling, twisting, half submerged tree trunk.

Immune.

MR. LUCAS MAKES STRONG COMPLAINT RE NEW FIRE HALL

Citizen at North West Corner of Aylmer and Charlotte Streets Kicks About Stagnant Water from Fire Hall--Residence Has Been Placed in Imminent Danger of Infectious Diseases.

Yesterday The Times received about 3 p.m., the following letter which speaks for itself, and which as noted further on, was corroborated later on by a Times representative. In this matter The Times man, as usual before printing matter that might reflect upon certain city officials, took the trouble to personally investigate the subject matter. Right or wrong, we give our opinion as to Mr. Lucas letter which was personally signed The letter reads as follows:

(To the Editor of The Times.)

Dear Sir,—Your readers are doubtless aware that the new fire hall has for some time been established on Aylmer street, a few doors north of, and almost opposite the Queen's Hotel. Now whilst I have every admiration for, and sympathy with, the good work done, at small pay, by the Peterborough fire brigade, I have still personal matters to look after and protect. My personal residence is located, as it has been, for some years past, at the north-west corner of Aylmer and Charlotte streets.

Since the completion of the new fire hall my residence has been placed in imminent danger of infectious diseases. There has been the too common danger of typhoid and scarlet fever, smallpox or other microbe created diseases to be nourished right in front of my house. Here there is a green colored, spawn covered pool, that must necessarily breed disease, right at my front door. Stagnant water, that most prolific promulgator of every infectious disease is located within a few feet of my parlor windows. This is caused beyond dispute or contradiction by the brigade washing their reels, hose wagon or other appliances and the water used thereby gathering therefrom in front of my house.

Now, to overcome this menace to health, a very cheap alternative could be adopted, viz., a six-inch drain pipe to carry this sewage water to the Charlotte street drain. This could be done at comparatively little expense and would thus save many lives from danger. Here is an opportunity for Health Inspector Ball to use the powers he has so often used so effectually to save disease from people in this neighborhood.

T. LUCAS.

P.S.—After this letter had been received from Mr. Lucas, a Times representative hurried down to the spot referred to. He found that, in front of Mr. Lucas' place of residence at the place designated, there was a muddy, stagnant spot, evidently prolific of disease breeding germs. Mr. Lucas' contention seemed to be well authorized.—Ed. Times.

ABOUT SIXTY PER 'CENT. MAY FAIL

Serious Outlook for the Students Who Wrote on Departmental Examinations

Results will Be Announced About August 10th or 11th

It has been stated that over sixty per cent. of the students who wrote on the recent departmental examinations will be unsuccessful if the rigid schedule of marking is maintained.

The examiners engaged in reading the papers concluded their work on Saturday, and the officials of the Education Department are now engaged in the arithmetical problem of determining totals and percentages, upon which the success or failure of the students rest. This is a big task and the department does not expect to be in a position to announce the results until some time between the 10th and 15th inst.

Some anxiety is said to be felt over the possibility of probable wholesale plucking. It is ascribed variously to the raising of the standard, the setting of certain too severe papers, or to the general unpreparedness of the classes this year.

It is possible some concessions may be granted in determining the results.

A Surprise at Hamilton

Authorities Proceed Against Several Young Men for Perjury.

Hamilton, Ont., Aug. 6.—A sensation was sprung here yesterday on the public here yesterday when six of the young men who appeared in the police court on July 15, charged with being parties in a game of dice on the Lord's Day, were arraigned before the Police Magistrate chiarged with perjury. The police have kept the pending prosecution a secret.

Two of the young men were allowed out bn bail of $2,000, four were committed for trial, the magistrate refusing to try them, as at the trial above mentioned he had remarked that he thought some of the witnesses were committing perjury.

Those implicated in the charges for which the penalty is fourteen years, are Wm. Burkholder, John O'Reilly, James Yaidon, Jos. Rogers, Wm. Connell and Charles Baird. The others have not yet been found.

Wedding Bells

Quiet Wedding Solemnized Monday Evening

On Monday evening at 9.30 o'clock, at the Charlotte street Methodist parsonage, Miss Ethel Buller, eldest daughter of the late Jos. Buller, 381 Aylmer street, was united in marriage to Mr. Wesley Finlay, of this city. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. M. Manning. The bride was becomingly gowned in white duchess satin with white chiffon hat to match. The bride and groom were unattended. Many valuable presents were received by the bride testifying to the high esteem in which she is held. From the employes of the Peterborough Lock Co., she received a china dinner and tea set, a beautiful oak hall rack and a parlor table.

Mr. and Mrs. Finlay will reside on Dalhousie street.

Evangelist Stricken in Pulpit

Stamford, Conn., Aug. 6.—Mrs. C. S. Whitney, an evangelist from New York, had a stroke of apoplexy while preaching in the Baptist church at Rowayton on Sunday. She died at 7.30 o'clock this morning.

Mrs. Whitney, who was seventy-two years of age, had nearly concluded her sermon when the Bible she was holding dropped from her hand. She appeared to be in a dazed condition. Persons in the audience went to her assistance, but she was beyond aid.

Starving Clergyman

One Arrested on the Streets of London for Begging

London, Aug. 6.—A pathetic story of a starving clergyman was told at the Clerkenwell Police Court, when Robert Wheeler, a pale, white-haired man of 62, in shabby clerical attire, was charged with begging.

A constable had seen him accosting people in Parkhurst road, Islington, and when arrested he said he had earned nothing since Whitsuntide, and that he was literally starving. He ate ravenously the food given to him at the police station. His destitution had so affected him that he could give no account of himself.

Mr. Wheeler was discharged and handed over to the care of the court

Mr. Richards Drunk A Nuisance Again

The Police Should Arrest and Put This Woman Away

Last night Mrs. Richards was full again. Now, whilst, we would be the last to throw a stone of scandal against any woman and would hesitate to place any female of the genus man into the enforced position of a "Penitent Magdalene," there are circumstances impelling any paper with public interests at heart to call attention to certain actions of certain people. Now, some days ago, The Times, in the public interest, called attention to the actions of an English immigrant, named Mrs. Richards. This woman is no stranger to our local police court.

Now in plain English, this woman was drunk again last night. The fact of her drinking, was possibly her own business; but, when she gets drunk and makes a most condemnible display of the degredation to which drink will bring man or woman, particularly woman; in so public and generally frequented a spot as Water street in front of Victoria Park, it is time that some agency get to work to stop such proceedings. At the spot mentioned are residences in which children from a tender age up live. When this foul-mouthed woman staggers along the street and calls attention to her condition, for the sake of said children it is time the police interfere and place her in the Mercer Institute or some such place that will sober her up and prevent the small children of this city from seeing sights and hearing language that cannot but lead to their getting undesireable ideas into growing minds.

False Alarm Brings Out the Brigade

Smoke at Roy's Studio Causes Many People to be Alarmed

Shortly before the city clocks rang out the peal that causes thousands of local workers to drop pick, shovel, shears or pencil, the George street clock tolled the number 23. Now whilst this number is synonymous or "skiddoo," or "get out," agreeable to dinner, the well trained and ever faithful fire laddies, forgetful or neglectful of the demands made by their respective departments of the interior, quickly gathered, with wagons, hose and all at the corner of George and Hunter streets. It seems that Mr. R. McRoy, the well known photographer, and his staff, received a big scare. Some one went into the public reception room and found it black with smoke. An alarm was at once given and the entire staff rushed to where it was supposed a fire was burning. The smoke was seemingly coming up through the floor and it smelled strongly of paper burning. An alarm was telephoned to the fire hall and the department arrived in a hurry. The funny part of it was that while the studio was filled with smoke, the location of the fire could not be ascertained. A joker in the crowd that, as per usual assembled on a call of fire was heard to say that "One of Roy's photographs of the Cavendish Lumber Co., fire must have been blown by a window draft across the transmitter of his telephone, and that the truth of the picture must have conveyed itself to the conditory part of the phone conveying the intelligence.

Be this as it may or not, Mr. Roy's many friends, and artistic matters will be pleased to learn that this local disciple and improver of Daguerre was not a loser by fire.

Lord Sholto Douglas a Drummer

Detroit, Aug. 6.—Lord Sholto Douglas, the son of the Marquis of Queensberry, recently applied for a position as travelling salesman for the American Jewelry Company of Detroit. He was accepted and is successfully covering Idaho and may soon have Oregon. In his application for the position he presented letters from Clive Bagely, English Consul in New York city, and from Dr. Nelson, who lived at the Astor House. The company had no idea he was an Englishman nobleman.

FRENCH AND SPANISH SHIPS BOMBARD CASABLANCA

Many Tribesmen Were Killed or Wounded--Moorish Fortress Fired on Fleet, and Wounded Seven Frenchmen--The Combined Franco-Spanish Force Cleared the City of the Hostile Tribesmen--Battery Reduced to Ruins

Tangier, Aug. 7.—The French cruiser Galilee was bombarding the Moorish quarter of Casablanca and the neighborhood of the city when the last steamer, which has just arrived here, left that port.

The Kabyles attacked Casablanca, and the Moorish authorities applied to the commander of the Galilee for assistance. He thereupon landed sixty men and a Spanish cruiser landed forty. This landing party was fired on by the Kabyles and seven Frenchmen, including an officer, were wounded. The combined Franco-Spanish force thereupon cleared the city of hostile tribesmen, guards were placed about the foreign consulates, and then the Galilee opened fire with her big guns on the rebels.

MANY TRIBESMEN KILLED.

London, Aug. 7.—A special despatch received here from Tangier yesterday describing the bombardment of Casablanca says the French cruiser Du Chayla, and the Spanish gunboat Don Alvaro de Bazan, participated with the Galilee in the bombardment of the villages surrounding Casablanca, which were destroyed by the fire of the warships.

During the bombardment large numbers were killed and wounded. The Casablanca batteries joined in the firing on the foreign warships, whereupon the guns of the French and Spanish cruisers were turned on the battery, which soon caused the Moorish commander to send a messenger to the French admiral requesting his pardon. This was refused and the admiral sent a peremptory order to the Moorish commander to surrender himself to the French consul.

BATTERY REDUCED TO RUINS.

London, Aug. 7.—According to another special despatch from Tangier, about 150 Moors are reported to have been killed in town, battery, and villages around Casablanca, during the bombardment of the foreign warships. The Casablanca battery was reduced to ruins by the warships' shells.

Will Build More Cruisers for Navy

London, Aug. 6.—Baron Tweedmouth, First Lord of the Admiralty, in the course of a discussion on naval matters in the House of Lords today, said that the Admiralty had in mind a new and extended cruiser construction policy, which probably would be brought forward next year. "After all," he said, "the cruiser is the ship by means of which we keep our dominance of the sea. The battleships are the policemen of the seas. It is their business to destroy the fleet of the enemy, leaving the cruisers to guard the commerce."

MARSHALL ARRESTED IN SMUGGLING CASE

Escaped Patient from Barrie Hospital Has Been Taken in Charge

To Appear in Court in Lindsay on Tuesday Next

Lindsay, Aug. 7.—Simon Marshall, whose name had been mentioned in connection with the alleged smuggling of beaver skins from Algonquin Park, by way of Lindsay, was formally placed under arrest, Saturday evening by Chief Vincent. Marshall is the man who left the Barrie hospital suddenly last week. The Lindsay police have known of his whereabouts and were only waiting for such time as he was in fit health to travel to bring him here before County Magistrate Moore. On Saturday evening Marshall came to Lindsay and was taken in charge. Owing to the serious illness of the prisoner he was allowed out on $1,000 bail; $500 of his own surety and $250 each by Robert Naylor and Andrew Marshall.

The accused will appear before the county magistrate at Lindsay police court on Tuesday, August 13th. It is said that there are nine or ten witnesses subpoenaed in connection with the case.

T.N. Doutney Speaks

Thos. N. Doutney, the non-political, non-sectarian and non-abusive temperance lecturer and worker, arrived in the city last evening and is registered at The Oriental. Mr. Doutney has achieved great fame and success on its lines in the United States and Canada. He is very popular. Leading people everywhere speak well of him and his work. In conversation with a representative of The Times last evening Mr. Doutney said: "I am indeed delightfully pleased with your thriving city. The people here from what I have thus far seen, seem to be hustlers and very wide awake and most courteous. I have worked professionally in all the large cities of Canada as well as the United States, but never in this section. Peterborough is a revelation to me. The farming country is simply great. Yes, I was born in Canada about nine miles from Montreal in the little village of La Prairie directly opposite the Lachine Rapids. My father was a life long journalist and at one time 1858-61, was on the staff of the Montreal Gazette. He died in 1866. He had quite a close acquaintance at that time with the late Sir John A. McDonald. He was on the staff of the Boston Post when he died. I make Toronto and Detroit my headquarters. For over twenty years I have been engaged in the work of temperance. Permit me, please, to say here and now that I have no use whatever for prohibition or local option. I consider them both a gigantic farce and colossal humbug. Neither of them is expedient or practical. Hypocracy, perjury, bribery and the foulest immorality are the results of prohibition and local option. I have been hotel and bar owner and a victim of the drink habit. Therefore, I speak from the book of personal experience. No one, no matter who, that has ever had a thorough practical and personal experience with both sides of the question can successfully contradict what I say about local option and prohibition. All that needs be done to further verify my statement of facts is a fair, unbiased report of conditions in the majority of local option districts. It is a shame) to say the least, the way the law is operated. Those who speak and write and argue for local option and prohibition are not people who have had any actual experience with both sides of the question. Now, how can anyone intelligently talk on an issue they know nothing about from actual experience. Failure in the proper enforcement of the law proves that public sentiment is against it and when public sentiment is against a law and in actual practice ignoring that law then it is worse than no law at all. Every law ever enacted to suppress the liquor traffic in Canada and the United States has been and is a deplorable failure. There is more liquor, ale, beers and such like made in both countries today than ever before, which means there is more drunk than ever before. It's in the abuse and not the use wherein the wrong exists. The liquor traffic is no more to blame because a man is a drunkard than is the butcher because a man is a glutton. Temperance is a work of education—not coersion. The liquor traffic, like other lines of business, comes under the law of supply and demand. If there were no demand for liquor none would be sold. Keep temperance out of politics and the question would settle itself. Licenses should not be granted to parties who can't show a good record. There are good, honorable men in the liquor business as hotel bar owners and as distillers, brewers and liquor dealers. They are most generous and are never known to refuse any aid for charitable and benevolent purposes. There are some bad men in the liquor business. Let them be rooted out wherever they are. If temperance people will co-operate with the decent and law abiding men in the business, they'll soon get rid of the dives wherever they exist. To do so would bring about an advance for righteous and consistent temperance and it would result in a general faithful observance of the law. My effort is not to extend the liquor traffic but to raise the standard of temperance by common sense methods. I consider it vile, low, mean and dishonest, to say the least, to abuse the liquor dealer or any one else for that matter. I never go into a community to stir up strife or create discord. I advocate peace and an honest, unprejudiced and common sense view of the issue and existing conditions. I present both sides of the question as they really are. Thus far the public have heard but one side, the prejudiced side—the side of prohibition and local option. Let us be fair with hotel bar owners and with the distiller, brewer and liquor dealer and even with those who differ from us in opinion. "Come, let us reason together." To do so will aid all liquor dealers to live up to the requirements of law. And it will lessen drunkenness and surely help the temperance cause. I hope to lecture here in the not distant future. The people will know about it through the daily newspapers."

Fined $25

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 7.—A man and a woman accused of rocking a rowboat in which they were rowing in Washington Park on Sunday, paid for their fun yesterday. The woman, Mrs. Angie Finn, was fined the court costs, amounting to $7, and the man George Morris, was fined $25 and costs.

Kawatha Lakes Traffic Lessened

Business Competition Prevents Many Men From Going Away This Summer

It is a patent fact that the rail and steamboat traffic to the Kawartha Lakes this summer has shown a marked and almost singular decline as regards particularly patronage by men. There are of course a considerable number of men spending the summer months at our northern lakes. Still this summer there is no gainsaying the fact that the men enjoying Stony Lake and Lovesick lake scenic and beautiful scenery, shows a most marked decline from that of the past few years. There are perhaps almost, but not quite as many women and children at their summer cottages boarding houses and hotels a last year but the men do not go out to anything like the numbers customary in bygone years. This is not attributable to deterioration in the scenery or healthfulness of the northern lakes. It is not that transportation facilities are any less reliable and prompt. It simply means that as the great majority of the men who in previous years, spent the summer there, are engaged in the various branches of manufacture and commerce, they are impelled by the present strained financial conditions of the money market and the growing competition between their several and respective lines of industrial fight for business life and ultimate financial supremacy to remain at home with hands on the wheel that will guide the barque of their future prospects to the ports of success or even safety. Whilst not even hinting that a financial crisis is upon or even approaching our present conditions, there is no denying the fact that at present those whose all is tied up in business or manufacturing interests are absolutely compelled to give their personal supervision to their respective lines of business to make them come to the front and survive the present strenuous fight to hold a place in that acknowledged struggle for "the survival of the fittest." This explains in a great measure the lamentable lessening of those leaving, for weeks at a time, as in bygone summers, for the delightful outings on the lakes where "dolce far niente" was the rule, broken only by fishing expeditions and interchange of visits from cottage to cottage or camp to camp.

To Annul Marriage

This seventeen-year-old bride, convinced of the folly of her action by the solemn words of the marriage ceremony, deserted him on the threshold of the clergyman's house.

Now she is bringing suit in the High Court to have the marriage annulled under the Act recently passed giving judges of the High Court of Ontario power to annul marriages between minors, where consummation has not taken place.

The story is one of romance and pathos. Boy and girl at High School together; opposition of parents; stolen meetings; the flame that youth fancies to be love fanned by the opposition of parents; romantic notions; the glamor of an adventure such as a clandestine marriage. Such is the outline of the story told in plain and simple words by the girl bride in her affidavit, now on file at Osgoode Hall.

The girl is Ellen Maria Wasken, of Pilkington township, Wellington county, and her suit is being brought by her father, who is a farmer there.

According to her story, the pair were wedded by a minister she does not name, on April 19, 1906, and by arrangement between the young man and the preacher the ceremony was to be kept secret.

The affidavit was made before Henry Nissen, commissioner. Mrs. Parr begins with the assertion that she went through a ceremony of marriage with the defendant without the consent of her parents.

"My parents were not aware that I was meeting the defendant, and I knew that they would not allow me to have anything to do with him.

"Our meetings were confined to meetings on my way home from Sunday school, when in all cases my young sister was present, and I induced her not to mention the fact to my parents; and to meetings on our way home from the Elora High school for three months in the winter of 1906."

She then states that he was well aware of her parents' feelings, and never saw her home.

She swears that the marriage was never consummated, and that nothing improper ever took place between them.

"In fact," she says, "our meetings were so open that nothing improper could occur.

"I was told by the defendant that the minister could arrange that the fact of our being married would never be known."

Police Court

Yesterday saw the city treasury somewhat enriched at that delectable spot of delight the police court. In the absence of Magistrate Dunnole, Mr. Frank Adams, J.P., again mounted the rostrum and handed out big chunks of justice.

Mrs. Shearer pleaded "not guilty" to a charge of disorderly conduct.

P. C. Newhall stated that shortly after midnight Mrs. Shearer and another woman together with a man, were driving along King street, and there were about eight men hanging on the back of the rig. The prisoner was almost drunk, and was shouting and yelling. The rig stopped several times to allow the men to get on. He noted that the accused has got the most brilliant record and that she nearly every night is seen driving with several men. On Monday night she resisted the police and used indecent language.

The prisoner did not go on evidence but said from the dock that she had lived here seven years. During Newhall's evidence she said, "I am decent and respectable, and no one can say that I am not."

"You are fined ten dollars and costs, amounting to $13.75, to be paid forthwith or 60 days in jail," said the presiding magistrate.

Mrs. Shearer paid the fine, and was allowed her freedom.

Lucano, an Italian, was one of the men riding on the rig. He also boards with Mrs. Shearer. When called to answer a charge of disorderly conduct he pleaded not guilty. Constable Newhall was again on the box to give evidence. Lucano was fined $2 which was paid.

Two other men were fined $2 and costs, amounting to $3.75, for being disorderly and were given ten days to pay it in.

Sougog Indians are After Treasure

Dave Elliott, a Sougog Lake Indian and a number of his tribesmen, passed through town yesterday morning to join Chief Johnston at Pleasant Point. There a large number of Sougog Islanders and Indians have congregated, and are engaged in fishing operations. The law forbids fishing in Sougog lake or river above the locks, and the red men respect the close season.

Elliott was the dusky tribesman who recently was in search of some scientific instrument which could locate buried gold. A legend of the Sougog Island tribe tells of a chest of treasure captured from the Americans during the war of 1812, over which a civil war was fought, the tribe being almost annihilated. The survivors, as the tale relates, buried the chest to prevent further dissensions. Like the hunters of Captain Kidd's lost treasure, the copper-skinned aborigines think they will come across the chest some day.—Lindsay Post.

These Medical Facts

You Can Study With Profit

How few realize that twenty-five per cent. of all disease has its origin in some interference with the function of elimination.

The whole body exists by reason of the transfusion of fluids through its component parts.

Up to a certain point the body has power to object to destructive elements, but this power is limited.

When it happens that the body is loaded with wastes and poisons which it can't eliminate, fermentation, decay, and gumm-like run riot through the blood.

Serious illness is the result unless nature is assisted by a cleansing tonic like Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which are purely vegetable, contain no mercury, no bismuth, no injurious metallic ingredient of any kind.

Such a medicine is the greatest possible assurance to every man and woman of health, spirits and contentment.

From Newfoundland, Miss Lillian Anthony, of Upper Gullies, Conception Bay, writes: "In praise of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, I must say that I have used them with grand success for three years. They never fail to cure me of indigestion or constipation. Formerly my face was full of pimples, but now my complexion is clear and ruddy. In more ways than I care to mention have Dr. Hamilton's Pills helped me; they would be good for every woman to use."

Insist on having only Dr. Hamilton's Pills. 25c per box or five boxes for $1.00, at all dealers, or by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S. A., or Kingston, Ont.

CANADIAN IMMIGRANTS

While the people of Western Canada are exercised over the possibility of the arrival in British Columbia of thousands of Japanese, the Dominion is receiving a large influx of immigrants from Europe and the United States. The official returns for the month of May show the arrivals to have been 45,677, as compared with 37,191 for May, 1906. Of these immigrants 38,755 came through the Canadian Atlantic ports and 6,922 from the United States. The increase during the different months of the year since May, 1906, has been well maintained. The immigration for the five months of the present calendar year has been 171,766, as compared with 180,183 for the similar period last year, or an increase of twenty-three per cent. There would seem, therefore, to be no justification for the Dominion Government giving any assistance towards the immigration of people from parts of Europe of a sort that both in Canada or the United States has not resulted in additions of a desirable element to the population. The inducements which the natural resources and opportunities in this country offer to the people of the United Kingdom and other parts of Europe should secure for us the cream of the flow of immigration, and cause us to put up the bars against those who are physically or morally an undesirable element.

A WARNING TO CHINA

"If the fate of Corea may be regarded by China as a reason it should be a warning to that country to put her house in order." In the utterance of these words Viscount Hayashi, the Japanese minister of foreign affairs, has given a hint to China which is one of the strongest diplomatic utterances of one nation to another since the days when Napoleon the great spoke his mind freely to the kings who opposed his plans. China has not the power to show resentment of these words. It would be well if they were heeded as an admonition meant in all friendliness.

The obliteration of Corea, the hermit nation, from the roll of independent powers awakens little regret. From all accounts the government of Corea had reached the lowest depths of inefficiency. The resources of the country were undeveloped, official corruption was accompanied by commercial apathy, the people were oppressed. Seclusion did not bring happiness. In a decade which has seen the loosening of the dead grasp of Spain on Cuba and the Philippines and the opening of Tibet the continued existence of a nation which prided itself from its remoteness from the current of modern progress was an anomaly. It was evident that the end should come. The only question which a prophet could not have answered was would Corea fall into the hands of Russia or Japan.

Japan has acted with accustomed energy, but with a moderation worthy of commendation. The changes which must be made to bring Corea into touch with the world will seem violent to many of the Coreans. Japan itself has passed through a similar period of resistance to the process of modernization. In every country are those who praise the good old days, which seem more golden the more remote they are. The Coreans of the next generation will reap the benefit of being lifted out of a state of slavery to a decadent autocracy. Perhaps there will be some who will be grateful to Japan, as Japan is to America for having forced the opening of Japanese ports. It is more likely that the Coreans will be as ungrateful as India is to England for having destroyed the tyrannies and terrors of native rule of petty states. Corea will be a source of weakness to Japan rather than an added strength. But Japan will do much for Corea and sentimental objections to the change of sovereignty are worse than wasted.

The Japanese have been called sometimes the Yankees of the east. The frank utterance of Vicount Hayashi suggests the shirtsleeve diplomacy which is considered typically American. He does not hesitate to intimate the Japan is ready to assume the task of modernizing China if reforms do not take place within that empire. The disparity of size between China and Japan has been recognized since 1894 as more than counterbalanced by the superior discipline of the Japanese. The warning is a friendly one and should be heeded.

IRRESISTIBLE SLEEP.

"Whoever sits down," said Dr. Solander to his company among the hills of Tierra del Fuego, "will sleep, and whoever sleeps will wake no more." The brave doctor and his men had tramped a considerable distance through the swamps, when the weather became suddenly colder and fierce blasts of wind drove the snow before it. In a short time the cold became so intense as to cause the most oppressive drowsiness. Dr. Solander was the first to find the inclination to sleep, and he insisted upon lying down. In vain his companions entreated and remonstrated. He lay down, and when told that he would inevitably freeze to death answered that he desired nothing more than to lie down and die. One of the black servants lay down also. Solander declared himself willing to go on, but begged to be allowed to sleep first, and in a few moments the two men were in a profound sleep. Soon after, those who had been sent forward to kindle a fire returned with the welcome news that the fire awaited them at a short distance. The men roughly succeeded in awakening Solander, who, although he had not been asleep five minutes, had almost lost the use of his limbs, and the flesh was so shrunken that his shoes fell from his feet. It was with much urging and assistance that he consented to go on, but all attempts to arouse the black man were futile, and he was left to die.

HE WANTED REST.

What Verdi Did With the Key of a Locked Piano.

Not all the great composers have courted the constant adulation of the world. Verdi used to lament that he was unable to find a refuge, even for a brief space, from the reputation that preceded him wherever he went.

At one time he designed to spend a much needed holiday at the watering place of Montecatini. When he arrived, he found that in one of the apartments assigned to him stood a grand piano of noted make. On the rack, by way of compliment, lay the score of "Il Trovatore." As soon as he caught sight of it the veteran flew into a rage, hastily locked the instrument, threw the score into a corner and, calling for his host, demanded in tragic tones:

"Lead me to the spot that overhangs the steepest precipice!"

Wondering, the host did as he was bidden, and on reaching the summit the maestro, who was almost exhausted from fatigue, flung the key of the piano into the abyss, energetically exclaiming as he did so:

"Now I have done something to secure rest and quiet. On the day of my departure I shall send a locksmith to provide the piano with a new key, but while I am here I pray you let it remain as it is."

His Grace.

Little Milly is a good Sunday school scholar and on that account was invited with two or three others to spend the day at the minister's residence by way of reward. When the dinner came on the good man said such a long grace before meat that Milly yawned and looked hungrily at the covers.

"Why are you yawning, Milly?" asked the minister. "Does not your father say grace?"

"Oh, yes," answered Milly promptly, "but it isn't so long as that."

"And what does he say?" pursued the clergyman, hoping to obtain a text for a little homily.

"He says different things, but last time when he sat down he took off the cover and said: 'Great snakes! Do you call this a dinner?'"

The homily was postponed.

TORONTO MAN'S MISFOBTUNE

His Auto Probably Fatally Injures a Woman in Buffalo

Buffalo, N.Y., Aug. 6—A. E. Jackson of Toronto, while making an automobile trip about the city with three friends this afternoon, struck and perhaps fatally injured Mrs. J. Floyd of Roland, a suburb of Buffalo.

The woman was alighting from a Main street car at Hilars close of Jackson's automobile, which was following close, struck her. Witness say that Jackson made a quick turn to avoid striking her, and that the accident was unavoidable.

He was unfamiliar with the regulations governing the passing of street corners. He should have kept close to the curb while passing the corner.

Mrs. Floyd was attended by Dr. C. N. Kendrick, who, after a hasty examination, said that in addition to bruises, she had probably sustained spinal injuries, which would more or less prove serious.

A Peterboro Boy Changes His Prayers

A Local Juvenile Anecdote of Absolute Truth and Worth Repeating

On Saturday evening a Peterborough mother decided that her three-year-old boy should henceforth say himself, of his own volition and by his own efforts, the prayers she had taught him night by night at her knee. The little fellow, when told to remember his teachings and say his prayers without prompting, began, "God bless daddy and mother, God bless my brothers and sisters and make me a good boy. ..... Now God told an egg t pray her soul to keep." This latter version is not given in any lightsome or irreverent spirit, but is an accurate description of what occurred. Of course, the last portion of the little fellow's prayer, as taught, ran, "Now I lay me down to sleep, etc." The poor little chap made use of the words quoted on his knees with hands reverently clasped and an expression beneath his two-colored thatch of curls that would put to flight any idea of irreverence from the most sceptical.

The Money That's Being Made in Western Canada LAND

In October, 1906 we sold 6,000 acres of Saskatchewan lands to an Indiana party of men, at $8 per acre, and resold it this year at $12, making just about 100 per cent. on the money invested.

A Montreal party of men who bought 10,000 acres from us at $8 per acre last September, resold through us within three months at $10.00 per acre.

A Chicago client writes us that after making some improvements on a section she bought near Regina, one year ago, she sold out recently for exactly twice what she paid for the land.

We resold a section of land located near Lipton for a man at $18.00 per acre last April, which we sold him in December at $12.00.

Men here are growing wealthy who never knew success in any other line. You can make money here too, if you think your amount too small to do it with a few friends. Some of the most prominent financial men in the United States and Eastern Canada are now interested in this country heavily.

We own about 200,000 acres of the finest wheat and mixed farming lands in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.—Picked lands on which we are prepared to give accurate trustworthy information, and these tracts being portions of extremely large purchases, we can sell them at prices that cannot be equalled, quality of land considered, by any firm in this country.

Prices range from $6.00 per acre upwards

Reasonable Terms in every case

Write us for further information but when doing so tell us the class and amount of an investment you desire, and whether you want the land for your own use or for investment purposes purely. $1,000 is about the minimum we can handle. References Union Bank and Traders' Bank, Winnipeg.

SIREN WAFERS DEVELOP THE BUST

SHE'S A QUEEN! SHE'S A SIREN!

Is an expression that is always heard at sight of a well developed woman. If you are flat chested, with BUST undeveloped, a scrawney neck, thin lean arms —the above remark will never be applied to you. "SIREN" wafers will make you beautiful, bewitching. They DEVELOP the BUST in a few weeks from 3 to 6 inches and produce a fine firm, voluptuous bosom. They fill out the hollow places Make the cheeks plump and rosy, and arms handsome and well molded and the neck and shoulders shapely and of perfect contour.

Send for a bottle today and you'll be pleased and grateful. "SIREN" wafers are absolutely harmless, pleasant to take and convenient to carry around. They are sold under guarantee to do all we claim or MONEY back..

Price $1.00 per bottle. Inquire at good drug stores or send DIRECT to us.

FREE!

During the next 30 days only—we will send you a sample bottle of these beautifying wafers on receipt of 10 cents to pay cost of packing and postage if you will mention that you saw the Advertisement in this paper. The sample alone may be sufficient if defects are trivial.

Guggenheim-Greenwater

Copper Prospect at Ely

GUGGENHEIM GREENWATER

I want every reader of this paper who has a spark of spunk in him to buy a few shares in the Guggenheim Greenwater Copper Company. I can sell it to you now for a mere song—5 cents a share. Every share is of treasury stock, par value $1, full paid up and non-assessable.

I have a poor idea of that man's courage who dares not risk $5 on the chance to make $100 if there is any better buy in the mining market today than a $100 certificate for five dollars. I have never heard of it. This company owns two groups of claims in two copper districts—Ely and Greenwater. It is developing first its group at Ely, and has a shaft down 50 feet with indications of a strike of ore in the next 50 feet.

Every man who reads this advertisement has read the stories from Ely, Nev. He knows as well as I do that experts report there is enough copper ore already in sight in the Ely district to keep ten smelters of immense capacity going for the next one hundred years. One 15,000 ton smelter is already being built by the Guggenheims, and other reduction plants of gigantic capacity are projected. Ely is unquestionably one of the greatest copper districts in the world.

This property is located on the great zone of porphyry which carries the copper values, and I tell you honestly that I would as soon put a few dollars into this prospect and take a chance of its making a big mine as into any mining investment within the range of possibility.

See me about this investment at once. I can fill all orders today for anything up to 10,000 shares at 5 cents. That price is sure to advance sharply any day that news comes of a strike. Buy now at 5 cents.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry must be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made on certain conditions, by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of the homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Six months' notice in writing should be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of intention to apply for patent.

W. W. CORY,
Deputy of the Minister of the Interior.

THE CONQUEST of CANAAN

By BOOTH TARKINGTON,
Author of "Cherry," "Monsieur Beaucaire," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1905, BY HARPER & BROTHERS

he did so it seemed to him that he heard close to his ear another voice, a woman's, troubled and insistent, but clear and sweet, saying:

"Remember! Across Main street bridge at noon!"

It was so distinct that he started and looked round. Then he laughed. "I'll be seeing circus parades next." His laughter fled, for, louder than the ringing in his ears, unmistakably came the strains of a faraway brass band which had no existence on land or sea or in the waters under the earth.

"Here!" he said to the mongrel. "We need a walk, I think. Let's you and me move on before the camels turn the corner."

The music followed him to the street, where he turned westward toward the river, and presently as he walked on, fanning himself with his straw hat, it faded and was gone. But the voice he had heard returned.

"Remember! Across Main street bridge at noon!" it said again close to his ear.

This time he did not start. "All right," he answered, wiping his forehead. "If you'll let me alone, I'll be there."

At a dingy saloon corner near the river a shabby little man greeted him heartily and petted the mongrel. "I'm mighty glad you didn't go, after all, Joe," he added, with a brightening face.

"Go where, Happy?"

Mr. Fear looked grave. "Don't you rec'lect meetin' me last night?"

Louden shook his head. "No. Did I?"

The other's jaw fell, and his brow corrugated with self reproach. "Well, if that don't show what a thick head I am! I thought ye was all right er I'd gone on with ye. Nobody c'd 'a' walked straighter ner talked straighter. Said ye was goin' to leave Canaan fer good and didn't want nobody to know it. Said ye was goin' to take the 'leven o'clock through train fer the west and told me I couldn't come to the depot with ye. Said ye'd had enough o' Canaan and of everything. I follered ye part way to the depot, but ye turned and made a motion fer me to go back, and I done it because ye seemed to be kind of in trouble, and I thought ye'd ruther be by yerself. Well, sir, it's one on me."

"Not at all," said Joe. "I was all right."

"Was ye?" returned the other. "Do remember, do ye?"

"Almost," Joe smiled faintly.

"Almost," echoed Happy, shaking his head seriously. "I tell ye, Joe, ef I was you"— he began slowly, then paused and shook his head again. He seemed on the point of delivering some advice, but evidently perceiving the snobbishness of such a proceeding, or else convinced by his own experience of the futility of it, he swerved to cheerfulness:

"I hear the boys is all goin' to work hard fer the primaries, Mike says ye got some chances ye don't know about. He swears ye'll be the next mayor of Canaan."

"Nonsense! Folly and nonsense, Happy! That's the kind of thing I used to think when I was a boy. But now—pshaw!" Joe broke off with a tired laugh. "Tell them not to waste their time! Are you going out to the Beach this afternoon?"

The little man lowered his eyes moodily. "I'll be near there," he said, scraping his patched shoe up and down the curbstone. "That feller's in town ag'in."

"What fellow?"

"'Nashville' they call him. Ed's the name he give the hospital. Cory him that I soaked the night you come back to Canaan. He's after Claudine to git his evens with me. He's made a raise somewhere's and plays the spender. And her—well, I reckon she's tired waitin' table at the National House, tired o' me, too. I got a hint that they're goin' out to the Beach together this afternoon."

Joe passed his hand wearily over his aching forehead. "I understand," he said, "and you'd better try to. Cory's laying for you, of course. You say he's after your wife? He must have set about it pretty openly if they're going to the Beach today, for there is always a crowd there on Sundays. Is it hard for you to see why he's doing it? It's because he wants to make you jealous. What for? So that you'll tackle him again. And why does he want that? Because he's ready for you!"

The other's eyes suddenly became bloodshot, his nostrils expanding incredibly. "Ready, is he? He better be ready. I"—

"That's enough!" Joe interrupted swiftly. "We'll have no talk like that. I'll settle this for you myself. You send word to Claudine that I want to see her at my office tomorrow morning, and you stay away from the Beach today. Give me your word."

Mr. Fear's expression softened. "All right, Joe," he said. "I'll do whatever you tell me to. Any of us 'll do that; we sure know who's our friend."

"Keep out of trouble, Happy." Joe turned to go and they shook hands. "Good day, and—keep out of trouble!"

When he had gone Mr. Fear's countenance again gloomed ominously, and, shaking his head, he ruminatively entered an adjacent bar through the alley door.

The Main street bridge was an old fashioned wooden covered one, dust colored and very narrow, squarely framing the fair open country beyond the town had never crossed the river." Joe found the cool shadow in the bridge gracious to his hot brow, and through the slender chinks of the worn flooring he caught bright glimpses of running water. When he came out of the other end he felt enough refreshed to light a cigar.

"Well, here I am," he said, "across Main street bridge, and it must be getting on toward noon!" He spoke almost with the aspect of daring and immediately stood still listening. "'Remember,'" he ventured to repeat, again daring—"'remember! Across Main street bridge at noon!'" And again he listened. Then he chuckled faintly with relief, for the voice did not return. "Thank God, I've got rid of that!" he whispered. "And of the circus band too!"

A dusty road turned to the right, following the river and shaded by big sycamores on the bank. The mongrel, intensely preoccupied with this road, scampered away, his nose to the ground. "Good enough," said the master. "Lead on and I'll come after you."

But he had not far to follow. The chase led him to a half hollow log which lay on a low grass grown levee above the stream where the dog's interest in the pursuit became vivid; temporarily, however, for after a few minutes of agitated investigation he was seized with indifference to the whole world, panted briefly, slept. Joe sat upon the log, which was in the shade, and smoked.

For the first time it struck Joe that it was a beautiful day, and it came to him that a beautiful day was a thing which nothing except death, sickness or imprisonment could take from him, not even the ban of Canaan. Unforewarned music sounded in his ears again, but he did not shrink from it now. This was not the circus band, he had heard as he left the square, but a melody like a faraway serenade at night, as of "the horns of elf land faintly blowing," and he closed his eyes with the sweetness of it.

"Go ahead," he whispered. "Do that all you want to. If you'll keep it up like this a while, I'll follow with 'Little Brown Jug, How I Love Thee!' It seems to pay after all!"

The welcome strains, however, were but the prelude to a harsher sound which interrupted and annihilated them—the courthouse bell clanging out 12. "All right," said Joe. "It's noon, and I'm 'across Main street bridge.'"

He opened his eyes and looked about him whimsically. Then he shook his head again.

A lady had just emerged from the bridge and was coming toward him.

It would be hard to get at Joe's first impressions of her. We can find conveyance for only the broadest and heaviest. Ancient and modern instances multiply the case of the sleeper who dreams out a long story in accurate color and fine detail, a tale of years, in the opening and shutting of a door. So with Joseph in the brief space of the lady's approach. And with him, as with the sleeper, it must have been—in fact it was—in his recollections later a blur of emotion.

He had little knowledge of the millinery arts, and he needed none to see the harmony—harmony like that of the day he had discovered a little while ago. Her dress and hat and gloves and parasol showed a pale lavender overtint like that which he had seen overspreading the western slope. (Afterward he discovered that the gloves she wore that day were gray and that her hat was for the most part white.) The charm of fabric and tint belonging to what she wore was no shame to her, not being of primal importance beyond herself. It was but the expression of her daintiness and the adjunct of it. She was tall, but if Joe could have spoken or thought of her as "slender" he would have been capable of calling her lips "red," in which case he would not have been Joe and would have been as far from the truth as her lips were from red or as her supreme delicateness was from mere slenderness.

A COUNTRY VISITOR.

The New York Man Felt Above Him but Changed His Opinion.

One of the most successful wholesale dry goods merchants New York city ever saw had the peculiar habit of regarding as his inferior any man who was engaged in a business less genteel, as he held, than his own. In his employ was a young Vermonter, who felt highly elated when one day a man from his native town who was visiting the city called on him. The man was somewhat crude in his manners, but he had piled up a fortune in the tinware business and in buying up at a discount in times of panic commercial paper which he believed was good. The youth introduced the Vermonter to his employer.

"What business are you in?" asked the dry goods prince as the two shook hands.

Without a word the dry goods merchant turned on his heel and bolted into his private office. He didn't recognize tinware merchants as desirable acquaintances.

From his wallet the Vermonter drew several slips of paper, which he held up to the dry goods merchant's face. The merchant glanced at them and effusively bade the Vermonter welcome to his private office. The papers were notes to the extent of $50,000 uttered by the dry goods merchant and which, unknown to him, the Vermonter had bought up at a big discount.—Brooklyn Eagle.

More people would snap their fingers in the face of trouble if trouble didn't have such a sudden way of swooping down on us.

When a man seeks your advice he generally wants your praise.—Chesterfield.

Catarrh

To prove unquestionably, and beyond any doubt, that Catarrh of the nose and throat can be cured, I am furnishing patients through druggists, small free Trial Boxes of Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Cure. I do this because I am so certain, that Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Cure will bring actual substantial help. Nothing certainly, is so convincing as a physical test of any article of real, genuine merit. But that article must possess true merit, else the test will condemn, rather than advance it. Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Cure is a snow white, healing antiseptic balm, put up in beautiful nickel capped glass jars at 50c. Such soothing agents as Oil Eucalyptus, Thymol, Menthol, etc., are incorporated into a velvety, cream like Petrolatum, imported by Dr. Shoop from Europe. If Catarrh of the nose and throat has extended to the stomach, then by all means take one internally, Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Stomach distress, a lack of general strength, bloating, belching, biliousness, bad taste, etc., surely call for Dr. Shoop's Restorative.

For uncomplicated catarrh only of the nose and throat nothing else, however, need be used but

Is such an important feature on the table. It makes a heap of difference to the pleasure of the meal whether you have a good or a poor looking Sugar on the table.

St. Lawrence Extra Granulated Sugar

Is the whitest and best looking Sugar to be had and besides it has the advantage of being the best quality and greatest strength.

Heaviness, Lassitude, Drowsy and Dull

Do You Feel That Way?

How provoking these symptoms are! You sleep well; but when you awaken there is none of the exhilaration that sleep and rest should confer.

Instead of being alert, having quickness of apprehension, there is languor, dullness, a disinclination to do things.

Three causes for this feeling.

Lazy liver, lazy kidneys, and a mighty lazy stomach which does its work very poorly and compels the other organs to do things they are unequal to for any length of time.

Note the consequences—blood is filled with wastes—poisons weigh down the nervous system—rebuilding processes are absolutely stopped.

You'll note an instant change when you take Ferrozone.

Appetite improves, digestion becomes good as ever—skin grows ruddy and clear, all sense of langour, unsteadiness and depression fades away and finally disappears.

Ferrozone clarifies the brain, supplies tone and vigor, imparts clearness and strength. You feel like a new person, full of life, full of ambition, ready to do things—and able to do them also.

Think it over. Ferrozore is a tonic that uplifts, upbuilds, that nourishes and restores the sick by supplying the elements their weakened system need.

It can't help but do you good. For men, women and children, in fact anyone seeking strength and health, Ferrozone is invaluable; try it, sold by all druggists in 50c. boxes.

Havelock Man Is Promoted

Mr. Wm. Wright of Havelock has received a promotion from the position of fitter in the shops here to head fitter in the large shops in London, Ont., His many friends will be glad to hear of his success which was well merited.

Quaker Kickers Practicing

Last night both senior and junior teams of the Quaker Football team had a satisfactory practice at the Exhibition Grounds. An exhibiton game has been arranged with Warkworth, to be played on the grounds of the latter club on Saturday evening of this week. Another practice will be held tomorrow evening.

Citizen's at Crawford's Grove

There are quite a number of citizens camping on that beautiful and easily accessible spot on the Otonabee, some two miles below the locks, known as Crawford's Grove or to some as "Pink Grove." When Mr. McNamara sells a few more of his admirably located lots situated near this grove, there is reason to hope that the Peterborough Radial Railway Company will extend their lines to accommodate the hundreds who will build residences there. This will also give easier access to Crawford's Grove.

$100 REWARD, $100

Bell Co. Work Rapidly Progressing

The bricklayers are getting in good work on the new office for the Bell Telephone Co., and the building is now well under way. The material for the underground work is beginning to arrive, and it will not be long before the construction gang will get started Beside the new office is piled a lot of pipe, which will be used for carrying the cables from the underground conduits to the poles.

Earl Taylor is Recovering

Earl Taylor, the young man, who was injured by falling from a telephone pole at Ottawa, while engaged with J. J. Turner & Sons, in decorating Ottawa for the Old Boys' reunion, arrived home from the capital yesterday. He has been in the hospital since the accident occurred, but has now almost fully recovered, and will be able to go to work again in a few days.

Quick Walk from Chemong

Yesterday morning as Mr. Max Dobbin was too late to catch the bus to Peterborough from his present residence at Chemong, he took that good old original and reliable mode of conveyance, known generally as "Shank's mare." He covered the distance in one hour and eighteen minutes, which is good time for a young walker. Max says that he can make it in one hour and ten minutes and will try it again.

Weather Sharps Predict Storms

Those posted or claiming to be so, predicted that a reactionary storm period is central on the 5th, 6th and 7th, on and about which days may be expected a return of storm conditions. The barometer will fall and cloudiness will grow into decided areas of storminess and precipitation. A regular storm period extends from the 10th to the 14th. It is central on the 12th and will come to a crisis centrally between east and west extremes of the country on Tuesday and Wednesday the 13th and 14th.

Stricken with Typhoid

The Times had a call yesterday from Dr. Alex. Bell, of Apsley, who was called to attend his son Charles at Stony Lake, where he had been stricken with typhoid fever. The doctor had the sufferer removed to Nicholls Hospital last night. Hon. J. R. Stratton having kindly placed his steam launch at his service to convey him to Lakefield, where the train was in waiting for Peterborough. Dr. Bell also feels grateful to the train crew for stopping near the hospital.

Fire Engine was Tested

Yesterday morning Engineer S. Wainwright of the local fire brigade, held a thorough test of the new fire engine. The engine had 180 pounds water pressure to the square inch and about 120 pounds steam pressure. The engine never turned a hair, and was all that could be asked for or expected by the most exacting critic. To the engine were attached two lines of 2 1-2 inch hose, with 1 1-4 inch nozzles. Assistant Chief Joe Metheral and other members of the brigade, were present as was Ald. Johnston, chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee.

New Light House Completed

The new lighthouse, as foretold in a former issue of The Times on the north point of the new channel, is completed. It stands about 20 feet in height and will be of great advantage to navigators on our Otonabee and Rice Lake route. It is expected that the light will be turned on this week. Mr. John Gilman of Jubilee Point Hotel, has been appointed light house keeper. The new Government wharf at Hall's Landing, Rice Lake, is nearly completed. It is on the Monaghan shore, behind Cow Island, and will be of great use to those shipping grain by scow and steamer.

TO STONY LAKE

Str. Otonabee will run special trip to Stony Lake on Friday next Aug 9, leaving at 7.30 a.m. and returning at 8 p.m. Return tickets 75c.

Will Visit Peterboro Again

Yesterday The Times was in receipt of a letter from a gentleman known by many of our local citizens, Mr. Edward M. Taylor. Mr. Taylor, who is the son of a former rector of St. John's church, has spent some days in Peterborough during the past few summers and expects to be in the city this week. He has just returned from St. Louis, Mo., and is visiting with Rev. A. J. Fidler, Toronto. Mr. Taylor, who is a member of the "Jim Lewis Fishing and Sporting Club" of Petosky, Mich., notes that he will be able to give our subscribers "a fish story that they can and will believe. It might be noted that the Jim Lewis F. & S. Club had an invitation to attend the Jamestown Exposition on Aug. 27th.

Manager Johnston in Toronto

Mr Arthur Johnston, the indefatiguable and successful manager of the Peterborough Baseball Club, was in Toronto yesterday in the interest of the local ball tossers. There is no doubt but what Mr. Johnston will "do a heap" for the local nine and "put the public wise" as to what Peterborough's ball players have done and will do during the present season We note that some of our contemporaries in Ontario have not given the good work Manager Johnston has done, the prominence his well rewarded efforts have secured, still Johnston has "got there!" with his team and will doubtless hold the good position they now hold until the cold weather chases baseball from the field to make way for football or snowshoeing.

Newspaper Ball Teams In Practice Now

It is understood that the members of the Examiner baseball team who will meet the Review nine at the Printers' picnic, August 12th, are now in active training. Mahoney, who will do the twirling for the Grits is limbering up and needs to before the date of the game Hutchison, who will do the receiving, is getting his features hardened even harder than demanded by the usual city editor.

The Review team will be the strongest that has ever represented this exponent of Conservative politics and hope to have Reform scalps hung over every building on Hunter street from George to Aylmer streets.

A Woman's Back

Has many aches and pains caused by weaknesses and failing, or other displacement, of the pelvic organs. Other symptoms of female weakness are frequent headache, dizziness, imaginary specks or dark spots floating before the eyes, gnawing sensation in stomach, dragging or bearing down in lower abdominal or pelvic region, disagreeable drains from pelvic organs, faint spells with general weakness.

If any considerable number of the above symptoms are present there is no remedy that will give quicker relief or a more permanent cure than Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It has a record of over forty years of cures. It is the most potent invigorating tonic and strengthening nervine known to medical science. It is made of the glyceric extracts of native medicinal roots found in our forests and contains not a drop of alcohol or harmful, or habit-forming drugs. Its ingredients are all printed on the bottle-wrapper and attested under oath as correct.

Every ingredient entering into "Favorite Prescription" has the written endorsement of the most eminent medical writers of all the several schools of practice—more valuable than any amount of non-professional testimonials—though the latter are not lacking, having been contributed voluntarily by grateful patients in numbers to exceed the endorsements given to any other medicine extant for the cure of woman's ills.

You cannot afford to accept any medicine of unknown composition as a substitute for this well proven remedy OF KNOWN COMPOSITION, even though the dealer may make a little more profit thereby. Your interest in regaining health is paramount to any selfish interest of his and it is an insult to your intelligence for him to try to palm off upon you a substitute. You know what you want and it is his business to supply the article called for.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the original "Little Liver Pills" first put up by old Dr. Pierce over forty years ago, much imitated but never equaled. Little sugar-coated granules—easy to take as candy.

Do you realize that investments of a hundred or a thousand will grow rapidly into hundreds and thousands and millions of dollars? The over-conservative and skeptical will smile they will laugh at these predictions, some will even consider this a joke but remember COBALT, if you please, two or three years ago? Then it was a "vision," it was a "dream," "a flash in the pan," "a bubble," somebody Was "crazy"; bu now it is different. Those crazy men are now classed among the smart and keenest business men of the day. The actual value of a few mines are worth at the present date more than one hundred millions of dollars. These are facts.

In presenting this investment for subscription we appeal to the good judgement of sensible persons as to its merit,

It embodies, we believe, a correct method of developing and establishing successful and paying mining enterprises.

We desire to conduct, first of all a successful Mine Developement. We intend this to be done in a way that will be absolutely fair and honest, and bring the largest profit possible to those who co-operate with us.

We, therefore, desire this proposition to be well understood by investors. We wish it to be known just how we propose to develope, establish and operate dividend paying Mining Companies by and through this investment.

THE PLAN.—The plan involved in this proposition is that of uniting or consolidating the investments of a limited number of persons into one sum, and under one management, to be used in acquiring and developing mining properties in this wonderful region.

THE PRINCIPLE involved in this investment we believe, is one of absolute fairness to all interested. The "promotion interest" common to all mining companies, and which is the great unfair feature to investors who put their money into stocks of these companies, and whose money develops and makes the mine, if a mine is developed—does not exist in this proposition. There is no "promotion interest set aside, and against the interest bought and paid for by the investors.

In this proposition the investors, and all the investors, become promotors. They take the "promotion interest" and all the interest. They own the whole enterprise. No matter how large or how small the investment—all stand on an equal basis. Our field of operation is probably one of the greatest, and without doubt the richest, mineralized region in the world.

For its basis, upon which we will establish and build us several great producing, paying mining companies, we will exploit and develop in a mining-like and careful manner exclusive mining properties now known to us, other properties which we may acquire for the mutual benefit of all investors in this Company.

SUBSIDIARY COMPANIES.—The Larder Lake Exploration and Development Comany will incorporate a series, not to exceed five, of Subsidiary Mining Companies upon only the real proven properties acquired.

In each and every subsidiary Company incorporated, whether Mining, Milling, Smelting, Water Power, or Electric Light, the Exploration Company will take 60 per cent. of the capital stock of each Company so incorporated, and will put 10 per cent. of the Capital Stock of each Company in its treasury. It will probably never become necessary to sell any of this Treasury Stock.

Out of the total Capital Stock of each Subsidiary Company, the EXPLORATION COMPANY will retain 50 per cent. as its "Holding Stock." This will always control the Company. It will take and hold 40 per cent. for the mutual benefit of all stockholders in the EXPLORATION COMPANY. This 40 per cent will be known as "Selling Stock," and as a market is created it will be sold, and the proceeds received will be distributed pro rata to the stockholders in the EXPLORATION COMPANY, as their interests may appear.

The stock of the Subsidiary Companies will be inlisted on the New York Curb and Mining Exchanges of the country, and started at 50 cents a share, where it can be bought and sold according to the daily market quotations. This will afford a channel by which stockholders can sell the 40 per cent. "Selling Stock" from time to time, if they wish.

PROPERTIES.—Many different mining properties will be acquired and developed as stock in the EXPLORATION COMPANY, is subscribed for. All properties will be described, and reports submitted regarding same, as soon and as often as they can be examined by the engineer.

The mining properties that will be acquired for this proposition will be located in the gold and silver belt, extending from the Montreal River through Northern Ontario, eastward into Quebec, and will include properties in the Lady Evelyn District, the new Montreal River Silver District; Cobalt District, and the gold districts around Round Lake, Larder Lake, Lake Abitibi, and in the great undeveloped mineralized section of Quebec lying just east of Larder Lake and extending northward to Lake Abitibi.

We shall try and make every dollar count, and make as few mistakes as possible. We hope to create such an interest in this enterprise with investors, that will result in extensive and widespread co-operation.

Under this plan no one can truthfully say that it is not a great mining investment. We want every investor to feel a personal interest in this Mine Development. The investors in this Company will own this enterprise, and we want them to co-operate (with us and our associates to make it a great success.

We are now organizing THE LARDER LAKE EXPLORATION AND DEVELOPMENT COMPANY with what we consider sufficient capital ($500,000). We now have options on, and propose to acquire five distinct and separate properties which will be incorporated at $100,000 each (100,000 shares—par value $1.00). The Exploration Company will at all times hold a controlling interest in each of these companies, so that sixty per cent. of the dividends earned and declared will be paid into the treasury of the parent company, and the other forty per cent. distributed among the stockholders on record. This in our opinion will enable us to pay dividends and large ones in the very near future.

The Board of Directors of THE LARDER LAKE EXPLORATION AND DEVELOPMENT COMPANY will be composed only of engineers of national repute, setting a precedent in this line—Mr. Robert Morton will be president, which fact in itself guarantees conservative and able management

Investors have been pouring their money into over capitalized mining companies, they have been plunging about wildly in the hope of some day "striking it rich" never stopping to think for one instant that the greater part of their money never reaches the ground, as a rule 75 per cent. of the money invested in stock schemes goes into the broker's hands. He pays his salesmen 20 to 50 per cent. on every dollar turned in, he must get his own commission and engineers must be paid.

We never had associated with us a stock salesman, we require no commission and our engineers will be our directors, so that every dollar invested with us on this proposition will be honestly used in the purchasing and development of the different properties.

We are now offering for subscription the first allottment of stock in THE LARDER LAKE EXPLORATION AND DEVELOPMENT COMPANY—every hundred shares entitles the holder to forty shares of stock in each of the subsidiary companies to be incorporated, making in all 200 shares of stock in five separate companies, which, as soon as development work is started and dividends announced, will make the stock of the Larder Lake Exploration and Development Company almost invaluable. This first allottment of only 50,000 shares ($1.00 par value) will probably be largely over-subscribed in a few days.

The next allottment will be put out Sept 25, 1907, at 75c per share or higher.

This price (15c.) will positively be withdrawn Aug. 8, 1907. If this allottment is over-subscribed remittances will be promptly returned. Checks, drafts and money orders must accompany all applications and be made payable to the financial agents.

Interim certificates will be promptly returned to subscribers. The stock certificates of the Company representing the shares purchased will be issued and delivered as soon as allottment can be made, after the 8th of August, to all subscribers who purchase at the first underwriting price prior to that date.

Don't wait! Be wise! Act NOW! NOW IS THE TIME! Here is an opportunity that excels that which you had two or three years ago at Cobalt. Perhaps you will say as you did then, "How do we know they have got any silver up there? Perhaps you say now "How do you know there is any gold at Larder Lake?"

STILL SOME HOPE FOR THE CANDIDATES

The Education Department, Through the Examiners, will Make Special Allowance in Certain Difficult Papers--

Relative to a report in yesterday's Times that some sixty per cent. of the candidates at the recent departmental examinations had been unsuccessful, The Times learns officially that the Education Department, through the examiners, will make special allowances in certain papers.

Dr John Seath, superintendent of education, showed that the department had power under the Act to alter the standard required on any given paper, and continued; "No injustice will be done any candidate. Where it is deemed that the case comes under the section alluded to, it will be availed of by the examiners."

Registrar Houston said the question of special allowance was being considered, and due allowance would be made where the paper was deemed to be too difficult for the students.

Mr. Houston pointed out that, after all, it was not the difficulty or unfairness of the papers that had caused the slump, but the fact that they dealt with branches of the work with which the candidates were apparently unfamiliar.

"This is quite evident in papers where three-quarters of the candidates fail," said Mr. Houston, "and in all such cases special consideration is always given."

The Times understands that the "plucking" papers were physics, ancient history and English.

Mysterious Dark Rooms in Some Northern Hotels

The existence of certain mysterious dark rooms--receptacles known by the gruesome name of "morgues"--is said to be known in connection with some of the licensed hotels in Northern Ontario.

Reports concerning these "morgues" have reached the License Department of the Provincial Government. Mr. Eudo Saunders, head of the department, when asked yesterday by a reporter concerning them, said the district inspectors had instructions to investigate all reported infractions of the laws, and the presence of any places which might be deemed reprehensible.

The story of the dark rooms is a weird and uncanny one. Some reports state that they are merely used to store customers who have become powerless through intoxication. These are left there for hours--days, if necessary--till the effect of the debauch has been slept off.

It has, however, reached the ears of the department that in some cases drugs or sedatives have been administered before the unfortunate is thrust away, and that victims have lain ill and unconscious from this process.

There is, accordingly, to be a searching investigation of the darkened "morgue."

Awful Famine Scenes

Thousands of Men and Women Starving and Dying in China

London, July 7.—Tales of the famine in China, where fifteen million natives in the hunger stricken province along the Yang-tse-Kiang have undergone the ravages of slow starvation until death or the relief expeditions delivered them from their sufferings, are told in letters which have just been received at the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions here from Wm. H. Gleysteen, who headed an expedition from Peking. Mr. Gleysteen spent some time in the famine zone, where he says thousands of Chinese, reduced to abject want, existed for months on bark and weeds. There were reports in the cities that in their dire distress some Chinese practised cannabalism.

So great was the task of aiding the starving millions that sometimes only the able bodied starving were helped, for thousands were so wrecked with starvation that they were marked to die an dtemporary relief would have only prolonged their misery and availed nothing. Food and funds recently hurried into China from Europe and America have aided wonderfully in alleviating the distress.

Describing the scenes as he viewed them from a launch on the Grand Canal, Mr. Gleysteen says that at stops along the canal swarms of women and children surrounded the boat and begged for food. Mothers held up their skeleton babes, and lay bare their shrivelled breasts, as evidence of their great need. Thousands of emigrants crowded at the landing places waiting to be taken to the cities. Reaching the centre of the famine district at Chinkiang, Mr. Gleysteen says, he found the streets lined with men, women and children, all begging and many dying.

Mr. Gleysteen said the work of relief was principally effected by employing thousands of Chinese in canal digging. Payments for work done were made in tickets for flour. Hundreds of women found employment in the canal trenches and many of them worked better than the men. Those who were sick and feeble and unable to move were visited at their homes and aided.

There is Money in Coal

A Safe Investment in a Proposition That Has Assured Success

It is hardly necessary to tell the householders of Peterborough who burn coal, and who don't, that there is good money for those who handle it, from the mine owner to the retail dealer. Now, there is an opportunity for those who have been paying for coal to get in on the ground floor and participate in the profits so assured. The British Columbia Amalgamated Coal Company controls some 17,500 acres of choice coal lands in the famous Nicola Valley in British Columbia. This company has recently acquired 2,000 acres more on the Nicola branch of the C. P. R. It is only a matter of days when this company will begin shipping coal. There are vast and seemingly inexhaustible veins of good coal underlying their acreage. Five seams have already been proven to contain millions upon millions of tons of coal of great depth and width. By getting in on the ground floor in this company, each and every investor has an assured income secured for life and posterioirty, for generations. The company referred to above is for a limited time only, offering their treasury stock, of a par value of $1 per share, at 15 cents per share. It might be noted that in 1906 Crow's Nest Pass Coal company's stock sold at 10 cents per share, and today is worth $200 per share. Why will not the British Columbia Amalgamated company's shares rise in due proportion.

It is not necessary to pay cash down for such shares as any reader may want to secure; all one has to do is to pay in one fourth of the amount of stock he or she subscribes for and pay the balance in three equal payments in as many months. Agreement Now Within Sight.

C. S. Rogers' Property Will be Relieved of Hitherto Stagnant Water

It now seems as though an understanding is within grasp between the parties interested in the filling in of the water front along the west bank of the Otonabee river. At a special session held at the city hall the following were present:—Mayor R. F. McWilliams and City Solicitor E. D. D. Hall, J. G. Sing, of Toronto, representing the Dominion Government; H. C. Grubb, C.P.R. engineer, and W. B. Moore, C.P.R. solicitor; W. B. Meldrum and R. R. Hall, representing the Peterborough Cereal Co., and J. Z. Rogers, and his solicitor, R. E. Wood.

Mr. Rogers has certain rights on the water front, which he claimed had been interfered with when the C.P. R., the Peterborough Cereal Company, the City Council and the Dominion Government blocked the passage of the water by filling in the C.P.R. trestel and the land each side of it. This prevented a flow of water past Mr. Rogers' property. He applied for a probably expensive pipe to be laid from the trestel through the entire length of the property.

It was suggested that the embankment on which the C.P.R. tracks are laid be tapped, and this met with the approval of Mr. Rogers.

After overlooking the situation it was agreed that the Government cut a passage through the embankment it recently made, and that two three-foot pipes be put under the C.P.R. tracks at a point to be designated and carried to a point south of King street where the water will empty into Mr. Rogers' turning basin and cause a current. The C. P.R., the Peterborough Ceral Company and the city are each to pay one-third of the cost.

Mrs. Richards Again Behind the Bars

Incorrigible Woman Drunkard Was Gathered In

In our issue of yesterday appeared an article that whilst some might think ill-advised as it reflected on a woman, was in the minds of all sensible and thinking people justified by circumstances. This little article did not throw even the shadow of one fraction of one boquet at the subject of its raison d'etre, a drunken English immigrant named Richards. This woman, as noted in said article, insulted every man, woman and child in sight, or hearing on Water street, between Brock and Murray streets on Tuesday afternoon by her actions and language. We are pleased to note that this woman was yesterday taken into custody. It was just a little over a week ago that she got out of jail after serving a term for disorderly conduct. Yesterday morning she was raising a disturbance at the corner of Hunter and Aylmer streets, and the police were phoned for. When arrested a good sized flask half full of whiskey was taken from her, and which she seemed to love that surpasseth the love of man for woman, still the love light had to die out as as the God-Cupid-of-the-bottle was unceremoniously taken away by a hard (we mean level) hearted policeman. When shown to the cell that must have had loose bars erected in the doors by the alcoholic aroma of her breath, she wanted "her little dog."

It may seem strange that a newspaper should thus devote space to the short comings of a drunken woman. Still there are drunks and drunks and the conduct of this woman on Water street, Tuesday afternoon should impel the magistrate to put her where children will not witness the sights or hear the language she so freely dispensed.

Professional Man and Smoky Store

A correspondent to one of our contemporaries adverting to the fire scare Tuesday at Roy's gallery. blames the false alarm to a presumed bon fire alight in the back yard. Now that very morning a certain professional gentleman's wife, not more than 1700 blocks from Roy's gallery undertook to light a fire in her kitchen range, that, by competition of a gas stove had not been lighted for weeks. This professional man put about 1100 columns of news into the range, following up the paper with wood that was seemingly plucked before quite ripe. A match was applied and the paper began to burn. The stove began, shortly afterwards to smoke. Holy Smoke! One could not stay in the kitchen for three minutes and survive Smoke! Say! the air in that kitchen, owing to the stove-pipes having got damp and thoroughly cold from long disuse, positively refused to carry that smoke away. The fire simply had to die out for lack of further fuel; but, "The Smoke!" well that smoke was a better warning to sinners regarding their future condition than the most graphic Negro preacher could conjure up when in his most imaginative mood. What the p.g. said about the smoke cannot be told, our linotype machines would not set it and be ready for business on Thursday night.

County Official and Light Weight Butter

Found That George Street Merchant was Selling Light Weight Goods

Yesterday a prominent county official advised the Times that he had just been in a George street grocery to buy some butter. The grocer placed a sheet of heavy brown paper on the counter and then put therein the pound(?) pats of butter. Remembering the trouble that occurred in connection with the seizure of butter in the market recently and knowing that farmers' wives have practically abandoned the market as far as butter, and other farm produce is concerned, said to the grocer, "Just for fun, let's weigh that butter." This was done and the butter, even including the heavy wrapping paper, fell far short of its presumed weight. There is no doubt but what many housewives in Peterborough are today purchasing direct from farmers butter that weighs light in a large percentage of their purchases. In the case referred to there is reason to believe that the grocer was selling the butter as he bought it and in good faith as to its weight. Still that short weight butter is being sold, is beyond contradiction.

Is Stony Lake a Place of Typhoid Fever?

Several Cases Reported Due to Drinking Water from a River

It seems that Stony Lake with all its lovely scenery and ozone laden air is not an Elysium of sanitary conditions Yesterday morning a person who had been out at this lake, stated that there were nine cases of typhoid fever now at the lake, and all of them were traced to a little creek, supposed to convey pure spring water, but which runs along the surface for some distance without any protection from the cows, which pasture in the neighborhood.

Enquiry at Nicholls hospital show that they have knowledge of seven cases within the past week, including one from Apsley, several from Stony Lake and others from this city.

Troops Took Possession of the Streets of Belfast City

Belfast, Aug. 8.—Troops took possession of the streets of Belfast this morning, and strong guards were posted at Custom House square and other centers. Thousands of citizens watched with mixed feelings the inauguration of military control of the city as a result of the strikes and insubordination of the police.

The city has been divided into five divisions, each under control of a battalion of infantry. The town is quiet. The strike pickets turned out as usual this morning, but they were inactive

Hobson Sees Jap War

Says It will Be Declared Day Our Fleet Sails for the Pacific

Hastings, Neb., Aug. 7.—"It is my opinion that the Japanese nation will act upon the movement of our fleet to the Pacific as a pretext which they are seeking, and declare war on the day the fleet sets sail," said Captain Richmond P. Hobson in a speech before the Hastings Chautauqua Association.

"They have been preparing for such a war while we slept, already have forty thousand able bodied men in Hawaii under the guise of workmen, and are taking a like hold on the Philippines. In one day they could seize the Hawaiian islands and the Philippines, later take and hold Alaska and the Aleutian islands, and they could capture the whole Pacific slope, having us as badly handicapped as Russia was. However, I do not believe they could hold their footing on our mainland. The only thing which our little fleet in the Pacific could do would be to turn tail and try to save all the ships possible."

The Victoria Park Fountain Flows

We are pleased to note that the suggestion made some weeks ago in The Times regarding Victoria Park fountain has been adopted. This fountain that has been an eye sore and gathering spot for dirty, ill smelling stagnant water for years, yesterday showed a complete difference in appearance. Instead of an ugly structure, clamoring for a fresh coat of paint and its lower bowls filled with water the consistency of pea-soup, yesterday morning was a fountain in fact as well as name. Real clean, sparkling water shot up into the air to descend in sparkling drops through which the sunshine showed all the prismatic colors. The City Fathers acted in the interests of the hundreds of citizens who daily visit this beautiful little park in following the idea promulgated by The g.t.j.

G. T. P. Construction Going on Rapidly

Montreal, Aug. 8.—According to Mr. E. W. Morse, first vice-president and general manager of the Grand Trunk Pacific, very satisfactory progress is being made in the West in the construction of that line.

Between Winnipeg and Edmonton he said the work was being shoved ahead very fast in spite of the difficulties of last winter. The construction is being carried on all along the line, and the necessary material for the road between these two points has been secured.

The general manager also made the were preparing to start construction were preparing to start construction work west of Edmonton, and are ready to give contracts wherever suitable outfits tractors are available. "We are ready," he said, "to give a contract tomorrow if we can find a contractor of experience and standing."

No statement was made as to the probable date of the entry of the road into the city of Edmonton, beyond a passing reference to a statement made by Mr. Schreiber to the effect that the road would be completed to that city by the autumn of 1908.

It is thought in some quarters that the statement by Mr. Morse, that the company were now ready to commence construction further West, means that the government engineer, Mr. Schreiber, has approved of the route chosen by the Grand Trunk Pacific, and that the company will endeavor to be the first to reach the Western coast by the Yellow Head Pass.

Obituary

Mrs. John A. Fowler of North Monaghan, passed away Tuesday night, at the age of 72 years. This most estimable lady has only been ill for about a month. Mrs. Fowler was born in Scotland, and was married on Jan. 18th, 1858. Her children are Mrs. A. C. Thompson, of Brandon, Man., who is here at present; Andrew, deceased; Robert, Jas., Mrs. Harry Webber, George, Kate, and E. Bruce Fowler.

The deceased was most highly esteemed by all who knew her, and was spoken of as a noble woman. She was a very faithful member of St. Andrew's church.

The funeral will take place from the family residence, Gravel road, North Monaghan, at two p.m. and proceed to Little Lake cemetery.

Mr. Lucas Gets Relief from Stagnant Water

Article in Yesterday's Times Bore Good Fruit

In our issue of yesterday appeared a letter signed by a Mr. Lucas, who lives at the north-west corner of Charlotte and Aylmer streets. In his letter Mr. Lucas complained of the stagnant water that is dispensed at the fire hall and which gathers in an ill-smelling pool in front of his house, as above noted.

We are pleased to note that shortly after yesterday's issue appeared that the City Council had men to work at this spot to obviate this difficulty and render Mr. Lucas premises sanitary and approachable, without having to wade through several inches of semi-liquid mud. The present council, or their committee in charge of such work are certainly prompt to rectify evils brought to their attention.

The Dominion Will Have New Coin

Ottawa, Aug. 8.—Soon after the opening of the new mint at Ottawa next December it is understood that there will be one or more new coins put into circulation. It is practically arranged that there shall be a new penny piece of the value of two cents and coined from nickel. This will be the first time that nickel, though one of Canada's great minerals, has been made use of for Canadian coinage. The United States has used it for many years for the manufacture of five cent pieces. There is to be used for a penny piece in Canada and a nickel is to be used to avoid bulk which is a fault of copper coins of the value of two cents. When the mint is in full running order there will be sixty hands employed. It is expected to issue between sixteen and twenty million Canadian coins each year. At the present time the Royal mint in London is coining sixteen million coins a year for Canada. Next year this will all be done in Ottawa.

Thanksgiving Day on October 31st

Ottawa, Aug. 8.—According to present plans Thanksgiving Day will be held this year on October 31, the last Thursday of that month.

The Commercial Travelers' Association, however, with headquarters at Toronto, Montreal, and Winnipeg, have made representation to the Secretary of state, that the anniversary should be changed to a Monday, so as to allow many persons an opportunity of taking part in the many reunions, who are not able to do so when the celebration takes place in the middle of a week.

The secretary of state has been assured also that Monday would be much better day from the point of view of the bank clerks, and of all others who could reach their homes for a week-end celebration, but the week-end celebration is just what the government is anxious to avoid in the observance of Thanksgiving.

The day is set apart as a holiday, not for the special encouragement of feast-making and of sports, but a day of national rejoicing in the continued blessings of Providence upon Canada as a people and upon Canadians individually. Whether, therefore, the change to Monday will be granted is rather doubtful.

ANOTHER SESSION THIS FALL SAYS BORDEN

The Opposition Leader Believes There Will be Another Session Before the Election--Bourassa a Hero in Quebec.

Toronto, Aug. 7—The leader of the Opposition, Mr. R. L. Borden, M.P., arrived at the King Edward this morning from Montreal.

"I have every reason to believe there will be another session before the election," said Mr. Borden. "This of course, I look on as the last of the present parliament, and the last session is usually an active one."

When asked about his visit, Mr. Borden replied; "This is only a private trip. The political tour which I have planned begins on the 20th of August, when I will address a meeting in the Maritime Provinces. I will be in Ontario in September. I realy can't say whether I shall speak in Toronto or not, as I have left the arrangement of my addresses in the different provinces to our provincial organizations. The tour through to the coast will be completed by Nov. 1st."

"Bourassa will not be injured by the abuse he received from the crowd at his meeting in Quebec city," Mr. Borden said in answer to a question. "The event has simply made him a hero all over the province, and has strengthened him rather than otherwise. It was a mistake on the part of those who were responsible for the disturbance, and it hardly agrees with the Liberal principle of freedom of speech."

JAPS ASK FOR SEPARATE POSTOFFICE

Ottawa Said to be Considering a Strange Request from Vancouver

ORGANIZED LABOR AROUSED

Reported in Terminal City That Post Office Department May Act on the Suggestion

Vancouver, Aug. 7.—The Japanese of Vancouver have made a demand upon the postmaster-general for the establishment of an exclusively Japanese post office in this city—an office to be manned and served by Japanese, for the sole use of the Japanese population of Vancouver and vicinity.

Not only has this demand been made, but to the minds of the few people in Vancouver who are aware of the fact the most astonishing part of the whole business is that the post office department appears to be willing to act in full accordance with the Japanese demand.

That the Japanese should seek to have the taxpayers of Canada pay for special privileges to them does not astonish me very much, as I have some knowledge of their aggressive character," said a man who has considerable business with the Japanese, "but it is rather a case of wonder that the post office department should even consider such a preposterous request. Why, with her immense cosmopolitan population the United States never established separate post offices or gave special privileges to any of the various races which her borders harbor."

In the opinion of R. G. Macpherson, M.P., the federal government can peremptorily stop the Japanese invasion by merely invoking the authority of section 39 of the Dominion Immigration Act, which states that:

"The governor in council may, by proclamation or order, whenever he considers it necessary or expedient, prohibit the landing in Canada of any specified class of immigrants, of which due notice shall be given to the transportation companies."

The deputation of the Vancouver Trades and Labor council which Wednesday afternoon waited upon Mr. Macpherson in respect to the Japanese question will this afternoon have a conference with Hon. W. J. Bowser, attorney-general for British Columbia, in regard to the same matter.

City of Paris is Wicked and Sad

Paris, Aug. 6.—It has remained for Mrs. H. V. Holbrook, a well known writer and New York East Side settlement worker, to discover that Paris is not gay. She insists that the French city has been maligned in that regard—is deprived as to its vice and overrated as to its beauty. Paris, in fact, makes itself sadly.

Mrs. Holbrook, who is making a tour of Europe collecting data for a new work on social questions, contrasted the boulevards with Broadway, greatly to their detriment. Apart from the boulevards and one street in the Montmartre quarter, she finds the city as dull as a country town in America.

GAMIN BAD, BUT NOT GAY.

"He has a wistful look," says Mrs. Holbrook, "quite unlike that of the boys of London. You never hear a merry whistle, or see a smiling frank look. The boy has the vices of the man and the physique of a child."

The American woman was greatly surprised at the manner in which the working classes take their pleasures, lolling on the grass in the Bois or in the suburbs. The classes that in New York spend the evening at a club or in places that are instructive are content to sit in front of a cafe and stare at the passers-by.

Mrs. Holbrook says the Londoner gets more out of life and that his far are prices are considered. London is the best place for the poor man. The Paris poor pay double for provisions.

"England is destined to become the pleasure ground of the world," she continued. "Paris is beautiful, but not so beautiful as it is supposed to be. Tinsel hides rags spoils. The people are grasping and tricky instead of polite. And the shameless immorality is appalling. One hears of Paris' vices, but the reality is worse than the most debased American mind could imagine."

BIG WHEAT CROPS IN THE WEST.

Thirty Bushel Average Should Not be Uncommon on Most Farms

RAIN NOW GREATLY FEARED

Fruit Prices are Steady, Butter and Cheese Markets Firm and Cattle Prices Higher

Regina, Sask., Aug. 8.—The Deputy Commissioner of Agriculture, A. P. Ketcham, has just returned from a trip to Abernathy and was asked by a press representative for his opinion of the state of the wheat crop.

"Coming home," he said, "I drove from Abernethy to Indian Head across the Qu'Appelle valley. There is plenty of wheat in that country good for forty bushels to the acre, if we do not get frost early this year. All the wheat there should be in the stock by September 18th, the date on which the first heavy frost was experienced in that district last year.

A good many farmers report wheat, if anything, too heavy, and they seem to fear heavy rain storms injuring the crop more than frost. But, although the straw is very heavy in the district, and there are apprehensions on this account, it is a good deal stiffer than in the average year, and, therefore, less likely to be knocked down.

THIRTY BUSHELS AVERAGE.

A very noticeable feature this year, went on the deputy commissioner, "is the marked difference between crops in adjoining farms, where soil and climatic conditions are identical. This has been one of the seasons which put farmers on their metle, and it is very easy to draw the line between the good farmer and his slovenly neighbor. All along the Pheasant Hill branch of the Canadian Pacific Railway, crops are looking very well indeed, and a thirty bushel average should not be at all uncommon on farms in that district. Conditions have improved a great deal during the past month, and the crop is in far better relative shape now than it was at the beginning of July. With hot weather in August, cutting should be general by the end of the first week of September, and an average fall will insure the out kof the Saskatchewan crop."

As a supplementary to this official statement, an interesting crop bulletin is issued today by the bureau of information, and statistics of the Saskatchewan department of agriculture, as follows:

VIGOROUS GROWTH.

"The bureau has received reports from upwards of 1,600 correspondents throughout the province, from which it is learned that healthy, vigorous growth of the grain crop, which was reported a month ago, has been maintained. The season has demonstrated the value and importance of careful preparation of the soil, as land that was not in good condition at the time of seeding has not produced as fertility crops as that which was better prepared.

Crops on spring ploughing are rather thin and weeds have done noticeable damage throughout the province.

The Cure for Meningitis

Cleveland, Ohio, Aug. 8.—The wealth of John D. Rockefeller has made possible the cure of meningitis, Dr. Simon Flexner, New York, advises says, has discovered a serum which will cure the heretofore fatal disease.

Experiments made at Canada have demonstrated the efficacy of the serum.

Dr. Flexner is at the head of the Rockefeller institute for medical research in New York. He will return from Europe in a few days, and is then expected to announce his discovery through the proper medical channels.

What Does It Mean?

Dr. Hamilton Gives a Full and Satisfactory Explanation.

Look at your tongue!

Sometimes it's heavily coated sometimes it's clear and red.

Study this out and you'll find some interference with the functional activity of the body.

This means the bowels are not regular, the liver is sluggish and the blood is contaminated.

Strong cathartic pills act so destructively on the intestines as to provoke deathly sickness; this often frightens people from taking medicine when they badly need it.

To the multitude of dangerous purgatives now on the market, Dr. Hamilton's Pills are a notable exception, they neither gripe, cause sickly feeling or headache, yet they cleanse and purify the entire system in one night. No other laxative acts with such mildness and certainty. Giving proper stimulus to the liver and kidneys, strengthening the stomach and lending valuable aid to digestion, it's small wonder that such marvelous results accompany Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

Mr. Geo. O'Hagarty, of Amherst, N. S., writes: "Last winter I worked in a lumber camp and neglected my health. I was dreadfully constipated and had a headache that fairly made me reel at times. I was sick and miserable, and hadn't the slightest ambition to work or stir around. I felt heavy and dull and had a bad taste in my mouth. I sent into the city for Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which I knew were good for my condition. They fixed me up very quickly and have kept me in good condition ever since. There are other men in the camp that use Dr. Hamilton's Pills also. They say they wouldn't be without the pills for ten times their price."

Every dealer in the land sells Dr. Hamilton's Pills—25c. per box or five boxes for $1.00. By mail from N. C. Polson and Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S. A., and Kingston, Ont.

PREFERENCE IN THE UNITED STATES

If the brief summaries cabled from London of the debate which took place in the British House of Commons a few days ago convey an accurate report of what took place, the loss to the movement for preferential trade within the Empire caused by Mr. Chamberlain's enforced retirement from active public life, can be very plainly realized. The debate was originated by a resolution by Mr. Lyttleton, who succeeded Mr. Chamberlain at the Colonial Office, who said that his action was caused by the view that the British Opposition should not be regarded as guilty of ingratitude to the Colonial statesmen who had so eloquently advocated the policy at the recent Colonial Conference—the policy that Mr. Chamberlain had made his own. While much may be said in approval of such a course by Mr. Lyttleton, it seems to us that it was a false foundation upon which to build up an argument in support of a great Imperial policy. Mr. Balfour's contribution to the debate was also disappointing—at least, we think it must be so regarded by those who have a clear idea of what is meant by preferential trade within the Empire. He based his argument on the necessity of broadening the basis of taxation in the United Kingdom. That will not be disputed by those who observe the difficulty that British Chancellors of the Exchequer experience in raising additional revenues to meet exceptional demands for expenditures caused by war or other circumstances. But the advocates of preferential trade are asking for something more than that, and for an object not confined within the limitations of the fiscal policy of the United Kingdom. There must be radical changes in that if the proposed policy is to achieve what its advocates hope it will. The present British tariff would give no scope for anything of the kind, even if all the duties imposed under it on produce raised in the Colonies were abolished. Not by such weak or inadequate methods will the results of Imperial preferential trade be accomplished and commerce between all parts of the Empire be started flowing in volume and in directions at present unknown.

In the course of the debate it was said that this was all the Colonies have asked. That is true in the sense that they have asked nothing. If there was one thing that Mr. Deakin and others of the Colonial premiers made clear at the recent Conference, it was the fact that they desired in no way or manner to interfere with the domestic fiscal policy of the United Kingdom. What they said was that if the people of the British Isles saw fit to adopt a policy that would ensure the trade of the British communities beyond the seas enuring to the benefit and profit of the manufacturers and merchants of the United Kingdom, the Colonies would reciprocate in generous fashion. That is a very different thing from the suggestions thrown out by Mr. Balfour and others. The debate has shown one thing. That is, that the real kernel of this great proposal has not yet been found by the present leaders on either side of politics in the Old Country. Mr. Chamberlain had it and took his stand on the ground that its adoption would be good for the Empire as a whole. He did not think it necessary to apologize for bringing forward such a proposal, and it will never get much forwarder in either the country or the parliament until some man of prominence can command the attention of the people, comes forward and takes an aggressive stand as Mr. Chamberlain did until he was laid aside.

Another Steamer is to Bring Japanese

Steamer Indiana Leaves for Honolulu To Carry Another Cargo to Vancouver

Vancouver, August 8.—Another steamer is to bring a cargo of Japanese from Honolulu, the steamer Indiana having been chartered from the Barneson-Hibbard company of San Francisco for that purpose, and was despatched from the Golden Gate on Wednesday. The total number of Japanese who landed this month at Victoria and Vancouver from Japan and the Hawaiian Islands is five times the number of arrivals of previous month and the number last month, it is expected, will probably exceed the total for July.

Oscar Strauss, United States secretary of commerce and labor, in whose department immigration matters are dealt with, in an interview at San Francisco said; "Canada wants Japanese. If is bidding them enter in a most hospitable manner and this new labor element will contribute largely to a rapid development of our northern neighbor. This west coast part of the United States better look out for itself or Western Canada will run ahead of it in development."

Railway Building In the Northwest

Saskatoon, Sask., Aug. 2.—Mr. F. J. George, who is in charge of the forces building the Canadian pacific branch through Saskatoon, says the work is progressing rapidly. From Asquith, to which point from Saskatoon the line is open, there are 110 miles of what is practically completed grade stretching westward. Contractor McArthur has gangs finishing up at points along this grade and within three weeks the long strip will be entirely ready for steel. As it is the grades are so far advanced that the steel men could not overtake them.

West of 110 Miles Ridge being finished, there remain 100 to be done before Battle River is reached. Scattered along this big gap are many gangs of men and teams, and the grade at the rate of ¼ mile a day is being built.

Dangerous Practice; It Should be Stopped

The Times has repeatedly called attention to the heinous crime of men placing childrens lives in imminent danger by carrying them in front of them on their bicycles on the handle bars. To illustrate the validity of our contention it might be noted that yesterday a well known citizen called at the Times sanctum and was sore all through. He noted that he had seen a total man riding up George street carrying a child on the handle bars of his wheel. Just in front of Comstock's furniture establishment the child fell off and the wheels of the bike passed completely over it. Providentially the child was not seriously injured. This, however, was more due to luck than common sense on the part of the man who exposed the child to extreme danger. Had the child fallen off to one side instead of directly in front of the bicycle, it might easily have lost its live under the wheels of a passing car or wagon and all through the selfish stupidity of the man taking it on his wheel. It is time that so flagrant a positive a crime should be forbidden by legislation or city by-law.

Bulger Out of the Game

Cobourg, Aug 7.—Tommy Bulger, Cobourg's star ball player, who was hit on the head by a pitched ball in the game here against the Peterborough team last Saturday, and put out of business, is still confined to the house and suffering much pain. He will be out of the game for the balance of the season, and his services will be greatly missed, as he was the best run-getter on the team. Bulger met with the same mishap at Port Hope several years ago.

Mr. Hutchinson in Janetville

Mr. M. J. Hutchinson, the bright and efficient city editor of our esteemed evening contemporary, The Examiner, is on a holiday. Lindsay Post, referring to this gatherer and compiler of the news of Peterborough, says:

"City Editor Hutchinson, of The Examiner, Peterborough, was in town today and gave The Post a call. He was en route to Janetville in the interests of his paper."

The Newest and Best

The old Ayer's Hair Vigor was good, no question about that. But your own doctor, the one you have great confidence in, will tell you that Ayer's Hair Vigor, new improved formula, is far better. The one great specific for falling hair and dandruff.

We publish the formulas of all our preparations. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

A Rebuff For Dr. Johnson.

Dr. Johnson called one morning on Benjamin West to converse with him on American affairs. After some time Mr. West said that he had a young American (Gilbert Stuart) living with him, from whom he might derive some information, and introduced Stuart. The conversation continued (Stuart being thus invited to take a part in it), when the doctor observed to Mr. West that the young man spoke very good English and, turning to Stuart, rudely asked him where he had learned it. Stuart very promptly replied: "Sir, I can better tell you where I did not learn it. It was not from your dictionary."

An Egg In a Bottle.

A chemist has discovered a simple means of getting an egg (with unbroken shell) into a bottle of, say, the ordinary kind, used for ginger ale. All you have to do is to soak a boiled egg in vinegar for three days. The shell becomes so soft that it can easily be forced through the narrow aperture of the bottle. And once it is inside if it is soaked in water for a little while the eggshell resumes its original hardness—and there you are!

The Wrong Shop.

He was only a plain American panhandler, says the New York Globe, but he ordered his "schooner" of Bowery beer with the sang froid of a plain American plutocrat. Midway in its consumption he sidled to the free lunch counter and reduced the pile of big sausages by one.

Two more gulps of beer and a second and third large sausage disappeared. Washing these down, he concluded that he needed a sausage and got it; then for the door.

The panhandler returned expectantly.

"Say, Bill," the barkeeper continued in a confidential way, "the next time you want a glass of beer you go to a butcher shop, see?"

The Money That's Being Made in

Western Canada LAND

In October, 1906 we sold 6,000 acres of Saskatchewan lands to an Indiana party of men at $8 per acre, and resold it this year at $12, making just about 100 per cent. on the money invested.

A Montreal party of men who bought 10,000 acres from us at $8 per acre last September, resold through us within three months at $10.00 per acre.

A Chicago client writes us that after making some improvements on a section she bought near Regina, one year ago, she sold out recently for exactly twice what she paid for the land.

We resold a section of land located near Lipton for a man at $18.00 per acre last April, which we sold him in December at $12.00.

Men here are growing wealthy who never knew success in any other line. You can make money here too, if you think your amount too small club it with a few friends. Some of the most prominent financial men in the United States and Eastern Canada are now interested in this country heavily.

We own about 200,000 acres of the finest wheat and mixed farming lands in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.—Picked lands on which we are prepared to give accurate trustworthy information, and these tracts being portions of extremely large purchases, we can sell them at prices that cannot be equalled, quality of land considered, by any firm in this country.

Prices range from $6.00 per acre upwards Reasonable Terms in every case

Write us for further information but when doing so tell us the class and amount of an investment you desire, and whether you want the land for your own use or for investment purposes purely. $1,000 is about the minimum we can handle. References Union Bank and Traders' Bank, Winnipeg.

SIREN WAFERS DEVELOP THE BUST

SHE'S A QUEEN! SHE'S A SIREN!

Is an expression that is always heard at sight of a well developed woman. If you are flat chested, with BUST undeveloped, a scrawney neck, thin lean arms —the above remark will never be applied to you. "SIREN" wafers will make you beautiful, bewitching. They DEVELOP the BUST in a few weeks from 3 to 6 inches and produce a fine firm, voluptuous bosom. They fill out the hollow places Make the cheeks plump and rosy, and arms handsome and well molded and the neck and shoulders shapely and of perfect contour.

Send for a bottle today and you'll be pleased and grateful. "SIREN" wafers are absolutely harmless, pleasant to take and convenient to carry around. They are sold under guarantee to do all we claim or MONEY back..

Price $1.00 per bottle. Inquire at good drug stores or send DIRECT to us.

FREE!

During the next 30 days only—we will send you a sample bottle of these beautifying wafers on receipt of 10 cents to pay cost of packing and postage if you will mention that you saw the Advertisement in this paper. The sample alone may be sufficient if defects are trivial.

50% in Annual Dividends

This is a straight Business Undertaking.

The Smelting of Ore is the safest and most profitable business in the world.

We have fifteen mining properties, located in Kern County, California, carrying good values in Gold, Silver and Copper.

The smelter nearest to us is at Needles, 250 miles distant.

We propose to install on our properties a smelter to treat the ores from our own mines and to do custom smelting for others.

50 per cent. per annum is a moderate estimate of the profits we can earn. If you want to make a safe and profitable investment send for full information and investigate our proposition.

Guggenheim-Greenwater

Copper Prospect at Ely

GUGGENHEIM GREENWATER

I want every reader of this paper who has a spark of spunk in him to buy a few shares in the Guggenheim Greenwater Copper Company. I can sell it to you now for a mere song—5 cents a share. Every share is of treasury stock, par value $1, full paid up and non-assessable.

I have a poor idea of that man's courage who dares not risk $5 on the chance to make $100. If there is any better buy in the mining market today than a $100 certificate for five dollars, I have never heard of it. This company owns two groups of claims in two copper districts—Ely and Greenwater. It is developing first its group at Ely, and has a shaft down 50 feet with indications of a strike of ore in the next 50 feet.

Every man who reads this advertisement has read the stories from Ely, Nev. He knows as well as I do that experts report there is enough copper ore already in sight in the Ely district to keep ten smelters of immense capacity going for the next one hundred years. One 15,000 ton smelter is already being built by the Guggenheims, and other reduction plants of gigantic capacity are projected. Ely is unquestionably one of the greatest copper districts in the world.

This property is located on the great zone of porphyry which carries the copper values, and I tell you honestly that I would as soon put a few dollars into this prospect and take a chance of its making a big mine as into any mining investment within the range of possibility.

See me about this investment at once. I can fill all orders today for anything up to 10,000 shares at 5 cents. That price is sure to advance sharply any day that news comes of a strike. Buy now at 5 cents.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry must be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made on certain conditions, by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of the homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Six months' notice in writing should be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of intention to apply for patent.

W. W. CORY,
Deputy of the Minister of the Interior.

THE CONQUEST of CANAAN

By BOOTH TARKINGTON,
Author of "Cherry," "Monsieur Beaucaire," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1905, BY HARPER & BROTHERS

She was to pass him—so he thought—and as she drew nearer his breath came faster.

"Remember! Across Main street bridge at noon!"

Was this the fay of whom the voice had warned him? With that, there befell him the mystery of last night. He did not remember, but it was as if he lived again dimly the highest hour of happiness in a life a thousand years ago; perfume and music, roses, nightingales and plucked harpstrings. Yes, something wonderful was happening to him.

She had stopped directly in front of him—stopped and stood looking at him with her clear eyes. He did not lift his own to hers. He had long experience of the averted gaze of women, but it was not only that. A great shyness beset him. He had risen and removed his hat, trying (ineffectually) not to clear his throat, his every day sense urging upon him that she was a stranger in Canaan who had lost her way—the preposterousness of any one's losing the way in Canaan not just now appealing to his every day sense.

"Can I—can I"— he stammered, blushing miserably, meaning to finish with "direct you," or "show you the way."

Then he looked at her again and saw what seemed to him the strangest sight of his life. The lady's eyes had filled with tears—filled and overfilled.

"I'll sit here on the log with you," she said. And her voice was the voice which he had heard saying: "Remember! Across Main street bridge at noon!"

"What!" he gasped.

"You don't need to dust it!" she went on tremulously. And even then he did not know who she was.

CHAPTER XI.

THERE was a silence, for if the dazzled young man could have spoken at all he could have found nothing to say; and, perhaps, the lady would not trust her own voice just then. His eyes had fallen again. He was too dazed and, in truth, too panic stricken now to look at her, though if he had been quite sure that she was part of a wonderful dream he might have dared. She was seated beside him, and had handed him her parasol in a little way which seemed to imply that of course he had reached for it, so that it was to be seen how used she was to have all tiny things done for her, though this was not then of his tremulous observing. He did perceive, however, that he was to furl the dainty thing. He pressed the catch and let down the top timidly, as if fearing to break or tear it, and as it closed, held near his face, he caught a very faint, sweet, spicy emanation from it like wild roses and cinnamon.

He did not know her, but his timidity and a strange little choke in his throat, the sudden fright which had seized him, were not caused by embarrassment. He had no thought that she was one he had known, but could not for the moment recall. There was nothing of the awkwardness of that. No; he was overpowered by the miracle of this meeting. And yet, white with marveling, he felt it to be so much more touchingly a greater happiness than he had ever known that at first it was inexpressibly sad.

At last he heard her voice again, shaking a little, as she said:

"I am glad you remembered."

"Remembered what?" he faltered.

"Then you don't?" she cried. "And yet you came."

"Came here, do you mean?"

"Yes—now, at noon."

"Ah!" he half whispered, unable to speak aloud. "Was it you who said—who said: 'Remember! Across—across'"—

"'Across Main street bridge at noon!'" she finished for him gently. "Yes."

He took a deep breath in the wonder of it. "Where was it you said that?" he asked slowly. "Was it last night?"

"Don't you even know that you came to meet me?"

"I—came to—to meet—you?"

She gave a little pitying cry, very near a sob, seeing his utter bewilderment.

"It was like the strangest dream in the world," she said. "You were at the station when I came last night. You don't remember at all?"

"Yes," she continued. "I thought no one would be there, for I had not written to say what train I should take, but when I stepped down from the platform you were standing there, though you didn't see me at first—not until I had called your name and ran to you. You said, 'I've come to meet you,' but you said it queerly, I thought. And then you called a carriage for me. But you seemed so strange. You couldn't tell how you knew that I was coming, and—and then I—I understood you weren't yourself. You were very quiet, but I knew—I knew! So I made you get into the carriage—and—and"—

She faltered to a stop, and with that shame itself brought him courage. He turned and faced her. She had lifted her handkerchief to her eyes, but at his movement she dropped it, and it was not so much the delicate loveliness of her face that he saw then as the tears upon her cheeks.

"Ah, poor boy!" she cried. "I knew! I knew!"

"You—you took me home?"

"You told me where you lived," she answered. "Yes, I took you home."

"I don't understand," he stammered huskily. "I don't understand."

"You didn't know me last night," she said. "Do you know me now?"

For answer he could only stare at her, dumfounded. He lifted an unsteady hand toward her appealingly, but the manner of the lady as she saw the truth underwent an April change.

"You told me where you lived," she answered.

She drew back lightly. He was favored with the most delicious low laugh he had ever heard, and by some magic which she accomplished there was no sign of tears about her.

"Ah, I'm glad you're the same, Joe!" she said. "You never would or could pretend very well. I'm glad you're the same, and I'm glad I've changed, though that isn't why you have forgotten me. You've forgotten me because you never thought of me. Perhaps I should not have known you if you had changed a great deal, as I have."

He started, leaning back from her.

"Ah," she laughed, "that's it! That funny little twist of the head you always had, like a—like a—well, you know I must have told you a thousand times that it was like a nice friendly puppy. So why shouldn't I say so now? And your eyebrows! When you look like that nobody could ever forget you, Joe."

He rose from the log, and the mongrel leaped upon him uproariously, thinking they were to go home, belike to food.

The lady laughed again. "Don't let him spoil my parasol. And I must warn you now: Never, never tread on my skirt! I'm very irritable about such things!"

He had taken three or four uncertain backward steps from her. She sat before him, radiant with laughter, the loveliest creature he had ever seen, but between him and this charming vision there swept, through the warm, scented June air, a veil of snow like a driven fog, and half obscured in the heart of it a young girl stood knee deep in a drift piled against an old picket gate, her black waterproof and shabby skirt flapping in the blizzard like torn sails, one of her hands outstretched toward him, her startled eyes fixed on his.

"And, oh, how like you," said the lady; "how like you and nobody else in the world, Joe, to have a yellow dog!"

"Ariel Tabor!"

His lips formed the words without sound.

"Isn't it about time?" she said. "Are strange ladies in the habit of descending from trains to take you home?"

OLD TIME CELEBRATIONS.

The files of old newspapers are a priceless record of the history and manners of their times. In the papers of 1796 the accounts of public rejoicings show that these were few in number and that the method of keeping them differed widely from our ideas of festivities. Washington's birthday was perhaps the greatest holiday.

"Industrious citizens," we are told, "appropriated the hour of noon for the congratulations of the day. Each family enriched the domestic meal with bountiful provisions, and gay spirits and temperate and undissembled joy pervaded all classes."

There were speeches and processions and illuminations for the less industrious who were willing to give something more than the hour of noon to the celebration, but the most memorable observance of the day was that of the Harvard students.

"Saying to each other that it would be disgraceful to pretend to honor Washington with riot and disorder, they retired to their chambers before 9 o'clock, and by the time the bells ceased ringing there was not a light to be seen in any of the buildings."

This is equaled by the summing up of the celebrations of Fourth of July for the same year, a day observed with great rejoicings. No accidents are reported, and the editor concludes, "In short, in every place we heard from happiness was the order of the day, tranquillity of the night."—Youth's Companion.

Weak Kidneys

Weak Kidneys surely point to weak kidney Nerves. The Kidneys, like the Heart, and the Stomach, find their weakness, not in the organs itself, but in the nerves that control and guide and strengthen them. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is a medicine specifically prepared to reach these controlling nerves. To doctor the Kidneys alone, is futile. It is a waste of time, and of money as well.

If your back aches or is weak, if the urine scalds, or is dark and strong, if you have symptoms of Bright's or other distressing or dangerous kidney disease, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative a month—Tablets or Liquid—and see what it can and will do for you. Druggist recommend and sell

This Company was formed for the purpose of manufacturing all kinds of Iron, Steel, Metal and Wooden Goods, Agricultural Implements, etc., and to carry on the business of a foundry.

They are now turning out specialties in Ornamental Iron Work, Fences, Crestings, etc., for which there is a great demand far in excess of the present facilities of the Company.

Winnipeg and the West offers an unlimited market for the products, guaranteeing a paying investment from the start.

There is a limited amount of stock for sale, and this opportunity to purchase will not return.

The encouragement, coupled with the unexcelled opportunities open to such an enterprise, are in themselves sufficient guarantee of absolute safety and large profits.

Shock to the Waiter.

There was a terrible commotion in the kitchen of the cafe. They could see it through the swinging doors. Some one went to investigate.

"What is it?" they asked when he had returned.

"A waiter fainted," he answered as he took his seat. "They are slapping him with wet towels, trying to bring him to. Did you see that woman who just left? She was the cause. She gave him a quarter tip."

St. Lawrence Extra Granulated Sugar

is the whitest and best looking Sugar to be had and besides it has the advantage of being the best quality and greatest strength

Rosy Cheeks

The Ambition of Every Woman

Hollow cheeks with dark lines, sallow complexion —how a woman hates them.

But rosy cheeks, clear skin, bright eyes—give them to a woman and she is happy.

It grows thin and watery, its color fades, and increasing pallor and sallowness give the outward evidence of the change within.

Soon the nerves weaken, the heart easily tires and palpitates, strength declines.

The delicate mechanism of the womanly functions is interfered with, and pleasures, activities and even duties are loaded down with the burden of declining health.

Why is it that women neglect the first warnings?

Usually she waits till she is ready to drop—often then it's too late.

These conditions are easily checked, easily cured at the beginning,—but even when long established Ferrozone will remove the cause and cure the trouble.

Ferrozone's action aids the three principal functions of the body — digestion, assimilation, elimination.

By perfecting assimilation Ferrozone supplies nutrition — this gives strength, vim, stability.

Elimination is assured because Ferrozone quickens the actions of the liver, kidneys and bowels—this guarantees the maintenance of vigorous health.

Not a man, woman or child needing blood, vigor, endurance—not a person who is weak, nervous or sickly, not a person in ill-health who won't receive immediate help from Ferrozone.

As a tonic and restorative, as a health-bringer and body-builder, Ferrozone is unrivalled. It cures because it feeds and nourishes, because it contains the elements that build up and strengthen. Try it yourself — sold everywhere in 50c. boxes.

Mayor McWilliams in Good Cause

Mayor McWilliams is using all his influence to get the British journalists to visit Peterborough on their return trip through Ontario. May our worthy mayor succeed, as this would be one of Peterborough's grandest opportunities to be brought before the press of Europe ever presented to the people of this city.

Holiday Races Booming

Yesterday a Times representative dropped in and asked Mr. Martin Connors as to how the great horse races for Civic Holiday were coming on. Mr. Connors replied in emphatic terms that all the entries have been filled beyond the Turf Club's most sanguine expectations. The Civic Holiday races will be better than any the sporting public of Peterborough have ever seen.

$100 REWARD, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood an dmucous surfaces of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer one hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Big Excursion Coming Today

A combined excursion of the Methodist and Presbyterian Sunday schools of Cobourg, are running an excursion to this city today. A special train has been chartered and will arrive here about nine o'clock when the excursionists will proceed to Wolfe street wharf and embark on the steamer Otonabee for a trip over the life lock.

Local C. P. R. New Enterprise

The C.P.R. is putting in a new siding to accommodate the Ontario Coal Co. This is a new feature in local matters for the C.P.R., and clearly demonstrates the well deserved hold they have on new lines of industry. This railroad leaves no stone unturned to advance the future development of Canada or to seek business that will aid in piling up dividends for their stockholders.

Large Drive of Logs in the City

The second drive of logs for the Peterborough Lumber Co., which has come down this season has been safely landed at the mills. There were 50,000 pieces in the drive and it took several days to come down the rivers, but the last piece is inside the booms. The company has one more drive, probably one of the largest which has come down this season. There are 90,000 pieces in it, and it should be here in a few days.

Mr. M. Pappas Leaves for Chicago

Mr. M. Pappas the well known George street cigar merchant and pool room proprietor, yesterday received a telegram from Chicago, conveying the sad intelligence that his nephew Mr. George Pappakeriages has suddenly passed away in that city and asking that this popular George street merchant attend the obsequies. Mr. Pappas leaves this morning for Chicago to look after the funeral and other arrangements. The deceased was for some time here and was well known, particularly to the Greek colony in Peterborough.

Mr. Evans Finds Strange Petrifaction

Yesterday morning Street Commissioner Harry Evans, who is in charge of the gang of men building the new concrete bridge on Charlotte street, picked up a unique specimen of stone from the creek bed. It is a piece of stone or possibly, better described as, marble, most peculiarly marked and shaped. Mr. Evans gave this petrifaction to Mr. W. Snowden, who is somewhat of an expert on such curiosities. The latter gentleman identified Mr. Evan's find as being a portion of one of the former rulers of the land, the now rapidly decreasing red skins. Whilst not able to remember the exact portion of this aborigine's body, it formed a most important part of his "tourte ensemble."

Thousands at Jackson Park

Jackson Park seems this summer to hold its old popularity. Owing in part to the excellent service provided by the Peterborough Radial Railway Co., throngs attend the splendid free show of the moving pictures nightly. Last night there must have been several thousands of our citizens who forsook their brick and mortar residences to commune with nature in its most beautiful aspect and, whilst seated beneath the premeval monarchs of the wood, the grand old oak and pine trees at that park, drank in to their utmost capacity the almost anachronous pleasures of the moving pictures. Peterborough is most fortunate in possessing this splendid gift granted the city by her benefactress, Mrs. Charlotte Jane Nicholls.

The ladies speak in the highest terms of the boat hands on the Otonabee, for the courtesies shown them on the trip.

Is very careful about her churn. She scalds it thoroughly after using, and gives it a sun bath to sweeten it. She knows that if her churn is sour it will taint the butter that is made in it. The stomach is a churn. In the stomach and digestive and nutritive tracts are performed processes which are almost exactly like the churning of butter. Is it not apparent then that if this stomach-churn is foul it makes foul all which is put into it?

The evil of a foul stomach is not alone the bad taste in the mouth and the foul breath caused by it, but the corruption of the pure current of blood and the dissemination of disease throughout the body. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes the sour and foul stomach sweet. It does for the stomach what the washing and sun bath do for the churn—absolutely removes every tainting or corrupting element. In this way it cures blotches, pimples, eruptions, scrofulous swellings, sores, or open eating ulcers and all humors or diseases arising from bad blood.

If you have bitter, hasty, foul taste in your mouth, coated tongue, foul breath, are weak and easily tired, feel depressed and despondent, have frequent headaches, dizzy attacks, gnawing or distress in stomach, constipated or irregular bowels, sour or bitter risings after eating and poor appetite, these symptoms, or any considerable number of them, indicate that you are suffering from biliousness, torpid or lazy liver with the usual accompanying indigestion, or dyspepsia and their attendant derangements.

The best agents known to medical science for the cure of the above symptoms and conditions, as shewn by the writings of leading teachers and practitioners of all the several schools of medical practice, have been skillfully and harmoniously combined in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. That this is absolutely true will be readily proven to your satisfaction if you will but mail a postal card request to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for a free copy of his booklet of extracts from the standard medical authorities, giving the names of all the ingredients entering into his world-famed medicines and showing what the most eminent medical men of the age say of them.

Seismatic Disturbances Here

Rev. Dr. Marsh of Springville, reports that his astronomical transit demonstrated signs of seismatic disturbances on Tuesday. Without meaning any flippancy in speaking of this noted astronomer, we noted somewhat similar signs yesterday when we suggested to our better half that she get up and split the kindling for the breakfast fire. However in the latter case there was no doubt of disturbance, as shown by a dent in the family rolling pin and a corresponding depression in our cranium.

THE LARDER LAKE EXPLORATION AND DEVELOPMENT CO.

CAPITAL, 500,000 SHARES—PAR VALUE $1.00 PER SHARE

15c FULLY PAID AND NON-ASSESSABLE 15c

First allottment of 50,000 Shares at Fifteen Cents per Share

Our Option on this small block of Underwriters' Stock expires August 8th, 1907—Subscriptions Post-marked at later date will be returned

Do you realize that investments of a hundred or a thousand will grew rapidly into hundreds and thousands and millions of dollars? The over-conservative and skeptical will smile—they will laugh at these predictions, some will even consider this a joke but remember COBALT, if you please, two or three years ago? Then it was a "vision," it was a "dream," "a flash in the pan," "a bubble," somebody Was "crazy"; bu now it is different. Those crazy men are now classed among the smart and keenest business men of the day. The actual value of a few mines are worth at the present date more than one hundred millions of dollars. These are facts.

In presenting this investment for subscription we appeal to the good judgement of sensible persons as to its merit.

It embodies, we believe, a correct method of developing and establishing successful and paying mining enterprises.

We desire to conduct, first of all a successful Mine Developement. We intend this to be done in a way that will be absolutely fair and honest, and bring the largest profit possible to those who co-operate with us.

We, therefore, desire this proposition to be well understood by investors. We wish it to be known just how we propose to develope, establish and operate dividend paying Mining Companies by and through this investment.

THE PLAN.—The plan involved in this proposition is that of uniting or consolidating the investments of a limited number of persons into one sum, and under one management, to be used in acquiring and developing mining properties in this wonderful region.

THE PRINCIPLE involved in this investment we believe, is one of absolute fairness to all interested. The "promotion interest" common to all mining companies, and which is the great unfair feature to investors who put their money into stocks of these companies, and whose money develops and makes the mine, if a mine is developed—does not exist in this proposition. There is no "promotion interest set aside, and against the interest bought and paid for by the investors.

In this proposition the investors, and all the investors, become promotors. They take the "promotion interest" and all the interest. They own the whole enterprise. No matter how large or how small the investment—all stand on an equal basis. Our field of operation is probably one of the greatest, and without doubt the richest, mineralized region in the world.

For its basis, upon which we will establish and build us several great producing, paying mining companies, we will exploit and develop in a mining-like and careful manner exclusive mining properties now known to us, other properties which we may acquire for the mutual benefit of all investors in this Company.

SUBSIDIARY COMPANIES.—The Larder Lake Exploration and Development Comany will incorporate a series, not to exceed five, of Subsidiary Mining Companies upon only the real proven properties acquired.

In each and every subsidiary Company incorporated, whether Mining, Milling, Smelting, Water Power, or Electric Light, the Exploration Company will take 90 per cent. of the capital stock of each Company so incorporated, and will put 10 per cent. of the Capital Stock of each Company in its treasury. It will probably never become necessary to sell any of this Treasury Stock.

Out of the total Capital Stock of each Subsidiary Company, the EXPLORATION COMPANY will retain 50 per cent. as its "Holding Stock." This will always control the Company. It will take and hold 40 per cent. for the mutual benefit of all stockholders in the EXPLORATION COMPANY. This 40 per cent will be known as "Selling Stock," and as a market is created it will be sold, and the proceeds received will be distributed pro rata to the stockholders in the EXPLORATION COMPANY, as their interests may appear.

The stock of the Subsidiary Companies will be inlisted on the New York Curb and Mining Exchanges of the country, and started at 50 cents a share, where it can be bought and sold according to the daily market quotations. This will afford a channel by which stockholders can sell the 40 per cent. "Selling Stock" from time to time, if they wish.

PROPERTIES.—Many different mining properties will be acquired and developed as stock in the EXPLORATION COMPANY, is subscribed for. All properties will be described, and reports submitted regarding same, as soon and as often as they can be examined by the engineer.

The mining properties that will be acquired for this proposition will be located in the gold and silver belt, extending from the Montreal River through Northern Ontario, eastward into Quebec, and will include properties in the Lady Evelyn District, the new Montreal River Silver District, Cobalt District, and the gold districts around Round Lake, Larder Lake, Lake Abitibi, and in the great undeveloped mineralized section of Quebec lying just east of Larder Lake and extending northward to Lake Abitibi.

We shall try and make every dollar count, and make as few mistakes as possible. We hope to create such an interest in this enterprise with investors, that will result in extensive and widespread co-operation.

Under this plan no one can truthfully say that it is not a great mining investment. We want every investor to feel a personal interest in this Mine Development. The investors in this Company will own this enterprise, and we want them to co-operate with us and our associates to make it a great success.

We are now organizing THE LARDER LAKE EXPLORATION AND DEVELOPMENT COMPANY with what we consider sufficient capital ($500,000). We now have options on, and propose to acquire five distinct and separate properties which will be incorporated at $100,000 each (100,000 shares—par value $1.00). The Exploration Company will at all times hold a controlling interest in each of these companies, so that sixty per cent. of the dividends earned and declared will be paid into the treasury of the parent company, and the other forty per cent. distributed among the stockholders on record. This in our opinion will enable us to pay dividends and large ones in the very near future.

The Board of Directors of THE LARDER LAKE EXPLORATION AND DEVELOPMENT COMPANY will be composed only of engineers of national repute, setting a precedent in this line. Mr. Robert Morton will be president, which fact in itself guarantees conservative and able management.

Investors have been pouring their money into over capitalized mining companies, they have been plunging about wildly in the hope of some day "striking it rich" never stopping to think for one instant that the greater part of their money never reaches the ground, as a rule 75 per cent. of the money invested in stock schemes goes into the broker's hands. He pays his salesmen 20 to 50 per cent. on every dollar turned in, he must get his own commission and engineers must be paid.

We never had associated with us a stock salesman, we require no commission and our engineers will be our directors, so that every dollar invested with us on this proposition will be honestly used in the purchasing and development of the different properties.

We are now offering for subscription the first allottment of stock in THE LARDER LAKE EXPLORATION AND DEVELOPMENT COMPANY—every hundred shares entitles the holder to forty shares of stock in each of the subsidiary companies to be incorporated, making in all 200 shares of stock in five separate companies, which, as soon as development work is started and, dividends announced, will make the stock of the Larder Lake Exploration and Development Company almost invaluable. This first allottment of only 50,000 shares ($1.00 par value) will probably be largely over-subscribed in a few days.

The next allottment will be put out Sept 25, 1907, at 75c per share or higher.

This price (15c.) will positively be withdrawn Aug. 8, 1907. If this allottment is over-subscribed remittances will be promptly returned. Checks, drafts and money orders must accompany all applications and be made payable to the financial agents.

Interim certificates will be promptly returned to subscribers. The stock certificates of the Company representing the shares purchased will be issued and delivered as soon as allottment can be made, after the 8th of August, to all subscribers who purchase at the first underwriting price prior to that date.

Don't wait! Be wise! Act NOW! NOW IS THE TIME! Here is an opportunity that excels that which you had two or three years ago at Cobalt. Perhaps you will say as you did then, "How do we know they have got any silver up there? Perhaps you say now "How do you know there is any gold at Larder Lake?"

TWO INDIAN CHIEFS ACCUSED OF MURDER

The Trial of the Crees Commenced Yesterday--The Canadian Government Trying to Stamp Out the Savage Tradition of the Wendigo

Norway House, Hudson's Bay, Aug. 9.—Yesterday began the trial of two Cree chiefs for murder. It is the result of a determined effort by the Canadian Government to put a stop to the savage tradition that all members of a tribe stricken with delirium in fever are possessed of an evil spirit or Wendigo, and must be killed at once, or their soul will be lost.

John and Joes Pacjequan, heads of the Cree nation, deliberately strangled a girl, the daughter-in-law of one of them, with all the tribal formality prescribed on such occasions, in the presence of several hundred Indians. The tribe have murdered 20 Indians in a similar way. The girl had fever, and they strangled her with a rope.

Casablanca is Filled With Dead Moors--France Lands Over 2,000 Additional Troops

Tangier, Aug 9.—The French war ships yesterday landed 2,000 additional men at Casablanca, where street fighting continues, judging from the desultory firing heard day and night by those on the ships anchored off the town. The Jewish quarter of Casablanca has been sacked. Many persons were massacred in the streets.

The city is said to be full of dead Moors and the Moorish quarter is in ruins, having been set on fire by the shells from the big guns of the cruisers.

MUCH DISTRESS PREVAILS.

All the stores are closed and much hunger and distress prevails among the poor. The foreign consuls have ordered the stores to be re-opened and have established a special tariff for foodstuffs, designed to mitigate the sufferings of the poor.

The Europeans, who are all safe either on board ships or at the consulates, are guarded by blue jackets. The warships continue to drop an occasional shell into groups of Kabyles on the beach in order to prevent them from approaching the town.

SHARPSHOOTERS SAIL.

Algier, Aug. 9.—The steamer Oasis, having three hundred sharpshooters and two mountain batteries on board, sailed for Morocco today.

MANY JEWS WERE KILLED.

London, Aug. 8.—A special despatch from Tangier says that the greater part of Mazagan was destroyed by the bombardment, but the consulates were not injured.

A START MADE IN CHEAP TEXT-BOOKS

The Ontario Readers Show a Reduction of Over One-Half--Some Delay in Other Books--Prices will be Revised in October.

Toronto, Aug. 9.—The era of cheaper school text books has dawned.

Compare the following prices for the Ontario Readers:

	Old.	New.
First Reader, Part I...	10c	5c.
First Reader, Part II ...	15c	7c.
First Reader, Part II...	15c	7c.
Second Reader	20c	9c.
Second Reader	20c	9c.
Third Reader	30c	15c.
Fourth Reader	40c	15c.
Total	$1.15	48c.

The official announcement of these reductions were made yesterday by Hon. Dr. Pyne, minister of education.

For several reasons the Department of Education has not yet been able to secure what it would consider adequate reductions in the prices of the books now authorized for use in the High and Public schools, except in the case of the readers. The reasons for the delay, as announced by the minister, are found in the facts that the report of the Text-Book Commission has been received only recently; that several books on one subject are on the authorized list; the difficulties consequently connected with agreements and copyrights, and the necessity for giving due notice to the trade.

The minister has, however, decreed as follows;

The publisher selling to any purchaser for use in Ontario shall allow the following discounts;

(a) On one or more copies of any book, 25 per cent. off the prescribed retail price.

(b) On quantities of the value of $25 and upwards at ret il prices (the said purchase being made of any quantity of any or all of the said books and in any proportion the purchaser may desire), 25 per cent. off the prescribed retail price, and an extra ten per cent. thereafter.

Early in October next the contents and prices of the list of books now in use in the schools will be revised and arrangements made for the publication of such text books as may be required.

English Children Born to Slavery

Terrible Condition of Child Labor in London Described in a Book. The Heritage of Albion.

London, Aug. 8.—The searchlight has rarely been turned so relentlessly on the amazing conditions under which thousands of baby hands earn their "living" in London almost as soon as they can talk, as by Miss Olive Christian Malvery (Mrs. Archibald Mackirdy) in her book, "Baby Toilers," published by Messrs. Hutchinson & Co.

"The home-workers seldom leave their rooms," says the writer, who goes on to tell of three baby toilers who help their mother to make elastic belts at 5 farthings, or, perhaps, three-half pence per dozen. One of them, 3 years old, helped to stretch the belts and hold them taut. The whole family work from twelve to fourteen hours a day on tea and stale bread.

"Babies born into slavery," she describes them.

"A whole family occupies a single room; "in many and many a corner of such rooms a mangle may be found, and at this dreary machine from dawn to dark little children toil, earning with infinite labor perhaps a penny an hour. The little backs are bent, the arms grow twisted and terrible eye-strain results, for the tremendous muscular force put forth by these tiny bodies causes the eyes to protrude."

Sometimes the little ones are packed off to school, "with aching bodies and dull eyes, to pick up such knowledge as they can. But almost to the hour of starting, and again on their return for many hours they take their turn at the mangle.

Exactly the same kind of story is told of baby "errranders" staggering under extraordinary bundles; baby needle workers and boxmakers—the story of hunger, weariness, illness and often ill-treatment.

Where Fire Alarm Boxes are Located

A Good Chance for Our Readers to Cut Out Useful Information.

For the convenience of our readers and their protection in case of fire we append a list revised to date of the various fire alarms throughout the city. By cutting this out and preserving same for future use, anyone having the same can tell at a glance when that ominous sound, a fire alarm rings out, just about where the fire is located Following are the numbers and locations of the boxes

WARD ONE.

12—Lock and McGill.
14—Westcott and Aylmer.
15—Perry and George.
16—Perry and Bethune.
17—Park and Townsend.
18—George, at C.P.R.

WARD TWO.

21—George and King.
22—Simcoe and Queen.
23—George and Hunter.
24—Hunter and Quaker.
27—Water and McDonel.

WARD THREE.

31—Park and Sherbrooke.
33—Charlotte and Stewart.
35—Park and Hunter.

WARD FIVE.

52—Burnham and James.
53—Rogers and Sophia.
54—Hunter and Mark.
57—Concession and Hazlitt.
59—Auburn.

DIRECTIONS

A key for the alarm box will be found hanging on a small box with glass front, adjoining the alarm box Break the glass, remove the key, and open the box; pull the lever down, when the alarm is at once transmitted to the fire hall, pumping station, and residences of the firemen Do not attempt to remove the key from box, as this can only be done by the use of a small relieving key.

The number of the ward from which the alarm is sent in is always sounded on the bell, which also constitutes the first number of the box nearest to the fire, and when an alarm is sounded, the ward number is given first, then a pause, and then the remaining numbers of the box.

I will mail you free, to prove merit, samples of my Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and my Book on either Dyspepsia, The Heart or The Kidneys. Troubles of the Stomach, Heart or Kidneys, are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak Stomach nerves—the inside nerves—mean Stomach weakness, always. And the Heart, and Kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves, and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves." Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion, use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write me today for sample and free Book. Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. The Restorative is sold by all dealers.

KILLED BY TRAIN

Two Fatalities Near Port Hope--R. L. Boughen Killed by Lightning

Port Hope, Aug. 9.—Wm. Hodson of Port Hope, G.T.R. conductor on the way freight operating between Port Hope and Cobourg, was struck and instantly killed at Cobourg yesterday morning.

Ruben L. Boughen, a young farmer, living about four miles north of Port Hope, was struck by lightning during the severe electric storm which passed over this district yesterday afternoon and instantly killed.

GUT IN TWO BY TRAIN

Willie Wilbore, Age 14, Instantly Killed in Toronto Yesterday.

Toronto, Aug. 9.—While returning from one of the city swimming baths in the Don valley, near the Winchester street bridge, Willie Wildbore, 14 years of age, of 177 Hamilton street, was instantly killed at ten minutes to twelve o'clock yesterday morning by the Canadian Northern train from Parry Sound, due at the Union Station at 11.45.

In company with Norman Dwight and another boy, Willie had been in swimming during the morning but had left for home alone. He walked along the old Belt Line tracks, and then turned south along the Canadian Northern. Just at the foot of the Castle Frank hill, and about two hundred yards north of the Winchester street bridge, he was struck by the train, which, apparently owing to the fact that he was very deaf, he had not heard approaching. His body was cut completely in two by the wheels.

The police ambulance was telephoned for by Mr. Edwin Carter, superintendent of Riverdale Park, and the body was taken to the morgue. An inquest will be held.

Clergy of Rome to Arm Themselves For Protection.

Rome, Aug. 9.—Yesterday the Pope called a special meeting of Cardinals in order to obtain their advice as to the present situation in Italy, and the best means to avert harm from ecclesiastical persons and property. Among the members of the sacred college who attended were Cardinal Merry del Val, the Papal Secretary of State; Cardinal Oreglia, dean of the Sacred College; Cardinal Respighi, the Pope's Vicar General; Cardinal Cassetta, the Pope's Almoner; Cardinals Satolli and Agliardi, and several Prelates, who enjoy the personal confidence of the Pope.

The meeting discussed the recent anti-clerical manifestations in Italy, and the numerous insults offered, even to foreign ecclesiastics visiting Rome or belonging to foreign colleges, whose cases in several instances have already been referred to the diplomatic representatives of their countries within the past few weeks.

It was decided that there was no use for the Pope to make any formal protest in the matter, and that the best way to protect the clergy of Rome would be to allow them to carry revolvers, and athletioes to defend themselves.

After the meeting Cardinal Respighi, as special representative of the Pope, issued orders to all Roman clergy to purchase firearms or other weapons. Accordingly all parish priests, and their assistants in this city, who have to be on the street often at night, will now go armed.

It has frequently happened of late that priests are called out in the night to sick beds, and are assaulted in the streets by anti-clerical ruffians. All religious institutions in the city have now been, or are being, provided with means of defence. Religious instituted by women have been provided with male protection. What has been done in Rome, will soon be done all over Italy. The Vatican prelates say that the Italian Government has not afforded a sufficient protection to religious institutions of the country.

Mr. Henry May Resign from Children's Aid

Well Known and Popular Officer May Quit His Position

Mr. Henry, the very efficient caretaker, who with Mrs. Henry, so successfully operates the Shelter of the Children's Aid Society, is out with a very practical suggestion, viz., that, with the occupancy of the new building, a regulation uniform be adopted. His idea is that the uniform should be of dark grey, with trimmings of red braid around the collar and down the front, and have the letters, "C.A.S." in large letters, on the back.

Mr. Henry thinks that if boys, who, if, instead of being sent to the Industrial school, were given a term in the Shelter, they would be improved in their conduct. At the present time, however, unless boys voluntarily remain, there is no means of detaining them.

Mr Henry further notes that when the new building at the Hilliard Farm is completed, that the uniform suggested would carry great moral weight. The only complaint made against Henry and his wife during their seven years occupancy as caretakers has been one, and that one on the side of leniency with the children, and that one charge simply showed the almost fatherly and motherly care given these wards of the city by Mr and Mrs. Henry. Mr. Henry seems to think that when the Shelter is moved to its proposed site that it will be at too great a distance for him to attend together with his present duties in connection with the King Edward school It would be a pity if a man who has done so well for the abandoned or reclaimed children of the city, should be impelled to give up the trust he has so faithfully attended to in the past.

Unjust Anim Adversion Against Army Band

Correspondent Wrote Unfair and Unjust Criticism

In our issue of recent date appeared a letter that carried complaint as to the concert recently given in Victoria Park by the Salvation Army Band. This letter conveyedf an impression that this excellent musical organization did not present as good music as they are accustomed to give of a Sunday evening whilst on their way to the barracks. This letter implied that the Band give better music for their own ends and ambitions than they do for the general public. It is now to be explained that, whilst no paper, outside the well drawn lines of libel, is accountable for its correspondents' opinions, as newspapers are a means of conveying public sentiments, the letter in question seems to have been ill-advised and without real foundation. Our readers are well aware that The Times has ever backed up and endorsed the splendid work done by the Salvation Army, and has for many weeks past contained numerous laudatory articles regarding the Band of the Salvation Army. We have even gone to the length of classing the local band as holding a position in musical ability with most of our crack regimant bands. The whole explanation of the appearance in The Times of this unfortunate letter was, that after the editorial staff had gone home, late at night, some one, whose name it is not necessary to print, handed in the letter in question. Our printers, after the city editor has gone home, have to use their discretion as to such contribution. Recognizing the words in the heading, "Salvation Army Band," and knowing the friendly attitude this journal has always adopted toward this commendable organization, the letter was passed at a glance and handed to the typesetters who naturally accepted and set it up. To think that the Salvation Army Band would neglect a treat of thrust inferior music on a public that so enthusiastically encourages them, is too absurd for comment. The very fact that Mr. J. M. Green of the Opera House music store, is much interested in this band is a sufficient guarantee of the band's good faith and ability.

Miss Mabel Curtis was Honored

On Tuesday evening Miss Mabel Curtis, stenographer in Mr. A. W. Cressman's establishment, was the honored guest and recipient of a laudatory address from the employes of the store. A handsome suit case and pearl crescent pin with an address were sent to her home. Miss Curtis leaves on the 20th of this month for Hazeltown, B.C., where she will engage in missionary work under Rev. Dr. Winch, who was sent out there by the Missionary Society of the Methodist Church.

People Who Live in Glass Houses, Etc.

Correspondent Objects to Airs Played by the Salvation Army Band

To the Editor of The Times.

Sir,—I note that a correspondent is out with a diatribe against the Salvation Army Band, in a local evening paper. This gentleman complains that the Band disturbed him and his congregation last Sunday morning, whilst he was "endeavoring to bring my thoughts into harmony with the Divine principle being over harmony." He then went on to compare the music played by the S. A. Band with "Finnegan's Wake" or some such facetiousness. Surely the public of this city has in too close touch of memory the recollection of when a young man was taken into a certain house, kept, if memory serves me right, on wind and a stray glass of milk, at $5 per week. How the patient was denied all chances of consulting medical advice and how after his death, even his clothes were not held sacred; even they were gone were gone through to get the pound of flesh that would satisfy the greed of a fakir. When such people rush into print to throw stones at so estimable a body as the Salvation Army, band or no band, harmony or discord therefrom, such writer should remember that the public has a memory.

Yours truly,
FAIR PLAY.

Police Court

At yesterday's session of the Police Court, Susan Richards was charged with disturbing the peace and annoying certain people on Hunter street. Mr. Frank Adams, the acting Magistrate, asked, "Are you guilty or not guilty?" The old woman pleaded guilty adding, "If you let me go I'll promise not to drink so much and not to be a nuisance any longer." The Chief remarked, "You have made promises like that before only to break them." "Well," responded Mrs. Richards, "if you let me go this time, I'll pack up my things and leave town." "Yes," responded the Chief, "you would go somewhere else to become a nuisance." After his Worship had sentenced the prisoner to one year in the Mercer Institute, Toronto, Mrs. Richards asked that a policeman be allowed to accompany her to her residence so that she could wind up her household affairs. This was granted and P. C. McDonald took the unfortunate woman to her household Lares and Penates or sort them out and get them into shape preparatory to her home coming 12 months from now.

After the trial was over, her husband an almost deaf Englishman, told his tale of woe to the press representatives. He said he was going to leave town "this very day" for Goderich, whence he came here. He was accompanied by the little white dog this poor, broken down parody on feminity has, as noted in the evening papers, made so much fuss about. Magistrate Adams made no mistake in his sentence of yesterday.

The Black Hand Gang Has Been Run to Earth.

Shamokin, Pa., Aug. 9.—In a raid by state constabulary on the Italian quarters at Marion Heights yesterday forty-two Italians suspected of being members of a "black hand" society were arrested. They were brought over the mountains and landed in jail at Sunbury.

The constabulary returned to the territory between here and Marion Heights and are seeking more Italians.

Supt. Groome of the state constabulary has been asked to send a body of mounted troopers into the territory and citizens of Marion Heights are circulating a petition to the governor asking him to use his influence to have a constabulary stationed here permanently.

Several prominent Italians are under police surveillance and will be arrested as leaders of the society. Last month there was a carnival of crime at Marion Heights with scores of robberies and a dozen murders, and when the county constables tried to make arrests no Italian could be found brave enough to testify against his countrymen, fearing death.

Several Italian detectives a few days ago informed borough authorities that the "black hand" gang was about to kill certain residents who had been visiting the office of the justice of peace and bringing suit against Italians for minor offenses. The borough authorities thereupon summoned the state police.

The constabulary's principal work now is to locate among a number of Italians who have fled to the mountains several known murderers who led the recent outrages.

Local Kick as to Haokman's Charges

Was the Hackman Working 14 Hours Per Day to Blame?

It seems that, a few days go a gentleman at the G.T.R. station he rung a conversation between a local hack driver and a possible fare, "butted in" and remonstrated with the hack driver on his charge. The driver of the cab naturally got "his ugly up." No blame to him. Still the cab driver took half the proferred fare. It seems that the interfering gentleman called at the police station and laid a complaint. It was shown that the complainant was actually within the terms of the city bylaw regulating such matters. Here is a chance for our readers to take their choice and say "who was at fault."

The Turf Club Have Entries from all Over Dominion

Judging by the way entries and enquiries are coming in it looks like the Peterborough Turf Club races for Civic Holiday, on Monday, Aug. 12, and the following day, Aug. 13th, are going to overshadow and place, by comparison, all previous local race meets into the shades of forgotten usefulness To gift down to solid fact, owing to the good work done in racing interests by Messrs. M. Connors, P. Clunas, and other members of the Peterborough Turf Club, the races for next week will awaken those interested in good clean sport to a sense of "something doing" and races that will command respect from the horsemen of our Dominion. Old Peterboro Boy in Great Mine Deal

Mr. O. V. Clementi, Acting for Large Chicago Firm, Secures a Rich Property

Yesterday The Times was in receipt of that acknowledged important paper, the Western Trade Journal, which is published in Chicago. In their latest current issue the Journal devotes the whole of their first, or title page to an article in which an old Peterborough boy figures prominently.

The Western Trade Journal devotes four columns to an article headed "Where Gold and Silver Abound." Their subject matter was a detailed and extensive account of the success won by certain Chicago capitalists in the Dixie Mining District, Churchill County, Nevada. This article goes on to say that;

"To the splendid work of Frank L. Wire, president of the Chicago Promotion and Brokerage Company, Suite 42 No 91 South Clark street, Chicago, and Mr Geo. V Clementi, with Geo L. McKay & Co., 253 La Salle street, Chicago, is due credit for securing some of the best mining claims in Nevada The ex mination made by personal visits and inspection required a length period, and after three or four weeks' time their choice finally fell upon the Dixie Mining District, after travelling overland by team and at times over 300 miles and visiting the ramps of Goldfield, Tonopath, Fairview, Lida, Wonder, and others, sparing neither time comfort or expense in order to get the very best property."

The Western Trade Journal then goes on to devote several columns to the great gold and copper ore discoveries made upon the property mentioned. It winds up by saying;

"Frank E. Wire with the Chicago Promotion and Brokerage Company and George V. Clementi representing George L. McKay & Co., both of which companies have their headquarters in Chicago, have just returned from Nevada, where, as purchasing committee, they went in the interest of their companies for the purpose of securing mining properties which will be held and operated jointly. The gentlemen were quite successful in their quest, stating to a representative of the Record on their return that they had obtained fourteen claims, or about 300 acres of promising ground in the Dixie district of Churchill County.

Preparing for the Thaw Trial

New York, N.Y., Aug. 9.—Preparations for the defence of Harry Thaw in the second trial for his life have already begun and Martin W. Littleton the new chief counsel, and Daniel O'Reilly, Thaw's personal lawyer, it is understood, have come to an agreement that will make the second trial radically different from the first.

When the case closes this time," said lawyer O'Reilly, "I think you will find that there will be no division of opinion in the jury box. I think you will find twelve men marching back into the court room with the declaration that Thaw was insane when he shot White and is therefore not to be held accountable for the tragedy."

It is almost certain that when Thaw goes to trial again the "unwritten law" will play a much more subordinate part than it did last time.

Watery Blood

Nerves are Weak
Face is Pallid
You Lack Strength
You Look Sickly.

Until You Ironize and Fortify the Blood There's No Hope of Cure.

Thousands of tired workers need the invigoration, the strength, the nerve-force which Ferrozone can supply.

Ferrozone imparts strength because it nourishes.

Ferrozone is able to nourish because it supplies to the blood the elements it lacks.

Once the blood is vitalized, its tonic influence is circulated to every nook and corner of the blood, carrying new life with it.

Cases on record prove that Ferrozone builds up when else fails. Mr. Alonzo W. Douglas, of Woodbridge, Ont., says: "I desire to state the results I derived from the use of Ferrozone. Two years ago I was stricken with pneumonia. So severe was the attack and so reduced was my strength that my life was despaired of. I had the very best medical attention, but made no progress towards recovery. When reduced to practically a skeleton, a kind friend told me of the remarkable powers of Ferrozone. An improvement began almost at once. I gained steadily in weight and strength until Ferrozone made me a new man. I will gladly answer inquiries from other sufferers if they care to have further particulars about my recovery. Ferrozone deserves its great measure of success."

When a man in Mr. Douglas' low condition can be quickly cured, aren't the chances good for you? Don't fail to try Ferrozone. Price 50c per box at all dealers.

UNION LABELLED

PETERBOROUGH, AUGUST 9 1907.

CANADA'S POSITION

To those Canadians who have been identified, even in a minor way, with the progress of their country since that eventful day in 1867 when the five eastern provinces formed themselves into a Dominion, the position which Canada occupies in the eyes of the world must be a source of profound gratification. Some of us can recall the hopefulness of the men who laid the foundations of the Dominion. They foretold a time when Canada would challenge the attention of the world, but none of them dreamed that in the lifetime of any of them their anticipations would be realized. It must be a source of pleasure to Sir Charles Tupper, in the evening of his eventful and strenuous life, to look upon the glory of the land, with whose history his name will always be identified. He stands almost alone among the leaders of the people, who brought about the union of the provinces. The others have all passed to their reward, but the venerable statesman is yet able to look with appreciative eyes upon the magnificent results of the policy to which he lent all the vigor of his earlier manhood.

Times have changed since those days. Then the region west of the peninsula of Ontario was so little known that most people regarded it as a great waste land. British Columbia was hardly a name to most people in those days, and those who knew what it was had only a very vague conception of its whereabouts and its natural riches. No one for a moment supposed for a moment that thousands of men who saw the Dominion inaugurated would see the vacant Northwest pouring a wealth of grain into the markets of the world and this then remote province recognized as the richest link in the transcontinental chain. There was a time when people hesitated to avow themselves Canadians. Now it is a title of honor. There was a time when the most that was hoped was that we might have a strong of settlements along the United States border. Now we know that we have an Empire lying north of the boundary. There was a time when we wondered what we should do for people to settle our lands. Now they are coming by thousands and hunderds of thousands. There was a time, when the youth of the land, despairing of finding opportunities of advancement at home, turned their faces to the great Republic, as soon as they could get money enough together to pay their travelling expenses. All this has changed. Canadian youth finds room for all his energies, and thousands of the best manhood of the United States are seeking homes on the fertile lands of Canada. There was a time when leaders of public thought on both sides of the Atlantic anticipated that the day was not far distant when British North America, would drop into the arms of the republic. We used to hear much of "manifest destiny" in those days. Now we look forward to Canada's birth as a nation, united by unbreakable ties to the great Mother Land beyond the seas.

It is a wonderful story. It is the romance of history. It is full of lessons of courage for the present and inspiration for the future. There may be yet a few people in England, who refuse to see that Canada is destined to play an exceedingly important part in the affairs of the world and especially in those of the British Empire, but they are becoming fewer and less influential every day, as the demonstration of the potentialities of the Dominion are being manifested. Our country is growing in population, wealth, self-confidence an dinternational prestige. At the same time it may be said that it is growing more strongly attached to British institutions and more resolved to do what lies in its power to maintain the integrity of the empire. If the glorious possibilities of the realms under the Union Jack are not realized, the fault will not lie with the Canadian people.

BAR THE DOOR AGAINST JAPAN.

The article from Saturday Sunset of Vancouver, dealing with the Japanese invasion of British Columbia, deserves most serious consideration by the people of all Canada. The figures are startling. Within two weeks the Japanese population of the Pacific coast province has been increased by about a third, and nearly 6,200 of the new arrivals have arrived by one ship. If the present rate of increase keeps up, and there is every indication that it will, unless checked, it is a question of but a short time until the Japanese form as large a proportion of the population of British Columbia as negroes now form in the Southern States. In one particular, too, the Japanese and the negroes are on the same level—the white race will not intermarry either with the one or the other. With the Doukhobor and the Galician it is different; there will be inter-marriage, in the second generation at least, with these, and in a short time, as time is counted in the history of a people, there will be assimilation. But as between the Japanese and the whites, there will be no assimilation, and where two races are intermingled, without union, there must be constant social and political friction, as well as other unnamed evils such as the South is experiencing to the full.

The Japanese are a great people, but individual Japanese can never become a real part in a Canadian commonwealth, and because of this fact their entry into Canada should be rigidly restricted. We will commit a national crime if we leave to our children a repetition in the North of a race problem such as that which is cursing the South.

The Influx of Japanese

Canadian Government Will Co-operate with Japan to Limit It.

Ottawa, Aug. 8.—The Canadian Government has been inquiring into the reports from British Columbia, as to the large influx of Japanese. The representatives of the Japanese Government stated that the agreement in do with the Canadian Government a few years ago as to restriction is being rigidly observed. Before leaving their own country the Japanese must procure passports from their government and the Japanese government agreed that not more than one passport per month for each district will be issued to its citizens, who desire to come to Canada. As there are about forty districts this would permit about 500 Japanese a year to come to Canada direct from Japan. This number has never been reached and the agreement is still in force. The Japanese arriving in British Columbia are from Honolulu and United States territory, and over them the Japanese consuls have no official authority.

The Canadian Government is hopeful that with the co-operation of the Japanese Government it can limit this immigration to such an extent that no ill results will follow to the western provinces.

Twits Bride-Elect

Philadelphia Swain Makes Mistake That Has Upset Thrones.

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 8.—Because her fiance twitted her about her age Miss Emma Perth of Readme broke off her engagement with Harry Bissell of the same city at the marriage license bureau in the city hall yesterday morning. Miss Perth indignantly told Bissell that he talked too much for her, and that he could go and find some other girl to marry.

All went well until Clerk Smith began to ask the customary questions. Bissell stated that he was 24 years old, while the bride to be admitted 29 summers.

"She doesn't look her age, though," said Bissell.

"You needn't apologize for me," said the prospective bride. "I am old enough to know my own mind."

"You bet you are," replied Bissell. "I consider that an insult," said Miss Perth. "You talk too much. Now I will never marry you. No man who makes remarks about his wife's age will make a good husband. Good-by."

Spain to Pay Old Debt.

Will Settle Last of $600,000 Due United States Since 1834.

Washington, Aug. 8.—A law just passed by the Spanish Cortes and approved by king Alfonso makes provision for the final payment of a debt to the United States acknowledged in a convention entered into between the two countries February 17, 1834.

According to that convention Spain promised to pay to the United States, as a balance of claims for damages to American commerce, 12,000,000 reals ($8 vellon), in one or several inscriptions of perpetual rentes bearing 5 per cent. interest, the inscriptions or the proceeds from them to be distributed among the several claimants. The certificates of indebtedness accordingly were delivered to the United States and the interest on them paid more or less regularly up to 1878, when Mr. Evarts, then secretary of state, had the attention of the Spanish government called to the unpaid principal, the department taking the ground that if the provisions creating the sinking fund, with which the principal was to be paid, had been carried out, the amount then available would have aggregated a sum half as great as the principal. A reply from the American representative at Madrid in 1879 bearing on the subject appears to be the last official correspondence that has been published.

The total amount of the claims approximated in American money about $600,000, a real de vellon being worth in 1864 4 1-2 cents, while it has since fluctuated between 4 1-2 and 10 cents.

The Money That's Being Made in Western Canada LAND

In October, 1906 we sold 5,000 acres of Saskatchewan lands to an Indiana party of men at $8 per acre, and resold it this year at $12, making just about 100 per cent. on the money invested.

A Montreal party of men who bought 10,000 acres from us at $8 per acre last September, resold through us within three months at $10.00 per acre.

A Chicago client writes us that after making some improvements on a section she bought near Regina, one year ago, she sold out recently for exactly twice what she paid for the land.

We resold a section of land located near Lipton for a man at $18.00 per acre last April, which we sold him in December at $1750.

Western Canada Lands offer the greatest opportunity this continent has ever known

Men here are growing wealthy who never knew success in any other line. You can make money here too, if you think your amount too small club it with a few friends. Some of the most prominent financial men in the United States and Eastern Canada are now interested in this country heavily.

We own about 200,000 acres of the finest wheat and mixed farming lands in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.—Picked lands on which we are prepared to give accurate trustworthy information, and these tracts being portions of extremely large purchases, we can sell them at prices that cannot be equalled, quality of land considered, by any firm in this country.

Prices range from $6.00 per acre upwards Reasonable Terms in every case

Write us for further information but when doing so tell us the class and amount of an investment you desire, and whether you want the land for your own use or for investment purposes purely. $1,000 is about the minimum we can handle. References Union Bank and Traders' Bank, Winnipeg.

SIREN WAFERS DEVELOP THE BUST

SHE'S A QUEEN! SHE'S A SIREN!

Is an expression that is always heard at sight of a well developed woman. If you are flat chested, with BUST undeveloped, a scrawney neck, thin lean arms—the above remark will never be applied to you. "SIREN" wafers will make you beautiful, bewitching. They DEVELOP the BUST in a few weeks from 3 to 6 inches and produce a fine firm, voluptuous bosom. They fill out the hollow places. Make the cheeks plump and rosy, and arms handsome and well molded and the neck and shoulders shapely and of perfect contour.

Send for a bottle today and you'll be pleased and grateful. "SIREN" wafers are absolutely harmless, pleasant to take and convenient to carry around. They are sold under guarantee to do all we claim or MONEY back.

Price $1.00 per bottle. Inquire at good drug stores or send DIRECT to us.

FREE!

During the next 30 days only—we will send you a sample bottle of these beautifying wafers on receipt of 10 cents to pay cost of packing and postage if you will mention that you saw the Advertisement in this paper. The sample alone may be sufficient if defects are trivial.

The Smelting of Ore is the safest and most profitable business in the world.

We have fifteen mining properties, located in Kern County, California, carrying good values in Gold, Silver and Copper.

The smelter nearest to us is at Needles, 250 miles distant.

We propose to install on our properties a smelter to treat the ores from our own mines and to do custom smelting for others.

50 per cent. per annum is a moderate estimate of the profits we can earn. If you want to make a safe and profitable investment send for full information and investigate our proposition.

Guggenheim-Greenwater

Copper Prospect at Ely

GUGGENHEIM GREENWATER

I wait every reader of this paper who has a spark of spunk in him to buy a few shares in the Guggenheim Greenwater Copper Company. I can sell it to you now for a mere song—6 cents a share. Every share is of treasury stock, par value $1, full paid up and non-assessable.

I have a poor idea of that man's courage who dares not risk $5 on the chance to make $100, if there is any better buy in the mining market today than a $100 certificate for five dollars, I have never heard of it. This company owns two groups of claims in two copper districts—Ely and Greenwater. It is developing first its group at Ely, and has a shaft down 60 feet with indications of a strike of ore in the next 60 feet.

Every man who reads this advertisement has read the stories from Ely, Nev. He knows as well as I do that experts report there is enough copper ore already in sight in the Ely district to keep ten smelters of immense capacity going for the next one hundred years. One 15,000 ton smelter is already being built by the Guggenheims, and other reduction plants of gigantic capacity are projected. Ely is unquestionably one of the greatest copper districts in the world.

This property is located on the great zone of porphyry which carries the copper values, and I tell you honestly that I would as soon put a few dollars into this prospect and take a chance of its making a big mine as into any mining investment within the range of possibility.

See me about this investment at once. I can fill all orders today for anything up to 10,000 shares at 6 cents. That price is sure to advance sharply any day that news comes of a strike. Buy now at 6 cents.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry must be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made on certain conditions, by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending Homesteader.

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of the homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Six months' notice in writing should be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of intention to apply for patent.

W. W. CORY,
Deputy of the Minister of the Interior.

THE CONQUEST of CANAAN

By BOOTH TARKINGTON,
Author of "Cherry," "Monsieur Beaucaire," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1905, BY HARPER & BROTHERS

Once, upon a white morning long ago, the sensational progress of a certain youth up Main street had stirred Canaan. But that day was as nothing to this. Mr. Bantry had left temporary paralysis in his wake, but in the case of the two young people who passed slowly along the street today it was petrifaction, which seemingly threatened in several instances (most notably that of Mr. Arp) to become permanent.

The lower portions of the street, lined with three and four story buildings of brick and stone, rather grim and hot facades under the midday sun, afforded little shade to the church comers, who were working homeward in processional little groups and clumps, none walking fast, though none with the appearance of great leisure, since neither rate of progress would have been esteemed befitting the day. The growth of Canaan, steady, though never startling, had left almost all of the churches downtown, and Main street the principal avenue of communication between them and the "residence section." So today the intermittent procession stretched along the new cement sidewalks from a little below the square to upper Main street, where maples lined the thoroughfare and the mansions of the affluent stood among pleasant lawns and shrubberies.

It was late, for this had been a communion Sunday, and those far in advance, who had already reached the pretty and shady part of the street, were members of the churches where services had been shortest, though few in the long parade looked as if they had been attending anything very short, and many heads of families were crisp in their replies to the theological inquiries of their offspring. The mass imparted largely a glycm to the itinerant concourse, most of them wearing hot, long black coats and having wilted their collars, the ladies relieving this gloom somewhat by the lighter tints of their garments, the spick and span little girls relieving it greatly by their white dresses and their faces, the latter bright with the hope of Sunday ice cream, while the boys, experiencing some solace in that they were finally out where a person could at least scratch himself if he had to, yet oppressed by the decorous necessities of the day, marched along, furtively planning behind imperturbably secretive countenances various means for the later dispersal of an odious monotony.

Usually the conversation of this long string of the homeward bound was not too frivolous or worldly. May; it properly inclined to discussion of the sermon.

It was a serious and seemly Sunday parade, the propriety of whose behavior was today almost disintegrated when the lady of the bridge walked up the street in the shadow of a lacy lavender parasol carried by Joseph Louden. The congregation of the church across the square—that to which Joe's stepfather had been late—was just debouching, almost in mass, upon Main street when these two went by. It is not quite the truth to say that all except the children came to a dead halt, but it is not very far from it. The air was thick with subdued exclamations and whisperings.

Here is no mystery. Joe was probably the only person of respectable derivation in Canaan who had not known for weeks that Ariel Tabor was on her way home. And the news that she had arrived the night before had been widely disseminated on the way to church, entering church, in church (even so!) and coming out of church. An account of her home in the Avenue Henri Martin and of her portrait in the Salon—a mysterious business to many and not lacking in grandeur for that—had occupied two columns in the Tocsin on a day some months before when Joe had found himself ironically headlined on the first page and had dropped the paper without reading further. Ariel's name had been in the mouth of Canaan for a long time—unfortunately for Joe, however, not in the mouth of that Canaan which held converse with him.

Joe had not known her. The women recognized her infallibly at first glance, even those who had quite forgotten her. And the women told their men; hence the un-Sunday-like demeanor of the processios, for few towns hold it more unseemly to stand and stare at passersby, especially on the Sabbath. But Ariel Tabor returned and walking with—with Joe Louden!

Ariel flushed a little when she perceived the extent of their conspicuousness, but it was not the blush that Joe remembered had reddened the tanned skin of old, for her brownness had gone long ago, though it had not left her merely pink and white. This was a delicate rosiness rising from her cheeks to her temples, as the earliest dawn rises. If there had been many words left in Joe he would have called it a divine blush. It fascinated him, and if anything could have deepened the glamour about her it would have been this blush. He did not understand it, but when he saw it he stumbled.

Those who gaped and stared were for him only blurs in the background. Truly, he saw "men as trees walking," and when it became necessary to step out to the curb in passing some chump of people it was to him as if Ariel and he, enchastedly alone, were working their way through underbrush in the woods.

He kept trying to realize that this lady of wonder was Ariel Tabor, but he could not. He could not connect the shabby Ariel, whom he had treated as one boy treats another, with this person woman of the world. He had always been embarrassed himself and ashamed of her when anything she did made him remember that, after all, she was a girl, as on the day he ran away when she kissed a lock of his hair escaping from the bandage. With that recollection even his ears grew red. It did not seem probable that it would ever happen again. The next instant he heard himself calling her "Miss Tabor."

At this she seemed amused. "You ought to have called me that years ago," she said, "for all you knew me."

"I did know her—you, I mean," he answered. "I used to know nearly everything you were going to say before you said it. It seems strange now"—

"Yes," she interrupted, "it does seem strange now."

"Somehow," he went on, "I doubt if now I'd know."

"Somehow," she echoed, with fine gravity, "I doubt it too."

Although he had so dim a perception of the staring and whispering which greeted and followed them, Ariel, of course, was thoroughly aware of it, though the only sign she gave was the slight blush, which very soon disappeared. That people turned to look at her may have been not altogether a novelty. A girl who had learned to appear unconscious of the continental stare, the following gaze of the boulevards, the frank glasses of the costuman in Rome, was not ill equipped to face Main street, Canaan, even as it was today.

Under the sycamores before they started they had not talked a great deal. There had been long silences, almost all her questions concerning the period of his runaway absence. She appeared to know and to understand everything which had happened since his return to the town. He had not, in his turn, reached the point where he would begin to question her. He was too breathless in his consciousness of the marvelous present hour. She had told him of the death of Roger Tabor, the year before. "Poor man!" she said gently. "He lived to see how the other fellows did it at last, and everybody liked him. He was very happy over there."

After a little while she had said that it was growing close upon lunch time; she must be going back.

"Then—then—goodby," he replied ruefully.

"Why?"

"I'm afraid you don't understand. It wouldn't do for you to be seen with me. Perhaps, though, you do understand. Wasn't that why you asked me to meet you out here beyond the bridge?"

In answer she looked at him full and straight for three seconds, then threw back her head and closed her eyes tight with laughter. Without a word she took the parasol from him, opened it herself, placed the smooth white coral handle of it in his hand and lightly took his arm. There was no further demur on the part of the young man. He did not know where she was going. He did not ask.

Once Ariel smiled politely, not at Mr. Louden, and inclined her head twice, with the result that the latter, after thinking for a time of how gracefully she did it and how pretty the top of her hat was, became gradually conscious of a meaning in her action—that she had bowed to some one across the street. He lifted his hat, about four minutes late, and discovered Mamie Pike and Eugene upon the opposite pavement walking home from church together. Joe changed color.

The sound of Ariel's voice brought him to himself.

A QUAINT DOCUMENT.

Minutes of the First Representative Assembly in America.

The minutes of the first representative assembly in America as written by its clerk, John Twine, constitute a quaint and interesting document. They are headed:

"A reporte of the manner of proceeding in the general assembly convented at James City, in Virginia, July 30 1619, consisting of the governor, the counsell of estate and two burgesses elected out of eache incorporation and plantation, and being dissolved the 4th of August next ensuing."

The assembly met in the "quire of the churche." Then, "forasmuche as men's affaires doe little prosper where God's service is neglected, all the burgesses took their places in the quire till a prayer was said by Mr. Bucke, the minister, that it would please God to guide and sanctifie all our proceedings to his owne glory and the good of this plantation."

After the prayer the burgesses were summoned one by one to take the oath to the king, "none staggering at it."

The assembly at once set to work to adopt English laws to Virginian conditions. It added a series of trade regulations to restrict the production of tobacco, to keep up prices and to encourage the output of flax, silk and wine.

Thus before the Pilgrims were thinking of leaving Holland representative government was firmly established in the new world.—Exchange.

Rheumatism

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism! Not a remedy that will straighten the distorted limbs of chronic cripples, nor turn bony growths back to flesh again. That is impossible. But I can now surely kill the pains and pangs of this deplorable disease.

In Germany—with a chemist in the City of Darmstadt—I found the last ingredient with which Dr Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was made a perfected, dependable prescription. Without that last ingredient, I successfully treated many, many cases of Rheumatism; but now, at last triumphantly cures all curable cases of this heretofore much dreaded disease. Those mad like granular waste, found in Rheumatic Blood seem to dissolve and pass away under the action of this remedy as freely as does sugar when added to pure water. And then, when dissolved, these poisonous wastes freely pass from the system, and the cause of Rheumatism is gone forever. There is now no real need—no actual excuse to suffer longer without help. We sell, and in confidence recommend Sure Cure for Sciatica.

Sciatica is really inflammation of the sciatic nerve, the largest nerve in the body.

This passive inflammation is the product of a run-down condition, and in every case you may be sure the nerves are worn down fine.

The pain is the cry of the nerves for more food—for richer, redder blood.

Rubbing on a greasy liniment can't help very much—you must treat the blood and rebuild the nervous system.

This can be promptly done with Ferrozone.

No tonic so quickly fortifies the muscular system, imparts such strength, such endurance and vigor.

Any traces of Uric Acid and rheumatic poison are quickly driven out by Ferrozone. The fowered condition of the system is changed into a reserve of vigor that defies further attacks of Sciatic.

Marvellous in its preconstructive and rebuilding power, quick to give relief, absolutely sure to cure,—where can you find a better treatment than Ferrozone? Sold by all druggists in 50c. boxes; try Ferrozone.

Mr. Adams' Outing Enjoyed

Yesterday afternoon the employes of Mr. T. H. Adams were his guests on the excursion of the W. A. of St. Luke's church, on the steamer Monarch to Gore's Landing. Mr. Adams' generosity is warmly appreciated by the members of his sales staff, and no doubt more consistent and painstaking work will follow this evidence of his interest in their behalf.

Report re Typhoid Corroborated

Yesterday a gentleman living at Youn's Point, stopped a Times reporter and denied most emphatically the reports presented by the press of this city concerning an alleged outbreak of typhoid fever at Stony Lake. Notwithstanding his denial, one of our esteemed evening contemporaries last night corroborated our intelligence of the preceding day, by saying that nine cases of typhoid have been disclosed recently at Stony Lake.

Pickpocket's Wife is Heard From

Mr. Gordon of the leading law firm of O'Connell & Gordon, was yesterday asked by a Times reporter as follows: "Say Mr. Gordon, now that those former clients of yours have been sentenced to a term in the Central Prison, what do you know of late date about them." Mr. Gordon, at once, with the proverbial reticence to that cowrage a lawyer, replied to The Times man, "Well, I have nothing for publication. All I can say is that the wife of Bradford has written me on business.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

Mr. Thos. Elmhirst is Home

Mr. Thos. Elmhirst of New York city, formerly of Otonabee, is the guest of friends in the city and vicinity and at present is visiting his sister, Mrs. F. D. Armstrong, east ward. It is six years since Mr Elmhirst was home last and he will remain sever l weeks visiting the friends of his boyhood.

Muskrats Seek New Homes

All the fur-bearing animals of this section are not killed off as yet. When the day before yesterday men engaged in dumping earth at the edge of the Otonabee river, near Rogers' boat house, many muskrats that had made their homes at this spot, took to flight. It was a lesson in natural history to see the fathers and mothers of these water rodents carry off their progeny on their backs.

Arrangements for the Regatta

Arrangements have been made to have a special boat leave the Juniper island pavalion, Stony Lake, at 12 o'clock Monday night, and to connect with a special G.T.R. train at Lakefield for Peterborough. This will allow the people from Peterborough who attend the Stony Lake regatta and remain for the dance, to arrive home in good time. The action of the committee on arranging for the late boat and special train will no doubt be greatly appreciated.

57th Band Highly Honored

That Peterborough's splendid musical organization, the 57th Regiment Band is attracting attention to their well deserved merits is proven by the fact that they have been requested to give a two days' engagement at the Toronto exhibition. In former years they were only engaged for one day, and this year the other provincial bands have only been given a one-day engagement. Still the local aggregation of skilled musicians have been engaged for two days. Bandmaster Gliddon and his musicians will play at the exhibition on Friday and Saturday, Aug. 30th and 31st, giving two concerts each day. The engagement is for thirty men.

Salvation Army Doing Wonders

When will Todd tumble to the true worth of the Salvation Army Band's strains and turn from trying to traject ridiculous terms of epithet against so triumphant an organization of well trained players? There may be no "life, truth or intelligence in matter." Still there is good music well and suitably rendered by the Peterborough branch of the Salvation Army. We venture to say that more otherwise lost souls are saved and more men and women gathered in from former lives of poverty and crime and placed on the pedestal of possibility and desire for a future regeneration in one week, than our friend Todd acquires in a life time.

Accident at Power House

Yesterday several of our subscribers called at The Times office to complain that the light supplied by the Peterborough Light & Power Co., was insufficient and below the standard. We at once called up Mr. Larmonth and ascertained that this was due to an accident at the power house. Yesterday this progressive head of this company had a gang of men at work getting the break at their power house attended to. There is no doubt but what this trouble, if not fixed up before our scribe left the office last night, will during today be relegated to what U. S. ex-President Grover Cleveland called "Innocuous desuetude." This light company as does every other organization in similar lines of manufacture, must perforce of circumstances run up against unforseen and unavoidable accidents. It is to their credit that such "contre temps" are quickly quelled.

Apple Growers are Being Recognized

Great Future for Apple Raisers in this Vicinity

Some time since a gentleman, hailing from Athens, Greece, called on a Times representative and asked his opinion as to the apple buying prospects in this section. Our representative whilst giving all he knew about apples, and that was a question between whether an apple belonged to the genus Solemon Sweet or "Every Man's Favorite" and The Times man told this scion of Greece all he knew about this fruit,

It seems that at the present time apple buyers are paying their annual visit to this section, buying the orchards of Peterborough county. The farmers in this county have not paid as much attention to the cultivation of this fruit in the past, as to grain growing, and the result is that there are not as many large orchards in this county as elsewhere near Lake Ontario.

Women Who Wear Well.

It is astonishing how great a change a few years of married life often make in the appearance and disposition of many women. The freshness, the charm, the brilliance vanish like the bloom from a peach which is rudely handled. The matron is only a dim shadow, a faint echo of the charming maiden. There are two reasons for this change, ignorance and neglect. Few young women appreciate the shock to the system through the change which comes with marriage and motherhood. Many neglect to deal with the unpleasant pelvic drains and weaknesses which too often come with marriage and motherhood, not understanding that this secret drain is robbing the cheek of its freshness and the form of its fairness.

As surely as the general health suffers when there is derangement of the health of the delicate womanly organs, so surely when these organs are established in health the face and form at once witness to the fact in restored comeliness. Nearly a million women have found health and happiness in the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It makes weak women strong and sick women well. Ingredients on label—contains no alcohol or harmful habit-forming drugs. Made wholly of those native, American, medicinal roots most highly recommended by leading medical authorities of all the several schools of practice for the cure of woman's peculiar ailments.

For nursing mothers, or for those broken-down in health by too frequent bearing of children, also for the expectant mother, to prepare the system for the coming of baby and making its advent easy and almost painless, there is no medicine quite so good as "Favorite Prescription." It can do no harm in any condition of the system. It is a most potent invigorating tonic and strengthening nervine nicely adapted to woman's delicate system by a physician of large experience in the treatment of woman's peculiar ailments.

THE LARDER LAKE EXPLORATION AND DEVELOPMENT CO.

CAPITAL, 500,000 SHARES—PAR VALUE $1.00 PER SHARE

15c FULLY PAID AND NON-ASSESSABLE 15c

First allottment of 50,000 Shares at Fifteen Cents per Share

Our Option on this small block of Underwriters' Stock expires August 8th, 1907—Subscriptions Post-marked at later date will be returned

Do you realize that investments of a hundred or a thousand will grow rapidly into hundreds and thousands and millions of dollars? The over-conservative and skeptical will smile—they will laugh at these predictions, some will even consider this a joke—but remember COBALT, if you please, two or three years ago? Then it was a "vision," it was a "dream," "a flash in the pan," "a bubble," somebody Was "crazy"; bu now it is different. Those crazy men are now classed among the smart and keenest business men of the day. The actual value of a few mines are worth at the present date more than one hundred millions of dollars. These are facts.

In presenting this investment for subscription we appeal to the good judgement of sensible persons as to its merit.

It embodies, we believe, a correct method of developing and establishing successful and paying mining enterprises.

We desire to conduct, first of all a successful Mine Developement. We intend this to be done in a way that will be absolutely fair and honest, and bring the largest profit possible to those who co-operate with us.

We, therefore, desire this proposition to be well understood by investors. We wish it to be known just how we propose to develope, establish and operate dividend paying Mining Companies by and through this investment.

THE PLAN.—The plan involved in this proposition is that of uniting or consolidating the investments of a limited number of persons into one sum, and under one management, to be used in acquiring and developing mining properties in this wonderful region.

THE PRINCIPLE involved in this investment we believe, is one of absolute fairness to all interested. The "promotion interest" common to all mining companies, and which is the great unfair feature to investors who put their money into stocks of these companies, and whose money develops and makes the mine, if a mine is developed—does not exist in this proposition. There is no "promotion interest set aside, and against the interest bought and paid for by the investors.

In this proposition the investors, and all the investors, become promotors. They take the "promotion interest" and all the interest. They own the whole enterprise. So matter how large or how small the investment—all stand on an equal basis. Our field of operation is probably one of the greatest, and without doubt the richest, mineralized region in the world.

For its basis, upon which we will establish and build us several great producing, paying mining companies, we will exploit and develop in a mining-like and careful manner exclusive mining properties now known to us, other properties which we may acquire for the mutual benefit of all investors in this Company.

SUBSIDIARY COMPANIES.—The Larder Lake Exploration and Development Comany will incorporate a series, not to exceed five, of Subsidiary Mining Companies upon only the real proven properties acquired.

In each and every subsidiary Company incorporated, whether Mining, Milling, Smelting, Water-Power, or Electric Light, the Exploration Company will take 90 per cent. of the capital stock of each Company so incorporated, and will put 10 per cent. of the Capital Stock of each Company in its treasury. It will probably never become necessary to sell any of this Treasury Stock.

Out of the total Capital Stock of each Subsidiary Company, the EXPLORATION COMPANY will retain 50 per cent. as its "Holding Stock." This will always control the Company. It will take and hold 40 per cent. for the mutual benefit of all stockholders in the EXPLORATION COMPANY. This 40 per cent will be known as "Selling Stock," and as a market is created it will be sold, and the proceeds received will be distributed pro rata to the stockholders in the EXPLORATION COMPANY, as their interests may appear.

The stock of the Subsidiary Companies will be inlisted on the New York Curb and Mining Exchanges of the country, and started at 50 cents a share, where it can be bought and sold according to the daily market quotations. This will afford a channel by which stockholders can sell the 40 per cent. "Selling Stock" from time to time, if they wish.

PROPERTIES.—Many different mining properties will be acquired and developed as stock in the EXPLORATION COMPANY, is subscribed for. All properties will be described, and reports submitted regarding same, as soon and as often as they can be examined by the engineer.

The mining properties that will be acquired for this proposition will be located in the gold and silver belt, extending from the Montreal River through Northern Ontario, eastward into Quebec, and will include properties in the Lady Evelyn District, the new Montreal River Silver District, Cobalt District, and the gold districts around Round Lake, Larder Lake, Lake Abitibi, and in the great undeveloped mineralized section of Quebec lying just east of Larder Lake and extending northward to Lake Abitibi.

We shall try and make every dollar count, and make as few mistakes as possible. We hope to create such an interest in this enterprise with investors, that will result in extensive and widespread co-operation.

Under this plan no one can truthfully say that it is not a great mining investment. We want every investor to feel a personal interest in this Mine Development. The investors in this Company will own this enterprise, and we want them to co-operate with us and our associates to make it a great success.

We are now organizing THE LARDER LAKE EXPLORATION AND DEVELOPMENT COMPANY with what we consider sufficient capital ($500,000). We now have options on, and propose to acquire five distinct and separate properties which will be incorporated at $100,000 each (100,000 shares—par value $1.00). The Exploration Company will at all times hold a controlling interest in each of these companies, so that sixty per cent. of the dividends earned and declared will be paid into the treasury of the parent company, and the other forty per cent. distributed among the stockholders on record. This in our opinion will enable us to pay dividends and large ones in the very near future.

The Board of Directors of THE LARDER LAKE EXPLORATION AND DEVELOPMENT COMPANY will be composed only of engineers of national repute, setting a precedent in this line—Mr. Robert Morton will be president, which fast in itself guarantees conservative and able management.

Investors have been pouring their money into over capitalized mining companies, they have been plunging about wildly in the hope of some day "striking it rich" never stopping to think for one instant that the greater part of their money never reaches the ground, as a rule 75 per cent. of the money invested in stock schemes goes into the broker's hands. He pays his salesmen 20 to 50 per cent. on every dollar turned in, he must get his own commission and engineers must be paid.

We never had associated with us a stock salesman, we require no commission and our engineers will be our directors, so that every dollar invested with us on this proposition will be honestly used in the purchasing and development of the different properties.

We are now offering for subscription the first allottment of stock in THE LARDER LAKE EXPLORATION AND DEVELOPMENT COMPANY—every hundred shares entitles the holder to forty shares of stock in each of the subsidiary companies to be incorporated, making in all 200 shares of stock in five separate companies, which, as soon as development work is started and dividends announced, will make the stock of the Larder Lake Exploration and Development Company almost invaluable. This first allotment of only 50,000 shares ($1.00 par value) will probably be largely over-subscribed in a few days.

The next allottment will be put out Sept 25, 1907, at 75c per share or higher.

This price (15c.) will positively be withdrawn Aug. 8, 1907. If this allottment is over-subscribed remittances will be promptly returned. Checks, drafts and money orders must accompany all applications and be made payable to the financial agents.

Interim certificates will be promptly returned to subscribers. The stock certificates of the Company representing the shares purchased will be issued and delivered as soon as allottment can be made, after the 8th of August, to all subscribers who purchase at the first underwriting price prior to that date.

Don't wait! Be wise! Act NOW! NOW IS THE TIME! Here is an opportunity that excels that which you had two or three years ago at Cobalt. Perhaps you will say as you did then, "How do we know they have got any silver up there? Perhaps you say now "How do you know there is any gold at Larder Lake?"

Militia Orders of Local Interest

In the current list of Militia Orders published, there are some notices of local interest, among which are the following:

Cavalry, 3rd "Prince of Wales" Canadian Dragoons," Major G. Hall is transferred to the Corps Reserve, with rank of captain.

45th Victoria Regiment — To be captain, Lt. M. A. Germain, vice Capt. J. McN McCrae, transferred to the reserve. To be provisional lieutenant, Sergt. William James Thorn. To be provisional lieutenant (supernumerary) Sergt. Bruce Holmes Hopkins.

County Grants Have Been Increased

Mr. E. M. Elliott, the capable and efficient county clerk and treasurer, has received the annual grant from the government for county schools in the county. He has not, as yet, given any of this money to the treasurers of any of the schools. It will probably be a couple of months before the money will be received by the section treasurers.

COPPER A 5c. POSSIBILITY

Always the persons who make fortunes are those who seize opportunities. Trudge along in the conventional rut and you will never get away from the counter or the desk.

Fortunes—the greatest mining fortunes in the world—are being made to day by the men who own Copper Mines. You couldn't buy stock in one of the big paying, developed mines. You CAN buy stock in a mine undergoing development, and if you BUY IN THE RIGHT PLACE the fortune will come.

I want you to come in and see me about the proposition I have in the Guggenheim Greenwater Copper Company's two properties at Ely and at Greenwater, Nevada. The recent copper finds at Ely are attracting the interest of a whole continent. The property which this Company owns there is in the best section. The workings are now down fifty feet, and the prospect brightens with every foot. The manager tells me he expects to strike it rich any day. So soon as he does, up goes the stock with a bound.

I still can offer a limited number of shares at 5 cents each. It's the easiest chance at a fortune you've ever had. See me about it at once.

PICKPOCKETS OFF FOR THE CENTRAL

The Three Convicted Dips, Well Manacled, Taken to do Their Time in the Toronto Stone Government Building.

Yesterday a sad scene was enacted at the C P R station, when the three pickpockets, Charles Phelps, Harry Goldfarb and Roy Bradford together with a young man charged with and convicted of vagrancy, named Bert Newman, given six months as a vagrant alighted on the rear platform, in charge of Central Prison Keeper, Philip Swiser. There was little or no chance of their escape as they were all handcuffed, wrist to wrist, and besides that a chain of considerable strength ran from No. one to No. four through the handcuff of each, thus binding the whole together into one component part.

In conversation with Guard Swiser The Times man asked, "What kind of work will these men be put at on arrival at the Central?" To this, Mr. Swiser replied, "Why we put them as near as possible to their former occupations." In reply The L. Times man asked, "Surely to goodness you don't have a class or gang engaged in picking pockets at the Central?" Mr. Swiser smiled and said, "Well, you know these men have only been found guilty of picking pockets. That does not prove that such was their former occupation." At the station, Phelps asked The Times man if he had "any cigars or a flask in your pocket." Our representative blushed and replied that whilst in case of going where rattlesnakes might be numerous he might bring a flask he never bought cigars. The chained-together quartette mounted the smoking car just before the train pulled out. If the lady whom it was alleged, in an evening contemporary, took so much interest in Bradford or some other of these light fingered gentry, wishes to help them out she might send some old magazines or other reading matter. Just as the prisoners got on the train Phelps turned back and said, "Say, if any of you guys want to do us a good turn send us some magazines or reading matter up to the Central."

Salvation Army Band on a Tour

Splendid Local Musical Organization to Visit Outside Towns

The Salvation Army band will leave on the baseball team's special train to Port Hope, this afternoon. It will be the first of the band's ten day's outing and they will give the first concert in the lakeside town in the evening. The Salvation Army Band has been selected by the provincial officer in Montreal, who has charge of Eastern Ontario and Quebec, to visit several towns and cities in this district for the purpose of arousing the people to a greater interest and sympathy in the work of the army and to show the people what a real Salvation Army Band can do.

This is the first time the Peterborough band has been given a tour to any extent and it is betting dollars to cancelled postage stamps that Peterborough's splendid musical organization will meet with rounds of well earned applause wherever or whenever they play.

While away the band will visit eight towns and render fourteen concerts, including one in Peterborough a week from Monday, when they return home. The program is as follows:

Port Hope, Saturday night, concert in the town hall.

Cobourg on Sunday; program will be rendered in the afternoon and the rest of the day will be devoted to services.

Trenton on Monday, afternoon and evening concerts.

Picton on Tuesday, afternoon and evening concerts.

On Wednesday take the boat to Belleville, afternoon and evening concerts.

Campbellford on Thursday evening; concert.

Napanee on Friday evening; concert.

Tweed on Saturday evening; concert. Remain there over Sunday and give concert Sunday afternoon.

Monday morning will arrive in Peterborough and render program in evening in Army barracks on Simcoe street.

Solemn Ceremony at Mount St. Joseph

Several Young Ladies will Take Obligations Denying Futher Worldly Connections

On Thursday of next week, an interesting ceremony will be in evidence at Mount St Joseph, when the annual reception of novices into the Sisterhood of St Joseph will take place There are over a dozen young ladies who will take their final vows. They have been living at Mt St Joseph as novitiates, preparing themselves for the solemn obligation they are about to take. The number who will make their final vows next Thursday, is about the same as in former years, in fact a little larger than the average.

The sisters are now holding their annual retreat, the special preacher for the occasion being Rev. Father Keelan, of Saratoga Springs, N.Y. Father Keelan will also preach at the annual reception on Thursday of next week.

The "taking of the veil" is always a most interesting event and is attended by a large number of persons. It is a day of great significance and solmenity to those entering the sisterhood as the obligation means renouncing the world for ever.

Maskinonge was Starved by Hooks

Ernie Brownecombe while fishing at Stony Lake a few days ago, saw a huge lunge floating on the water. He paddled over to where it was and found that the big fish was dead. In its mouth was a large chub minnow with several hooks attached. The lunge had apparently grasped the fake minnow in its mouth, and in struggling to get away, broke the line. However, the fish could not have been able to get the bait out of its mouth and must have starved or smothered to death.

World Drying Up

Geologists Say Fresh Water Supply of the Globe is Failing

London Aug. 10.—We are in sight of thirst. Comparatively few persons know the suffering involved in a thirst for which there is no help at hand. The consuming thirst, more than the pain of any wound, [illegible] a hell yet death be [illegible] to the doom foretold for the race by [illegible] scientists, Geologists find that [illegible] fresh water supply of the globe is failing. They have [illegible] which point to the gradual withdrawal of the streams and other bodies of water from the surface. Both in Africa and central Asia, and, indeed, in all the great levels, the water beds are drying up. A great number of lakes well known to the historical age, have entirely disappeared. For example, Lake Chirona, in Africa, has vanished within the past 30 years as has also Lake Ngami, discovered by Livingstone. Lake Tchad is more than half dried up. For centuries bodies of water in central Asia have been evaporating and the deserts extending. Where 2000 years ago great cities stood in East Turkestan, there are found only vast and dreary expanses of sand. The River Tarim, once a principal Asiatic route, is almost gone, and Lob-Nor, formerly four times the area of Lake Geneva is now but a shallow marsh. The same sad conditions are noted in European Russia. Novgorod, the most pushing city in the Czar's distracted realm, was surrounded by water in the middle ages. While we may be sure that the fate which the geologists suggest for humanity is very far away, the facts recited to show the drying up process are convincing proofs of the need of preserving our forests with more care.

$5,000,000 for New Life

New York, Aug. 10.—That John D. Rockefeller will live to be more than ninety years of age is the prediction of Dr. H. F. Biggarm his family physician. "He is adding to his muscle, to his lungs, to his heart power with every breath of fresh air he takes on Forest Hill.

The doctor says it cost Mr. Rockefeller $5,000,000 for his second life. Mr. Rockefeller came to Cleveland in 1893 in the middle of the panic period, completely broken in health and spirit.

CASABLANCA STREETS PILED WITH DEAD

The Refugees from Casablanca Tell of Horrible Slaughter of Jews and Maltreatment of Women by Arabs and Moorish Soldiers

Paris, Aug. 10.—A message received here from Admiral Philibert off Casablanca, Morocco, probably forwarded from his flagship by wireless telegraphy and dated at two o'clock yesterday afternoon, says: "General Drude's camp outside Casablanca was attacked today by 5,000 to 6,000 horsemen, who were vigorously beaten off.

CASABLANCA IN RUINS.

Tangier, Aug. 10.—The fanatics and hostile tribesmen who invaded the city have been driven out with the French cruiser Forbin. All the Europeans and others who sought refuge on the steamers in the bay have returned to their homes. Much of the city of Casablanca is practically in ruins as a result of the bombardment, even the European quarter having extensively damaged, the warships having directed the fire of their guns on that part of Casablanca with the object of ending the extensive looting in which the Moors were revelling. The bodies of those who were killed in the recent fighting have since been piled up in the streets, and are being buried as quickly as possible.

Four battalions of Spanish infantry, with rapid fire guns, which have been stationed at Algeciras, near Gibraltar, have been ordered to proceed to Morocco.

KILLING ON ALL SIDES.

Tangier, Aug. 10.—Horrible details of the slaughter of Jews, the maltreatment of women and the pillage and burning of shops at Casablanca are told by passengers who arrived here last night by steamer from that port. They say that after the bombardment at the place began both the Moorish soldiers and the Arabs revenged themselves on the inhabitants, plundering, killing and burning on all sides. They sacked the custom house and burned a large part of the city, whose streets are so filled with decomposing bodies that an epidemic is threatened.

Among the Jews killed was a man under the protection of the British Consulate. His sisters were assaulted and carried off by Moors.

The town of Cape Juby, on the west coast of Africa, was attacked and raided by the Aitiyuna and Aitdjemat tribes. A number of the garrison were killed and the remainder were made prisoners. The governor escaped in a boat to the fort on Fuerteventura Island, opposite Cape Juby. The rebel tribesmen completely looted Cape Juby.

Paris, Aug. 10.—It is feared that the events at Casablanca will produce an outburst of fanaticism throughout Morocco, though the Government's representatives say that no undue fervescence has thus far occurred at Fez or other places in the interior. In addition to the French squadron commanded by Admiral Philibert and the Spanish warships which are off Casablanca, the squadron commanded by Admiral Jaureguiberry, consisting of the armored cruisers Leon Gambetta, Duguettit, Thouars and Admiral Aube, is being temporarily held off Cape Spartel in order to meet any emergency.

Take In the Game At Port Hope Today

Manager Johnston's ball tossers leave for Port Hope this afternoon by special train to play the game of their lives against the leaders in the Midland League.

The boys are out to win which they will be compelled to do to be in the running for the championship. The team has put in a good week's practice and are playing winning ball, and are prepared to exert themselves to the utmost. Take in the trip and see one of the hardest fought games ever played in the Midland league. The Port Hope fans are banking on their team to win although they recognize the local bunch as the fastest nine they have ever been up against.

Great interest is being taken in this game by other nearby towns and excursions are being run from Oshawa and Cobourg to enable the fans to witness the game. A special train will also leave the G.T.R. station here at two o'clock, returning at seven.

The following players will represent Peterborough.

The Horse Industry In This Country

The Ontario Government has just issued their report for 1906 on the special investigation regarding horse breeding in the Province of Ontario. This comprehensive work devotes some three pages to the horse market and general condition of this city and county. It reports a marked improvement in the townships of Belmont, Methuen and Dummer, saying, "There is evidence of more intelligent interest being taken by farmers in horse breeding. The chapter referred to advocates stallion inspection and a license fee as the only form of legislation likely to improve the present state of the horse industry. Included in the number of high grade stallions inspected at this city were 5 pure bred Clydesdales and seven grades, eight pure bred Shires, a German coach horse, 3 pure bred and 2 two grade standard breds, a Percheron, a French-Canadian, a pure bred and a grade Hackney and a thoroughbred. Horsemen are fairly all a unit in asking that steps be taken to banish the scrub stallions. In the townships of South Monaghan, North and Ennismore are no less than 3 well bred stallions.

HENRY PARR BUYS FARM FOR A HOME

And is Raising Crops and Improving the Place in the Hope That His Young Bride Will Eventually Come to Help Him There.

Elora, Ont., Aug. 9.—"Here is a home for her," said Henry Parry, the boy-husband of Ellen Maria Fasken aged 18, to a newspaper correspondent yesterday morning.

He had been working in the hay in his barn. A straw hat was on his head; he wore neither coat nor vest and his shirt was open at the throat.

"I am not afraid of work," he added with a smile, though the merriment was somewhat forced. He looked young fully as young as his years. He will be 20 in December, he said.

The reference to a home was in answer to a question as to where he wanted his child wife.

HE WANTS JUSTICE.

"Have the courts separated us?" he asked on his own account, and he seemed anxious. He was informed that the application for annulment of the marriage was still pending at Osgoode Hall. Young Parr was told, too, that Hugh Guthrie of Guelph, had been appointed his guardian, as he is a minor.

"All I want is justice," declared Parr "My lawyer read some reports sent by Mr. Fasken's lawyer, and in them I was charged with deceit. Now I am willing my character should be judged from what people in general say of me Go to Elora or wherever I am known and hear what they say. I have lived a decent life. I don't drink. I smoke some, but that's not so very bad

BOUGHT A FARM

"I bought this farm near Alma in February last and I'm paying for it. You can see the crops, good barley, fair oats, fine turnips, etc. I have three horses, nine or ten cows This is the old Mapletop farm and I am going to work it up again."

The house, a frame one, was comfortable inside, apparently, though not lavishly furnished. His sister and a cousin were there.

"My sister has been taking care of me," explained Parr.

There was a small orchard in the yard but the outside in general was not ornamental

"I have been fixing the fences a bit," he continued. "And will do more as I go along."

He was looking at the chinks in the barn as he spoke.

MET AT HER FATHER'S HOUSE

"I met my wife for the first time about three years ago and it was at her father's house. I was helping him with his threshing, and well she took to me and I liked her. We met pretty often after that. She was at the Elora High school and I used to meet her after school and walked part of the way home with her along the track. I was working for my father but I could get away in the winter time, and for that matter I got away pretty often at other seasons Occasionally she would be absent from school and then we went driving. Besides week days we met on Sunday. Her people being Methodists, she attended the Bethany Sunday school. Her sister aged about 10 was always with her, but the little girl never told.

"I was in the habit of meeting her at the school house where we would talk for a while then she and her sister would go home. Mr. Fasken learned of our walks from school along the track, and I stayed away from the house after that until our marriage.

ORDERED OUT OF HOUSE.

"When I went then Mr. Fasken ordered me out of the house.

"How did we come to be married? "Well she was as anxious to marry as I was and I believe we thought as much of me as I did of her. I can't say whether I suggested marriage or she did. At any rate it was agreed between us that we should be married by the English church clergyman Rev. Mr. Morgan, now of Colborne. We were married on April 19, 1906, but the week before had been set originally. We found, however, that the horse show was to be held on the early date and so changed our plans On the day of our marriage she met me in Elora before the ceremony, and asked me to walk down to the rocks with her. 'I want to speak to you,' she said I went with her and she told me that from talks with her mother she was afraid that our marriage could not be kept secret in Elora

"Something was said about going to Toronto to be married However, we went to Mr Morgan's and I told him that we did not want the marriage to be known for a time. Now, while at the Rocks I had said to her 'If you would rather not marry there is time to draw back' and she had said, 'I did not want to draw back,' and we were married. When we separated she did give me the ring and the marriage certificate, but what else could she do? I met her at the church the following Sunday and there was no chance in her manner toward me.

"Apart from the times I have mentioned, I have not seen her since our marriage except once or twice when her mother has been with her. I don't think she is ever out alone now.

"I am doing the best I can and when I am as old as Mr Fasken I may be worth as much as he is.

"I don't think for a moment that my wife dislikes me If she were let alone there would be no trouble. We were pretty certain when we were married that we couldn't go to housekeeping right away, but I thought I could rent a farm and that we might live together before long.

"I am opposed to annulling our marriage. Of course, I am. She is my wife. They say we were too young and are too young still. Is it because I am too young or because my people are poor? I heard they were down at Ottawa trying to part us."

FOUR THOUSAND AT STURGEON PT. REGATTA

A Good Number of Entries for a Complete List of Events

Lindsay, Aug. 10.—The Sturgeon Point regatta, the great event in this district during the summer season, was blessed with beautiful weather and an attendance totalling up close to 4,000, including a party of over 200 from Chemong, as well as visitors from Lindsay, Peterborough, Fenelon Falls, Bobcaygeon, Rosedale and other points up and down the river.

The list of events was a very complete one, the entries were good, and the prizes on a par with the events.

The judges are; J. D. Flavelle, G. H. Hopkins, R. A. Miller, J. M. Knowlson, D. Cinnamon, W. Wallace Jones, Dr. R. T. Allan and Dr. Shields.

Another Goldfield Proven Proposition

Great Opportunity for a Lucrative Investment

The word "Goldfield" conjures up in the public mind thoughts of rapidly made money, and quickly won fortunes. There is no contradicting the fact that the Goldfield, Nevada district, has made more fortunes for those getting in on the ground floor than any similar part of this footstool

Now there are yet good opportunities to make money in the Goldfield district The Brown-Bonanza Mining Co., incorporated under the laws of Arizona, with a capital stock of $1,000,000, non assessable and with a par value of $1 per share, are offering their stock, for a limited time only at 10 cents per share.

The management of this concern are gentlemen of standing as noted in the advertisement in this issue. The company owns four claims, comprising 80 acres of proven lands in the Goldfield District. Their claims include the Accidental and Accidental No 2 lode claims, some two and one-half miles south of the well-known Goldfield Consolidated Mines, including the Mohawk, Goldfield, combination, Red Top and other paying propositions. The company has also secured the Sure Thing claim in the Cuprite district

For full particulars as to stock, now offered at 10 cents, par value $1, write Adams F. Brown, 40 Columbia street, or P.O. Box 078 Goldfield, Nevada.

Spring Water for the House of Refuge

The county council met yesterday at the House of Refuge, Lakefield, for the purpose of considering the water supply It has been found that the roof surface does not catch sufficient water for washing purposes, and the cistern has gone dry. The well also has proved disappointing.

There is an excellent spring on the farm just across the road, which has never yet been known to fail It is there that the water will likely be got. This will mean that it will have to be pumped a distance of 500 feet, but the supply will be reliable. An estimate places the extra cost at about $500, bringing the total cost of the water system up to about $1,000.

MARS NOT INHABITED

Noted Astronomer, Now at Bergeley, Disagrees with Theories of Star-Gazers

Berkeley, Aug. 10.—Professor Simon Newcomb, astronomer at the United States Naval Observatory at Washington, in a lecture at Hearst Hall last night declared that it was his opinion that the planet Mars was not inhabited. He doubtedd the existence of animal life in the far away world because of the intense cold, which atmospheric observations indicated. He disapproves of the theory that some astronomers have held for years that Mars is inhabited by beings superior to ourselves in civilization.

"There are no clouds on the surface of Mars, and the temperature of the planet is as cold as liquid air," said the eminent astronomer. "The surface is covered with snow, which melts as the sun shines on the planet.

Concerning the canals on Mars, some astronomers hold, as Lowell, that they are irrigation waterways for the use of the people of the planet on account of the lack of water on Mars. This, however, may be a mistake on the part of Lowell, as a Japanese artist showed. He showed that the supposed canals on the surface of the planet may not be anything but irregular lines, which seen at a distance seem to have a regular outline and symmetry of purpose."

Continuing the speaker said; "If there should be an atmosphere on Mars it would be thinner than that on the surface of the earth and would have the same temperature as the tops of the Himalaya mountains."

The big auditorium was comfortably filled with an interested audience.

Mr. J. H. Burnham Agrees with Magistrate Dumble.

During yesterday's session of the Juvenile Court, when quite a number of small boys were charged with and found guilty of stealing various kinds of goods, His Worship Mr D. W. Dumble, called attention to the way the present law relating to juvenile offenders hampering magistrates sentencing boys below 11 years of age. Mr. Dumble remarked, "The law as it now stands is breeding criminals." Then Mr. J. H. Burnham, who stood by the magisterial desk, on hearing these words, turned to the press reporters and said, "Gentlemen, you might make a note of that and we will have the matter brought to the notice of the attorney general." His Worship concurred in this idea.

It seems, as Mr. Dumble explained to a Times representative, after the court had adjourned, that "the present law treats boys as though they were made of brittle glass, it mollycoddles and wraps them in cotton wool." He continued by showing that magistrates were sometimes accused, by such of the general public as do not know the law regarding juvenile criminals, with dealing too eminently with boys, especially with boys who have been again and again clearly proven guilty of theft and again clearly proven guilty of theft and other crimes. What can we do?" asked Mr Dumble. "Boys whenn arrested for crime cannot be tried in public like adults, When found guilty they must either be allowed to go on suspended sentence or sent to a reformatory or handedd over to some charity as the Children's Shelter." Boys have come to regard "suspended sentence" as a farce. This was clearly proven a few days ago when a boy out on suspended sentence was within a week again arrested for a similar offence. If the boy is sent to a reformatory if breaks his family connection for several years, at the time home influences might, if properly exercisedd, do the most good in bending the boy's future character and disposition. It is in nearly every case an expense to the city or municipality when a boy is sent to an industrial school or reformatory. Thus the only option, as boys of such age cannot be committed to jail, left a magistrate in letting him go on suspended sentence. Mr. Dumble yesterday again called attention to the fact that the law should be amended so as to allow incorrigible boys or juvenile criminals to be sentenced to so many lashes with a "cawe" or strap. Such flogging administered by a police officer, who would be actuated by no the anger nor personal interest in the case, and preferably in the presence of the boy's father, would do more to deter lads from petty theft than a hundredd boys being convicted and allowed to go on that almost farcical punishment, suspended sentence. It would do far more good towarddss keeping boys in the straight and narrow path of honesty and decency than a flogging administered by a father who, at the time of inflicting punishment, might be in a temper and do lasting injury to the boy's frame. The moral lesson taught by a judicial and judicious flogging by an officer would also carry more weight in the boy's memory, as it would teach other boys who knew of it, than would kicks or slaps given by a parent in a temper. It is to be hoped that parliament will entrust magistrates with the power of sentencing incorrigible boys to 20 or 30 lashes with a strap, and thus save many a growing lad from a life of crime, and at the same time educate a respect for law. With very few exceptions, it would be perfectly safe to entrust this power in the hands of our Provincial magistrates. It would most assuredly be safe as far as this city and county are concerned.

PUT POISON IN THE MORNING MEAL

And Eight or Nine Calgary People Were Taken Ill--Chinaman Arrested

Regina, Aug. 9.—A sensation was caused in the city today by the news that a number of boarders at W. J. Steele's restaurant had been poisoned by solution of arsenic in porridge. It appears Proprietor Steele lent a quantity of oatmeal yesterday to the Chinese proprietor of an adjacent eating house. The oatmeal was duly returned, and Steele used some to cook the morning meal. Mrs. Steele and eight or nine guests ate of the porridge, and almost immediately afterwards were seized with pains. Doctors Thompson and Meek saved them, though three of the sufferers, Harry Stewart, Cyrus Winters and John Fortune, are yet in danger.

The unused oatmeal was confiscated and a portion submitted to Dr. Charlton, who certified to the presence of arsenic. The Chinaman, known hereas "Mac," was arrested. It is said that an invoice shows he purchased two weeks ago a quantity of oatmeal, all of which had not been used. What valid reason he had to borrow oatmeal, with a stock already in his possession, remains a mystery.

Declared the Marriage Null

Toronto, Aug 10—The following is the text of the judgment of Judge Mabee in the case in which the marriage of Henry Parr of Elora, was declared null and void.

1 Upon motion for judgment made this day unto this court by counsel for the plaintiff, in the presence of counsel for the guardian appointed herein for the defendant by the order of the Chief Justice of the King's Bench made herein, dated the 25th day of July, 1907, upon hearing read the pleadings in this action and the affidavits of the plaintiff and the above-named William Fasken filed and upon hearing counsel aforesaid

2 This court doth declare and adjudge that the marriage solemnized between the plaintiff and defendant, on the 19th day of April, A.D., 1906, is null and void, and that no valid marriage was effected or entered into between the plaintiff and defendant

And this court doth further order and adjudge that the defendant do forthwith deliver up to be cancelled the certificate of solemnization of marriage.

4 And this court doth further order and adjudge that the license issued by George H. Pringle, issuer of marriage licenses, bearing the date the 7th day of April, 1905, to solemnize the marriage between the plaintiff and the defendant, is null and void

5 And this court doth further order and adjudge that all records of the issue of the said license and of the solemnization of the said marriage be rectified by the officer or person in charge thereof, by endorsing thereon a memorandum of the date and effect of this judgment.

6 And this court doth further order and adjudge that leave be reserved to the plaintiff to apply to have the defendant perpetually restrained from molesting or in any way interfering with the plaintiff or communicating with or attempting to communicate with the plaintiff either personally or in writing or otherwise on the setting of the said marriages, if occasion for such application should arise

7 This court doth not see fit to make any order as to the costs of this action.

Pale Faced Girls

Thousands Using Successful Cure For Paleness and Anaemia.

At night she is restless, she dozes, but doesn't sleep soundly.

Vital force must be increased, new blood must be applied and a general rebuilding take place before she will feel like she ought.

Dr. Hamilton had invaluable experience in these cases and found nothing so prompt in building up the young women as his vegetable pills of Mandrake and Butternut.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills begin by cleansing the system and purifying the blood; they also improve digestion and render food ready for absorption. Additional nourishment is quickly supplied and the patient is fast strengthened and invigorated.

"In using Dr. Hamilton's Pills I find my system is wonderfully built up. It is certainly the most effective remedy I ever used. I have now a good appetite, sleep more soundly and awaken in the morning feeling quite refreshed.

"Formerly I felt tired and depressed. I looked as if a severe illness was hanging over my head.

"Nothing could give quicker results than Dr. Hamilton's Pills and I strongly advise every young woman to use them."

All dealers sell Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. per box or five boxes for $1, by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S. A., and Kingston, Ont.

WHAT DO VACATION DAYS MEAN TO YOU?

"Almost every self-supporting girl," writes Mrs. Anna Steese Richardson in the August number of the Woman's Home Companion, when asked what her idea of a vacation is, will reply: "A time when I can do just as I please no rules for me to follow." And when there are no hours for me to observe, no rules for me to follow." And when you figure with the average woman wage-earner on fifty weeks of work and and two of vacation, you can hardly pronounce her definition narrow or selfish. In reality, however, her vacation means much more than this, and in the end she is not satisfied with these privileges alone. The habit of labor is strong, and after the first reaction, which comes with release from daily toil, she finds that the right to do just as she pleases palls upon her. So the girl accustomed to a daily routine of office, store or factory duty, finds that the condition of having nothing to do becomes irksome. She is cloyed with the sweetness of realization. Ninety girls out of every hundred, returning to business after a vacation, admit honestly that they are glad to get back in harness. Once rested they missed the regular routine. They could not settle down to doing nothing gracefully. Within bounds, this is a normal, healthy state, but when the worker frets every minute she is away from her post, it means that her nerves are sadly strained and she is unfit for business. If you do not feel rested at the end of a fortnight's vacation, if you feel that business is hateful to you, and all buoyancy has left you, then some thing is wrong. Either you need more rest, more relaxation to recuperate your nerves, or you are not meant to be a business girl. The real dyed-in-the-wool business girl hungers for her work as a born housewife yearns to minister to the physical welfare of her family.

INCREASE IN MUNICIPAL INDEBTNESS

In the course of his budget speech last session, Hon. Mr. Matheson called attention to the rapid increase in municipal indebtedness in Ontario, and warned those responsible for this increase of the necessity of getting down to a lower pace. Renewed interest has been aroused in the subject spoken of by the Provincial Treasurer by the recent publication by the Bureau of Industries, of "Statistics of Ontario Municipalities." These statistics show that the municipal debenture debt of the Province increased by over $33,000,000 from 1895 to 1904, upwards of $10,000,000 of he increase having taken place since 1896.

It is interesting to learn from a closer investigation of the figures given just where the responsibility for this increase lies. It rests almost wholly upon he urban municipalities, says the Sun. Between 1895 and 1904 the liabilities of township municipalities, including floating debt, increased by only $81,000. In the same time $9,000,000 was added to the liabilities (also including floating debt), of village annd town municipalities, while the indebtedness of city municipalities was increased by $11,000,000. These figures become all the more significant when it is remembered that the population of townships is equal to the population of cities, towns, and villages combined.

The worst feature of it is that the effects of extravagance in urban government are not confined to urban municipalities. Residents of cities and towns dominate our Provincial and Dominion Parliaments, and they carry to these bodies the inflated ideas prevalent in their homes. Hence it is that Provincial and Dominion expenditures are so rapidly increasing. This latter tendency could be quickly checked if the townships would but assert themselves and use the power they possess.

Japan Makes Great Addition to Area

Move in Korea Practically Increases Domain by 90,000 Square Miles

London, Aug. 8.—The Spectator, in an article on the coup d'etat at Seoul, says that Japan has made the first great addition to her dominion, increasing her area by 90,000 square miles and her population by about 12,000,000. The changes will all be to the benefit of the Koreans, both in regard to better and more efficient government, and sufficient exploitation of their natural resources and rapid development of their commerce.

"But," says the Spectator, "it also means much more. Japanese statesmen are intent on making their island empire very powerfull in the world, and the great peninsula will provide them with additional means for, under a wise and strong government, Korea can be made to pay its way, and its people to provide recruits, who, if not wholly equal to the Japanese as soldiers, may still be most useful in the conflict.

Washington will, perhaps, be anxious for she is undoubtedly jealous for her own prospects of the ascendency in the Pacific, as well as for the safety of the Pacific mouth of the canal which she is engaged in cutting through Panama, but the United States will not plunge into the unknown by resisting Japanese expansion within an area so peculiarly her own.

NO ANNEXATION.

Seoul, Korea, Aug. 8.—Marquis Ito has issued the following statement:

"The agreement reached is a great relief to both nations, and insures mutual welfare. Though unrest has existed, the country has quieted since an agreement has been arrived at. Troops asked for in the beginning of the trouble are now arriving. This is a necessary precaution, in view of the existence of several thousand Korean troops. A large Japanese garrison will be required hereafter, in order to prevent the possibility of danger from Korean troops. The stipulations of the new convention dispose of the accusations that Japan intended gradually to annex Korea."

Guards have been placed along the railways throughout the country. Regular troops are patrolling all the streets of the city. There has been rioting among the Korean troops here and the police have been attacked. Japanese residences were destroyed and six of their occupants injured. The others were driven to take refuge on boats.

Evelyn Thaw's Friend Safe

A schoolmate of Evelyn Thaw is a guest at the Chemong Park Hotel. Her name is Miss Verna Toffee. She is perfectly safe as far as the citizens of Peterborough are concerned, from any approaches, notwithstanding her presumed beauty. We are different in this section from the great hurly-burly of New York City, where a pretty woman can hardly walk down Broadway, 5th Avenue, 14th street, or such leading thoroughfares without some man with his daddy's dollars impelling him to insult any woman he meets. Here in Peterborough we judge a woman by her conduct and record not by the appearance, whether real or artificial, she presents. Whilst this Canada of ours may be behind the age in certain lines of deep finance, thank God, we have the deepest regard for pure womanhood!

The Money That's Being Made in Western Canada LAND

In October, 1906 we sold 5,000 acres of Saskatchewan lands to an Indiana party of men at $8 per acre, and resold it this year at $12, making just about 100 per cent. on the money invested.

A Montreal party of men who bought 10,000 acres from us at $8 per acre last September, resold through us within three months at $10.00 per acre.

A Chicago client writes us, that after making some improvements on a section she bought near Regina, one year ago, she sold out recently for exactly twice what she paid for the land.

We resold a section of land located near Lipton for a man at $18.00 per acre last April, which we sold him in December at $12.00.

Western Canada Lands offer the greatest opportunity this continent has ever known

Men there are growing wealthy who never knew success in any other line. You can make money here too, if you think your amount too small club it with a few friends. Some of the most prominent financial men in the United States and Eastern Canada are now interested in this country heavily.

We own about 200,000 acres of the finest wheat and mixed farming lands in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.—Picked lands on which we are prepared to give accurate trustworthy information, and these tracts being portions of extremely large purchases, we can sell them at prices that cannot be equalled, quality of land considered, by any firm in this country.

Prices range from $6.00 per acre upwards Reasonable Terms in every case

We write for further information but when doing so tell us the class and amount of an investment you desire, and whether you want the land for your own use or for investment purposes only. $1,000 is about the minimum we can handle. References Union Bank and Traders' Bank, Winnipeg.

SIREN WAFERS DEVELOP THE BUST

SHE'S A QUEEN! SHE'S A SIREN!

Is an expression that is always heard at sight of a well developed woman. If you are flat chested, with BUST undeveloped, a scrawney neck, thin lean arms — the above remark will never be applied to you. "SIREN" wafers will make you beautiful, bewitching. They DEVELOP the BUST in a few weeks from 3 to 6 inches and produce a fine firm, voluptuous bosom. They fill out the hollow places Make the cheeks plump and rosy, and arms handsome and well molded and the neck and shoulders shapely and of perfect contour.

Send for a bottle today and you'll be pleased and grateful. "SIREN" wafers are absolutely harmless, pleasant to take and convenient to carry around. They are sold under guarantee to do all we claim or MONEY back.

Price $1.00 per bottle. Inquire at good drug stores or send DIRECT to us.

FREE!

During the next 30 days only—we will send you a sample bottle of these beautifying wafers on receipt of 10 cents to pay cost of packing and postage if you will mention that you saw the Advertisement in this paper. The sample alone may be sufficient if defects are trivial.

This is a straight Business Undertaking.

The Smelting of Ore is the safest and most profitable business in the world.

We have fifteen mining properties, located in Kern County, California, carrying good values in Gold, Silver and Copper.

The smelter nearest to us is at Needles, 250 miles distant.

We propose to install on our properties a smelter to treat the ores from our own mines and to do custom smelting for others.

50 per cent. per annum is a moderate estimate of the profits we can earn. If you want to make a safe and profitable investment send for full information and investigate our proposition.

COPPER A 5c. POSSIBILITY

Always the persons who make fortunes are those who seize opportunities. Trudge along in the conventional rut and you will never get away from the counter or the desk.

Fortunes—the greatest mining fortunes in the world—are being made to day by the men who own Copper Mines. You couldn't buy stock in one of the big-paying, developed mines. You CAN buy stock in a mine undergoing development, and if you BUY IN THE RICHT PLACE the fortune will come.

I want you to come in and see me about the proposition I have in the Guggenheim Greenwater Copper Company's two properties at Ely and at Greenwater, Nevada. The recent copper finds at Ely are attracting the interest of a whole continent. The property which this Company owns there is in the best section. The workings are now down fifty feet, and the prospect brightens with every foot. The manager tells me he expects to strike it rich any day. So soon as he does, up goes the stock with a bound.

I still can offer a limited number of shares at 5 cents each. It's the easiest chance at a fortune you've ever had. See me about it at once.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry must be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made on certain conditions, by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) If the father (or mother) if the father is deceased) of the homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Six months' notice in writing should be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of intention to apply for patent.

THE

CONQUEST of CANAAN

By BOOTH TARKINGTON,
Author of "Cherry," "Monsieur Beaucaire," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1905, BY HARPER & BROTHERS

"She is lovelier than ever, isn't she?"

"Yes, indeed," he answered blankly.

"Would you still risk" - she began, smiling, but, apparently thinking better of it, changed her question: "What is the name of your dog, Mr. Louden? You haven't told me."

"Oh, he's just a yellow dog," he evaded unskillfully.

"Young man!" she said sharply.

"Well," he admitted reluctantly, "I call him Speck for short."

"And what for long? I want to know his real name."

"It's mighty inappropriate, because we're fond of each other," said Joe, "but when I picked him up he was so yellow and so thin and so creeping and so scared that I christened him 'Respectability.'"

They were now opposite the Pike mansion, and, to his surprise, she turned, indicating the way by a touch upon his sleeve, and crossed the street toward the gate, which Mamie and Eugene had entered. Mamie, after exchanging a word with Eugene upon the steps, was already hurrying into the house.

Ariel paused at the gate as if waiting for Joe to open it.

"Don't you know?" she cried. "I'm staying here. Judge Pike has charge of all my property. He was the administrator or something." Then, seeing him chopfallen and aghast, she went on: "Of course you don't know. You don't know anything about me. You haven't even asked."

"You're going to live here?" he gasped.

"Will you come to see me?" she laughed. "Will you come this afternoon?"

He grew white. "You know I can't," he said.

"You came here once. You risked a good deal then just to see Mamie dance by a window. Don't you dare a little for an old friend?"

"All right," he gulped. "Friday."

Mr. Bantry had come down to the gate and was holding it open, his eyes fixed upon Ariel, within them a rising glow. An impression came to Joe afterward that his stepbrother had looked very handsome.

"Possibly you remember me, Miss Tabor?" said Eugene in a deep and impressive voice, lifting his hat. "We were neighbors, I believe, in the old days."

She gave him her hand in a fashion somewhat mannerly, favoring him with a bright, negligent smile. "Oh, quite," she answered, turning again to Joe as she entered the gate. "Then I shall expect you?"

"I'll try," said Joe. "I'll try."

He stumbled away, blindly, and he together interfering clumsily with the comfort of Mr. Pillicuddy, who had stopped in the middle of the pavement to stare glassily at Ariel. Eugene accompanied the latter into the house, and Joe, looking back, understood. Mamie had sent the stepbrother to bring Ariel in—and to keep him from following.

"This afternoon!" The thought took away his breath, and he became paler.

CHAPTER XII.

MAMIE, waiting just inside the door as Ariel and Eugene entered, gave the visitor a pale greeting and a moment later, hearing the wheels of the brougham crunch the gravel of the carriage drive, hurried away down the broad hall and disappeared. Ariel dropped her parasol upon a marble topped table near the door and, removing her gloves, drifted into a room at the left, where a grand piano found shelter beneath crimson plush. After a moment of contemplation she pushed back the coverlet and, seating herself upon the plush covered piano stool (to match), let her fingers run up and down the keyboard once and fall listlessly in her lap as she gazed with deep interest at three life sized colored photographs in carved gilt frames upon the wall she was facing. Judge Pike, Mamie and Mrs. Pike, with her rubies.

"Please don't stop playing, Miss Tabor," said a voice behind her. She had not observed that Eugene had followed her into the room.

"Very well, if you like," she answered, looking up to smile absently at him, and she began to play a rakish little air which, composed by some rattle brain at a cafe table, had lately skipped out of the Moulin Rouge to dispirit itself over Paris. She played it slowly in the minor, with elfish pathos, while he leaned upon the piano, his eyes fixed upon her fingers, which bore few rings none, he observed with an unreasonable pleasure, upon the third finger of the left hand.

"It's one of those simpler Grieg things, isn't it?" he said, sighing gently. "I care for Grieg."

"Would you mind its being Chaminade?" she returned, dropping her eyes to cloak the sin.

"Ah, no; I recognize it now," replied Eugene. "He appeals to me even more than Grieg."

At this she glanced quickly up at him, but more quickly down again, and hastened the time emphatically, swinging the little air into the major.

"Do you play 'The Pilgrim's Chorus?'"

She shook her head.

"Vous aime pas Wagner?" inquired Eugene, leaning toward her.

"Oh, yes," she answered, bending her head far over, so that her face was concealed from him, except the chin, which, he saw with a thrill of inexplicable emotion, was trembling slightly. There were some small white flowers upon her hat, and these shook too. When she turned to him he was surprised to see that she looked astonishingly happy, almost as if she had been struggling with joy instead of pain.

"This chair," she said, sinking into it, "makes me feel at home."

Naturally he could not understand.

"Because," she explained, "I once thought I was going to live in it. It has been reupholstered, but I should know it if I met it anywhere in the world."

"How very odd!" exclaimed Eugene, staring.

"I settled here in pioneer days," she went on, tapping the arms lightly with her finger tips. "It was the last dance I went to in Canaan."

"I fear the town was very provincial at that time," he returned, having completely forgotten the occasion she mentioned, therefore wishing to shift the subject. "I fear you may still find it so. There is not much here that one is in sympathy with intellectually—few people really of the world."

"Few people, I suppose you mean," she said softly, with a look that went deep into his eyes—"few people who really understand one."

Eugene had seated himself on the sill of an open window close by. "There has been," he answered, with the ghost of a sigh, "no one."

Mamie appeared in the doorway, and Eugene rose swiftly. "I have been trying to persuade Miss Tabor," he explained, with something too much of laughter, "to play again. You heard that little thing of Chaminade's"—

Mamie did not appear to hear him. She entered breathlessly, and there was no color in her cheeks. "Ariel," she exclaimed, "I don't want you to think I'm a tale bearer"—

"Oh, my dear!" Ariel said, with a gesture of deprecation.

"No," Miss Pike went on, all in one breath, "but I am afraid you will think it, because papa knows, and he wants to see you."

"What is it that he knows?"

"That you were walking with Joseph Louden!" (This was as if she had said, "That you poisoned your mother.") "I didn't tell him, but when he saw you with him I was troubled and asked Eugene what I'd better do, because he always knows what is best."

"It's one of those simpler Grieg things, isn't it?" he said.

(Mr. Bantry's expression, despite this tribute, was not happy.) "And he advised me to tell mamma about it and leave it in her hands. But she always tells papa everything."

FOOLING A CAMEL.

How the Arabs Let the Animal Exhaust Its Bad Temper.

You all have heard stories about the camel how patient and useful he is on long, hot journeys, so that he is often called the "ship of the desert."

But he has one very bad fault. He likes to "pay back," and if his driver has injured him in any way he will not rest till he has returned the injury.

The Arabs, who wander about the deserts and so use the camel a great deal, know about this fault of his and have a queer way of keeping themselves from getting hurt.

When a driver has made his camel angry, he first runs away out of sight. Then, choosing a place where the camel will soon pass, he throws down some of his clothes and fixes them so that the heap will look like a sleeping man.

Pretty soon along comes the camel and sees the heap. Thinking to himself, "Now I've got him," he pounces on the clothes, shakes them around and tramples all over them. After he is tired of this and has turned away the driver can reappear and ride him away without harm.

Poor silly camel! He has been in what we call "a blind rage," so angry that he can't tell the difference between a man and a heap of clothes.—Mayflower.

Carried It In His Head.

When four years old Mozart played minuets and learned music with facility, and at the age of six he composed a concerto for the harpsichord, which, though written strictly in accordance with the principles and technic of his art, was yet so overloaded with difficulties that it could not be played.

It is related that Mozart once happened to put off some music that he had been engaged to furnish for a court concert so long that he had not time to write out the part which he himself was to perform.

The Emperor Joseph, who was of a curious turn, chanced to be in the composer's studio when he asked: "Where is your part? I do not see it among these sheets of music."

"Here," responded Mozart, touching his forehead.

Weak Women

To weak and ailing women, there is at least one way to help. But with that way, two treatments, must be combined. One is local, one is constitutional, but both are important, both essential.

Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is the Local.

Dr. Shoop's Restorative, the Constitutional.

The former—Dr. Shoop's Night Cure—is a topical mucous membrane physpeutory remedy, while Dr. Shoop's Restorative is wholly an internal treatment. The Restorative reaches throughout the entire system, seeking the repair of all parts, all tissue, and all blood ailments.

The "Night Cure", as its name implies, does its work while you sleep. It soothes sore and inflamed mucous surfaces, heals local weaknesses and discharges, while the Restorative, eases nervous excitement, gives renewed vigor and ambition, builds up wasted tissues, bringing about renewed strength, vigor, and energy. Take Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—as a general tonic to the system. For positive local help, use as well

This Company was formed for the purpose of manufacturing all kinds of Iron, Steel, Metal and Wooden Goods, Agricultural Implements, etc., and to carry on the business of a foundry.

They are now turning out specialties in Ornamental Iron Work, Fences, Crestings, etc., for which there is a great demand far in excess of the present facilities of the Company.

Winnipeg and the West offers an unlimited market for the products, guaranteeing a paying investment from the start.

There is a limited amount of stock for sale, and this opportunity to purchase will not return.

The encouragement, coupled with the unexcelled opportunities open to such an enterprise, are in themselves sufficient guarantee of absolute safety and large profits.

MRS. GERTRUDE McKIERNAN, 216 Neosho street, Emporia, Kas., writes:

"I suffered very much with a severe cold in the head and was always complaining of feeling tired and drowsy. When my mother suggested and insisted on my taking a few bottles of Peruna, I did so, and in a short time I felt like a new person. My mother praises it very highly and so do I."

Confidence in Pe-ru-na.

Mrs. M. F. Jones, Burning Springs, Ky., writes:

"We have been using Peruna for some time and have no hesitancy in recommending it for the thousand and one ailments of humanity.

"From a personal test I shall not hesitate to recommend it, especially to all suffering women.

"Peruna has gained full confidence and a permanent stay in our home."

A Great Tonic.

Mrs. Anna Linder, R. R. 5, Dassell, Minn., writes: "I took Peruna and am well. I would not be without that great tonic for ten times its cost."

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS

DASHES HERE AND THERE BY TIMES' REPORTERS.

Child Buried Yesterday

Yesterday the little child of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. G. Sutherland, 356 Water-street, their only child who was only four months and 19 days of age, was interred in the Little Lake cemtery. Mr. and Mrs. Sutherland's many friends will sympathize with them on their great affliction.

57th Regt. Band in Victoria Park

A large crowd visited Victoria Park last night and heard with great pleasure a splendid program rendered by the 57th Regiment Band. The band turned out in good numbers and played in perfect harmony and delighted the thousands who turned out to hear them.

Printers' Picnic Attracts Notice

Great interest is observable everywhere in the Printers' Picnic on Monday. The baseball game alone will be worth many times the price of admission. The Way "Hutch" will grapple those cannon shot balls will be a clean proof of the dexterity he will catch seven cents worth of news and make three columns out of the same.

Provincial Health Officer Here

Dr Hodgetts, secretary of the Provincial Board of Health, was in the city yesterday on business in connection with his department it is understood that his chief reason in coming to Peterborough, was to ascertain how the regulations for the prevention of filth being deposited in the waters of the northern lakes and Otonabee river are being observed.

IN SHORT FORM FOR BUSY READERS

—Blackberries are a splendid crop near Havelock this August.

—The Building Committee of Park street Baptist church met yesterday evening for the purpose of opening the tenders for the erection of the new church.

—A new directory is being issued by the Canadian Michigan Telephone Company, and will be distributed to the subscribers in a few days The new list will contain about 35 new names

In reply to several enquiries made at The Times yesterday, we might say that it was not License Inspector Jos. Stewart, who laid the information against the local hotelmen yesterday.

—Yesterday Mr. Potvin, an elderly local citizen of French descent, noted to a Times man that a friend of his Thursday, caught a 32-pound lunge just below the Yankee Bonnett.

—The hilt of the sword found in the excavation for the waterworks on Water street will be presented to the Peterborough Historical Society to place in the museum.

There was no band concert in Victoria Park Thursday night by the Salvation Army band, on account of the musicians working hard on the program to be rendered on their tour.

—The Calcutt Brewing and Malting Co., are now running full if not overtime. They are brewing six days a week and very often twice a day This testifies effectually to the appreciation in which the products of this local industry is held among Peterborough consumers.

—Again, Mr. J. Haverson, K.C., Toronto, counsel for the Licensed Victuallers' Protective Association, won out in a case ag inst a local hotelman. As a gentleman remarked after the trial, "That man Haverson is a corker and wins out every time if he has the ghost of a chance."

—Favorable progress is being made with the details in connection with the lease of the old Hilliard homestead to the Children's Aid Society. Negotiations have been opened with Mr. Stenton, the present occupant of the front half of the building, and if he will consent to vacate the house the Society will probably start fixing it up within a short time.

Port Hope Got O'Hearn

It seems that the Port Hopers have got one the best of Manager Arthur Johnston of the local Baseball Batallion. Mr. Johnston wanted to get Jimmy O'Hearne of Toronto, to hold down the second cushion for Saturday's game. Port Hope, however gave him the cross and secured this expert. It is rumored however that Manager Johnston still has a card, whether right bower or that coveted fourth club up his sleeve, that may make the fans sit up and take notice.

Mr. Jas. Collins Gets Good Horse

Mr James Collins, a well known horseman living on the Norwood road, has purchased a valuable young stallion. The deal was put through this week in Lindsay whereby King Keswick, a two-year-old son of the great Keswick family, changed owners The colt has lots of speed and style, and is the very picture of the great sire It should be a valuable horse in the near future. The price paid was $1,100, and Mr. Collins will keep King Keswick for breeding purposes.

$100 REWARD, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood an dmucous surfaces of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer one hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

There is Money in Coal

A Safe Investment in a Proposition That Has Assured Success

It is hardly necessary to tell the householders of Peterborough who burn coal, and who don't, that there is good money for those who handle it, from the mine owner to the retail dealer. Now, there is an opportunity for those who have been paying for coal to get in on the ground floor and participate in the profits so assured. The British Columbia Amalgamated Coal Company controls some 17,500 acres of choice coal lands in the famous Nicola Valley in British Columbia This company has recently acquired 2,000 acres more on the Nicola branch of the C. P. R. It is only a matter of days when this company will begin shipping coal. There are vast and seemingly inexhaustable veins of good coal underlying their acreage. Five seams have already been proven to contain millions upon millions of tons of coal of great depth and width. By getting in on the ground floor in this company, each and every investor has an assured income secured for life and posterority, for generations. The company referred to above is for a limited time only, offering their treasury stock, of a par value of $1 per share, at 15 cents per share. It migat be noted that in 1898 Crow's Nest Pass Coal company's stock sold at 10 cents per share, and to-day is worth $200 per share. Why will not the British Columbia Amalgamated company's shares rise in due proportion.

It is not necessary to pay cash down for such shares as any reader may want to secure; all one has to do is to pay in one fourth of the amount of stock he or she subscribes for and pay the balance in three equal payments in as many months. For full particulars write Messrs Fryer & Co., Investment Brokers, Suite 315 E., Kennedy Bldg., Portage avenue, Winnipeg, Man.

If You Read This

It will be to learn that the leading medical writers and teachers of all the several schools of practice recommend, in the strongest terms possible, each and every ingredient entering into the composition of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for the cure of weak stomach, dyspepsia catarrh of stomach, "liver complaint, torpid liver, or biliousness, chronic bowel affections, and all catarrhal diseases of whatever region, name or nature. It is also a specific remedy for all such chronic or long standing cases of catarrhal affections and their resultants, as bronchial, throat and lung diseases (except consumption) accompanied with severe cough. It is not so good for acute colds and coughs, but for lingering, or chronic case it is especially efficacious in producing perfect cures. It contains Black-cherry bark, Golden Seal root, Bloodroot, Stone root, Mandrake root and Queen's root all of which are highly praised as remedies for all the above mentioned affections by such eminent medical writers and teachers as Prof. Bartholow, of Jefferson Med. College; Prof. Hare, of the Univ. of Pa., Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett M-d. College Chicago; Prof. John King, M. D., of Cincinnati; Prof. John M. Scudder, M. D., of Cincinnati; Prof. Edwin M. Hale, M. D., of Hahnemann Med. College, Chicago, and scores of others equally eminent in their several schools of practice.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" is the only medicine put up for sale through druggists for like purposes, that has any such professional endorsement—would more than any number of ordinary testimonials. Open publicity of its formula is the best possible guaranty of its merits. A glance at this published formula will show that "Golden Medical Discovery" contains no poisonous, harmful or habit-forming drugs and no alcohol—chemically pure, triple-refined glycerine being used instead. Glycerine is entirely unobjectionable and besides is a most useful agent in the cure of all stomach as well as bronchial, throat and lung affections. There is the highest medical authority for its use in all such cases. The "Discovery" is a concentrated glyceric extract of native, medicinal roots and is safe and reliable.

Police Court

Yesterday the first case tried at the Police Court before Magistrate Dumble, was that fo a local hotel, the proprietor of which was charged with having sold liquor in prohibited hours, to wit, after 11 p.m. Several witnesses, including P. C. McDonald, were heard, but the evidence was insufficient to substantiate the charge, which was dismissed.

The court room was then cleared of all but those interested in several juvenile cases. A small boy named Burgoyne, who is no stranger to the court, was charged with stealing $2 from Mr. Frost, the George street merchant. It seems that Mr. Frost gave the boy a $2 bill to go and get changed. Instead of returning with the change, the boy took train for Cobourg, with the Peterborough baseball team and took in the game, together with pop, candy and other edibles instead of taking back the $2 in silver. The Magistrate, who is hampereddd by the present law governing the trial and proper punishment of boys under 14 years of age, could only let him go on suspended sentence or send him to the reformatory. He chose the former course, telling the lad he would be watched by the police. He also instructed the boy's father as to the proper way in which to manufacture a leather corrector, describing minutely how to cut a leather strap into fine strips at one end so it would smart without bruising or breaking bones. He further noted which portion of the boy's anatomy should have an introduction to the laws when made and also as to the proper frame of mind that should govern the boy's father when the latter applied the strap. Mr. Gordon acted for the boy.

The next case tried was that of the former prisoner, Charles Burgoyne, and another smaller boy, Willie Sullivan, who has served time, had the honor(?) of an interview with Police Court rulings. These lads and Charles Burgoyne were chargedd with a large crime, no less than stealing a horse harness and wagon, the property of J. Doig, on Aug. 4th. Mr. Gordon, for the prisoner, pleaded not guilty, explaining that they had often driven the horse for Doig before.

Doig went into the witness box and said at about 10 p.m. some one told him he had seen two boys driving it. Doig had left the horse in the stable and the boys had taken it out. They drove it for about an hour and left it tied up on Aylmer street. They took a rope and whip which witness has not yet recovered.

To Mr. Gordon, Doig said the boys had sometimes helped him hitch the horse before. The boys often took drives with him in the wagon.

The Magistrate enlarged the case until Friday next and said the whip and rope must be paid for. The rope cost 75 cents and the whip 50 cents.

Two more small boys were next charged with stealing a quantity of tomatoes and fruit from in front of Minor's store. The boys, who were clean and well dressed, pleaded guilty. The Magistrate talked to them in a fatherly way, saying, "Don't you feel dirty coming into a Police Court for theft. Now go and don't ever do such a thing again. I don't believe boys you ever will. The boys promised never to steal again and were let go.

Farmers Say Dollar Wheat

Chicago, August 10.— Trustworthy agents, sent all over the wheat country by the Board of Trade, confirm the rumors that the Society of Equity (farmers' union) has elaborated the gigantic plan to hold wheat for a minimum of $1.00 a bushel. Steel tanks, holding thousands of bushels, can be purchased for $150, and the farmers all over the Northwest are supplying themselves with these granaries. It is said that 176,000 members of the union, controlling a large percentage of the crop, have pledged themselves not to part with a bushel of wheat under $1.00 Speculators realize that they are up against a hard proposition, as the farmers are prosperous, and able to hold doff for their price.

Depository ..... JOHN S. COOK & CO.
Bank of Goldfield, Nevada.

This company owns 4 claims (80 acres) of some of the best proven mineral land in the Goldfield district, consisting of the Accidental and Accidental No. 2 fraction claims, situated two and one-half miles south of the great Goldfield Consolidated Mines (comprising the Mohawk, Goldfield, Combination, Red Top, Juanita and Laguna) the richest in the world; and the Broadway and Beauty side claims situated three and one-half miles south of the Consolidated and about one and one-half miles northwest of the Great Bond and Daisy Mines near the Zeon group in the Diamondfield section second only in richness to the great Mohawk portion of the camp.

The company has also succeeded in securing the Sure Thing side claim (20 acres) in the Cuprite district, which has outcroppings equal to anything in Goldfield, showing fine surface values and is without doubt rightly named, "Sure Thing."

All of these claims are located in the same mineral belt as the other noted mines of Goldfield that have astonished the world by their production of millions in high grade ore, and will with the same development give equally profitable returns.

The money derived from the sale of this stock will be used at once for the active development of the property and the fact that all the directors are residents of Goldfield with years of successful mining experience who will give their personal attention at all times to the progress of the work goes to show that the first issue of 100,000 shares will meet with a quick and ready sale at the initial price of 10 cents per share.

We advise immediate action if you wish to participate in the vast profits of this Bonanza Mine.

Stock will be listed as soon as feasible on the Goldfield and San Francisco Stock and Exchange Boards. Would therefore advise purchasers to buy in board lots of 1,000 shares when convenient to do so.

BRAKESMEN WERE BLOWN TO ATOMS

Every Building in Town Rooked--Scores of People More or Less Injured--Station Buildings in Ruins and Every Window Smashed.

St. Thomas, Aug. 11.—A carload of dynamite exploded at Essex yesterday morning, and at least three lives were lost, scores of persons injured and great damage done to property in the town.

The station and freight sheds were blown to atoms, while every house in town was shaken and every pane of glass broken. The noise of the explosion was heard for twenty miles.

The dead are;
Leo Conlin, St. Thomas.
Jos. McNealy, St. Thomas.
Dr. Brian, Essex, killed by shock.

The serious injured are;
David Cottrell, engineer, Amherstburg.
Thomas Barry, conductor, St. Thomas.
A. O. Stimer, station agent at Essex, will likely die.
James Madigan, fireman, Amherstburg.
Thomas Barry, St. Thomas.

The explosive was intended for blasting the Limekiln Crossing in the Detroit River.

There were 100 packages of dynamite. Firemen McNealy and Conlin went into the car to straighten the boxes. Just as they came out the explosion took place. They were blown to atoms.

Five cars were demolished, and every building within a hundred yards wrecked.

So great was the concussion that every building in the town rocked and many toppled over.

The probability is that not a pane of window glass is left in the town.

The passenger train which runs between Essex and Amherstburg was about to start when Engineer David Cottrell and Fireman Madigan, both of Amherstburg, were thrown out of the cab and both were badly hurst.

The depot building and freight sheds were blown to atoms, but J. A. Abbott, the operator, escaped with slight injuries, while Judge Smith was unhurt.

Green's elevator and Lay & Richards' mill were destroyed.

People rushed from their rocking houses and places of employment. Their first impression was that an earthquake had occurred.

Throughout the town, women could be seen bleeding from the many cuts, yet forgetting themselves in order to give attention to their infants and children, who were likewise suffering.

It was some time before the people of the town were brought to a realization as to just what had happened. Those fortunate enough to escape injury went at once to the succor of the men, women and children, who were bruised and were running in all directions about the streets, fearful lest their homes would collapse should they return to them.

Many women fainted and were removed to places of safety by the volunteer nurses, men and women, who did heroic work.

A special train of doctors and nurses went from Detroit and Windsor for the wrecked town. It is certain that the number of injured will run into the scores, the streets being crowded with those out and hurt by falling timbers and glass.

The noise and shock of the explosion was heard for twenty miles in every direction.

In Windsor, sixteen miles away, people in the stores rushed into the streets, convinced that an earthquake had occurred.

CLOSING OPIUM DENS

Thousands of Them Shut in Pursuance of Imperial Edict in China

The New York Evening Post publishes the following from a correspondent in Shanghai, China;

Today all opium smoking dens in the Native City are to be closed in compliance with orders issued by the Shanghai Taotai the first of the month. It is not improbable that there may be some trouble when the Chinese authorities carry the order into effect, as the proprietors of opium dens are not at all disposed to welcome the new order of things. The command to close the dens, is apparently issued in good faith, and it is evident that the Chinese authorities intend to enforce the law. Every precaution has been taken to prevent disturbances, and police and military forces are in readiness for any demonstration. It is not expected nor intended that the smoking of opium will be stopped immediately, but all public opium smoking places will be closed. Confirmed smokers will be licensed—as in other sections of China, where the anti-opium edict has already gone into effect—and will be allowed to continue the use of the drug under certain restrictions.

A WAVE OF REFORM.

The anti-opium crusade, which is rolling like a great sea-wave over the whole of China, seems to be a serious, earnest movement. When the opium regulations were issued from the throne at Peking last autumn, they were greeted everywhere with considerable skepticism, particularly by the foreigners, and the popular opinion at that time seems to have been that China was "bluffing," and that she really had no intention of enforcing the drastic measures. Even the most reluctant of the foreigners of the class who refuse to believe that China is really endeavoring to uplift herself are now forced to recognize the increasing feeling throughout the great empire against the use of opium.

The movement is steadfast and spreading rapidly, and the number of anti-opium societies, particularly in the south is increasing from day to day. The most prominent officials have joined in the crusade with energy, and, generally speaking, the movement has assumed proportions which may be said to be of a nationally patriotic nature.

FUND TO RELIEVE TRADE.

It is not expected that the smoking of opium will be stopped at once; in fact, the decree allows nine years more of grace, and so, vast is the empire that there will be many districts and even provinces, probably, where the law will not be enforced for years. Opium den keepers of Shanhair—there are about 5,000—held a meeting last week and petitioned for a postponement of the closing date, but their request was flatly refused. Thousands of employes of the houses will be thrown out of work, and the authorities have arranged to apprentice many of these to learn trades. A fund has been started headed by a contribution of a thousand taels from Taotai Jui to purchase all smoking apparatus at nominal price.

SETTING AN EXAMPLE

Of course, the new law was enforced first in Peking, Tientsin, Paoting and other places near the capital. Many wealthy officials, bankers and government employes stopped the vicious habit and prepared in organized movement for the suppression of the vice. The lamps and pipes formerly seen in every shop soon disappeared. The present government has proposed to instruct all viceroys and governors of the provinces to severely impeach magistrates who fail to put forth every effort to suppress the vice, and department heads have ordered the dismissal of employes who use the drug. If one may judge from the tone of the orders issued, there is no questioning the fact that China—for the present at least—is sincerely determined in this gigantic undertaking.

At the request of the Chinese government, the representatives of the Powers at Peking have agreed to prohibit the importation of morphia into treaty ports excepting for medical purposes. According to a local Chinese newspaper, Sir John Jordan, the British minister, signed an agreement with the Peking government to reduce the importation of opium gradually until the entire trade ceases at the end of ten years. But the proviso is added that if China fails to prohibit entirely the opium habit within this period, she shall be fined an amount equal to three times the opium revenue she collected annually for ten years before the reduction of the opium importations.

POPPY CULTIVATION.

To effectually abolish the opium evil in China, the authorities must begin at the beginning and prohibit the cultivation of the poppy, as well as prohibit the importation of the drug. Steps have already been taken toward this.

New Use for Butter

Prevents Boiling Over.

Coffee frequently produces biliousness and all of the accompanying distress, such as loss of appetite, dyspepsia, bowel troubles, etc. A lady from Ft. Wayne, Ind., says:

"I had used coffee for many years, and though I took great care in making it, felt its ill effects very seriously. It made me bilious and robbed me of my appetite for breakfast.

"I always had trouble with dyspepsia while I used it. I was told by physicians and that I had catarrh of the stomach, and came to believe there was no help for me. Two years ago I quit the use of coffee and began to use Postum Food Coffee. At first I missed the use of the stimulant, although the taste of the food coffee was delicious.

"In a few days I forgot all about my coffee and the satisfaction I derived from Postum, and soon found that my appetite returned, the bilious condition and dyspepsia disappeared, so that now I am pleased to say that at the age of seventy-five years I enjoy my food as well as a man young and all my dyspeptic symptoms and stomach troubles have gone.

"These troubles had been with me for most of my life and it is really remarkable that I am now so perfectly well. To say that I am grateful does not express it. Once in a while I find a person who does not like Postum, but I always find it is because it has not been properly prepared. There is but one way to make good Postum and that is to have it exactly according to directions, allowing it to boil full fifteen minutes, not after it is placed on the stove, but after the real boiling begins. Use a small piece of butter, about the size of a pea, to prevent boiling over. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. There's a Reason.

The Peterborough Baseball team won a great victory at Port Hope on Saturday afternoon when they put it all over Blake Crawford's aggregation, the score being 10—2. As a result of this timely win the locals are now right in the running for the Midland League championship. A win against Cobourg here next Saturday will tie them with Port Hope for first place and there should be no difficulty in putting the Indian sign on the Cobourg team at Riverside Park at the week end.

The Peterborough team accompanied by about 300 supporters travelled to Port Hope on a special train, leaving here at two o'clock, and returning shortly after 8.30 in the evening. The game was witnessed by about 700 fans and the visiting team received as much of the rooting as the homesters. Cobourg sending over nearly 200 enthusiasts who let loose for Peterborough in great shape. Port Hope scored in the third and fourth innings, getting a run in each but after that they were duck-ed. Quinlan pitching fine ball and receiving excellent support from the field Peterborough got one in the sixth, another in the seventh, seven in the eighth, and one in the ninth. Surphlis, the Port Hope twirler, reputed to be the best in the Midland League, was hammered all over the field in the eighth, and also in the last innings and the support he received was not of the best. Peterborough got ten hits off him, including a two-bagger by Burpee. Quinlan was only connected with for six safeties and was never in serious trouble.

Burridge as usual, did great work behind the bat, and the whole team was all to the good.

Peter Duncan of Cobourg, was umpire, and gave good satisfaction. The teams were as follows;

Peterborough—Burns, rf, Cheetham ss, Burridge c, Spence 1b, Connors cf, Haliburton 3b, Anderson 2b, Callaghan ll, Quinlan p, Flaherty.

Port Hope—O'Herne 3b, Cuffvin lf, O'Brien 2b, Henderson cf, Kolb 2b, O'Neill c, Walters rf, Brown ss, Surphlis p.

Jack Connors of the Peterborough team had his shoulder dislocated in the sixth innings while trying to steal second, by a collision with the second baseman. He will be out of the game for some time. Flaherty replaced him at center field.

Quinlan had seven strikeouts, and Surphlis eight. The Port Hope twirler walked three, while Quinlan only issued one complimentary, and sent one to first on dead ball.

Following is the score by innings:

Peterborough ..... 0 0 0 0 0 0 1 1 7 1—10
Port Hope ..... 0 0 1 0 0 0 0 0 1—2

The English Press Praises The Local Canal Officials

That Peterborough is not an isolated little back country city, known only to manufacturers acquainted with her immense water power, and her facilities, both in shipping and otherwise, is demonstrated by the fact that one of the most important of English newspapers, the Western Daily Press of Bristol, printed at the city of that name on July 31st, contained some two columns referring to the Trent Valley Canal. We are pleased to see that this far away publication not only dilates on the enormous advantages to be gained by completion of the Trent Valley Canal, but has the common politeness and thoughtfulness to refer to the gentlemen to whose earnest efforts this recently completed successful work has been due and in whose future work its ultimate success largely depends.

WHAT DAILY PRESS SAYS.

The Bristol paper says in part;

The Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, postmaster-general of Canada and minister of labor, in opening the Kirkfield hydraulic lift lock, on the Trent Valley Canal, foreshadowed the construction of the Ottawa and Georgian Bay ship canal. "Men in middle life today," he said, "will live to see steamers from Liverpool and Glasgow (he forgot Bristol) discharging their freights at Port Arthur and William, and returning with the golden produce of the West to the markets of the world." Some of the editors see in this declaration ground for believing that the government is assisting the ship canal project, with a view to an early beginning of the work. The surveys are for a waterway 22 feet in depth, which would enable steamers loaded with wheat at the upper lake ports in Canada to take their cargoes straight to Avonmouth Docks without breaking bulk anywhere. With respect to the Trent waterway, which the present government has now carried to practical completion, it materially shortens the distance by water from the wheat fields to the ocean shipping ports on the Canadian side, as compared with the United States water routes. It will carry wheat from Fort William, Lake Superior, to Montreal for three cents a bushel, correspondingly reducing the thorough rate from the west to the Atlantic coast ports. The western terminus of the new system is Georgian Bay, and the waterway is in reality a channel through lakes and rivers via Peterborough, Ontario, into Lake Ontario. The whole distance from Georgian Bay to Lake Ontario by this route is only 203 miles, or, counting the return trip, say 500 miles shorter to Bristol and Liverpool than by the Welland Canal and St Lawrence river route, and 1,500 miles shorter than by the Erie canal (U.S.) route. Grain was carried from Fort William to Midland, on Georgian Bay, in 1903, as one cent a bushel. The Midland cargoes may now be transhipped into 800-ton barges and taken via Trent waterway to Montreal for two cents a bushel. The barges made the trip by this route from Midland to Montreal in six and a half days, or two round trips in a month. One steam barge, with four consorts, two abreast, tows the equivalent of 120 loaded railway grain cars. Barges can carry grain by this waterway with a good margin of profit at one cent and a quarter per bushel, even if they make the return trip empty. This Trent Valley waterway is the same that the red men used with their canoes long before the pale face was first seen in America, in making their journeys between the far north and the far south. Nearly three centuries ago, in 1615, Champlain, the great French explorer, in attempting to reach the then unknown upper county from Lower Canada, ascended by the Ottawa river, Lake Nipissing, and the French river, now also a contemplated route for inland navigation (the Ottawa and Georgian Bay Ship Canal), returning by Lake Simcoe, the Kawartha lakes, the Otonabee and Trent rivers, and the Bay of Quinte. With the completion of the Kirkfield hydraulic lift-lock, Canada has expended in all for her internal waterways within a fraction of 115 million dollars. The opening of the Kirkfield lift lock by the minister was a great event in the history of the surrounding county and drew thousands of sons and daughters of the soil from far and near to see the minister and the party accompanying him lifted in their steamer from the lower to the upper waters, floating securely in their great water-tight iron box. Mr. R. R. Hall, M.P., for Peterborough West Riding, who has taken a deep personal interest in the construction of the canal, made the opening address, and depicted the enormous advantages that cannot fail to follow the operation of the waterway. The Hon. Mr. Lemieux who followed, made a great speech on Canada's transportation developments, and paid a very might compliment to Mr. M. J. Butler, deputy minister of railways and canals, on the magnificent works whose completion they were celebrating. Mr. J. H. McClellan, the superintendent of the canal, was in charge of all the arrangements, and came in for warm compliments on the manner in which he had performed his share of the labors connected with the lift-lock and waterway generally."

To-day's Races an Assured Success

Personal of Those Interested in the Sports Makes Success Certain

This afternoon will be held what promises to be the best race meeting that Peterborough has ever seen. The first point to consider is the attendance of those in charge of the operations of a race meet. In connection with today's meet we have a bunch of local sports who have resurrected, and brought racing from a moribund condition as to form or years to a success as demonstrated by the last local meet. It is well known, at least in this city that with such enthusiastic horsemen as President Cluman of the P.T. Co., Martin Connors, Bert McCollum, Dr. Johnston, A. Dunn, W. Duncan, the Elmhirsts of Keene, Geo. Lipsett, of the east ward owner of Peggy, Jack Cottingham, proprietor of this swift flyer Harry Direct, and other Peterborough sports interested in today's races that they will not only be run on the square but that "the gate" will get lots of fun and a good run for their money.

Immigrants Arrive in Peterboro

Yesterday afternoon about five o'clock a long train per C.P.R. passed through the city from Quebec, with Qhundreds of immigrants that arrived at the Rock City on Saturday morning. Quite a crowd got off at the local station. Many of the immigrants including a few of those disembarking at Peterborough, were evidently Russian Jews, as denoted by their wearing fur collars on a mid-August hot day. We understand that among the latter were the wife and children of Mr Mandel, a local junk dealer. Mr. Mandel had not seen his family for over nine years, they having been living in Russia.

Manager Johnston Smiles

Manager Johnston of the Baseball Club, is wearing the smile that won't come off, over the splendid work the team did at Port Hope, Saturday, when they defeated the Lakesiders by 10—2. The team of Saturday is beyond the strongest in every respect that Peterborough has played for many years past. Mr. Johnston certainly deserves great credit for the ball team he has gathered together.

LACROSSE

The Caps were defeated at Montreal by 5 to 4.

Mr. McNamara's Lots Nearly All Sold

A Splendid Opportunity to Advance Interests of Both Rich and Poor

Yesterday a Times representative happening to meet Mr. M. A. McNamara, the well known local contractor, had it recalled to his memory that within the past week or so, quite a number of local citizens had been heard to note that they had secured lots on the splendid property that gentleman owns a short distance south of the city limits.

Our reporter asked Mr. McNamara if these reports were true and if the lots were going as fast as reported. This question was effectually and uncontradictably answered by that gentleman producing a map of the property made by Surveyor Cameron. This showed conclusively that out of 61 lots so far offered for sale 56 have been actually sold, thus leaving only five lots for sale.

A glance at the map, together with the results of a talk with Mr. McNamara, demonstrated that the public of Peterborough, who are seeking healthy, suitable and cheap building sites, will shortly, in a large number, build new homes on this property. When several score of our citizens locate here, and have the advantage of confidently expected street car service, as is almost assured, more will seek homes in this location. We are pleased to learn, by this registered plan, that Mr. McNamara, to the west of Fourier Ave., has still enough land left to supply scores of Peterborough people with building sites.

As far as what the street car authorities will do, no man outside that corporation can say. Still there is a way of adding two to two with a product of four. It is in the street car company's interests to boom Peterborough as that is where their interests lay. Now every day that money goes out of Peterborough that means so much out of the company's coffers. Should they build a line to Port Hope, thus passing Mr. McNamara's property, it would mean hundreds daily coming to Peterborough. The management of this company are too wide awake to miss any chance. They will ultimately be impelled to build to Port Hope and thus the property will be provided with car service.

In this connection it might be mentioned that Mr. McNamara has offered gratis a large park, with splendid river frontage to the company. This proposition of Mr. McNamara's appeals to both rich and poor; it gives the latter cheap homes and will ultimately mean, with the Port Hope street car line built, more business for the rich.

Comet That is to be Seen Any Night

Peterboro Citizens Interested in Astronomy Should Get Out Their Telescopes

Those interested in the far off realms of space, and who are possessed of a powerful telescope, might be rewarded by doing a little star gazing tonight, should the sky be cloudless. For the first time in many years a bona-fide, full-sized comet is scurrying across the heavens in full view of all who care to look at it. What is more another one is on the way to our section of the heavens, and, while of less mundane interests, will be even more carefully inspected by Canadian astronomers.

The comet at present is visible and plainly visible, even to the naked eye, is a little to the north-east of a line between the Zeta star in the well known constellation, Taurus, and the Alpha star in Orion.

Its tail is several degrees in length, and even the nucleus in the head is visible without a glass, although a pair of opera or field binoculars are a great help in looking at it.

Officially, its position is given as near Star 126, Flamsteed's number, about h. 5.6 m. right ascension, and 15 degrees north declination.

At the Dominion Observatory in Ottawa, the observers are at present busily engaged in photographing it. The comet has been identified as the Daniels Comet (1907 Alpha), which was discovered in June.

MANY DIE IN TUNNEL IN TRAIN COLLISION

Both Trains Caught Fire--Reported That Ten Persons Lost Their Lives in the Terrible Disaster in the Tunnel.

Madrid, Aug. 11. The southern express was derailed today near Alcanza and later was run into by a freight train.

Both trains caught fire, and it is reported that ten persons lost their lives.

Details of the railroad disaster show that it occurred in the tunnel of Otzaurte, near Alsasua, Province of Navarre, a station on the Northern Railway. The Valley of Cegama is ascended through 12 tunnels, reaching the culminating point of the line over 2000 feet above the level of the sea in the middle of the tunnel beyond Otzaurte which is two miles long.

TUNNEL ACTS AS CHIMNEY.

After the wreck of the two trains and the subsequent conflagration the tunnel acted as a chimney, fanning the flames and creating a panic among the survivors who sought to escape from the smoke and heat.

The exact number of victims has not yet been established. There were only nine passengers on board the southern express when it left Irun but more persons boarded the train at San Sebastian.

The Irish Tenant's Bill Killed by the House of Lords

London, Aug. 11.—The house of lords, sitting until an early hour yesterday morning, carried certain sweeping amendments to the Irish Evicted Tenants bill, which, according to the Liberals, will destroy utterly the usefulness of the measure. The principal of these destructive amendments greatly restricts the compulsory powers under the bill, and limits the number of tenants to be reinstated to two thousand.

An authoritative announcement on behalf of the government declares that the house of commons will decline to accept the amendments passed by the house of lords.

Toronto Gentleman at Stony Lake

Mr. F. Melville Delighted with Kawartha Lakes

Mr. F. Melville, of Messrs. Melville & Co., brokers and dealers in Western lands, Toronto, spent a day in town last week, the guest of Mr. W. H. Robertson. He went up on the steamer Osprey on Friday on its trip to Stony Lake and was delighted with the scenery through which he passed. Mr. Melville had no idea that we had such a stretch of beautiful waters, and, it is needless to say his trip over the lift lock was thoroughly enjoyed.

Great Chance for Lucrative Investmen

Get in on the Ground Floor in a Winnipeg Manufacturing Concern

In a former issue of The Times we noted that a splendid opportunity was presented for investment in the Winnipeg Iron and Machinery Works. We cannot but refer to our former notice and call the attention of our readers to this already established business. This company is not in the experimental stage of existence. It has already a proven and and successful business established in the Great Western Capital of Manitoba, the city of Winnipeg. The demand for wire fencing and other such products as this firm turns out is almost beyond description. Now this company is desirous of extending the sphere of their usefulness and enlarging their works. To do this necessitates more capital. To get this they are offering, for a limited time only, a block of their stock for sale. For free particulars, address E. Braun, Selling Agent, 505 Ashdown Block, Winnipeg, Man.

Is Board of Health Right or Wrong?

Kick Raised by Residents of Third Ward re Sewerage

It seems that certain residents in the third ward, especially those living on London street, are sore against the Board of Health. It is rumored that in response to a petition the sewer was run down London street between George and Water streets. This was done for the purpose of enabling the owner of the terrace on the north-east corner of London and George street to connect with the sewer and relieve a state of affairs not only condemned by the sanitary inspector, but by the neighbors in the vicinity. Seven cesspools within a space of 99 feet has long been considered a menace to the health of the neighborhood.

It is said that after much pressure to change such conditions that the Board has decided to wait until next May to connect the sewer. Residents about the former Carlisle terrace have appealed to the Provincial Board of Health, and have sent in a strongly worded petition to the local Board of Health, demanding immediate action. They also threaten to apply for a mandamus to compel the Board of Health to do its duty. A police court case for the suppression of a nuisance and a civic action for damages to property are also in the air. Mr. Eyres, chairman of the Board of Health does not seem to be in sympathy with the Board's action.

Of course, on the other hand, the owner of the Carlisle terrace, has told the board that financial conditions preclude his ability to make the plumbers' connections for some time and asked an extension of time. The board claim to base their action on his request.

Dredge Emmerson Has Done Good Work

Many Local Shipping Docks on Trent Canal Improved

Residents at and visitors by steamer to Gore's Landing will be pleased to learn that the dredge Emmerson, has completed, or nearly so, the work at that summer resort. Both outside and inside the dock, the channel has been dredged to a depth of nine feet, making this one of the best docks on the Trent canal. Boats can go in behind the dock and load with grain and other farm produce, no matter how severe a storm may be raging and there is a great quantity of grain and large number of hogs shipped from Northumberland county to Peterborough. The dredge will next come up the river to Smithson dock and dredge a harbor. The material taken out will be thrown on the bank for the purpose of widening the approach to the lock, so that farmers may load their grain without trouble. As soon as this work is done the dredge will return to Dangerfield, where it has been cutting a new channel for the purpose of straightening out the river and making navigation easier and safer.

The new dock at Hall's Landing, the end of the Benfort road, will be finished early this week.

The new dock at Indian Village on Chemong Lake, has been finished. All these new docks are of benefit to the city of Peterborough. Mr. R. R. Hall, M.P., will have the everlasting gratitude of those so materially affected, for the good work he has done.

Police Court

Some small boy was up before his Worship at saturday morning's Police Court. This theft was one that possibly 95 out of every 100 of the male citizens of Peterborough, from 9 to 60 years of age have been guilty of, no matter whether crooks or Christians. The crime was hooking apples. It seems that Rev. T. A. Langfeldt had been annoyed by boys stealing his fruit and breaking the trees in his garden. He found each boss at his fruit a day or two ago and decided to make an example of them, so laid an information. The boy in question was found guilty and his father will have to pay a fine of $3. What not criticizing the Magistrate's sentences, when on Friday boys stealing money, horses, pigs, etc., are allowed to go on suspended sentence and an abandoned small boy who commits no serious crime as stealing a few windfall apples is fined, we cannot but think a few more fines for the more serious offences would result in the too easy going fathers of the latter would be more likely to find a more suitable strap with tawse (vide Magistrate Dumble's advice).

John Henderson was found guilty of tagging a meal. The Magistrate told him to get out of town at once, and with his proverbial good nature handed John a quarter to get a meal prepared meal. John thanked his Worship and proceeded on his appointed task of getting out of town.

Do You Seek Health?

Consult Dr. Hamilton And You Will Be Shown the Way.

Thousands are in the same boat—all sickly, bilious and feeling far from well.

Trouble is, the system is clogged with impurities which need to be cleared away.

Before downright sickness arrives you should cleanse and purify the system with Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

At once you feel their mighty influence building up weak spots, clearing out disease, and putting you again on your feet.

These purely vegetable pills change your tired, worn-out condition to one of health and vigor, because they supply the body with nourishing blood that builds up and enlivens the entire system.

Mr. John Whitley, of Stanwood, P. O., Ont., knows the merit of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and says: "I wouldn't be alive today had it not been for Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Last winter I was sick with grippe, and when spring came I was weak, bilious and rheumatic. I used enough medicine to cure twenty times, but I didn't get any help till I tried Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They purified my blood, took the yellow color out of my face, put new tone in my my stomach, and increased my appetite. The bilious attacks and rheumatic pains gradually departed, and Dr. Hamilton's Pills made a new man of me. I proved their merit, and proclaim them a medicine for all men."

CANADA'S MINING INDUSTRY

The total value of the output of Canadian mines in 1906 was, in round figures, sixty-nine and a half million dollars. Of this thirty-seven and a half millions was in metallic and thirty-two millions in non-metallic products. The increase over the previous year was nine and a half million dollars.

As individual items coal came first with a valuation of seventeen and a half millions; gold second with fourteen and a half millions, nickel and copper equal with seven and a half each, brick fourth with nearly four millions, and silver fifth with an output valued at three and a half million dollars.

In nickel there was an increase of two millions; in silver of one and one-half; in lead of one million, and in pig iron (made from Canadian ore) of only $24,000. In the output of gold there was a decline of nearly $2,000,000.

For the year now current the prospects are, owing to the wonderful activity at Cobalt, that he largest increase in product will be in silver. Eventually, and that is not in the far distant future, iron will take the lead both in mining and manufacturing industries. Electrical development is bound to give a tremendous impetus to the iron interest, particularly in this province; and this impetus will be greatly added to if the coal find in James Bay is as important as believed, and it is found possible by the extension of the Temiskaming line to place this coal alongside our northern iron mines with a reasonable length of haul.

The three important factors in the marvelous progress now being made by marvelous progress now being made by Canada are dairy and bacon production of Ontario, expansion in wheat growing in the West, and the phenomenal development of our mining industry.

FOREST INCENDIARISM

Prof. Fernow, dean of the new Faculty of Forestry in Toronto University, made a startling statement, says the Montreal Star under the above caption, in the course of a lecture on this subject at the Toronto summer school the other evening. He said that "the morals of the community should be educated up to the point of regarding incendiarism in the woods as equally culpable with incendiarism in the city." This is a good text for our people to keep in mind during the holiday season when so many amateur campers are penetrating the fine forests to the north of this," continues the Star. "They are not likely to be guilty of malicious incendiarism, but they are very likely to be guilty of acrime equally destructive, and that is culpable carelessness. If a man were to light a fire in the littered back yard of a city house to boil himself a pot of tea and then fly away and neglect to put it out with the result that several of our finest residences were burned, he would be fully as great a criminal in effect as the incendiary who should apply a match to oiled waste in the basement."

It cannot be too freely impressed upon our people that Canada's forest wealth is one of her greatest assets. The forests of the United States are fast being wiped out; and yet probably no people in the world are such tremendous consumers of forest products in various forms as the Americans. This means that as as time goes on they must more and more depend upon the Canadian forests for their supply, and our standing trees will grow more and more valuable. We certainly then cannot afford to permit the wanton destruction of our forests by fire either through malice or neglect.

This is a fact in which the people must act largely as their own police. If every man who went into the forest had a proper sense of responsibility there would be no needless forest fires. But then if every man in the city were honest, there would be little need of police and law courts. Consequently the vast majority of people who go into the forests, being honest and having a sense of responsibility, must act as a check upon the careless or criminal few. They would not stand by while a man burned down a neighbor's house, and there is nothing in the laws of courtesy to compel them to stand by while a man burns down a valuable forest which belongs to their neighbors and to themselves. A few prosecutions for carelessness in this matter would do a lot of good; and if the laws do not provide for such actions now, they should be amended with that point in view.

WOOING SLEEP.

A Prescription That Worked Well in Philadelphia.

A haggard looking man strolled into a downtown drug store the other day and asked the druggist for help. He said he had trouble in getting to sleep when he retired. No matter how sleepy he might be during the day or how much sleep he might have lost, the moment his head touched the pillow he was wide awake and lay thus for several hours. Once asleep he was very hard to waken, but he had to be up at a certain hour, and in consequence of his peculiar affliction he was losing more sleep than he could stand. The drug clerk regarded him quizzically a few moments and then replied:

"My dear man, you don't want medicine. What you want is something to change the trend of your thoughts. Do as a friend of mine did. He was troubled the same way and found that the old folks' plan of imagining sheep passing a barrier and counting them was out of date, so he began trying to name all the states in the Union. He soon got them so he could classify them alphabetically. Then, when they no longer interested him, he started on the counties of his state. He now has them at his tongue's end, classified up to the fourth letter. Now he is starting on state capitals and their locations. Then he will take up county seats. A moment's glance at an atlas during the day shows him when he is wrong, and the beauty of the plan is that he rarely has to think along these lines longer than ten minutes before he is sound asleep. To make it short, the study of geography is a good narcotic."

How the Months Got Their Names.

The months of the year obtained their names from widely varying sources. January was named from the Roman god Janus, the deity with two faces, one looking to the east and the other toward the west. February comes from the Latin word februo, to purify. It was the ancient Roman custom to hold festivals of purification during that month. March owes its name to an old god of war. Among the Saxons this month was known as lenst, meaning spring, which was the origin of our word Lent. It is claimed by some that April was named from the Latin word aperire, open, in signification of the opening buds. In Saxon days it was called eastre, in honor of Eastra, the goddess of spring, from which comes our word Easter. May was named after Maia, the Roman goddess of growth or increase, and June was from the Latin juvenis (young). Julius Caesar himself named July in his own honor, and August was likewise named by Augustus Caesar. September is from the Latin word septem, meaning seven, it being the seventh month of the year according to the old Roman calendar, and October, November and December likewise retain the names they were known by in the old Roman calendar.

"Hanged" and "Hung."

Perhaps the Bible has had an influence in preventing many people from distinguishing between the uses of "hanged" and "hung," says a London writer. They "hanged" Haman, but the Jews in captivity also "hanged their harps upon the willows," and in the New Testament we read "it were better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck." If "hanged" was correct in either sense in the days of the authorized version, those who are not strong upon grammar may be subconsciously induced to believe that "hung" is correct in both senses now. But it is curious that the exclamation "I'll be hanged!" never appears as "I'll be hung!"

A BOY HUNT.

Chased From Hedge to Hedge by a Big Pack of Weasels.

The following extract from an interesting book may be of interest to our friends. It is "From My Life as an Angler," by William Henderson, published in London in 1879.

"About this time, while rambling in the picturesque lane leading from Merrington to Windlestone with two other boys, an adventure occurred sufficiently startling to two little fellows, from nine to ten years old. We were busily engaged in picking wild strawberries, which clustered in the hedgerows, when we saw at about a hundred yards distance a pack of at least twenty weasels running from hedge to hedge and evidently scenting out footsteps. It flashed upon us that we were being hunted. So, springing over the nearest hedge, we ran across a pasture field and, standing upon the farther bank, looked back toward our assailants. To our dismay we saw the whole pack, with noses to ground, steadily tracking our course. The word was given, 'Run, run!' and off we scampered across another field to take up our position on another hedge. Still the pursuit was going on, and the creatures were evidently gaining upon us, so with a wild shout we fled to the village, which, happily for us, was not far off. I have frequently heard of persons being attacked by weasels, but was never hunted by them on any other occasion."

The above must have occurred about 1812, the locality being the north of England.—Forest and Stream.

Shooting the Steenbuck.

Many of the poor Boers in the Transvaal, by whom all the shooting that is done is for the pot and not for sport, have perfected a system of shooting with the assistance of oxen. A steenbuck has no fear of cattle and will lie still even if they graze right up to him. The hunter gets together a few cattle and with his gun walks behind them in such a way that he cannot be seen from the front. Great care has to be exercised to drive the oxen so that they may seem to be grazing naturally. The hunter must be ready to shoot without having to alter his position. The slightest movement is noticed by the buck.

Peculiarities of Long Island.

The class in geography in one of the Brooklyn schools was asked by the teacher, "What are some of the natural peculiarities of Long Island?"

The pupils tried to think, and, after awhile, a boy raised his hand.

"I know," said he.

"Well, what are they?" asked the teacher.

"Why," said the boy, with a triumphant look, "on the south side you see the sea and on the north side you hear the sound."

Fatalism Exemplified.

She—I hope, dear, that you are not going to worry about my exceeding my allowance this time.

He (brightening up)—You don't mean to tell me, dearest, that there isn't any necessity for it?

"Certainly not. What's the use of worrying about something you can't help?"

The Flesh She Lost.

"You're not looking well, Mrs. Giles. Surely you have not lost flesh lately, have you not?"

"I have that. I've lost me 'usband. 'E weighed nineteen stone when 'e died."—London Telegraph.

The Money That's Being Made in Western Canada

LAND

In October, 1906 we sold 5,000 acres of Saskatchewan lands to an Indiana party of men at $8 per acre, and resold it this year at $12, making just about 100 per cent, on the money invested.

A Montreal party of men who bought 10,000 acres from us at $8 per acre last September, resold through us within three months at $10.00 per acre.

A Chicago client writes us, that after making some improvements on a section she bought near Regina, one year ago, she sold out recently for exactly twice what she paid for the land.

We resold a section of land located near Lipton for a man at $18.00 per acre last April, which we sold him in December at $12.00.

Western Canada Lands offer the greatest opportunity this continent has ever known

Men here are growing wealthy who never knew success in any other line. You can make money here too, if you think your amount too small, club it with a few friends. Some of the most prominent financial men in the United States and Eastern Canada are now interested in this country heavily.

We own about 200,000 acres of the finest wheat and mixed farming lands in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.—Picked lands on which we are prepared to give accurate trustworthy information, and these tracts being portions of extremely large purchases we can sell them at prices that cannot be equalled, quality of land considered, by any firm in this country.

Prices range from $6.00 per acre upwards Reasonable Terms in every case

Write us for further information but when doing so tell us the class and amount of an investment you desire, and whether you want the land for your own use or for investment purposes purely. $1,000 is about the minimum we can handle. References Union Bank and Traders' Bank, Winnipeg

SIREN WAFERS DEVELOP THE BUST

SHE'S A QUEEN! SHE'S A SIREN!

Is an expression that is always heard at sight of a well developed woman. If you are flat chested, with BUST undeveloped, a scrawney neck, thin lean arms—the above remark will never be applied to you. "SIREN" wafers will make you beautiful, bewitching. They DEVELOP the BUST in a few weeks from 3 to 6 inches and produce a fine firm, voluptuous bosom. They fill out the hollow places. Make the cheeks plump and rosy, and arms handsome and well molded and the neck and shoulders shapely and of perfect contour.

Send for a bottle today and you'll be pleased and grateful. "SIREN" wafers are absolutely harmless, pleasant to take and convenient to carry around. They are sold under guarantee to do all we claim or MONEY back.

Price $1.00 per bottle. Inquire at good drug stores or send DIRECT to us.

FREE!

During the next 30 days only—we will send you a sample bottle of these beautifying wafers on receipt of 10 cents to pay cost of packing and postage if you will mention that you saw the Advertisement in this paper. The sample alone may be sufficient if defects are trivial.

50% in Annual Dividends

This is a straight Business Undertaking.

The Smelting of Ore is the safest and most profitable business in the world.

We have fifteen mining properties, located in Kern County, California, carrying good values in Gold, Silver and Copper.

The smelter nearest to us is at Needles, 250 miles distant.

We propose to install on our properties a smelter to treat the ores from our own mines and to do custom smelting for others.

50 per cent. per annum is a moderate estimate of the profits we can earn. If you want to make a safe and profitable investment send for full information and investigate our proposition.

COPPER

A 5c. POSSIBILITY

Always the persons who make fortunes are those who seize opportunities. Trudge along in the conventional rut and you will never get away from the counter or the desk.

Fortunes—the greatest mining fortunes in the world—are being made to day by the men who own Copper Mines. You couldn't buy stock in one of the big ones, developed mines. You CAN buy stock in a mine undergoing development, and if you BUY IN THE RICHT PLACE the fortune will come.

I want you to come in and see me about the proposition I have in the Guggenheim Greenwater Copper Company's two properties at Ely and at Greenwater, Nevada. The recent copper finds at Ely are attracting the interest of a whole continent. The property which this Company owns there is in the best section. The workings are now down fifty feet, and the prospect brightens with every foot. The manager tells me he expects to strike it rich any day. So soon as he does, up goes the stock with a bound.

I still can offer a limited number of shares at 5 cents each. It's the easiest chance at a fortune you've ever had. See me about it at once.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry must be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situated, by proxy (not) by agent. The homesteader is required to perform the conditions connected therewith under one of the following plans:

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of the homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Six months' notice in writing should be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of intention to apply for patent.

THE CONQUEST of CANAAN

By BOOTH TARKINGTON,
Author of "Cherry," "Monsieur Beaucaire," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1905, BY HARPER & BROTHERS

"Certainly; that is understood," said Ariel slowly, turning to smile at Eugene.

The daughter of the house exhibited signs of consternation. "He wants to see you," she repeated falteringly. "He's in the library."

Having thus discharged her errand, she hastened to the front door, which had been left open, and out to the steps, evidently with the intention of removing herself as soon and as far as possible from the vicinity of the library.

Eugene, visibly perturbed, followed her to the doorway of the room and paused.

"Do you know the way?" he inquired, with a note of solemnity.

"Where?" Ariel had not risen.

"To the library."

"Of course," she said, beaming upon him. "I was about to ask you if you wouldn't speak to the judge for me. This is such a comfortable old friend, this chair."

"Speak to him for you?" repeated the nonplused Eugene.

She nodded cheerfully. "If I may trouble you. Tell him certainly I shall be glad to see him."

Eugene went. There was nothing else to do. And he wished with every step that the distance to the portals of the library might have been greater.

In whatever guise he delivered the summons, it was perfectly efficacious. A door slammed, a heavy and rapid tread was heard in the hall, and Ariel, without otherwise moving, turned her head and offered a brilliant smile of greeting.

"It was good of you," she said as the doorway filled with red, imperial wrath, "to wish to have a little chat with me. I'm anxious, of course, to go over my affairs with you, and last night after my journey I was too tired. But now we might begin, not in detail, of course, just yet. That will do for later when I've learned more about business."

The great one had stopped on the threshold.

"Madam," he began coldly, "when I say my library I mean my"—

"Oh, yes," she interrupted, with amiable weariness; "I know. You mean you keep all the papers and books of the estate in there, but I think we'd better put them off for a few days"—

"I'm not talking about the estate!" he exclaimed. "What I want to talk to you about is being seen with Joseph Louden!"

"Yes," she nodded brightly. "That's along the line we must take up first."

"Yes, it is!" He buried his bull bass at her. "You knew everything about him and his standing in this community! I know you did, because Mrs. Pike told me you asked all about him from Mamie after you came last night, and, see here, don't you"—

"Oh, but I knew before that," she laughed. "I had a correspondent in Canaan, one who has always taken a great interest in Mr. Louden. I asked Miss Pike only to get her own point of view."

"I want to tell you, madam," he shouted, coming toward her, "that no member of my household"—

"That's another point we must take up today. I'm glad you remind me of it," she said thoughtfully, yet with so magically compelling an intonation that he stopped his shouting in the middle of a word, stopped with an apoplectic splutter. "We must arrange to put the old house in order at once."

"We'll arrange nothing of the sort," he responded after a moment of angry silence. "You're going to stay right here."

"Ah, I know your hospitality," she bowed graciously. "But of course I must not tax it too far. And about Mr. Louden? As I said, I want to speak to you about him."

"Yes," he intervened harshly, "so do I, and I'm going to do it quick! You'll find"—

Again she mysteriously baffled him. "He's a dear old friend of mine, you know, and I have made up my mind that we both need his help, you and I."

"What!"

"Yes," she continued calmly, "in a business way, I mean. I know you have great interests in a hundred directions, all more important than mine. It isn't fair that you should bear the whole burden of my affairs, and I think it will be best to retain Mr. Louden as my man of business. He could take all the cares of the estate off your shoulders."

Martin Pike spoke no word, but he looked at her strangely, and she watched him with sudden keenness, leaning forward in her chair, her gaze alert but quiet, fixed on the dilating pupils of his eyes. He seemed to become dizzy, and the choleric scarlet which had overspread his broad face and big neck faded splotchily.

Still keeping her eyes upon him, she went on: "I haven't asked him yet, and so I don't know whether or not he'll consent, but I think it possible that he may come to see me this afternoon, and if he does we can propose it to him together and go over things a little."

Judge Pike recovered his voice. "He'll get a warm welcome," he promised huskily. "If he sets foot on my premises!"

"You mean you prefer I shouldn't receive him here?" She nodded pleasantly. "Then certainly I shall not. Such things are much better for offices; you are quite right." She swept lightly and quickly to the door, where she paused, gathering her skirts. "I shall not detain you another instant! And if Mr. Louden comes this afternoon I'll remember. I'll not let him come in, of course. It will be perhaps pleasanter to talk over my proposition as we walk!"

There was a very faint, spicy odor, like wild roses and cinnamon, left in the room where Martin Pike stood alone, staring whitely at the open doorway.

CHAPTER XIII.

THERE was a custom of Canaan, time worn and seldom honored in the breach, which put Ariel that afternoon in easy possession of a coign of vantage commanding the front gate. The heavy Sunday dinner was finished in silence (on the part of Judge Pike deafening) about 3 o'clock, and soon after Mamie tossed a number of cushions out upon the stoop between the cast iron dogs, Sam Warden having previously covered the steps with a rug and placed several garden chairs near by on the grass. These simple preparations concluded, Eugene sprawled comfortably upon the rug and Mamie seated herself near him, while Ariel wandered with apparent aimlessness about the lawn, followed by the gaze of Mr. Bantry until Miss Pike begged her a little petulantly to join them.

She came, looking about her dreamily and touching to her lips now and then, with an absent air, a clover blossom she had found in the longer grass against the fence. She stopped to pat the neck of one of the cast iron deer and, with grave eyes, proffered the clover top first for inspection, then as food. There were those in the world who, seeing her, might have wondered that the deer did not play Galatea and come to life.

She had put on her hat after dinner, and Mamie now inquired if she would not prefer to remove it, offering to carry it indoors for her, to Ariel's room, to insure its safety. "You look so neat of temporary, wearing it," she urged; "as if you were only here for a little while. It's the loveliest hat I ever saw, and so fragile, too, but I'll take care"—

"I am wearing my hat," answered Ariel, "because at any moment I may decide to go for a long walk."

"Oh, I hope not," said Mamie. "There are sure to be people. A few still come, even though I'm an engaged girl. I expect that's just to console me, though," she added, smiling over this worn quip of the betrothed and shaking her head at Eugene, who grew red and coughed. "There'll be plenty today, but they won't be here to see me. It's you, Ariel, and they'll be terribly disappointed if you weren't here. I shouldn't wonder if the whole town came. It's curious enough about you!"

And now the young men of the town, laboriously arranged as to apparel, began to appear on the street in small squads, making their Sunday rounds, the youngest working in phalanxes of threes and fours, these somewhat older inclining to move in pairs, the eldest, such as were now beginning to be considered middle aged beaus or (by the extremely youthful) "old bachelors," evidently considered it advantageous to travel alone. Of all these there were few who did not before evening fell turn in at the gate of the Pike mansion. Consciously, shyly or confidently, according to the condition of their souls, they made their way between the cast iron deer to be presented to the visitor.

Mr. McBooth—An actor, by Jove!—

PAIN

Pain in the head—pain anywhere, has its cause. Pain is congestion, pain is blood pressure—nothing else is really. At least, so says Dr. Shoop, and to prove it he has created a little pink tablet. This tablet is called Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablet—removes blood pressure away from pain-centers. Dr. Shoop's darting, pleasingly delightful, tingly, though safe, it surely equalizes the blood circulation.

If you have a headache, it's blood pressure.

If it's painful periods with women, same cause.

If you are sleepless, restless, nervous, it's blood congestion—blood pressure. That surely is a certainty, for Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablet stop it in 20 minutes, and the tablets amply distribute the unnatural blood pressure.

Bruise your finger and doesn't it get red and swell, and pain you? Of course it does. It's congestion, blood pressure. You'll find it where pain always. It's simply Common Sense.

We sell at 25 cents, and cheerfully recommend

This Company was formed for the purpose of manufacturing all kinds of Iron, Steel, Metal and Wooden Goods, Agricultural Implements, etc., and to carry on the business of a foundry.

They are now turning out specialties in Ornamental Iron Work, Fences, Crestings, etc., for which there is a great demand far in excess of the present facilities of the Company.

Winnipeg and the West offers an unlimited market for the products, guaranteeing a paying investment from the start.

There is a limited amount of stock for sale, and this opportunity to purchase will not return.

The encouragement, coupled with the unexcelled opportunities open to such an enterprise, are in themselves sufficient guarantee of absolute safety and large profits.

HENPECKED.

A half a hundred hens one day—
At least the story goes—
Talked o'er their rights and wrongs and then
In hot rebellion rose.

The rooster had been lord of all—
A cruel tyrant he.
They sought to take him down a peg
Or two or maybe three.

One squawk, then at him did they fly
And picked and scratched him sore.
They drove him here and drove him there,
And used him very bad.

The wrath of months fell on his head;
The job was very plain.
He looked as though he'd filtered through
A harvesting machine.

And since that day the world has come
To this conclusion dread—
A henpecked man looks bad enough,
A beppecked rooster worse.

"Does he complain?"

"No. That's the pathetic part of it. He was telling me how kind natured and clever his wife is because this morning she showed him how to fasten his braces to his trousers with a hairpin."—London Tithits.

Womanly Troubles

Should Not be Allowed to Undermine Health.

It is impossible to go into details on this subject but the experience of many a poor woman who is crippled for life, just because she didn't use a good remedy in time, should be a warning to others.

When the first stages of womanhood appear in a young girl a great deal depends on getting her over this critical stage, so that in years to come she will not develop green sickness or consumption.

When she complains of flushed face, headache bearing down feelings, give her a course of Ferrozone which will carry her past the crisis.

In the adult woman if any irregularities occurr, Ferrozone will be found a remedy of remarkable potency and power.

Ferrozone is the ideal regulator and causes all organs of the body to perform their work properly.

It purifies the blood, tones up the nerves and vital energies. The stomach is strengthened, and digestive and assimilative processes are improved by the good work of Ferrozone. It regulates the bowels, cures constipation and piles, and replaces disease and decay by health and strength.

There is nothing better for the complexion than Ferrozone. It removes the dark circles from under the eyes, removes and cures all manner of skin eruptions, gives bright ness and brilliancy to the eyes, a rosy tint to the cheeks, whitens the teeth and developes a well rounded, plump and handsome form.

Ferrozone is the ladies' favorite, and should find a place in every household. It is prepared in the form of a chocolate coated tablet, convenient and pleasant to take. Price per box, 50c, or three boxes for $1.25. Sold by all druggists.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS

DASHES HERE AND THERE BY TIMES' REPORTERS.

India Officer in Peterboro

Capt. Rogers of the 11th Rajputs Regiment, India, is spending a few days in the city. The captain is an old Peterborough boy, and a son of our popular postmaster, Col. Harry Rogers. Capt. Rogers left India some months ago on an extended leave of absence. During his furlough he has had a good trip having spent weeks in Japan, and has paid a long visit to friends and relatives in British Columbia. After leaving Peterborough he will visit England and return to India in October, via the Suez canal.

Printers' Picnic Today

Today is the date of the Great Annual Picnic, per steamer Otonabee to Idyl Wyld. There is every indication that this will be, not only the best attended, but the most enjoyable excursion of the season. The men of shooting sticks and linotype, daily absorb ideas as to what makes other excursions, as the news from day to day goes through their hands, and they have bettered all other records in connection with their own excursion. The Otonabee leaves Wolfe St. wharf at eight o'clock, and the street railway wharf at 8.30, leaving Idyl Wyld at five o'clock.

C. G. E. Co. Transformer House Done

The massive new transformer building at the west portion of the Canadian General Electric Co's. grounds was last week handed by the contractors over to the C.G.E. Company. The Dominion Engineering & Construction Co., of Montreal, were the contractors, and established a record, in that this immense structure was completed in less than a year. Excavation began on Aug. 10th, and the concreting proper at ground level on April 2nd. The new building is another splendid addition to that vast industry which marks the location of Peterborough's largest plant which affords constant employment to over 1,000 hands, which located here some 19 years ago, when the ratepayers, with good judgment turned out and voted for what has repaid this city many fold.

Prizes for Marathon Race

The prizes for the five-mile Marathon race to be run at the Exhibition Park by the Peterborough Turf Club, are on exhibition in the window of Wasson's jewelery store. First prize is a valuable gold watch, worth $22.50; second prize, gold locket, set in chip diamond, worth $11.50, third prize, gentleman's finger ring, with garnet setting, worth $5.50.

The prizes for the ten-mile Marathon race, will be on exhibition in the same window today, Civic Holiday, and the race will be run on Tuesday.

Big Walking Contract in Hand

Much interest is being taken in the coming walking match against time from the city to Bailieboro and return, by Mr. David Hartley. This well known local sprinter expects to do the distance, 34 miles, in six hours. As the day approaches the interest has become keener, and there are a great many persons who state positively that it is impossible for a man to cover this distance in the time specified. It practically means that he has to walk nearly 5 1/2 miles an hour. But Mr. Hartley is confident of accomplishing the feat, and has been training every day since his announcement that he would do it.

Priest Advices Raising of Pigs

A Picton despatch says that Rev. Father Killeen, incumbent of St. Gregory's church, is particularly energetic towards the material welfare of his charge. This spring he advised every member of his congregation to raise one or two pigs, the proceeds from the sale of which, this fall, will go toward the church. It is anticipated that over $1,000 will be realized in this original way. The congregation intend holding their annual lawn social this month and a week ago Father Killeen distributed $2 worth of tickets for each family of his congregation to dispose of. This means at the very outset $200 proceeds.

Long Odds on Favorite in 2.30 Class

Yesterday The Times saw $200 put up, at even money on Lipsett's "Peggy," against the field in the 2.30 class. This was a plucky bet but possibly not in accordance with the rules of chance governing race meets. Whilst Peggy may be a strong favorite, The Times' tip is "Don't place even money on the favorite in a field of eight horses. It is dollars to cancelled postage stamps that the bookies this afternoon will give better odds than ever against the favorite in any such field. This is not intended to throw a stone against any horse in any race but simply a tip to our readers.

$100 REWARD, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer one hundred dollars for any case, that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Local Milk to be Tested Monthly

Good Move for Local Childrens' Protection.

It seems that the people of Peterborough and particularly their little children will henceforth have reason good practical reason for thanking, the local authorities for their action in having systematic tests made of the local milk supply. At least once a month a sample will be taken of the milk sold by each and every vendor of the lactical fluid, for the purpose of testing its quality. This will be in addition to the test made by the Board of Health, which is more thorough, as it is a double test, viz., the chemical test and quality test. The property committee has taken hold of the matter, and has issued instructions to the sanitary inspector to have samples taken to the Peterborough creamery, and to report to the committee the first of each month.

The members present were Ald McIntyre, Elliott and Morgan, and Mayor McWilliams.

—The barber shops of the city will remain open until noon today, Civic Holiday. The public are asked to govern themselves accordingly.

—The Evangelistic Band had charge of the men's meeting at the Y.M.C.A. on Sunday at four o'clock. The subject was "Reaping and Sowing."

—Lightning knocked the pipe from the mouth of an Otonabee farmer last week. It is not often that lightning does anything so sensible. — Orillia Packet.

—On Sunday evenings during August and September, Rev. C. H. Coop will preach a series of sermons in Mark street church on "Characters of the Old Testament." Last night he preached on "Noah."

—A big crowd of Orangemen left the Wolfe street wharf at noon Saturday per steamer Otonabee for Idyl Wyld. The True Blues had a band with them and enjoyed a first-class time.

A Lazy Liver

May be only a tired liver, or a starved liver. It would be a stupid as well as savage thing to beat a weary or starved man because he lagged in his work. So in treating the lagging, torpid liver it is a great mistake to lash it with strong drastic drugs. A torpid liver is but an indication of an ill-nourished, enfeebled body whose organs are weary with over work. Start with the stomach and allied organs of digestion and nutrition. Put them in working order and see how quickly your lazy will become active. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has made many marvelous cures of "liver trouble" by its wonderful control of the organs of digestion and nutrition. It restores the normal activity of the stomach, increases the secretions of the blood making glands, cleanses the system from poisonous accumulations, and so relieves the liver of the burdens imposed upon it by the defection of other organs.

If you have bitter or bad taste in the morning, poor or variable appetite, coated tongue, foul breath, constipated or irregular bowels, feel weak, easily tired, despondent, frequent headaches, pain or distress in "small of back," gnawing or distressed feeling in stomach, perhaps nausea, "all gone" or "faint" sinking" in throat after eating, and kindred symptoms of weak stomach and torpid liver, no medicine will relieve you more promptly or cure you more permanently than Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Perhaps only a part of the above symptoms will be present at one time and yet point to torpid liver or biliousness and weak stomach. Avoid all hot bread and biscuits, griddle cakes and other indigestible food and take the "Golden Medical Discovery" regularly and stick to its use until you are vigorous and strong.

The "Discovery" is non-secret, non-alcoholic, is a glyceric extract of native medicinal roots with a full list of its ingredients printed on each bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. Its ingredients are endorsed and extolled by the most eminent medical writers of the age and are recommended to cure the diseases for which it is advised.

Don't accept a substitute of unknown composition for this non-secret MEDICINE OF KNOWN COMPOSITION.

—Omemee Mirror; Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Kennedy, of Peterborough, spent Sunday under the parental roof—Mr. and Mrs. Tisdale, of Peterborough, visited friends here on Sunday and assisted at the services in the Methodist church.

—Mr. Frederick Sager, Canadian representative of the Automobile Co., St. Catharines, Ont., was in the city over Sunday on business and pleasure combined. Mr. Sager called on Mr. Fred Darcy, the Peterborough representative for his firm.

—Mr. Dan Whetung of Chemong village, who has been confined to Nicholls hospital for some time, was taken to his home in the ambulance Saturday morning. His many friends will be pleased to learn that he is improving.

—Mr. W. McIlroy has returned from his old home in Galt where he attended the Old Boys' Reunion. He says that there are thousands of old boys visiting in the old town and everyone had a great time. One feature of the reunion was the exceptionally artistic and attractive decorations of the business streets and the private residences. There was no irregular flashy display. The popular colors were red and yellow. The electric illumination was the best he ever saw.

Fire Brigade Had a Hard Fight

Yesterday afternoon two alarms called out the fire brigade. It was that the large pile of sawdust near Dickson's Dam, that has been slowly burning for some time, was by the heavy wind blowing, made into an immense roaring body of flames. Unfortunately the sparks were carried by the wind into several long piles of cordwood of various kinds, belonging to Mr Munn. The wood when it once fairly caught fire made a terrific blaze that gave the firemen great trouble to get under control. The heat was intense and the wind caused fire to break out again and again after seemingly under control. The brigade had several hours hard tussle before conquering the fire.

I will mail you free, to prove merit, samples of my Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and my Book on either Dyspepsia, The Heart or The Kidneys. Troubles of the Stomach, Heart or Kidneys, are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak Stomach nerves—the inside nerves—mean Stomach weakness, always. And the Heart, and Kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves, and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves." Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion, use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write me today for sample and free Book. Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. The Restorative is sold by all dealers.

Love-making by Proxy.

For a private person to delegate his choice of wife to a friend or relative must appear to a mind ruled by sentiment the height of absurdity. But in the opinion of a fifteenth century Florentine it was a distinctly reasonable proceeding. This vicarious suitorship commended itself as prudent to a citizen.

Damascus.

Though Rome is called the Eternal City, the name by right belongs to the city of Damascus, in Syria, which is the oldest city in the world. As long as man has written records the city of Damascus has been known.

Mountain Ranges.

The mountain ranges of Europe lie east and west and those of America north and south.

Saffron.

Saffron is composed of the central small portions only of the flowers of a species of crocus, 70,000 of which it takes to yield the material for one pound.

Hector's Shield.

The shield of Hector, when slung at the back in walking, covered the body from neck to heel.

Balmoral.

Balmoral is a greatly larger estate now than it was when first it became a royal residence. To the original 10,000 of 11,000 acres were soon added the 6,000 acres of the adjoining Birkhall estate. Then in 1878 the forest of Ballochoule was purchased—another 10,000 acres—and there have since been more acquisitions.

Covered Carriages.

Covered carriages were first used in England in 1580.

Doll Models.

Early in the fifteenth century a Paris firm annually sent to other parts of Europe more than 1,000 dolls, dressed in the latest styles, to serve as models of fashion.

Macaroons.

Beat the whites of three eggs stiff with three-quarters of a pound of powdered sugar. Stir in gradually a half pound of almond paste, crumbled fine; beat until smooth and drop by the spoonful upon buttered paper. Bake for ten minutes in a steady oven.

Iron Coinage.

The Spartans had an iron coinage, no other being allowed.

Ostrich Feathers.

Ostrich feathers can be taken every eight months. The plumes are not, as some suppose, pulled, but are cut with a sharp knife. The stumps soon fall out.

New South Wales Marble.

An Queer Fish.

The jellyfish has no teeth, but uses himself as if he were a piece of paper when he is hungry, getting his food and then wrapping himself about it.

Cortes' Army.

When Cortes invaded Mexico for the second time he had eighty musketeers and eighty crossbowmen.

South's First Cotton Mill.

The first cotton mill in the southern states built near Lincolnton, N. C., on the south fork of the Catawba river, in 1815 and operated by water-power. It had seventy-two spindles, and yet it was the beginning of the great factories that are today busy turning out products of the fleecy staple. This mill was enlarged to 3,000 spindles in 1829.

Heavy Armor.

In the fourteenth century armor became so heavy that many soldiers only thirty years old were deformed or permanently disabled by its weight.

Faded Black Cloth.

The reason why black cloth becomes green with wear is that the bichromate of potash used in dyeing is converted by the action of the air into green chromic oxide.

Peter Cooper.

In the New York directory for 1812 is the entry, "Peter Cooper, machinist, 98 Elm street." Elm street was then one of the poorer localities.

An Old Beverage.

Next to our grape wine it is believed that Japanese sake, or rice wine, is the oldest alcoholic beverage known to man, its use in Japan dating back over 2,000 years.

A Tart Motto.

The American cents of 1837 bore the motto "Mind your business."

An Old Naval Battle.

A naval battle between the Romans and Carthaginians off the coast of Spain in the first Punic war was lost by the latter because the galley slaves could not keep their seats when the ships rolled.

The Mousseng.

The mousseng, a Japanese coin, is worth about the one-hundredthpart of a cent.

Ancient Glass Specimen.

The oldest specimen of pure glass bearing a date is the head of a lion in a collection at the British museum. It bears the name of an Egyptian king of the eleventh dynasty.

Cotton in Peru.

Flavored butters are much in favor for sandwiches. Fresh, unsalted butter is the foundation. This is first creamed; then the flavoring material is added, and the whole is beaten until thoroughly blended and smooth. Among the popular flavorings are olives, anchovy, sardines, cheese, chives, parsley, paprika, caviare and salmon.

OCTOGENARIAN ADMIRAL AT CHEMONG PARK

Amerioan Admiral Who Took Part in the Civil War is Spending the Summer of His Declining Years at a Peterboro Summer Resort.

Rear Admiral Macombe, of the U. S. Navy, whose headquarters are in New York City, is spending the holiday at his cottage, "The Pines," Chemong Park. A Times reporter with the old gentleman elicited the fact that Admiral Macombe, at the opening of the disastrous Civil War in the United States, was aboard and in command of the U.S. Frigate Niagara, which reached the American shores some two weeks after the interchange of artillery with Fort Sumpter.

This venerable ex-officer of the United States, as he is now drawing a retired officer's pension, saw many battles by sea during the recent disagreement between the Northern and Southern States of the Union.

Admiral Macombe was with Farragut in his historic run against the Confederate batteries. He was, as noted before, on the Frigate Niagara, one of the old time and now obsolete wooden ships of bygone days of the American Navy. The admiral, shortly after the opening of the Civil War, was, with the Niagara, just returning to New York, after taking the Japanese commissioners to America, back to Japan. On hearing of Fort Sumpter being fired on, (the then) 'Captain' Macombe at once asked for, and got, instructions as to his immediate present course of action It might be noted that his technical and wide knowledge of ships was eagerly taken advantage of by the U.S. Government, who placed him in charge of the navy yards where four monitors were in course of construction. In fact his wife, Mrs. Maccombe, now with him here, actually christened at her launching, the U.S. monitor Canaucticus.

This prominent American naval officer is, as he has done for some summers past, spending the hot weather at his summer residence, "The Pines," at Chemong Park. That the admiral will enjoy many years to come in this district is not only wished for, but practically assured as his grandfather not only beat the Biblical term of life allotted to man, viz., "three score and ten" but retained life for nine years over the even century. Admiral Macombe's grandfather lived to the age of 109 years. This retired naval officer, whilst more than an octogenarian himself, looks like the average man of, say 65 to 68 years of age. His wife is with him, and has spent several successive summers at Chemong Park.

Lacrosse Referee Viciously Attacked at Brantford

Brantford, Aug. 13.—The feature of the Civic Holiday celebration here yesterday was a C.L.A. game between Brantford and St. Catharines. It proved one of the roughest ever played in this city, culminating in an exhibition of rowdyism of a most disgraceful character.

Referee Donald Hall of Oshawa, towards the close of the second quarter, when the score stood 3 to 1 in favor of the visitors, was assaulted by a Brantford player, who had been ruled off, and was threatened with assault by spectators rushing on the field. He immediately stopped play and awarded the game to St. Catharines.

Thereupon hundreds swarmed on the field, making deliberate attempts on Referee Hall and Field Captain McIlwain of St. Catharines, both being mobbed and struck repeatedly in the face and body.

To the credit of some of the local players and some spectators, it should be said that they made valiant efforts to protect the visitors, surrounding them and beating back their assailants. Finally they were landed in the dressing rooms. The referee was hurried away, and all the players kept under lock and key.

Throughout the game, and at the time of the assaults, there were no police in the field. Later the police arrived and protected the visitors, although efforts were made to assault them. They were rushed to the station in covered vans.

The game itself was brutally rough; players, particularly among the visitors, were frequently laid out. Brantford men laid on the hickory in the most approved manner, and decorated the fence for extended periods. The referee was strict, but impartial.

Brantford made an attempt to play Ollie Davidson of the Tecumsehs. Taylor of Toronto, and Whitehead of the Tecumsehs, but St. Kitts objected to their playing, even if the match were regarded as an exhibition game, and local men were substituted.

In the first quarter Brantford got one and St Kitts two, one of which was disallowed. The visitors had scored two more up to the call of time in the second period. Many fights occurred among the players. The better element of sportsmen here greatly regret the entire proceedings, which seemed to be provoked by old-time rivalry and friction between Brantford and St. Catharines. The crowd was large, numbering 2,000.

After the player, either Jons or Moffatt had struck Referee Hall from behind and the official awarded the game to St Kitts, the Brantford fancier rushed on the field with hundreds of spectators and smashed Hall with fists, feet, stones, and fence palings. When Hall was on the ground he was viciously kicked about the head and body On the way to the train the St Kitts players were stoned and an innocent Brantford policeman, who was watching the rowdyism, was struck in the face a large-sized rock, and his cheek cut wide open.

Every player on the St. Catharines team shed blood in the match and much more afterwards. There were fourteen Brantford players and three St. Kitts players ruled off, two of the former for 20 minutes and two for 10 minutes. The referee could have fairly ruled the whole Brantford team off for the game for their blood-thirsty work.

Peterboro's Sobriety Is Demonstrated

Transient Pastors Can Get the Truth via Police Court Records

Nothing of general interest doing at the police court yesterday. This speaks volumes for the good work done by our local police, when, after a Sunday and a Monday public holiday, not even a drunk was corralled. This is direct contradiction of the absurd statements recently attributed to a local divine who seemed to claim that Peterborough showed more evidence of the use of intoxicants than any other town in Canada. In all due deference to this pastor's opinions, that are evidently gained by hearsay, and thus not reliable, we doubt if any manufacturing city of say, 1500 to 16000 in the world, let alone Ontario, can show two holidays running consecutively, where so ardent a police department enforces the law, that not one arrest has been made, particularly for drunkenness. If of those who throw slander at their present place of abode, would take the trouble to get out and personally see what is going on through their own eyes, there would be more respect for such would-be teachers of public morals. The slander thrown on Peterborough is undeserved, unwarranted, and untrue. It is not fair that transitory parsons should throw mud through the press, on the city that provides their living, when that plainest of all proofs, the police station, absolutely and uncontradictably refutes such idle and random remarks thrown out to simply (what would be said in newspaperdom "to fill space.")

Prince Theft Suspected

Police Search Rooms and Find Them Held by Servian Royalty

London, Aug. 14—The crown prince of Servia, who is making a fairly extended tour incognito, is now doing the sights of London with all the zest natural to a youth of 19 and hitherto he has displayed none of those undesiring traits which ruined for him the title of "His serene highness, the Hooligan Prince."

He had an unpleasant experience in Ostend, where he had taken rooms in the leading hotel with his suite de camp. Some jewels were stolen in the hotel and the servants' rooms were searched in vain The landlord then told the police of the arrival of two mysterious gentlemen, who always remained by themselves and spent money lavishly.

The police immediately went to search the prince's rooms and the latter, in great wrath, disclosed his identity, and in spite of the police's apologies, insisted that the proposed search should be completed He then left Ostend in high dudgeon, swearing never to return.

Milne Hamilton Wins His Fourth Race

Peterboro Yachtsman Won Stony Lake Dinghy Race

Mr Milne Hamilton, Peterborough's enthusiastic yachtsmen, has added another leaf to the laurels he has won for three successive years, in the annual Chemong, Stony and Sturgeon Lakes' sailing races. On Civic holiday Mr Hamilton succeeded once more in winning the dinghy race, this making four successive successful races he has come out first in, this time at the great Stony Lake regatta, whilst racing under the colors of the Chemong Yacht Club. Mr. A. A. Hollingshead, another local and ardent yachtsman, came out second in the race. Hurrah for Peterborough!

Mr. and Mrs. H. Rush are Home from Europe

Local Citizens who Have Visited England, France and Switzerland

The Times respectfully congratulates Mr. Harry Rush on the hale and hearty appearance he presents as a result of his recent trip across "the briny." Mr. Rush, when given a welcoming hand by a Times representative, looked, and is the picture of health, brown as a berry and with eyes bright and keen as a boy of fifteen. Mr. and Mrs. Rush spent some weeks in England and also some time in Paris, going as far as Geneva, Switzerland. Mr. Rush was greatly impressed by the grandeur of the Swiss mountains. They had a 60 mile automobile ride in France and thoroughly enjoyed this open air trip through the beautiful county of La Belle France. In Paris they stopped at the Hotel St. Petersburg, where every attention was shown them. Whilst in London Mr. and Mrs. Rush visited, among other sights, that venerable pile, St. Paul's Cathedral, and made a point of having one of the old vergers, or wardens, show them the tomb of Muzio Clementi who is buried in the south cloister of the abbey, as there are great grandchildren of this celebrated musician living in Peterborough. Mrs. Rush took a copy of the inscription on the musician's tomb as well as obtaining other facts of a biological nature.

Dust Nuisance on Market Square

Cheeses Weighed Yesterday Literally Covered with Filth

Those whose business brought them on the market square yesterday morning, particularly round about and in the weigh scales office, complained bitterly about the absolute clouds of dust that almost smothered them. There were quite a number of wagon loads of cheese brought in from factories in the county. As is possibly generally known, a certain number of boxes in each load have to be unloaded and the contents taken out and weighed. When the cheese yesterday were weighed they were simply covered with a coating of the filthy dust that comes from the streets and the bottoms of the boxes were so dusty they had to be turned and shaken out. The market scales office was so dusty one could anywhere, with the point of a finger, write ones name in the dust. The books and papers were grey with dust. Now, it will not advance the good name or value of cheese made in the county of Peterborough, when the English buyers find their purchases befrimed with germ laden road dust. Something should be done to put an end to such conditions, and more water should be put in this vicinity. Housewives do not want to buy or use vegetables or meat pickled in road dust.

Dire Poverty in Great Britain.

London, Aug. 10.—Pitiful stories of dire poverty were related yesterday at meeing of the United Kingdom Benefit Association to provide annuities for poor gentlefolk, held at Sir Edward and Lady Sassoon's house in Park Lane.

The Duke of Norfolk, who presided, announced that although the King had already given a life donation of $25, he had signified his intention of subscribing $50 annually to show his sympathy with the movement.

Then the Duke spoke of the terrible conditions of poverty to be found among middle-aged gentlefolk, whose privations the society strove to relieve.

He mentioned the case of a hospital nurse who saved every penny and worked herself into a hopeless condition of ill health so that she might start her brother in a profession. She was now an invalid and dependen on the annuity of $125 provided by the association.

Another woman had been brought to such straits by the anxious condition of affairs in Ireland that she has been obliged to sell her hair.

"This society sends little rivulets into the arid plains of those people's lives, andd I commendd it to your charity," the Duke of Norfolk concluded.

Mr. Osborn, secretary of the association, was visibly affected as he related one of the tragedies which had come under his notice.

It might not seem an interesting fact when put into words that 451 applicants were waiting for election, but if the light of day could be let into every case it would reveal the saddest, bravest struggles against poverty.

There were reliable tragedies enacted between four walls which the world never knew, he continued. An extract from a letter, thanking the secretary of the Christmas gift fund, said: "The $2o I ahe I put aside entirely for rent, for if you can keep a roof and your windows tidy nobody knows outside what you go without inside."

"And how much they go without!" Mr. Osborn said. "One poor woman told me cheerfully that she had found a room without a fireplace, and she was glad, because she could not afford a fire, and an empty grate would have made her feel cold."

Hartley Wins the Long Distance Race

Local Man Walks to Bailleboro and Back in Record Time

On Civic Holiday Mr David Hartley of the east side, established a record that many a professional sprinter might well be proud of. In a word, recalling what the local press has had to say about Mr. Hartley's (so called see others) bluff this old-time pedestrian made good beyond beyond dispute His offer was to walk from Peterborough to Bailleboro and return, a distance of 31 miles, in six hours.

Mr Hartley accomplished the feat in less than that specified, making the distance in record time, viz., five hours and forty-eight minutes.

Mr. Hartley's walk has created great enthusiasm among local sports in this city, and they may well feel proud of this pedestrian. He won only a small sum of money over and above actual expenses and if he may be induced to beat the record of Reynolds, the Port Hope barber. Mr. Hartley states that he would attempt it, but there would have to be a good sum of money put up to cover contingent expenses.

Another Sad Death in the Otonabee

Little Willie Barr is Drowned Whilst in Swimming

Those who heard of the sad fatality that was in evidence on Sunday last, were greatly shocked, when it became known that William Barr, a boy 14 years of age, had been drowned in the Otonabee river. The boy went down the river below Crawford's grove with an elder brother for a bath. He could not swim, but plunged into the water. He waded out to a rock intending to wait for his brother. Unfortunately he slipped off and went into the channel, which at that place is about 12 feet deep. He made no noise, and his brother did not miss him at first until he was ready to go in and then he could not see him. After calling several times he began to realize what had happened. He hurriedly dressed and alarmed the campers and soon a search was started. Pike poles and grappling irons were secured. It was not until about a quarter to three that the body was brought to the surface. The drowning occured about eleven o'clock in the morning.

Coroner Dr. Gray was notified and issued a warrant for an inquest, but upon hearing the circumstances considered it unnecessary and withdrew the warrant. Undertaker Belleghem then took charge of the body and removed it to his undertaking rooms on Hunter street.

The deceased with his two brothers resided with their parents at 102 Chamberlain street, from which place the funeral took place yesterday afternoon, the service being conducted by Rev. J. G. Potter. Interment took place at Little Lake cemetery.

Printers' Picnic a Program of Pleasure

Large Crowd Take in the Excursion to Idyl Wyld

Beyond dispute the best attended and most thoroughly enjoyed excursion of the many that left this city on Civic Holiday, was the excursion run under auspices of the Peterborough Printers. The weather was just as good as any church might have prayed for, every detail had been looked after by the Otonabee Navigation Company, on whose steamer, the Otonabee, the happy crowd travelled, and most of all, the Printers themselves were just the right class for making the best of a good day—but here, we must not throw bouquets at the Printers, as we are in constant touch with them, and know what good fellows they are. We will have to leave the eulogies coming to the knowledge or imagination of those who do or don't know the boys of the "stick" or "threshers." In a word, they are all right and gave themselves and their guests a rare good time.

Gives Anarchist Rose

Alfonso Recognizes Red, Reassures Him and Shows Courtesy

Paris, Aug. 14.—King Alfonso, who delights in being incognito, in strolling with his wife through a village near San Sebastian while his chauffeur repaired his automobile, entered a tobacconist's to buy cigarettes and asked another customer for a light. The latter recognizing the monarch, turned pale. The king, in turn, identified the man as an anarchist arrested mistakenly in connection with the Madrid outrage. Stopping the man, who wanted to hurry away, he asked the latter to excuse the police for occasionally arresting an innocent anarchist. Then taking a rose from Queen Victoria, the king gave it to the anarchist with thanks for the light.

Many Casualities Reported Throughout the Dominion

Whitby, Aug. 14.—Dorothy Sullivan, of Detroit, aged three years and seven months, choked to death here yesterday at the home of Mrs. Colwill, where she was visiting with her mother. She was taken with a choking fit while lying asleep.

PLAYED WITH A GUN.

Vonda, Sask., Aug. 14.—Janos Frank was instantly killed here by a loaded gun which he, with some other lads, had discovered upstairs at the home of Mrs Mary Kovacs, north of Howell, and were playing with.

STRANGLED BY MEAT.

Fredericton, N.B., Aug. 14.—William Mitchell, aged sixty, an inmate of the almshouse here, choked to death from a piece of meat which lodged in his throat while eating dinner.

Silas Staples, a shoemaker, instantly expired from heart failure Saturday afternoon, while stooping to lace his shoe.

POWDER EXPLODED.

Medicine Hat, Alta., Aug. 14.—By the explosion of a quantity of powder stored in an old building outside the corporation limits, George Austin was probably fatally burned A companion, George Brown, escaped almost uninjured. The explosive was being removed to a new magazine.

AN ASSYRIAN RIOT.

St. John, N.B., Aug. 14.—A number of men and women were injured during a riot yesterday morning in the Assyrian colony, said to have been caused by business rivalries Seven men were taken in charge by the police, and one woman will be arrested as soon as her injuries will permit.

A TREMENDOUS CAVE-IN.

Grand Forks, B.C., Aug. 14.—A serious cave-in occurred at the Brooklyn Mine, Phoenix Camp, on Saturday evening. The ore bunkers and the ground below for a space of about 300 by 150 feet fell in, and the mine will be out of business for some months. A man on the bunkers had a narrow escape.

ATE A RAW PEANUT.

London, Aug. 14.—Doctors had a hard time saving the life of Thomas Cameron, a Pere Marquette teamster, who was taken with violent pains after eating a raw peanut from a quantity which he was hauling on his lorry Medical men say there was a species of fungus pomoning, similar to toad-stoll poisoning caused by eating raw peanuts.

Met Abroad

Accidental Meeting of Rev. Mr. Lord and Mr. Rush in London

As a sample of how small the world is it might be noted that during the recent visit of Peterborough's popular insurance agent, Mr Harry Rush, the latter happening to enter one of London, England's, leading hotels on business, the first man he met was Rev. Mr. Lord, English church clergyman for Apley. As is known to most of our readers and to all of such as belong to the Church of England, the Rev Mr. Lord is a worthy successor in that remote parish to the late Rev Canon Harding, the latter being one of the wide world's most self-abnegating and praiseworthy missionaries who ever devoted a life of otherwise wider interest to furthering the interests of his church and saving souls in a far distant hamlet, where his reward was not so much of a pecuniary nature, as will assuredly be recognized and rewarded in his present home. Mr Rush was delighted to meet the Apsley clergyman and the two had, what the Scotch would call, a "mighty clack" over recent events of the county of Peterborough.

WILL BE NO TROUBLE WITH C.P.R. OPERATORS

The Best of Relations Exist Between the Men and the Company--The Great North-Western's Day Shift in Toronto Quit Work.

Toronto, Aug. 13.—There has been no strike of the C.P.R. telegraph operators and there seems to be little danger of one while the management holds to its present policy of not forcing the men to operate the wires to cities in the United States where the strike is on.

"We anticipate no trouble," said Mr. Sturrock, local manager, yesterday morning. "The best of relations exist between the men and the company and I do not see why they should go out. I met one of the night men going home this morning," he added, "and he said he did not see why they should go out."

"We are accepting messages for points in Canada as usual, but messages for all points in the United States we accept subject to delay," said Mr. Sturrock.

Toronto, Aug. 13.—The telegraph operators' strike assumed an acute local stage this morning at 9.30, when about 50 operators, both men and women, practically the entire day shift of the G.N.W. Telegraph Company's head office, walked out, because of the dismissal or suspension of five of their number for refusing to work on the Chicago, Buffalo, and Montreal wires, as the operators in those cities were on strike.

Only one woman and three men remained in the room, which, with four chief operators, brought the staff to eight all told.

At 9.00 the three men who did not quit in the morning decided to join their comrades outside, leaving only the chiefs and the one lady operator. It is expected that the night shift, which went off duty at eight o'clock yesterday morning, declined, with very few exceptions, to report this evening.

SURPRISED THE COMPANY.

There is no doubt that the company were surprised with the practically unanimous action, and the business of the office was, of course practically paralyzed, as the few remaining could only handle a very small portion of the messages.

It is understood that the company had figured that a considerable number of the women operators at least would have remained. But the women stood by the men with a single exception. Many of those who struck of both sexes had no connection with the union whatever, and as far as can be learned no grievances, so that the strike was emphatically a sympathetic one pure and simple.

U. S. Department of Justice Will Get After Big Magnates

Lenox, Mass., Aug. 13. — That criminal prosecutions will be undertaken in the near future as a result of the Interstate Commerce commission's investigation of the Harriman railroad system was the information obtained here yesterday afternoon on the eve of the return of Attorney-General Bonaparte to Washington. He was was asked if action personally against Harriman would be included in the prosecutions. He replied; "I have noticed a good many complaints that criminal prosecutions against trust magnates and sentences of imprisonment for them have been very infrequent, and, in fact, for practical purposes, unknown. It is perfectly true that in my opinion at least a better, moral effect would be produced by sending a few prominent men to jail than by a great deal of litigation, however, successful, against the corporations they controlled.

"But it must be remembered that it is only successful prosecutions which would have a good effect. Some time since, two corporations and their respective presidents were indicted jointly for violation of criminal provisions of the anti-trust law. If the corporations were guilty of such, it would be hard for the lay mind at least to understand how their presidents could be innocent. Nevertheless the jury convicted corporations and acquitted presidents.

"It is the avowed purpose of the department of justice to prosecute criminally any one who is really responsible for violations of anti-trust law wherever it can do so with any reasonable probability of success. It does not care to prosecute mere underlings who are known to every one to have acted under direct authority of their superiors. But if it can get a case against any of the superiors, such as justifies reasonable hope on the part of experienced lawyers that he can be punished personally, the department will undoubtedly take advantage of the opportunity as soon as it is presented."

Mr Bonaparte was asked, whether the government would try to collect the $29,000,000 fine from the Standard Oil Company.

"As to the probability of collecting the fine," he said, with a smile, "presupposing, of course, that the conviction should be affirmed on appeal. I can only say that in that contingency my department will do its best to get all it can."

Chicago Publisher Visits the City

Mr G. C. Peterson, of the great publishing firm of the F. T. Peterson Co., 61 Washington street, Chicago is spending a few weeks in Peterborough with his friend Mr "Bun" Wright, an old Peterborough boy, but now with the Peterson Co. Mr. Peterson was very favorably impressed with the beauties of Stony and Rice Lakes, but particularly the latter. With the characteristic patriotism of those hailing from "The Windy City," and true American, he declared that Canada had been independent for the last twenty years she would now have a population of 20,000,000 instead of 6,000,000, and be one of the most prosperous as she is one of the most beautiful and delightful of countries. The barrier between Canada and greatness is its adhesion to a dying empire and an obsolete form of government."

Mr Peterson said to a Times representative, "your summer resorts are like Petersons said to a Times representative, "your summer resorts are like Peterson said to a Times representative, "your summer resorts are like Peterson said to a Times representative, "your summer resorts are like Peterson said to a Times representative, "your summer resorts are like Peterson said to a Times representative, "your summer resorts are like Peterson said to a Times representative, "your summer resorts are like Peterson said to a Times representative, "your summer resorts are like Peterson said to a Times representative, "your summer resorts are like Peterson said to a Times representative, "your summer resorts are like Peterson said to a Times representative, "your summer resorts are like Peterson said to a Times representative, "your summer resorts are like Peterson said to a Times representative, "your summer resorts are like Peterson said to a Times representative, "your summer resorts are like Peterson said to a Times representative, "your summer resorts are like Peterson said to a Times representative, "your summer resorts are like Peterson said to a Times representative, "your summer resorts are like Peterson said to a Times representative, "your summer resorts are like Peterson said to a Times representative, "your summer resorts are like Peterson said to a Times representative, "your summer resorts are like Peterson said to a Times representative, "your summer resorts are lovely beyond conception. New York Paper Attacks Canada

New York, N.Y., Aug 13. The American says, editorially, "It will probably be very well for American and other investors to view with suspicion some of the magazine exploitation of Canada now in full progress. A glance from the laudatory article to the advertising pages, filled with cards of land boomers and township companies, explains the magazine enthusiasm about Canada, but hardly gives any solid basis for confidence and investments, least of all for emigration Canada has doubtless a very great future That may be heartily conceded Its inhabitable region, though narrowly limited by its climate, is fertile. It has abundant and undeveloped resources in mineral deposits and in timber. It has great wealth in fisheries and commerce It has an industrious and intelligent population It has great areas of cheap and productive soil. It will some day be a great, prosperous and powerful nation but the significant fact in this, while all its resources and potentialities of wealth have been perfectly well known for years, and while for years all of us have been predicting its greatness it does not straddle along to realize our cordial prophecies.

"What Canada really needs is not magazine exploitations, but a modern form of government. In this stage of the world's progress people to not migrate from one monarchy to another While Canada has been developing so slowly new republics like Argentina have grown apace.

"If Canada had been independent for the last twenty years she would now have a population of 20,000,000 instead of 6,000,000, and be one of the most prosperous as she is one of the most beautiful and delightful of countries. The barrier between Canada and greatness is its adhesion to a dying empire and an obsolete form of government."

Sin Against Health

Why the Usefulness of All Organs is Destroyed by Costiveness.

Most important to health and comfort is the proper action of the bowels.

By nature these organs are intended for the removal of the waste particles of matter which accumulate in the system.

Retain these wastes and you poison the blood, ruin digestion, bring on nervousness and anaemia.

Not a drastic purgative—not even a pain or sensation of grip, because Dr. Hamilton's Pills are vegetable and free from irritating widely advertised remedies.

Jas. McConnell, of Walkerton, writes; "Since I was comparatively a young man I have not enjoyed real good health.

"My appetite was good and strength kept up, yet I knew something was wrong.

"Frequently I took bilious attacks and violent headaches. My stomach was disordered, skin was murky, under my eyes were heavy dark rings.

"Last winter I read through the Poison's almanac and decided my trouble was constipation. I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and can hardly tell the help they have been. I am now as fresh, strong and well as a boy."

Just try the wonderful magic of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Sold by all dealers. 25c. per box, or five boxes for $1.00. By mail from N. C. Poison & Co., Hartford, Conn., U.S.A., or Kingston, Ont.

THANKS TO THE METER.

By James Clegg.

Copyright, 1907, by M. M. Cunningham.

"Please, have you a quarter?"

The girl from across the hall held out a tiny hand, in the palm of which gleamed three nickels and a dime.

Keenly conscious that there was a hole, a most comfortable and satisfactory hole, in the elbow of his smoking jacket, Digby held out his own hand, unclosing his fingers to display the desired coin.

"Did you know what I was coming after?" she said, with a laugh. Digby had never heard her laugh before. It was a low, rippling laugh, almost as attractive as her smile. He wondered how he could improve his opportunity. Ever since she had moved in he had wanted to know the girl across the hall. Had his mother been home it would have been all simpler, but he had been keeping bachelor hall for nearly three months.

"Did you know I wanted the quarter?" she repeated. Digby pulled himself together.

"I am a seventh son," he declared solemnly. "I know that you want the quarter. I can see you returning to your apartment. I can see you climbing on a chair and dropping the coin into the gas meter. I can see the light growing bright again. Great is the automatic meter—when you have a quarter."

"Yes, when!" she cried. "The other day we only had a check, and no one could cash it."

"Say no more," he commanded tragically. "I know the rest."

"I'm very much obliged," she said gratefully. "You are sure you won't need one?"

"Not at all," he assured. As though to prove him false the gas in his hall grew dim. "I have more change," he explained, "and it's all right."

He watched her regretfully as she slipped back into her own apartment. He had planned many brilliant encounters in which he would hold her enthralled by his wit, and they would live happily ever after. Instead he had never been so dull, and perhaps he had lost his chance.

The gas had gone out as he closed the door and limped into the kitchen. He knew very well that it was useless to search for a quarter. He had found the one he had just given up only after a search. He would have to fall back on candles. There were half a dozen in the dining room, and by lighting four he managed to read after a fashion.

But he had scarcely settled himself to his reading when the doorbell rang again. He wondered who it might be now as he made his way down the dark hall. The girl across the hall stood there smiling.

"You fibbed," she said reproachfully. "You said you had another quarter for yourself. You let me drop yours in our meter, and we can see across the shaft that you're using candles."

"I rather like them," he assured, but she would have none of it.

"You were just going to drop the coin in your meter," she cried. "That is why you had it in your hand."

In the face of deduction he was dumb. The girl went on:

"I know you can't go downstairs to get change because you hurt your ankle. It wouldn't be any use anyway. It's Sunday, and only the drug store is open, and they are all out of quarters. I was down there just before I asked you for one. Mother says you must come in to our flat and read. You may smoke all you like. We don't mind it in the least."

"I am very comfortable," he protested.

The opportunity he had longed for had come, and he was too bashful to avail himself of it. In the end the girl in her masterful little way carried her point. Presently he was installed in the pleasant parlor and was telling motherly Mrs. Fallows all about his trials without his mother.

"It must be so lonesome for you," she cried. "Why didn't you come to us long ago?"

"I've wanted to," he admitted frankly. "Sometimes I've seen the light, and I've been so homesick. We only moved here just before my grandmother's illness took mother west, and I never got acquainted with any one. All of our friends live on the other side of town."

"We come from the country, where we are used to being neighborly," she explained. "I want you to feel that you are welcome here any time."

There was a sincerity in her tones that brought a genial glow to Digby's heart, and the girl (he knew now her name was Ethel) seconded her mother with a glance.

That night was but the beginning of a new life for Digby. The following evening he brought home a box of candy as a return courtesy and was invited to spend the evening, so gradually he fell into the habit of dropping in after dinner. There were trips to the theater, little excursions on Sunday, and even when he had word from his mother that she had decided to remain west for the summer he did not offer objection.

The more he was with Ethel the more deeply in love he became. He had never known many women, and this charming girl was the first he had ever loved. Often he would declare to himself that he would propose, but each time his courage failed him.

Then one night came the climax. The gas began to flicker and burn low, and Ethel left the room to drop in the coin that would turn on the flow again. He heard a match strike in the kitchen, where the gas had not been lit, then came an explosion, and he rushed down the narrow hall.

In some fashion the meter had sprung a leak, and the lighted match had caused the ignition of the gas. Ethel, her light gown ablaze, came staggering blindly toward him. He had his coat off before they met and threw it about her shoulders, forcing her to the carpet that the blaze might not be able to gain headway toward her face. The gas in the apartment had been extinguished, and he was forced to work in the dark, but he beat out the flames with his hand and then rushed into the kitchen to check the flow of gas.

It was easy to extinguish the flames there and shut off the gas at the inlet. Then he opened the doors from their apartment to his and bore her in his arms to his mother's room. Mrs. Fallows followed and took charge of the girl while he went for the doctor.

It was some hours later that he was permitted to see Ethel. She had asked for him, her mother said, and he stole gently into the room. She put out her uninjured hand and smiled up at him. In some miraculous fashion her face had not been touched by the flames, though her masses of golden hair were crisp and blackened.

"It was awfully brave of you, Ben," she whispered as he bent over her. "When that explosion came the first thing I thought was that I was so glad that you were there. I knew you would help me. The doctor says you saved my life by putting the fire out so quickly."

"Any one could have done it," he protested, "but I'm glad it was I."

"So am I," she answered.

"I'd like to be around all the time, if you'll let me," he went on in sudden bravery.

"I was afraid you were getting to look on me more as a sister," she said as the blood came slowly into her cheeks. "Are you sure, Ben, that it's not just because of the accident?"

"The accident has nothing to do with it," he protested, "except that the thought of how I might have lost you gave me the courage to speak."

"I think," she smiled faintly, "that we ought to be very grateful to that gas meter. That's how I first met you, you remember."

"IT WAS AWFULLY BRAVE OF YOU, BEN," SHE WHISPERED.

History of Ivory.

The earliest recorded history—we might say prehistoric, the hieroglyphical—that has come down to us has been in carvings on ivory and bone. Long before metallurgy was known among the prehistoric races carvings on reindeer horn and mammoth tusk evidence the antiquity of the art. Fragments of horn and ivory engraved with excellent pictures of animals have been found in caves and beds of rivers and lakes. There are specimens in the British museum, also in the Louvre, of the Egyptian skill in ivory carving attributed to the age of Moses. In the latter collection are chairs or seats of the sixteenth century B. C. inlaid with ivory and other pieces of the eleventh century B. C. Carving of the "precious substance" was extensively carried on at Constantinople during the middle ages. Combs, caskets, horns, boxes, etc., of carved ivory and bone, often set in precious stones, of the old Roman and Anglo-Saxon periods are frequently found in tombs.

An Eskimo Legend.

Among the Eskimos, the angakos or sorcerer who would visit Sedna, the goddess who lives underground or in the depths of the ocean, presiding over one of the countries to which souls go after death, must first pass the arsissut—the dwellings of the happy dead—and then cross an abyss in which a wheel as slippery as ice is constantly turning round. Arriving at the house of Sedna, he finds it guarded by terrible animals, sometimes described as seals, and sometimes as dogs, and when within the house passage he has to cross an abyss by means of a bridge as narrow as a knife edge.

Keeping Up Appearances.

The tall man in the suit of faded black went into the first class restaurant and seated himself at a table in a far corner. Lingering there a minute or two, he rose stiffly and went to the cashier's desk. "If a gentleman can't be waited on promptly in this place," he said, with a frown, "there are plenty of other places." Then he strolled leisurely out, picking his teeth, and presently wended his way unobtrusively to the five cent lunch counter round the corner.—Chicago Tribune.

Dear to Him.

"Before we were married you called me 'darling.' Now you seem content to call me 'dear.'"

"You weren't so dear to me before marriage as you are now. Your father paid your bills."

First Family Row.

"Do you know who created the first family row on record?"

"I suppose it was Adam and Eve when they raised Cain."—Stray Stories.

The Money That's Being Made in Western Canada LAND

In October, 1906 we sold 5,000 acres of Saskatchewan lands to an Indiana party of men at $8 per acre, and resold it this year at $12, making just about 100 per cent. on the money invested.

A Montreal party of men who bought 10,000 acres from us at $8 per acre last September, resold through us within three months at $10.00 per acre.

A Chicago client writes us that after making home improvements on a section she bought near Regina, one year ago, she sold out recently for exactly twice what she paid for the land.

We resold a section of land located near Lipton for a man at $18.00 per acre last April, which we sold him in December at $12.00.

Western Canada Lands offer the greatest opportunity this continent has ever known

Men here are growing wealthy who never knew success in any other line. You can make money here too, if you think your amount too small club it with a few friends. Some of the most prominent financial men in the Canada are now interested in this country heavily.

We own about 200,000 acres of the finest wheat and mixed farming lands in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.—Picked lands on which we are prepared to give accurate trustworthy information, and these tracts being portions of extremely large purchases, we can sell them at prices that cannot be equalled, quality of land considered, by any firm in this United States and Eastern country.

Prices range from $6.00 per acre upwards Reasonable Terms in every case

Write us for further information but when doing so tell us the class and amount of an investment you desire, and whether you want the land for your own use or for investment purposes purely. $1,000 is about the minimum we can handle. References Union Bank and Traders' Bank, Winnipeg.

SIREN WAFER DEVELOP THE BUST

SHE'S A QUEEN! SHE'S A SIREN!

Is an expression that is always heard at sight of a well developed woman. If you are flat chested, with BUST undeveloped, a scrawney neck, thin lean arms - the above remark will never be applied to you. "SIREN" wafers will make you beautiful, bewitching. They DEVELOP the BUST in a few weeks from 3 to 6 inches and produce a fine firm, voluptuous bosom. They fill out the hollow places Make the cheeks plump and rosy, and arms handsome and well molded and the neck and shoulders shapely and of perfect contour.

Send for a bottle today and you'll be pleased and grateful. "SIREN" wafers are absolutely harmless, pleasant to take and convenient to carry around. They are sold under guarantee to do all we claim or MONEY back.

Price $1.00 per bottle. Inquire at good drug stores or send DIRECT to us.

FREE!

During the next 30 days only—we will send you a sample bottle of these beautifying wafers on receipt of 10 cents to pay cost of packing and postage if you will mention that you saw the Advertisement in this paper. The sample alone may be sufficient if defects are trivial.

This is a straight Business Undertaking.

The Smelting of Ore is the safest and most profitable business in the world.

We have fifteen mining properties, located in Kern County, California, carrying good values in Gold, Silver and Copper.

The smelter nearest to us is at Needles, 250 miles distant.

We propose to install on our properties a smelter to treat the ores from our own mines and to do custom smelting for others.

50 per cent. per annum is a moderate estimate of the profits we can earn. If you want to make a safe and profitable investment send for full information and investigate our proposition.

COPPER A 5c. POSSIBILITY

Always the persons who make fortunes are those who seize opportunities. Trudge along in the conventional rut and you will never get away from the counter or the desk.

Fortunes—the greatest mining fortunes in the world—are being made to day by the men who own Copper Mines. You couldn't buy stock in one of the big-paying, developed mines You CAN buy stock in a mine undergoing development, and if you BUY IN THE RICHT PLACE the fortune will come.

I want you to come in and see me about the proposition I have in the Guggenheim Greenwater Copper Company's two properties at Ely and at Greenwater, Nevada. The recent copper finds at Ely are attracting the interest of a whole continent. The property which this Company owns there is in the best section. The workings are now down fifty feet, and the prospect brightens with every foot. The manager tells me he expects to strike it rich any day. So soon as he does, up goes the stock with a bound.

I still can offer a limited number of shares at 5 cents each. It's the easiest chance at a fortune you've ever had. See me about it at once.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry must be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made on certain conditions, by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the homestead conditions under one of the following plans:

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of the homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Six months' notice in writing should be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of intention to apply for patent.

THE CONQUEST of CANAAN

By BOOTH TARKINGTON,
Author of "Cherry," "Monsieur Beaucaire," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1905, BY HARPER & BROTHERS

Ariel sat at the top of the steps and, looking amiably over their heads, talked with such as could get near her. There were many who could not, and Mamie, occupying the bench below, was surrounded by the overflow. The difficulty of reaching and maintaining a position near Miss Tabor was increased by the attitude and behavior of Mr. Flitcroft, who that day cooled the feeling of friendship which several of his fellow townsmen had hitherto entertained for him. He had been the first to arrive, coming alone, though that was not his custom, and he established himself at Ariel's right, upon the step just below her, so disposing the great body and the ponderous arms and legs the gods had given him that no one could mount above him to sit beside her or approach her from that direction within conversational distance.

Norbert, not ordinarily talkative, had nothing to say. He seemed to find sufficient occupation in keeping the place he had gained, and from this close vantage he fastened his small eyes immovably upon Ariel's profile. Eugene, also apparently determined not to move, sat throughout the afternoon at her left, but as he was thin others who came and went were able to approach upon that side and hold speech with her.

The conversation of the gallants consisted for the greater part of witticisms at one another's expense, which, though evoked for Ariel's benefit (all eyes furtively reverting to her as each shaft was loosed), she found more or less enigmatical. The young men, however, laughed at each other loudly and seemed content if now and then she smiled. "You must be frightfully enamied with all this," Eugene said to her. "You see how provincial we still are."

She did not answer. She had not heard him. The shadows were stretching themselves over the grass long and attenuated. The sunlight upon the trees and houses was like a thin, rosy pigment, blackbirds were calling each other home to beech and elm, and Ariel's eyes were fixed upon the western distance of the street where gold dust was beginning to quiver in the air. She did not hear Eugene, but she started a moment later when the name Joe Louden was pronounced by a young man, the poetic Bradbury, on the step below Eugene. Some one immediately said, "Sh!" But she leaned over and addressed Mr. Bradbury, who, shut out, not only from the group about her, but from the other centering upon Miss Pike as well, was holding a private conversation with a friend in like misfortune.

"What were you saying of Mr. Louden?" she asked, smiling down upon the young man. (It was this smile which inspired his description of her as "a revelation and a dream.")

"Oh, nothing particular," was his embarrassed reply. "I only mentioned I'd heard there was some talk among the"— He paused awkwardly, remembering that Ariel had walked with Joseph Louden in the face of Canaan that very day. "That is, I mean to say, there's some talk of his running for mayor."

"What?"

There was a general exclamation, followed by an uncomfortable moment or two of silence. No one present was unaware of that noon walk, though there was prevalent a pleasing notion that it would not happen again, founded on the idea that Ariel, having only arrived the previous evening, had probably met Joe on the street by accident and, remembering him as a playmate of her childhood and uninformed as to his reputation, had, naturally enough, permitted him to walk home with her.

Mr. Flitcroft broke the silence, rushing into words with a derisive laugh: "Yes, he's talked of for mayor—by the saloon people and the niggers! I expect the Beaver Beach crowd would be for him, and if tramps could vote he might"—

"What is Beaver Beach?" asked Ariel, not turning.

"What is Beaver Beach?" he repeated and cast his eyes to the sky, shaking his head awesomely. "It's a place," he said, with abysmal solemnity—"a place I shouldn't have mentioned in your presence, Miss Tabor."

"What has it to do with Mr. Louden?"

The predestined Norbert conceived the present to be a heaven sent opportunity to enlighten her concerning Joe's character, since the Pikes appeared to have been derelict in the performance of this kindness.

"He goes there!" he proceeded heavily. "He lived there for awhile when he first came back from running away, and he's a friend of Mike Sheehan's that runs it. He's a friend of all the riffraff that hang around there."

"How do you know he goes there?"

"Why, it was in the paper the day after he came back." He appealed for corroboration. "Wasn't it, Eugene?"

"No, no!" she persisted. "Newspapers are sometimes mistaken, aren't they? Have you ever met any one who has seen him there?"

"I've seen him there myself!" The words skipped out of Norbert's mouth like so many little devils the instant he opened it. She had spoken so quickly and with such vehemence, looking him full in the eye, that he had forgotten everything in the world except making the point to which her insistence had led him.

Mamie looked horrified. There was a sound of smothered laughter, and Norbert, overwhelmed by the treachery of his own mouth, sat gasping.

"It can't be such a terrible place, then, after all," said Ariel gently, and, turning to Eugene, "Have you ever been there, Mr. Bantry?" she asked.

He changed color, but answered with enough gilbness, "No."

Several of the young men rose. The wretched Flitcroft, however, evading Mamie's eye, in which there was a distinct hint, sat where he was until all of them, except Eugene, had taken a reluctant departure, one group after another, leaving in the order of their arrival.

Ariel started to her feet, but the bent figure coming up the walk in the darkness was that of Eskew Arp. He bowed gloomily to Mamie and in response to her inquiry if he wished to see her father answered no; he had come to talk with the granddaughter of his old friend Roger Tabor.

"Mr. Arp!" called Ariel. "I am so very glad!" She ran down to him and gave him her hand. "We'll sit here on the bench, shan't we?"

Mamie had risen and, skirting Norbert frostily, touched Eugene upon the shoulder as she went up the steps. He understood that he was to follow her indoors, and, after a deep look at the bench where Ariel had seated herself beside Mr. Arp, he obeyed. Norbert was left a lonely ruin between the cold twin dogs. He had wrought desolation this afternoon, and that sweet verdure, his good name, so long in the planting, so carefully tended, was now a dreary waste; yet he contemplated this not so much as his present aspect of splendid isolation. Frozen by the daughter of the house, forgotten by the visitor, whose conversation with Mr. Arp was carried on in tones so low that he could not understand it, the fat one, though heartbreakingly loath to take himself away, began to comprehend that his hour had struck. He rose, descended the steps to the bench and seated himself unexpectedly upon the cement walk at Ariel's feet.

"Leg's gone to sleep," he explained in response to her startled exclama-

"Will you go riding with me tomorrow afternoon?"

tion, but, like a great soul, ignoring the accident of his position as well as the presence of Mr. Arp, he immediately proceeded, "Will you go riding with me tomorrow afternoon?"

England's Great Little River.

One could hardly fancy an England without the Thames. It is the source, the inspiration, the participant, in so much that distinguishes England's sylvan beauty. In the centuries that have lived upon its banks it has been a potent factor in the civilization of this island kingdom. It cuts in twain and laves the burliest city in all the world, a dark mass of human structure impenetrably profound. It rides a vast commerce from London to the sea, and along its jutting wharves nights are often made darker with its tragedies. Years agone kings and princes and the fairest women in the land rode upon its tide in functions of state or in the idle pose of pleasure. Those were the days of the garlanded barge or the hooded galley foist, which, gliding stealthily beneath the tower portcullis, lost another noble to the world of politics and intrigue.—From "In Thamesland."

Constipation

Baked sweet apples, with some people, bring prompt relief for Constipation. With others, coarse all-wheat bread will have the same effect. Nature undoubtedly has a vegetable remedy to relieve every ailment known to man, if physicians can but find Nature's way to health. And this is strikingly true with regard to Constipation.

The bark of a certain tree in California—Cascara Negrada—offers a most excellent aid to this end. But, combined with Egyptian Senna, Slippery Elm Bark, Solid Extract of Prunes, etc., this same Cascara bark is given its greatest possible power to correct constipation. A toothsome Candy Tablet, called Lax-ets, is now made at the Dr Shoop Laboratories, from this ingenious and most effective prescription. Its effect on Constipation, Biliousness, Sour Stomach, Bad Breath, Sallow Complexion, etc., is indeed prompt and satisfying.

No griping, no unpleasant after effects are experienced, and Lax-ets are put up in beautiful lithographed metal boxes at 5 cents and 25 cents per box.

Saved From Disgrace.

In one of the old families of Charleston, S. C., writes Mrs. Ravenel, there was an important personage, Jack, the butler. Jack disputed with another old man, Harry, the butler of Mrs. Henry Izard, the reputation of being the best and most thoroughly trained servant in town. From the judging of the wines to the arrangement of a saltspoon there was nothing which these withered brown potentates did not decide and maintain. Nothing would have astonished either more than that master or mistress should dissent from his verdict.

Jack was intolerant of anything which he considered a breach of the etiquette of the table. Nothing could have induced him to serve a gentleman before a lady, or a younger before an elder brother. To place fruit and wine on a tablecloth instead of on the mahogany was to him a falling from grace. On one occasion he was much annoyed when a senator from the up country twice asked for rice with his fish. To the first request he simply remained deaf; at the second he bent down and whispered into the senatorial ear. The genial gentleman nodded and suppressed a laugh; but when the servants had left the room he burst into a roar and cried: "Judge, you have a treasure! Jack has saved me from disgrace, from exposing my ignorance. He whispered, 'That wouldn't do, sir; we never eats rice with fish.'"

Lose Location in a Fog

A few days ago two local citizens called, respectively Dustmond and Reddy went for a drive to Lakefield. On their return late at night a fog prevailed Mr. Reddy who was anxious to reach the National Hotel, drove through the prevailing mist and brought the horse to a short stop in front of the Aylmer street fire hall. "Hey," said Reddy, "Dustmond, get out and tell the clerk to send out and have our horse put away. It so happened that a few minutes after their arrival a fire alarm struck and, as the brigade got out their hose wagon and other conveyances, the two travellers, tumbled to the idea that they were "in the wrong pew." Such fog has cost hundreds of life at sea!

Big Crowd Coming From Belleville

On August 21st. Peterborough people may look for a large inundation of outside visitors, when the Holloway street Methodist church of Belleville, will bring about 1000 visitors from the Bay City to see the lift lock. Rev. R H. Leitch, pastor of the church, and Mr. George F. Woodley, superintendent of the Sunday school, have the matter in hand. It is about fifteen years since an excursion has been run from Belleville to Peterborough. The coming hundreds will arrive by special train at ten o'clock in the morning and remain here until six in the evening.

Women Who Wear Well.

It is astonishing how great a change a few years of married life often make in the appearance and disposition of many women. The freshness, the charm, the brilliance vanish like the bloom from a peach which is rudely handled. The matron is only a dim shadow, a faint echo of the charming maiden. There are two reasons for this change, ignorance and neglect. Few young women appreciate the shock to the system through the change which comes with marriage and motherhood. Many neglect to deal with the unpleasant pelvic drains and weaknesses which too often come with marriage and motherhood, not understanding that this secret drain is robbing the cheek of its freshness and the form of its fairness.

As surely as the general health suffers when there is derangement of the health of the delicate womanly organs, so surely when these organs are established in health the face and form at once witness to the fact in rounded completeness. Nearly a million women have found health and happiness in the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It makes weak women strong and sick women well. Ingredients on label—contains no alcohol or harmful habit-forming drugs. Made wholly of those native, American, medicinal roots most highly recommended by leading medical authorities of all the several schools of practice for the cure of woman's peculiar ailments.

For nursing mothers, or for those broken-down in health by too frequent bearing of children, also for the expectant mothers, to prepare the system for the coming of baby and making its advent easy and almost painless, there is no medicine quite so good as "Favorite Prescription." It can do no harm in any condition of the system. It is a most potent invigorating tonic and strengthening nervine nicely adapted to woman's delicate system by a physician of large experience in the treatment of woman's peculiar ailments.

Dr. Pierce may be consulted by letter free of charge. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y.

In a case tried in an Indiana court one of the witnesses evinced some disinclination to state her age.

"Is it very necessary?" coyly asked the witness, a spinster of uncertain years.

"It is absolutely necessary, madam," interposed the judge.

"Well," sighed the maiden. "If I must I suppose I must. I don't see how it could possibly affect the case, for you see"—

"Madam," said the judge, with some asperity, "I must ask you not to further waste the time of this court. Kindly state your age."

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

A Testimonial For Veracity.

"It's a mighty fine thing to have a character for truthfulness," remarked O'Grady when he returned home the other evening.

"Indade an' it is that same," agreed Mrs. O'Grady, with an approving nod, as she hauled one child out of the fender and scraped the cinders off his frock. "An' what makes ye say that, Phelim?"

"'Cause me master belaves in me veracity intoirely," was the response of Phelim. He lighted his short pipe and took his accustomed seat on a broken chair near the chimney. "I tould him this morning that I couldn't help being late an' that I had run a moile in a minute an' a half to get there in toime. An' what do ye think he said?"

"Mebbe that ye desarved another sixpence a week."

"Better than that. These are his very words. 'O'Grady,' sez he, 'Oi wud just as soon belave ye if ye sed ye had done it in half a minute.' So ye see what faith he has in me veracity intoirely."—Loudon Answers.

Reading the Face.

Restless eyes denote a deceitful, designing disposition; greenish eyes mean falsehood, malice and a love of scandal; blue eyes tell of tendency to coquetry; black eyes mean a lively, spirited and sometimes deceitful character; eyes with a yellowish, bloodshot white usually betoken strong emotions and hot temper; gray eyes mean dignity and intelligence and brown eyes a tender, true, kind and happy nature. A mouth had better be too large than too small, for a very small, pursed up mouth is seldom significant of good conversational power. Large mouths are more often found in conjunction with liberal dispositions than very small ones. A person with a pointed chin is fanciful, refined in taste and difficult to please. A broad, square chin signifies ardent love, often accompanied by jealousy. A broad, round chin means ardent love, with a steadfastness and purity of affection.

When Did You Oil Your Watch?

When did you oil your watch last? Never? You may remember when you lubricated your sewing machine, typewriter, lawn mower or grindstone—within a year, probably—but your watch you never oiled, that you can remember. Yet in a period of eighteen months the balance wheel turns on its axis 13,996,800,000 times. Expert watchmakers say that a watch should be thoroughly cleaned and oiled every eighteen months. Many persons wear a watch for years, winding it up each night, and never oil it. Watches are instruments of uncertain age; some run indefinitely, keeping accurate time, without need of repairs. As a matter of fact, nothing is so neglected as this small, delicate and useful instrument. —North American.

Blond Indians.

One of the mysteries of Mexico is presented by the Maya Indians, who inhabit the Sierra Madre mountains in the lower part of Sonora. They have fair skins, blue eyes and light hair, and students of ethnology have always been puzzled to account for them. There is a tradition, however, that these Indians are the descendants of the crew and passengers of a Swedish vessel wrecked on the Mexican coast centuries before Columbus discovered the new world. But this tradition is founded on nothing more substantial than a folklore tale current among them that their ancestors came over the big salt water hundreds of moons ago.

A Frog of Peculiar Habits.

South America has a frog of peculiar habits. Dwelling in the virgin forests, at the tops of the highest trees, it chooses as a site for its nursery some hollow stump and then proceeds to line it with resin procured from trees in the neighborhood. This lining serves to catch and hold the rainwater, with which it quickly becomes filled. As soon as this takes place the eggs are laid therein, and here they undergo development into tadpoles. How the resin is collected is a mystery, nor is it yet known how the separate pieces become welded to form the water tight basin necessary to insure the safety of the treasures deposited therein.

Something of That Kind.

"Young man," said the serious gentleman, "did you ever pause and think that each tick of the clock brings you another moment nearer to the end of your existence?"

"I was thinking of something of that kind this very minute," cheerfully replied the youth, "only the idea struck me that each tick brought pay day that much nearer."

A Puzzler.

An old white haired darky living on a plantation, not feeling well, had the doctor pay him a visit. The doctor told him as he was getting old he must eat plenty of chicken and stay out of damp night air. "But, sah," said the old darky, "how can you expect me to stay in de house at night and still get my chickens?"

His Rising Day.

"He never did rise in the world till he stumbled over a lot o' dynamite," the village gossip said, "an' even then, like so many men in the risin' business, he never did know what he rise for!"

Health Recipe.

One time a man asked the poet Longfellow how to be healthy, and this is the answer he received:

Joy, temperance and repose
Slam the door on the doctor's nose.

England and Australia are the only islands which exceed Cuba in their natural resources.

Intemperate.

"My son, did you take anything at the freshman dinner?" asked the stern parent of his youthful offspring.

"Yes, father, I cannot tell a lie. I took two spoons and a napkin," he earnestly replied.—Harvard Lampoon.

VOL XXXV. NO 191 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, AUGUST 15 1907 PRICE TWO CENTS

A LEAN YEAR FOR THE FARMERS OF ONTARIO

Because of the Scarcity and High Price of Feed--Hay and Oats Show Big Falling Off--The Corn is Doing Well, However.

Under the caption, "A Lean Year for Ontario" the Weekly Sun says: Roughly, we have nine million acres devoted to the various field crops grown in Ontario. Of this total about three million acres are in hay, and two and three-quarter millions in oats. Thus well over sixty per cent. of the entire acreage given to field cultivation is in these two crops, and these two main crops are the poorest in many years. Hay will not give our two-thirds of the tonnage per acre this year that has been harvested in recent years—probably not over half. Oats are likely to be nearly 35 per cent. below the average yield, and this is equivalent to cutting off twenty-five million bushels on this one crop alone.

On the other hand, the hay which has been harvested has been exceptionally well saved and corn, which can be largely substituted for hay, has of late been making splendid progress, while the area in this crop is larger than usual. There is only about one-sixth the acreage in corn that we have in hay, but the tonnage per acre is six times as great in one case as in the other. If we have an open fall, thus permitting of the full maturity of the corn, the increased yield in this crop may pretty well offset the shortage in the other coarse fodder.

Peas, which had been steadily declining in acreage up to 1904, have since shown a rapid increase, and the area in this crop in the present season will probably be one-fourth greater than that of three years ago. At present, the promise is for an excellent yield in peas. Barley again, of which we will probably have 800,000 acres this year, seems as if it will go somewhat above the average in yield per acre. If the season had been a normal one for fall wheat we would probably have had eight hundred thousand acres in this crop, but a great deal of the land intended for the production of fall wheat has been drilled in with barley, and this, while it means a shortage in flour, will add considerable to the available supply of feed-stuffs. But after all allowances are made, there will undoubtedly be a material shortage in feed in 1907, as compared with recent years.

So far as grain is concerned Ontario will, as our correspondent "Vim" said in last week's issue, have practically none for export this year. Our dependence in products for sale will have to be on butter and cheese, bacon and beef cattle, and the cost of making these will be higher than usual because of the high values which will undoubtedly be placed on feedstuffs.

On the whole this will be a lean year for Ontario farmers.

Work Progressing on Aylmer Street

Bell Telephone Co. Have Five Carload of Pipe to be Laid

Yesterday afternoon three gentlemen, passing down Aylmer street just to the south of Charlotte street, noticed that the sparrows were gathering in great numbers at the piles of tiles to the west side of the street. Here, next to the McBain warehouse are stored the nucleus of some five car loads of earthenware pipes, to be used in the Bell Telephone Company's underground work, whereby the unsightly and dangerous (in case of fire) overhead system of cross-arms and wires is to be replaced by the safer and more sightly underground service.

Mr. Jas. Bremner the old reliable telephone line constructor is in charge of this work so that its future success, irrespective of the proverbial good work done by the Bell Company, is assured.

A General Strike in Washington

Washington, Aug. 15.—The long-threatened tie-up of the building industry at Washington reached a crisis late yesterday, when the carpenters, bricklayers and other union workmen employed on many buildings under construction by contractors affiliated with the Employers' Association, were ordered out.

The general strike was formally decided upon last Saturday by a conference of the representatives of seventeen international and national building trades union, but no effort was made to give the strike effect until Local No. 1, International Bricklayers and Stonecutters' Union, decided to enter the fight against the "open shop" policy of the Employers' Association.

It is estimated by labor union leaders that from five to seven hundred men are off work. Officials of the Employers' Association state that they would have no difficulty in filling the strikers' places with non-union mechanics.

C.P.R. Station Suffers from Dust Plague

Many Complaints Seem to Come in That Not Enough Water is Dispensed

In referring to an article in yesterday's issue regarding the dust nuisance at the market square where by both cheese sellers and butter and berry vendors, had great trouble from dust, it might be added that the C. P. R. station is much troubled with the so easily avoided nuisance. All summer the dust from the C.P.R. yards has been very disagreeable. It is a dirty black dust and more injurious than the ordinary dust from the streets.

The clouds of dust that swept across the yard and up George street into the factories and residences in the neighborhood was something terrific. It was so bad at times that the people walking and driving were forced to take shelter behind some of the factories until the cloud had passed. It was impossible to get through.

AN AGED LADY WAS BURNED TO DEATH

Mrs. John McInnes Lost Her Life in a Fire at Fenelon Falls--Many Casualities Throughout the Dominion.

Fenelon Falls, Aug. 15.—Mrs John McInness, eighty-six years of age, is dead. Miss Jessie Lane is suffering from a severely sprained ankle, and two buildings are burned as the result of a fire which occurred about two o'clock Tuesday morning at the home of Mr. Thos. Lane, Fenelon Falls South.

The fire, the cause of which is unknown, spread with great rapidity, and before the family were aware of their danger, the house was enveloped. The building occupied by Mr. Herb. Scott was also destroyed, but the contents were saved. The total loss is about $3,000. Mr. Lane's house was insured for a small amount.

SAFETY DEVICE WAS FATAL

Brampton, Aug. 15.—Hubert J. Yarreston, blacksmith, 23 years old, was drowned at Scott's Lake, Mono Road, Monday. A device he used to enable him to swim attached to his arms and lower limbs, is supposed to have hindered his movements and caused his death. He floated feet up for some time.

REORGANIZATION AT OTTAWA

Mr. Pugsley to Succeed Mr. Emmerson as Minister of Railways

CHAS. DEVLIN TO REPLACE SCOTT

A Demand for Sifton from the Liberals of the Western Provinces--Mr. Graham or Mr. Pardee in Ontario--Emmerson and Hyman Will Not Re-Enter the Cabinet and Both of Them May Withdraw from Public Life

Ottawa, Aug. 15.—It is pretty well settled that Mr. Pugsley will be the offical Liberal candidate in St. John, and will succeed Mr. Emmerson as Minister of Railways. All thought of Mr. Emmerson re-entering the government has been abandoned. It is clear, however, that he desires to return, and that he will resent the action of the prime minister. Any mischief that he will do will be confined to New Brunswick. The general conviction at Ottawa is that he was not a strong minister, that in so far as his administration of the Intercolonial was strong and progressive, it was due mainly to the deputy minister, and that under all the circumstances his reinstatement by Sir Wilfrid could not be considered. It is not expected that there will be any changes in Quebec, and whether or not Mr. Sifton will return to the government seems to be unsettled. It is said that the prime minister is eager for Mr. Sifton's return, and that the mass of Western Liberals feel that his re-entrance to the cabinet is vital if the unity of the party in the Western Provinces is to be assured, and the full force as a fighting instrument exerted at the next general election. In Ontario Mr. Scott will withdraw and will be succeeded by Mr. Devlin of Nicolet. He will be the spokesman for the Irish Catholic element, and may stand for an Ontario constituency at the next general election. Mr. Devlin is a speaker of unusual power and persuasiveness, and it is said that his temper has been greatly moderated by his experience in the British parliament. Stronger on the platform than Mr. Scott, and more acceptable to Irish Catholics than Mr. Fitzpatrick, the government will derive a measure of strength through his acceptance of a portfolio. It is believed to be settled that neither Mr. Campbell, of Center York, nor Mr. Sutherland, of North Essex, will receive a portfolio. Many federal Liberals favor the appointment of Mr. Graham in the conviction that he will strengthen the party at Ottawa, and that inasmuch as his chances are hopeless at the next provincial election, it is of far greater importance to hold power at Ottawa and to improve the position of the federal Liberal party in Ontario. If the prime minister should decide against Mr. Graham or Mr. Graham should refuse to enter the government, Mr. Pardee, of West Lambton, will be chosen. Mr. Hyman will not re-enter the government, and it is not at all likely that he will seek re-election in London. If a department of labor should be created, Mr. W. L. Mackenzie King will be the minister in charge. In any event he will contest a constituency at the next general election, and if he does well on the stump and in parliament he will find his way to a portfolio easy and rapid.

The G.N.W. Paying Operators at Rate of $225 a Month

Montreal, Aug. 15.—The strike situation here remains unchanged. The union men are still out, and G.N.W. officials state positively that they will not give in, and are getting along very well without the services of the strikers.

It was stated by some of the officials of the union yesterday morning that the G.N.W. messenger boys were also about to go out on strike. The officials of the company state that their business is not accumulating, and that they are having no trouble in getting off all their messages in good time.

N.Y.C. OPERATORS OUT.

The operators at the New York Central office went out this morning and also the two girls who operate the stock ticerks. The company have called in the managers of many branch offices, and have set them to work in the places of the strikers at the main office. They are also advertising for non-union men.

The staff at the head office are working practically day and night, and are now getting paid at the rate of $225 per month. They receive double their usual salary for night work and a bonus of $75 besides.

The story that the brokers' operators were working at the G.N.W. office at night was denied yesterday.

Mr. Campbell, vice-president of the Order of Railway Telegraphers, arrived in the city yesterday morning and had an interview with the sub-committee of the strikers. It is thought that they want to get financial assistance from the railroad telegraphers.

WILL PRINTERS OBJECT.

Another feature of the situation has developed which may still further complicate matters. President Galey of the local union received the following wire from the Winnipeg committee yesterday:

"We presume you are covering the C.T.U.A. agreement with the typos. They are bound to refuse to set up G.N.W. copy while that office is on strike." The local typos do not know anything of this agreement.

Goodwill-Kilpatrick

The Kingston Whig Has the Following on the Goodwill-Kilpatrick Nuptials

The Kingston Whig has the following to say anent the marriage of a rising Peterborough barrister. This paper says in part:—

The marriage of Miss Nellie Marion Kilpatrick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Kilpatrick, University avenue to Edmund Lionel Goodwill, B.A., of Peterborough, was quietly performed Saturday morning at five o'clock, by Rev. W. H. Sparling, B.A., at the home of the bride. Immediately after the couple left on the steamer Toronto en route to Montreal.

The bride was married in her travelling dress of Shantung silk. Her hat was of cream tuscan straw with brown trimmings. The house was radiant with pink sweet peas, white asters. The service was quiet, but joyous. Among the few guests were Miss Addie Harold, of Belleville and Dr. and Mrs. Victor Goodwill, of Charlottetown.

The groom is a son of the late Rev. John Goodwill, of Charlottetown, P.E.I., a graduate of Queen's University and Osgoode Hall, and a member of the legal firm of Rogers, Bennett & Goodwill, of Peterborough. He is a young lawyer, with promises of a clever career.

The couple will take the steamer Campana at Montreal, for Prince Edward Island, where they will spend a month or more, arriving at their home in Peterborough about October 1st.

The best of wishes accompany them on their honeymoon and for their future happiness.

Indians Did Not Buy at Burleigh Falls

Some One Must Have Handed Them Their Liquor Outside

For some years past much comment has been made on whether Indians should or should not, as demanded by law, be supplied with liquor as are their successors in control of their former county, the pale faces.

In yesterday's issue of the Toronto Globe appears the following:

"Yesterday the steamer Esturion returning with cheering Lindsay and Sturgeon Point people from the Stony Lake regatta, was the scene of a disgraceful row. Some drunken Indians for a time terrorized the passengers and assaulted the ship's officers. A magistrate on board swore in some special constables, and after a hard struggle the intoxicated Indians were put off the steamer. While the steamer was passing through the double locks at Burleigh and Indians were served openly and liberally with whiskey. Respectable passengers are highly indignant at the breach of the law, and the license authorities are called upon to take action. County Attorney Wood was among the passengers and prosecutions will likely ensue."

Now The Times has taken particular pains to ferret out this seeming breach of the law. The result of our enquiries shows conclusively that the drunken Indians did not, most emphatically get any liquor at Darcy's Hotel, Burleigh Falls, the Globe's story notwithstanding. Mr. Tom Darcy, a hotelman of many years' experience knows the law regarding the sale of liquor to Indians. His bartender seeing the Indians approach the bar, on the day stated, at once sent for Mr Darcy. Under the circumstances, Mr Darcy personally went behind the bar and saw that the red brethren did not get any liquor. Of course any hotelman, whether on Broadway, New York or Burleigh Falls, can compel people from handing Indians liquor, as long as it is not done in his sight. This was evidently done, as per the Globe's report. Still it is most unfair to insert a story that so evidently might be interpreted to mean that these red-skinned men got their jag on at the Burleigh Falls' Hotel. That idea is emphatically contradicted by Mr. Darcy.

—The regular monthly meeting of the Trades and Labor Council was held yesterday evening when several matters of importance were discussed.

The Cheese Prices Run to Very High Prices Yesterday

Yesterday morning before the city clocks struck the hour of ten, a large number of intelligent and well appearing citizens gathered in front of the former Ontario Bank premises, now those of the Bank of Montreal. Much excitement seemed to prevail among these cheese makers and buyers. Such questions were plainly overheard by the most superficial and disinterested auditor as, "Say do you think the prices will hum?" Mr. ——, do you think she will soar above the prices quoted at last meeting," etc., etc.

It might be noted that the highest price paid for cheese at yesterday's meeting of the local branch was 11 5-16c. About 500 boxes sold at this figure, and the remainder went at 11 1-4c. The offering amounted to 2,956 boxes, as compared with 4,585 boxes two weeks ago, when the highest price paid was only 10 13-16c. Ten days make of cheese sold yesterday and the bidding was brisk. The make of cheese is now on the decline, and the registration on the board will be getting smaller until the close of the season.

Mr Fitzgerald offered 10 3-4c, which was raised to 10 13-16c by Mr. Cook. Mr. Cleine made it 11 1-8c. Then Mr. Squirrs came in and offered 11 1-4c and secured the first call, and took the following factories:—Ormonde, Killarney, Daisy D, Oakdale, Warsaw, Brickley, Indian River, and Oak Leaf.

The next went to Mr Whitton at 11 1-4c, and the following factories sold:—Cavanville, Westwood, Villers, Lang and Shearer.

At the same price Mr. Weir took the next lot, as follows:—Central Smith, Selwyn, Young's Point, Pine Grove, Lakefield, Cedardale and Otonabee Union.

Three buyers then offered 11 1-4c, simultaneously, and a discussion ensued as to who should get the call. Mr. Wrighton settled the matter by offering 11 5-16c., and took the following:—Warminster, Maple Leaf, Beaufort, Frewerin and East Emily.

Mr Wrighton offered 11 1-4 cents for further selections, but Mr. Cook outbid him with 11 1-4c for the balance of the board, and took the following:—Crown, Keene, Myrtle, Fraserville, North Dummer, Fleetwood and Buckhorn.

Accuses Stoessel's Wife of Grafting During Siege

St. Petersburg, Aug. 15.—A case brought against Gen. Stoessel's wife by Frau Rutzki, formerly a dairy owner in Port Arthur, is a peculiar echo of the famous siege and is attracting much attention. The circumstances of the case are as follows. Just before the investment of Port Arthur Frau Rutzki, who did not desire to experience the siege, departed, leaving three valuable milch cows with fodder sufficient for twelve months as a loan, in charge of Capt. Bondaryeff, chief of the military hospital, with instructions that the milk should be used in the hospital. After some weeks the losses of Russian officers were so heavy that Gen. Stoessel ordered all the officers of the administrative medical corps to the front.

Bondaryeff, however, prevailed upon Stoessel to allow him to remain. At the same time, it is said, he sent the three cows as a present to Mme. Stoessel. The Stoessels thus consumed the milk and Bondaryeff remained at his safe post and was decorated with the order of Stanue for valor after he returned to St. Petersburg.

Frau Rutzki turned up with a demand for her cows or their value. Mme Stoessel declared the Japanese took the cows, but witnesses declared that not only were the cows sold or hard cash, but their milk was regularly sold from the Stoessel household during the siege at a high price.

English Immigrant Drowned at Cameron

Clothing Found at Lakeside Results in Recovery of Body in Water

A Cameron, Victoria, fisherman, on Monday found a pile of clothing on the lake shore. This excited his suspicions, as he could not see or locate the owner of said garb. A brief search of the water in the vicinity enabled him to locate the body of a man in about 21 feet of water, and he at once set off to give the alarm.

Mr Taylor Parkes, Warden of Victoria County, who lives near Cameron, was one of the first to be apprized of the occurrence, and he sent a messenger to town for Dr. Wood, one of the coroners for the county. The Doctor drove out and under his directions the body was recovered from the water, the arms were bent and the fingers twisted, going to show that the unfortunate had been taken with cramps while enjoying a cold plunge.

Mr. Robin Anderson, a farmer who lives near the scene, informed Dr. Wood that he had met the stranger Sunday evening on his way to the lake and heard him say he was going to have a swim, and that he had worked at Mr. Jamieson's, near Glenarm.

Dr. Wood decided that an inquest was unnecessary. The deceased was apparently of English birth, and about 25 years of age.

A Pirate's Hoard in St. Lawrence

Montreal, Aug. 15.—A man named Dillon, of Salem, Mass., who has just returned to this city from a trip down the north shore of the St. Lawrence tells of a buried treasure which takes one back to the days of Monte Cristo.

According to the man's story, a certain officer of the British navy, in command of a frigate which accompanied Wolfe on his successful campaign against Quebec, married, and later on settled down in Maine. In later years, to a seafaring life. Only this time, in place of fighting under the British ensign, he raised the black flag. Just previous to the pirate's last voyage the man addressed a missive to his family, indicating a certain island in the Gulf of St. Lawrence where was hid no less than three million pounds sterling in treasure. This document, according to Dillon, was destroyed, but the man claims to have discovered a duplicate, which he stumbled on by accident. This he states, gives the exact location of the treasure.

He is returning to Salem, where he will outfit, and with the proper vessels and tools, will proceed to excavate the old pirate's millions.

Many People Going West

C.P.R. Will Run Additional Homeseekers' Excursions.

"The North-West provinces are attracting a big crowd of people this summer," said a visiting C. P. R. official, going on to say that in view of the volume of traffic his management has decided to run cheap round-trip excursions along into October, a decidedly new departure. That is to say, the well known homeseekers' excursions will leave Toronto Tuesdays, Aug. 27, Sept. 10 and 24, as advertised, and also Tuesdays, Oct. 8 and 22. Second class tickets will be on sale to Winnipeg and all important western towns at remarkably low rates, with a return limit of sixty days.

It should be kept in mind that these tickets are honored in tourist sleeping cars, which are attached to each excursion train, and in which berths can be secured at low rates. On all the excursions this summer space has been at a premium, and to make sure of a berth it is advisable to reserve at least two weeks before one intends leaving. The local C. P. R. ticket agent is well posted, and will be glad to give anyone further information.

Police Court

Yesterday morning a serio-comic play in one act was witnessed at the police court. It seems that a gentleman, of the highest personal integrity, and possessed of a good share of the wealth of our country, was arrested at the G. T. R. station the night before. The gentleman in question hails from say, Port Hope, Lindsay or any other town to suit the readers wish. As he got off the train a man rushed up to a policeman present and pointing at the gentleman, said: "That's the man who stole my watch. I know him, by the bouquet he is wearing on his coat lapel." The policeman placed our hero under arrest. He was, however, allowed to go on his own recognizances. What made the matter more complicated was that the party arrested had on his person a gold watch he had brought to the city, for a friend, to be repaired. Yesterday morning, according to promise he came to the police court and entered the docks. In the meantime matters had been sifted out, and when the Magistrate saw our hero he said to him "What are you doing there, you had better get out!" He got out but vowed later he would not wear a boquet again, if such adornment is to lead to one's arrest. The whole matter, whilst funny to those hearing it, was no joke to the party affected most direct.

Boats for Hudson Bay Lost

Ottawa, Aug. 15.—Two thirty-foot whale boats, which the Mounted Police Department were sending to Hudson's Bay, have been lost through the wreck of the American whaler Era, of New Bedford, Mass., commanded by Capt. Comer. Unfortunately, Comer lost everything in the wreck, but he is now en route to Hudson's Bay again with a fine new schooner, the J. T. Gifford.

The boats were sold by the foreign whalers at Fullerton, but it is the intention to establish a customs outpost at Burwell on Ungava Bay where the whalers will report on entering the straits.

We have just received a very large shipment of glassware and have marked a number of 25 cent lines down to make a display of 10 cent articles. See south window of Times Bookstore.

"Resurrecting" Machine

Dead Are Made to Live by New Invention

New York, Aug. 15.—The resurrection from the dead is achieved by twentieth century machines. Prof. George Poe has invented an apparatus whereby persons killed by asphyxiation, poison or drowning can be resuscitated. By this miraculous device the death of persons under the influence of anaesthetics while being operated upon can be prevented; as also can infant asphyxia, at birth. A drunken person can be sobered in a few minutes; persons hanged or electrocuted can be revived; and the freezing to death of Arctic explorers can be obviated. The machine which Prof Poe has modeled copies nature directly, and has two double larynx tubes, or two tubes to connect with the nostrils, one an inlet for life giving oxygen, the other as an outlet for water or poisonous gases. It is in line with the construction of the heart, and therefore, has two cylinders, each having an inlet and an outlet valve. A demonstration was made with a rabbit which gave every sign of being dead and no sign of being alive. Within three minutes after the machine was applied the rabbit was running around, apparently as lively and well as ever in his life. A dog also was experimented upon with great success. So far the artificial breathing apparatus has not been tried on a human subject, but it is believed that the results would be the same as shown on the animals.

Deserted in a Foreign Land

Ottawa, Aug. 15.—Deserted in a foreign land, forsaken by him who but six short weeks before took her from a comfortable and happy home to become his wife and forced to seek the assistance of the Canadian officials at the French capital to enable her to secure passage home, was the sudden and unhappy termination of the honeymoon trip of a well known and much respected Ottawa girl, formerly Miss Seraphine Mavaut, who reached her father's home some days ago.

On Thursday, June 27, the marriage of Miss Mavaut and Robert H. Rogers took place in the chapel of Sacred Heart Juniorate. The couple that afternoon set out on their honeymoon trip, which was to have been spent in England, France and Germany. Passage was taken for Liverpool and Paris was reached in due time. The couple put up at a hotel and five pleasant days were spent in the French metropolis. The morning of the fifth day Rogers, with the expressed purpose of interviewing Mr. Rothschild on business, went out alone. This was the last the unfortunate lady saw of her husband, and she found herself penniless and alone on the great city. She went to the Canadian consulate-general in Paris. Hon. Mr. Fabre, and he advanced her passage to Ottawa and supplied her with sufficient funds to meet current expenses.

Rogers was well known in this city, having employed in the Immigration branch of the Interior Department, as chief interpreter for two years. He was a master of several languages and a man of pleasing address and manners. Very little was known of his past but he claimed to have received his education in Austria and to have belonged to a good family. Enquiry at the immigration office elicited the information that he has resigned his position in that department.

Mrs. Rogers has had no trace of her husband since he left her in Paris.

IMPROVE YOUR COMPLEXION

Give Up Cosmetics And Seek The Cause of Your Bad Color.

When it's so easy to bring back the bloom of youth, to remove the blemishes and fill the hollows, isn't it foolish to plaster on cosmetics?

Sallowed skin and fallen in cheeks are produced by disorders of the alimentary canal.

Remove the cause—correct the condition that keeps you from looking as you ought. Use Dr. Hamilton's Pills and very soon you'll have a complexion to be proud of.

Just imagine how much happier you will feel when those pimples and murky look have gone.

Dainty looks came to Miss Vrooman, a well known resident of Belfast, from using Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I used to look so yellow I thought it might be jaundice. There was simply no color in my cheeks at all. Today my skin is clear and never gets that murky, dull appearance, it had before. Dr. Hamilton's Pills have also given me a good appetite and improved my general health also."

Not only the complexion, but every organ of the body is strengthened, cleansed and made healthy by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Buoyancy, vim and a feeling of vigor invariably follow their use. Sold in yellow boxes by all dealers; 25c. per box or five boxes for $1.00., or by mail from N. C. Poland & Co., Hartford, Conn., U.S.A., and Kingston, Ont.

THE USE OF CIGARETTES

The returns of the consumption of tobacco in Canada for the twelve months ending June 30 last shows an increase of nearly one-third in the number of cigarettes while the consumption of cigars has remained practically the same as compared with the fiscal year 1905-06. For the twelve months ending June last the total number of cigarettes entered for consumption in Canada was 731,972,137, as compared with 269,334,937 for the corresponding period of 1905-07, an increase of nearly one-third. In 1904 the number of cigarettes entered for consumption was 250,860,387, and ten years ago it was only 93,760,000.

The consumption of cigars for the twelve months ending June 30th last was 193,816,575 practically the same as for the preceding twelve months. Cigars made from Canadian tobacco numbered 2,826,721, as compared with 3,172,466 for the fiscal year 1905-06. The total consumption of tobacco of all kinds for the twelve months is estimated at 2.453 lbs. per head of the population, the largest on record.

In regard to malt liquor the consumption of beer show the largest increase. For the twelve months it was 5,585 gallons per head, a compared with 5,255 gallons per head in 1905-06. The consumption of spirits was .947 gallons per capita, and of wines .062 gallons per head, both practically the same as for the previous year.

AN INDUSTRIAL DEPARTURE

The people of the United States, who have hitherto smugly assured themselves that they were foremost in the field of industrial enterprise, must be rubbing their eyes with astonishment at the announcement that Canada leads the continent in installing an electric power plant worked by waste fuel at a coal mine. The achievement is at once so notable and important that it has moved Thomas A. Edison, the great inventor to write a letter of congratulation to the managing director of the Chignecto mines, Nova Scotia, the site of the industrial innovation. Mr. Edison points out that it is the first plant of the kind on the American continent. The fuel used is the waste screenings, which makes the cost of power so low that its use will be practicable for a ll manufacturing purposes. The power is transmitted a distance of six miles to Amherst.

France is gradually taking her place among civilized nations. A step has recently taken in the direction of enlightening civilizaton when a law was passed allowing married women to legally dispose of "their own earnings. Heretofore, by a law dated back to the old Roman period, the earnings of married women were at the command of their husbands. "A drunkard or an idler," we are told, "backed by the law, was able to compel his wife to hand over to him every cent she earned." The new law abolished this intolerable injustice; but it is interesting to remember that thirteen years were spent in bringing about the change.

Scarcity of Teachers

Dr. Seath Says the Scarcity is Not so Great as Last Year

Toronto, Aug. 14.—The scarcity of teachers in Ontario, while by no means done away with, is considerably less than it was

For the first half of last year the Education Department received 382 applications for temporary certificates, this year for the same time the number received was 227. Last year the department was deluged with applications during the summer vacation, during last month, only six were received.

This, the officials declare, is a great easing of the situation.

There is yet, however, much to be done. There is still a shortage of teachers, but the department states its purpose to do its part in seeking a solution of this interfussing situation. The special government grant to all schools with second-class certificate teachers, which comes in force this fall, is expected to improve matters. In cases where the School Board is unable to secure a teacher at the salary it is able to pay the department will, under section 88, of the new regulations, allow some competent person to act temporarily.

"The improvement in conditions is, however, very gratifying to the department," said Dr. John Seath, superintendent of education, in an interview with a press representative. "It is ascribed to the general raising of salaries, consequent to the minimum-salary regulation, the largely increased grants to the Public schools, the greater confidence of the teachers in the situation and the better tone of public opinion.

"We hope," added the superintendent, "to do away with the scarcity of good teachers within the next few years."

Japs Not Wanted

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14.—California has said officially that she does not want Japanese in that state. Some weeks ago Chief Terence Powderly of the bureau of immigration, addressed a letter to Governor Gillett, of California, asking what class of labor was needed in that state. The Governor replied as follows: "All Caucasian races are welcome here. Feeling towards Japanese is much the same now as it was towards Chinese at the time the exclusion act was passed. In fact the time has come when by many people the Chinese are preferred. Unskilled labor is much needed."

Cheque for 40 Millions

Moncton, N. B., Aug. 14.—With a check for forty million dollars, William Hartnett created a stir by walking into several banks and asking for about as a thousand dollars. He was endeavoring to persuade the Bank of Montreal employees of the genuineness of the check when Chief of Police Rideout took possession of the paper and ordered Hartnett to leave town. The man is said to be slightly demented. He searched vainly for Premier Robinson, saying the Premier would advance him the necessary amount.

HUMOR

AN EYE FOR BUSINESS.

Transaction In Which Strabismus Was Not a Handicap.

"There is a small cross eyed boy living in this city who if he doesn't lose his life through just retribution will grow up to become a great financier," declared Jones. "For some time my wife has possessed a yellow pup that has no earthly excuse for living. But she thinks that he is the finest dog in the city and spends most of her time hugging him and kissing his dirty little nose. Finally the dog worship became so unbearable to me that I resolved to end the nuisance. Chancing to meet a small cross eyed boy one day, I said to him:

"'See here, boy, do you want to earn a dollar?'

"'Sure!' said he.

"'Well, then,' said I, 'you go up to my house, watch your chance and steal the yellow cur that you will find hanging around there. When you get him bring him down to my office and get your dollar.'

"Within two hours the boy was back with the cur tied to a rope.

"'What will I do with him, boss?' he asked after I paid him.

"'I don't care,' I snapped. 'Drown him if you want to.'

"That night I discovered my wife in tears, and I was informed between sobs that poor, dear little Fido was missing. The next day she had an advertisement inserted in all the papers offering $10 for his return. The third day she met me joyfully at the door and announced that Fido had been found.

"'Where?' I asked, concealing a groan.

"'A little boy brought him back,' she answered.

"'What kind of a boy?' I asked suspiciously.

"'A small cross eyed boy with the most honest face that I ever saw on a boy. I gave him $10, it being all I had, and told him if he would go down and see you that I knew you would be glad to add $5 to it.'

"But the boy didn't show up. As a matter of fact, I hadn't the slightest idea he would. I wouldn't mind giving him $5 if he would call."—Detroit Free Press.

False Signal.

"You don't believe in romance, eh?" said the old boarder.

"You bet your tintype I don't," sighed the young man with the bandage around his head. "I had my share."

"How was that?"

"Well, you see, I was forbidden to call on my best girl, and every night she would sit out on the balcony and at a certain hour strike a match. That would be the signal for me to stick my head through the vines and kiss her."

"Ah, very poetical!"

"Yes, but the other night I saw the match flare up, stuck my head through the vines and got the worst thrashing I ever received. You see, the old man happened to be out there lighting his pipe."—Chicago Tribune.

A medical authority on the virtues of various kinds of food declares that the herring gives the muscles elasticity, the body strength and the brain vigor and is not flesh forming.

The English Peer.

A peer cannot resign his peerage, and poverty does not disqualify a peer from holding his position. This was decided by the house of lords in 1640, when Roger de Stafford sold his barony to the king for £800.

Gloves.

The wearing of gloves is a more ancient custom than it is generally thought to be. Homer speaks of gloves and tells of one who wore them to protect his hands while working in his garden. The use of some coverings for the hands was known to the ancient Persians, and Old Testament writers also mention them.

The Money That's Being Made in Western Canada LAND

In October, 1906 we sold 5,000 acres of Saskatchewan lands to an Indiana party of men at $8 per acre, and resold it this year at $12, making just about 100 per cent. on the money invested.

A Montreal party of men who bought 10,000 acres from us at $8 per acre last September, resold through us within three months at $10.00 per acre.

A Chicago client writes us, that after making some improvements on a section she bought near Regina, one year ago, she sold out recently for exactly twice what she paid for the land.

We resold a section of land located near Lipton for a man at $18.00 per acre last April, which we sold him in December at $12.00.

Western Canada Lands offer the greatest opportunity this continent has ever known

Men here are growing wealthy who never knew success in any other line. You can make money here too, if you think your amount too small club it with a few friends. Some of the most prominent financial men in the Canada are now interested in this country heavily.

We own about 200,000 acres of the finest wheat and mixed farming lands in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.—Picked lands on which we are prepared to give accurate trustworthy information, and these tracts being portions of extremely large purchases, we can sell them at prices that cannot be equalled, quality of land considered, by any firm in this United States and Eastern country.

Prices range from $6.00 per acre upwards Reasonable Terms in every case

Write us for further information but when doing so tell us the class and amount of an investment you desire, and whether you want the land for your own use or for investment purposes purely. $1,000 is about the minimum we can handle. References Union Bank and Traders' Bank, Winnipeg.

SIREN WAFERS DEVELOP THE BUST

SHE'S A QUEEN! SHE'S A SIREN!

Is an expression that is always heard at sight of a well developed woman. If you are flat chested, with BUST undeveloped, a scrawney neck, thin lean arms the above remark will never be applied to you. "SIREN" wafers will make you beautiful, bewitching. They DEVELOP the BUST in a few weeks from 3 to 6 inches and produce a fine firm, voluptuous bosom. They fill out the hollow places Make the cheeks plump and rosy, and arms handsome and well molded and the neck and shoulders shapely and of perfect contour.

Send for a bottle today and you'll be pleased and grateful. "SIREN" wafers are absolutely harmless, pleasant to take and convenient to carry around. They are sold under guarantee to do all we claim or MONEY back.

Price $1.00 per bottle. Inquire at good drug stores or send DIRECT to us.

FREE!

During the next 30 days only—we will send you a sample bottle of these beautifying wafers on receipt of 10 cents to pay cost of packing and postage if you will mention that you saw the Advertisement in this paper. The sample alone may be sufficient if defects are trivial.

50% in Annual Dividends

This is a straight Business Undertaking.

The Smelting of Ore is the safest and most profitable business in the world.

We have fifteen mining properties, located in Kern County, California, carrying good values in Gold, Silver and Copper.

The smelter nearest to us is at Needles, 250 miles distant.

We propose to install on our properties a smelter to treat the ores from our own mines and to do custom smelting for others.

50 per cent. per annum is a moderate estimate of the profits we can earn. If you want to make a safe and profitable investment send for full information and investigate our proposition.

COPPER A 5c. POSSIBILITY

Always the persons who make fortunes are those who seize opportunities. Trudge along in the conventional rut and you will never get away from the counter or the desk.

Fortunes—the greatest mining fortunes in the world—are being made to day by the men who own Copper Mines. You couldn't buy stock in one of the big-paying, developed mines You CAN buy stock in a mine undergoing development, and if you BUY IN THE RIGHT PLACE the fortune will come.

I want you to come in and see me about the proposition I have in the Guggenheim Greenwater Copper Company's two properties at Ely and at Greenwater, Nevada. The recent copper finds at Ely are attracting the interest of a whole continent. The property which this Company owns there is in the best section, The Workings are now down fifty feet, and the prospect brightens with every foot. The manager tells me he expects to strike it rich any day. So soon as he does, up goes the stock with a bound.

I still can offer a limited number of shares at 5 cents each. It's the easiest chance at a fortune you've ever had. See me about it at once.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry must be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made on certain conditions, by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the homestead conditions under one of the following plans:—

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of the homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Six months' notice in writing should be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of intention to apply for patent.

THE CONQUEST of CANAAN

By BOOTH TARKINGTON,
Author of "Cherry," "Monsieur Beaucaire," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1905, BY HARPER & BROTHERS

"Aren't you very good natured, Mr. Flitcroft?" she asked, with an odd intonation.

"I'm imposed on often enough," he replied, rubbing his leg, "by people who think I am. Why?"

"It is only that your sitting so abruptly upon the ground reminded me of something that happened long ago, before I left Canaan, the last time I met you."

"I don't think I knew you before you went away. You haven't said if you'll go riding with me tomorrow. Please"—

"Get up," interrupted Mr. Arp acidly. "Somebody'll fall over you if you stay there." Flitcroft departed abruptly.

Ariel laughed, leaning forward, resting her elbows on her knee and her chin in her hand, so that the shadow of her hat shielded her eyes from the light. "I thought you looked surprised when you saw me today."

"I reckon I did!" he exclaimed. "Who wouldn't of been?"

"Why?"

"Wasn't the whole town the same way?" he demanded. "Did you meet anybody that didn't look surprised?"

"But why should they?"

"Good gracious!" he broke out. "Ain't you got any lookin' glasses?"

"I think almost all I have are still in the customs warehouse."

"Then use Mamie Pike's." responded the old man. "The town never dreamed you were goin' to turn out pretty at all, let alone the way you've turned out pretty. The Tocsin had a good deal about your looks and so forth in it once in a letter from Paris, but the folks that remembered you kind of set that down to the way papers talk about anybody with money, and nobody was prepared for it when they saw you. You don't need to drop no courtesies to me." He set his mouth grimly in response to the bow she made him. "I think female beauty is like all other human furbelows and as holler as heaven will be if only the good people are let in. But yet I did stop to look at you when you went past me today, and I kept on lookin' long as you were in sight. I reckon I always will when I git the chance, too—only shows what human nature is. But that wasn't all that folks were starin' at today. It was your walkin' with Joe Louden that really finished 'em, and I can say it upset me more than anything I've seen for a good many years."

"Upset you, Mr. Arp?" she cried. "I don't quite see."

The old man shook his head dejectingly. "After what I'd written you about that boy"—

"Ah," she said softly, touching his sleeve with her fingers, "I haven't thanked you for that."

"You needn't," he returned sharply. "It was a pleasure. Do you remember how easy and quick I promised you?"

"I remember that you were very kind."

"Kind!" He gave forth an acid and chilling laugh. "It was about two months after Louden ran away and before you and Roger left Canaan, and you asked me to promise to write to you whenever word of that outcast came"—

"I didn't put it so, Mr. Arp."

"No, but you'd ought of! You asked me to write you whatever news of him should come, and if he came back to tell you how and when and all about it. And I did it and kept you sharp on his record ever since he landed here again. Do you know why I've done it? Do you know why I promised so quick and easy I would do it?"

"Out of kindness of your heart, I think."

The acid laugh was repeated. "No, ma'am! You couldn't of guessed colder. I promised, and I kept my promise because I knew there would never be anything good to tell. And there never was!"

"Nothing at all?" she insisted gravely.

"Never! I leave it to you if I've written one good word of him."

"You've written of the treatment he has received here," she began, "and I've been able to see what he has borne and bears."

"But have I written one word to show that he didn't deserve it all? Haven't I told you everything, of his associates, his"—

"Indeed you have!"

"Then do you wonder that I was more surprised than most when I saw you walking with him today? Because I knew you did it in cold blood and knowledge aforethought! Other folks thought it was because you hadn't been here long enough to hear his reputation, but I knew!"

"Tell me," she said, "if you were disappointed when you saw me with him."

"Yes," he snapped. "I was."

"I thought so. I saw the consternation in your face. You approved, didn't you?"

"I don't know what you're talking about."

"Yes, you do. I know it bothers you to have me read you between the lines, but for this once you must let me. You are so consistent that you are never disappointed when things turn out badly or people are wicked or foolish, are you?"

"No, certainly not. I expect it."

"And you were disappointed in me today. Therefore, it must be that I was doing something you knew was right and good. You see?" She leaned a little closer to him, smiling angelically. "Ah, Mr. Arp," she cried, "I know your secret! You admire me!"

He rose, confused and incoherent, as full of denial as a detected pickpocket. "I don't! Me admire? What? It's an ornery world," he protested. "I don't admire any human that ever lived!"

"Yes, you do," she persisted. "I've just proved it. But that is the least of your secret. The great thing is this—you admire Mr. Louden!"

"I never heard such nonsense," he continued to protest, at the same time moving down the walk toward the gate, leaning heavily on his stick. "Nothin' of the kind. There ain't any logic to that kind of an argument, nor no reason."

"You see, I understand you!" she called after him. "I'm sorry you go away in the bitterness of being found out."

"Found out!" His stick ceased for a moment to tap the cement. "Pooh!" he ejaculated uneasily. There was a pause, followed by a malevolent chuckle. "At any rate," he said, with joy in the afterthought, "you'll never go walkin' with him again."

He waited for the answer, which came, after a time, sadly. "Perhaps you are right. Perhaps I shall not."

"Ha, I thought so! Good night."

"Good night, Mr. Arp."

She turned toward the lighted house. Through the windows nearest her she could see Mamie, seated in the familiar chair, following with happy and tender eyes the figure of Eugene, who was pacing up and down the room. The town was deadly quiet; Ariel could hear the sound of footsteps perhaps a block away. She went to the gate and gazed a long time into the empty street, watching the yellow grains of light sieved through the maples from the arc lights on the corner moving to and fro in the deep shadow as the lamp swung slightly in the night air. Somewhere not far away the peace was broken by the screams of a "parlor organ," which honked and wailed in pious agonies (the intention was hymnal), interminably protracting each spasm. Presently a woman's voice outdid the organ, a voice which made vivid the picture of the woman who owned it and the plowed forehead of her above the nose glasses when the "grace notes" were proudly given birth. "Rescue the Perishing" was the startlingly appropriate selection, rendered with inconceivable lingering upon each syllable—"Res-cue the Poor-oosh-oong!" At unexpected intervals two male voices, evidently belonging to men who had contracted the habit of holding tin in their mouths, joined the lady in a thorough search for the lost chord.

That was the last of silence in Canaan for an hour or so. The organ was merely inaugural. Across the street a piano sounded. Firm, emphatic, determined vocal competition with the instrument here also; "Rock of Ages" the incentive. Another piano presently followed suit in a neighboring house—"Precious Jewels." More distant, a second organ was heard. Other pianos, other organs, took up other themes, and, as a wakeful puppy's barking will go over a village at night, stirring first the nearer dogs to give voice, these in turn stimulating those farther away to join, one passing the excitement on to another, until hounds in farmyards far beyond the town contribute to the long distance conversation, even so did "Rescue the Perishing" enliven the greater part of Canaan.

It was this that made Ariel realize a thing of which hitherto she had not been able to convince herself: that she was actually once more in the town where she had spent her long ago girlhood, now grown to seem the girlhood of some other person. It was true: her foot was on her native heath and her name was Ariel Tabor: the very name of the girl who had shared the town's disapproval with Joe Louden! "Rescue the Perishing" brought it all back to her, and she listened to these sharply familiar rites of the Canaanite Sabbath evening with a throb of pain.

The Saddle.

The heavy man should be most particular about his saddle and that it shall be not only broad seated, but long in the tree, that his weight may be distributed over as large a surface on the horse's back as possible and should exercise great care that not only is it well stuffed, especially about the withers, but that the stuffing is constantly worked light and kept from caking or becoming lumpy anywhere. Neglect of these precautions will inevitably lead to chafing and bruising of the back or painful pinching and bruising of the withers, this latter injury leading very possibly to further complications in the way of fistula, etc., which may result in permanent and very severe complications. The individual of lighter weight is more fortunate in these respects, as he is not so likely to injure his mount severely by the mere amount of weight he represents, but even he must be duly careful not only upon the grounds of self interest, but upon those of ordinary humanity.—F. M. Ware in Outing Magazine.

Heart Strength

Heart Strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve Strength, or Nerve Weakness—nothing more. Positively, not one weak heart in a hundred is, in itself, actually diseased. It is almost always a hidden tiny little nerve that really is all at fault. This obscure nerve—the Cardiac, or Heart Nerve—simply needs, and must have, more power, more stability, more controlling, more governing strength. Without that the Heart must continue to fail, and the stomach and kidneys also have these same controlling nerves.

This clearly explains why, as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the past done so much for weak and ailing Hearts. Dr. Shoop first sought the cause of all this painful, palpitating, suffocating heart distress. Dr. Shoop's Restorative—this popular prescription—is alone directed to these weak and wasting nerve centers. It builds; it strengthens; it offers real, genuine heart help.

If you would have strong Hearts, strong digestion, strengthen these Nerves — re-establish them as needed, with

The French For "Kittie."

If you attempt to coax a French kitten by calling "kittie, kittie, kittie," the animal will stare at you with absolute indifference or shrug its shoulders and walk away. The dictionaries and phrase books will give you no help, one and all ignoring the theme. It took me months to discover the proper call. When I asked, "How do you call it?" the natives always replied, "Un petit chat." If I continued, "What do you say when you wish it to approach you?" they respond, "Venez ici." I had about despaired of succeeding in my quest when I chanced to hear a little girl summoning her pet. She said, "Mi, mi, mi, mi, mi, mi," and "kittie" came running to her as obediently as could be. Of course mi was pronounced "me."—Travel Magazine.

Why Do Women Worry?

First Sign of Failing Health.

Worry is a disease—and it's more—it produces other diseases, because it breaks down the nerves and saps the vitality of the body.

What a pity women don't realize that if they were well—if the blood was nutritious—if the nerves were strong—if all the organs were active—then the little things that irritate and prey on the mind wouldn't receive a moment's thought.

The woman who worries has a poor appetite—she sleeps poorly. If it only lasted for a day or two it might be of small consequence—but she grows limp, miserable, unhappy—worse day by day.

She needs Ferrozone which cures worry by curing the conditions that render worry possible. For nervous, weak women, no tonic is so good; thousands it has cured just like Mrs. M. E. Etherington, of Troy, who writes, "I am quite willing to give a public testimonial for Ferrozone believing it to be a tonic of superior excellence and one that will rapidly build up strength and supply new energy to anyone not feeling well. Last spring I was in a very poor condition of health. I was nervous, felt tired, and completely worn out. No doubt it's quite a common complaint with ladies of my age, but I placed great reliance in Ferrozone, and took it for several weeks. It made me quite strong, and in fact I have been in better health ever since. I can heartily recommend Ferrozone."

This is why it gives color, clearness to the skin, buoyance to the step brightness to the eyes—because with good digestion and activity of the body in all its parts there's health. Price 50c. per box at all dealers.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS

DASHES HERE AND THERE BY TIMES' REPORTERS.

Bennett Won Five Mile Race

Mr. T. E. Bennett, was the winner of the five-mile race on Monday, not T. E. Simpson, as our reporter erroneously had inserted in yesterday's issue.

Sheriff Hall Home from the West

Sheriff Hall has returned from an extended trip to the west and is now spending a few days at Stony Lake. The sheriff visited Winnipeg, Vancouver, Victoria, Portland, Oregon and other places. He spent some time as the guest of his son, Mr. Sandford Hall, manager of the Bank of Toronto at Quill Lake, Sask. The sheriff thoroughly enjoyed his visit to the west.

Chemong Regatta Dance

Those desirous of attending the regatta dance held under the auspices of the Chemong Yacht Club this evening, can take busses which will leave the post office here at half-past seven o'clock in the evening and will return after the dance about eleven o'clock. Tickets for the dance may be obtained from the committee at the pavilion and only the gentlemen are being charged.

Indians will Pay for Drunk

Informations have been laid against four Chemong Indians who were mixed up in the disgraceful affair on the steamer Esturion on Monday night. Two of them are charged with having assaulted the mate of the vessel, another one with having obstructed an officer of the peace in the discharge of his duty and another with having prevented the officer in the discharge of his duty. They will come up before County Magistrate Edmison at an early date.

Salvation Army Band Appreciated

As noted in a former issue of The Times our splendid Salvation Army Band is now out of town on a trip. Mr. Braund of that organization writing from Cobourg, notes that on their arrival in that old time and sleepy little place, that the mayor thereof took the chair and welcomed the band. They had a freewill collection of $108.85. This was in part due to subscriptions by visiting Americans. The band left Cobourg for Trenton, where splendid crowds attended their meetings.

Former Local Banker in Alaska

Yesterday a friend of Mr. M. Saunders, who was for some time past the popular accountant of the Canadian Bank of Commerce in this city, to the effect that he has been appointed to an agency in far-off Alaska. The communication sent by Mr. Saunders, contains a photograph of the town where he is now located at. Whilst congratulating Mr. Saunders on his raise to a managership, we hope the polar bears will treat him with due deference.

Serious Fire at Bridgenorth

Yesterday afternoon the village of Bridgenorth, sustained a great loss by fire. The stables and driving shed belonging to the Kelly sawmill at Bridgenorth were destroyed by this devouring element. The crowd that gathered had much difficulty in saving the horses. Some 15 tons of hay and some machinery were victims of the fire fiend. The fire was likely started by a spark from the mill, as a strong breeze was blowing from the Enniskmore shore at the time the fire started. The loss will be heavy.

Cures Woman's Weaknesses.

We refer to that boon to weak, nervous, suffering women known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Dr. John Fyfe one of the Editorial Staff of THE ECLECTIC MEDICAL REVIEW says of Unicorn root (Helonias Dioica) which is one of the chief ingredients of the "Favorite Prescription":

"A remedy which invariably acts as a uterine invigorator * * * makes for normal activity of the entire reproductive system." He continues "in Helonias we have a medicament which more fully answers the above purposes than any other drug with which I am acquainted. In the treatment of diseases peculiar to women it is seldom that a case is seen which does not present some indication for this remedial agent." Dr. Fyfe further says: "The following are among the leading indications for Helonias (Unicorn root). Pain or aching in the back, with leucorrhœa; atonic (weak) condition of the reproductive organs of women, mental depression and irritability, associated with chronic diseases of the reproductive organs of women; constant sensation of heat in the region of the kidneys; menorrhagia (flooding) due to a weakened condition of the reproductive system; amenorrhœa (suppressed or absent monthly period); asthma from or accompanying an abnormal condition of the digestive organs and anæmia (thin blood) habit; dragging sensations in the extreme lower part of the abdomen."

If more or less of the above symptoms are present, no trouble. Women can do better than take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, one of the leading ingredients of which is Unicorn root, or Helonias, and the medical properties of which it most faithfully represents.

Of Golden Seal root, another prominent ingredient of "Favorite Prescription," Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Medical College, Chicago, says:

"It is an important remedy in disorders of the womb. In all catarrhal conditions * * * and general enfeeblement, it is useful."

Prof. John M. Scudder, M. D., late of Cincinnati, says of Golden Seal root:

"In relation to its general effects on the system, there is no medicine in use about which there is such general unanimity of opinion. It is universally regarded as the tonic useful in all debilitated states."

Prof. R. Bartholow, M. D., of Jefferson Medical College, says of Golden Seal:

"Valuable in uterine hemorrhage, menorrhagia (flooding) and congestive dysmenorrhœa (painful menstruation)."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription faithfully represents all the above named ingredients and cures the diseases for which they are recommended.

City Topics

IN SHORT FORM FOR BUSY READERS

—A large number from the city, intend taking in the annual regatta at Chemong Park this afternoon.

—Immigrant Agent Howson has letters from the old country for Mr. F. Buckland and W. A. Loverick.

—A recent issue of militia orders contains notice that Lieut. G. K. Rackham has been transferred from the 10th Regiment Royal Grenadiers, to the 57th Regiment, Peterborough.

—At the Chemong regatta on Thursday a special professional race for Indians for a purse of $10 will be put on. There are many Indian canoeists who will enter this competition.

—Rev. Dr. Langfeldt will conduct the weekly cottage meeting next Wednesday, Aug. 21, at the residence of Mr. Jos. Greer, Otonabee, south of the Norwood Road.

—Militia orders of recent date contain the following of local interest; Fifty-seventh Regiment, Peterborough Rangers; Lieut. W. A. Smith, is transferred to the 23rd Regiment, Northern Pioneers.

—The Songsters' Brigade will have charge of the meeting at the Salvation Army Barracks this evening, and will render several excellent vocal selections. The public is cordially invited to attend.

—City Treasurer Frank Adams was on the bench at the police court yesterday morning. Only one case was tried Jas. Feenie was charged with assaulting a little girl residing in the north end of the city. He was remanded till next Saturday, when his worship Magistrate, Dumble will be back to deal with him.

—Norman J. G. Frame, the Toronto youth who was convicted of forgery and sentenced to four months' imprisonment for passing bogus cheques in Port Hope, escaped from the county jail at Cobourg, while in charge of the turnkey. Although the sheriff's officers and county constables are looking for him, he has so far evaded recapture.

Chemong Park Regatta To-day

There is no doubt but what the Chemong Park regatta this afternoon will be a great success. If this afternoon is fine and a good breeze is blowing, there will be a record crowd to see the best races of the season. Both the Sturgeon Point and Stony Lake Associations, are running excursions to Chemong. The one from Sturgeon Point will start from Lindsay, where a large number of passengers will be taken on.

In the open sailing race a special prize for 18 footers and under has been offered by the association.

I will mail you free, to prove merit, samples of my Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and my Book on either Dyspepsia, The Heart or The Kidneys. Troubles of the Stomach, Heart or Kidneys are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak Stomach nerves—the inside nerves—mean Stomach weakness, always. And the Heart, and Kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves, and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy ever claims to treat the "inside nerves." Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion, use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write me today for sample and free Book Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. The Restorative is sold by all dealers.

Mr. Stratton's Yacht Rescues Two People

Great Storm at Stony Lake Causes Much Trouble

On Tuesday there was a veritable storm raging at Stony and the upper Kawartha Lakes, and cottagers were kept to their islands. The waves were very high and it was rather risky to venture out in a small boat.

Mr Geo H Williamson and his sister left their cottage at Sandy Point to row to Juniper Island. At first the wind was not so heavy and they were alright until they reached "Big Island" on the return journey coming into Clear Lake. The waves were so high that the two were drenched through and Mr. Williamson thought it advisable to land and wait till the wind went down. Fortunately the "Alberta," Mr. Stratton's yacht, came along and took the two home.

Miss Thompson Having a Good Time

The World's Winning Candidates Enjoying Themselves

It will be remembered that a Peterborough girl, Miss Birdie Thompson, a daughter of the late well-known lumberman, Mr. Elias Thompson, is one of the successful candidates in the Toronto World's trip to Europe competition. The World of yesterday has the following anent the trip:—

The World party of "Maple Blossoms" are having a most enjoyable time in London, and much attention is being shown them. On Sunday, Hon. Mr. Fielding, Dominion minister of finance, gave them a drive through the parks, now at their best, besides entertaining them at lunch.

"On Monday the Tower of London, St. Paul's, and the National Gallery were visited, and on Tuesday the round included the Tate Gallery of British Artists, the magnificent Wallace collection of paintings, armor, and articles of vertue in Hertford House, Manchester Square, and Madame Tussaud's famous waxworks.

To-morrow, Wednesday, has been fixed for our Paris trip, and all are looking forward to it with eager anticipation.

We have had splendid weather, and all are in the best of health.

HOLY WAR CALLED BY THE ULEMA

The Moslem Doctors Demand That Moroooo's Sultan Shall Lead the Movement

Spanish Officers Would Not Go Outside the City Walls

Tangier, Aug. 17.—There is considerable uneasiness here over the non-arrival of a number of fugitive Europeans represented to have left Morrocco city last Saturday under a strong escort, and who were expected here last Monday.

Reports are arriving from Casablanca of heartrending scenes. Wounded persons are now coming out from all sorts of hiding places. Slight wounds that could have been promptly cured had medical attention been available are now mortified, and many of the unfortunate natives have to face amputation, and even that may be too late to save their lives. The French medical staff at Casablanca is altogether inadequate to deal with these numerous cases.

FEAR ASSASSINATION.

The sultan is said to be greatly disturbed by the attitude taken by the Ulema, the body of Moslem doctors of the law who interpret the Koran. On learning of the occupation of Casablanca by the French, the Cadi of Fez, with several other members of the Ulema, supported the demand of the influential shereef of Kitani for a holy war, and the sultan is reported to fear deposition, or even assassination, if he feelines to place himself personally at the head of the movement.

DISSENSIONS OCCURRED.

Paris, Aug. 17.—The reports of dissension between General Drude and General Santa Olalla, the Spanish commander at Casablanca, are officially confirmed. The latter declined to take up the positions south of the city, assigned to him by General Drude, the commander of the French expeditionary force, on the ground that his instructions from Madrid superficially prohibited him from going outside the city and restricted his action to participation in the restoration of order and the installation of the international police outside. It is explained, however, that the misunderstandings are due to the too narrow interpretations of his instructions by General Olalla, and after referring the matter to Madrid, the commanders are now in perfect accord.

The government's advices from Fez indicate that the measures taken to secure the safety of the Europeans are ample. The cost of maintaining the French warships and troops in Morocco is figured up at $100,000 per month, exclusive of the pensions of the men wounded and the hospital service, repairs to the ships, etc. Some of the papers are insistently asking who will pay the bill.

SEAPORT IS SURROUNDED.

The correspondent of the Matin, at Casablanca, says that seaport is entirely surrounded by Kabyles. General Drude, the commander of the French forces, is showing signs of anxiety. He constantly visits the outposts night and day.

Drought Causes Great Loss in This County

Mr. John Hardell the popular travelling representative of Messrs. John Kinnear & Co., the local wholesale grocers has returned from a business trip to our northern country, including Apsley and other parts of North Peterborough. Mr. Hardell, in conversation with The Times, noted yesterday that around Apsley, the prevailing draught has caused crops of all kinds to simply dry up and wither away. Wheat, oats, barley, roots and other crops are in many cases simply abandoned being burnt up for lack of rain. Berries, in thousands of quarts have dried up on the vines.
dried up on the bushes.

His report was corroborated at the market weigh scales, by a local drover who said that cattle owners near and about Bobcaygeon are selling their cattle simply because they, the cattle are starving for lack of grass. He instanced several cattle owners who sold cattle for export via Montreal, at almost what the buyers wanted to pay them. Fortunately yesterday's heavy rain, if its sphere of usefulness is broad spread enough, will relieve those suffering from drought.

FAST TRAIN WRECKED

Des Moines, Iowa, Aug. 17.—A special to the Register and Leader says a fast Burlington train from Denver to Chicago was wrecked a mile east of Russell yesterday, injuring 11 persons, two of whom may die.

The severely hurt include Mrs. J. B. Rysdel, New Brunswick, Canada, internally injured, and may die.

NOTED BANDIT IS ALIVE AT COAST

A Remarkable Story of Most Notorious Robber.

LEAD GUERRILLA FORCES

Quaudrell Living Quietly in British Columbia—How He Escaped

Victoria, B.C., Aug. 15.—Bill Quantrell, leader of Quantrell's guerrillas Qin the Civil War, who, according to in the Civil War, who, according to history, died of wounds at a Kentucky hospital, after his raiders were out up, is still alive, and lives at Quatino, on the northwest coast of Vancouver Island, under the name of John Sharp, according to a number of people who have conversed with him. J. E. Duffy, a prominent timberman, who recently became interested in timber land at Quatsino, recognized John Sharp, who is over 60, wiry and gray, as Quantrell. Duffy having been a member of the Michigan troop of calvyar which cut up Quantrell's force. He stated to Duffy that he was correct in recognition. Sharp said that he had been left as dead, and instead of dying of his wounds, at Louisville, as history recorded, had taken a horse, ridden miles and disappeared.

He made his way to South America, living a number of years in Chile, whence he went to Texas, where he engaged in the cattle business, making considerable money which he exhausted Then he went to Oregon, where he pinched cows and drove cattle over the mountains. From Oregon he came to British Columbia nearly two decades ago and engaged in logging at different camps of the northern coast of Vancouver Island until ten years ago, when he became a trapper of the northern coast. Six or seven years ago he went to Quatsino, where he was employed in the West Vancouver mines.

When J. E. Duffy landed at Quatsino from the steamer Tees he met John Sharp on the beach at Coal Harbor. Duffy looked the old man over and said; "Is that you, Quantrell, you —— old rascal!"

"Come into the house," said Sharp, and for some hours the two men talked. Sharp stating he was in reality Quantrell, and he talked at length of the raids in Kansas and elsewhere and eagerly listened to Duffy's tales from the point of view of the cavalryman of the United States army. He was most keenly interested in the story of the cutting up of his band, and when the narrator told of how forty had been killed tears are said to have rolled down the old man's cheeks.

R. E. Montgomery, who is engaged in business at Quatsino and who knew Sharp, or Quantrell, at Fort Worth, Texas, and H. O. Berg, postmaster at Quatsino, are two others to whom Sharp has stated his identity as Quantrell.

"I might as well admit it," Sharp told both. "It seems that I cannot hide the fact."

The story the old man told to the informant of the Associated Press was that when his band had been cut up he had been bayonetted in the chest and had a bullet wound through the shoulder. The surgeon who looked him over diagnosed that he could not live more than a couple of hours, and he had been left so that others with more chance of recovery could be attended to by the overworked surgeons. While they tended the others he got up, despite his wounds, and disappeared.

Ontario Welcomes The Fine Rain

Yesterday's rain was general all over the Province. Last night and this morning the western parts were all visited by refreshing showers, they are moving eastward, and will reach the Ottawa valley today.

The rain comes as a benediction to everybody. The farmer needed it to replenish wells which were running dry, to help the grass which was becoming parched, to prevent the grain ripening too rapidly, thus giving it time to fill and obtain its full weight. The fruit farmer sees his crop of small fruit greatly increased, and the dairyman, who began to fear a serious falling off in the supply of milk, gives a sigh of relief. The householder in Peterborough may hope to get her supply of lacteal fluid without diminution and to be able to buy vegetables, the price of which threatened to soar out of the reach of ordinary people.

C. P. R. Operators Remain Loyal to Their Employers

That the best of feeling exists between the C.P.R. operators and company, will be seen by the following despatch. It is seldom a railway company of the magnitude of the C. P.R. hold the confidence and good will of their men as this company does, and the men in return will not betray their trust as the following despatch indicates:

Toronto, Aug. 17.—The local telegraphers' union held another meeting last night and decided not to call out the C.P.R. operators, A message had been received from the International Executive asking if the local union would be in favor of calling out the C.P.R. men, but it was thought that this could not be done after the concession made by the C. P.R. Telegraph Company, of not compelling the men to work with strike-breaerk, and the good feeling that exists between the men and company, as this company has done everything possible for the benefit of their employes, and the men feel it would be a breach of faith to go out.

Mr. C. Tebo, president of the local union, has been transferred from Toronto to Winnipeg.

The check boys of the G.N.W. numbering about fifteen, have asked for an increase of wages. These boys distribute the messages to the operators.

Stock Exchange Operators Joined Strikers Yesterday

Chicago, Aug. 17.—At the conference held here last night between President Small and Secretary Russell of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union of America, President Samuel Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, and several other labor leaders, it was decided definitely that there should be no strike of the 47,000 railroad telegraphers of the United States.

The operators will be called upon shortly to contribute a strike fund of $60,000. Two of their general officers attended the conference.

Toronto, Aug. 17.—The ticket operator at the Toronto Stock Exchange, an employe of the G.N.W. Telegraph Company, joined the other strikers yesterday morning, and the members of the exchange were obliged to get their quotations either by telephoning or sending someone over to the building. The operator, who is a young lady, was on duty for a while in the morning, but left about 10.15 o'clock. A local broker says he saw some of the strikers in the building, and believes the young lady went out as a result of the persuasion of the strikers.

The absence of reports of the Saturday afternoon sports, which is almost sure to occur today, will will bring the strike much more prominently before the public.

"Last Saturday there were nineteen operators working on the sports at the head office of the G.N.W., and many others were sent out to the various places where the sports take place, to send in the returns," said the strikers yesterday.

Today there are only two operators at work who can handle this work," the speaker added, "for it requires experience to become accustomed to the system of reporting and the abbreviations."

Four Cars With Meat Shot Over Niagara Bridge

Niagara Falls, Ont., Aug. 17.—Yesterday morning about three o'clock there was a bad smash up on the big railway arch bridge. A heavy train of thirty-five loaded refrigerator cars was going from the G. T. R. yards on the Canadian side to the Lehigh Valley yards on the American side. There was an engine at each end of the train, as there is an up grade from the bridge to the Lehigh Valley yards. About the middle of the train a car mounted the rails at the switch near the Canadian side. Then there were "doings" as the boys say.

The heavily loaded cars tore along over the ties for a short distance, cutting them badly, and in fact for probably twenty-five yards breaking them through between the two tracks. Four cars rolled to the north side of the bridge, and leaving the tracks shot into the chasm below. Three struck the water and disappeared instantly, the fourth struck on the rocks near the water and was smashed into kindling wood. The cars were all Swift's, loaded with fresh meat.

FRESH MEAT ON SHORE.

Yesterday morning the bank near the water was strewn with fresh meat and the bank above was lined with interested spectators. The front engine pulled away from the wreck with thirteen cars attached, but left one disabled at the American end of the bridge. The local wrecking crew was at once called out and the Hamilton derrick was sent for.

Passenger trains numbers 50 and 8 were sent across the river over the M.C.R. cantilever bridge, and others will have to go the same way.

BRIDGE A SORRY SIGHT

The mammoth bridge presents a sorry sight. The railing on the upper deck and also on the lower is partly torn away. Six pairs of trucks are piled promiscuously on the upper deck. One refrigerator car is right side up, lying immediately across the bridge. Another one is lying on its side. A large gang of men are doing their best to clear things away. On the lowest deck is a general scattering of car wheels, springs, brakebeams, and so on.

It seems a very peculiar thing that two wrecks have occurred on this bridge within a few months, when it is remembered that the first that ever occurred was this spring.

Only on Wednesday of this week was a new railing put up to replace the sections carried away in the last wreck.

By 11 o'clock in the morning the track had been cleared, and the first train went over the bridge. The Grand Trunk and Wabash trains used the Michigan Central tracks and the cantilever bridge while the other road was blocked. There is a good many tons of meat scattered about on the rocks below the bridge. It is quite certain now that no one was injured.

Local Oddfellows Home From Grand Lodge

Peterboro Members of Order Favorably Spoken of.

The following local representatives to the Grand Lodge, I.O.O.F., held in Orillia, are home, viz.—Col. J. W. Miller, Messrs. W. S. Robinson, Dr. McKercher, Mulligan, Robt Marchett, Geo. Calrns, Geo. Woods, Frank Wise, W. Hill, Jas. Lang, W. C. Matchett, Jas. Tully, and Wm. Gibbs, and Mrs W. H Gibbs.

Col Miller ran a close race for the position of grand warden, and whilst not winning his record is demonstrative of the popularity in which he is held.

In connection with the very gratifying increase in the number of lodges, as well as in membership, no small degree of credit is due to Bro. J. A. Tully, representative of the Oddfellows Relief Association.

From the grand master's report presented to the Grand Lodge, the following was read;

Bro Wm. Hill, D.D.G.M., Peterborough District, No 32, occupies a high place in the long list of D.D.G.M.'s for the year. Like many others he rightly values the responsibilities of his office as well as the honor, and his report show great care, energy and enthusiasm in the work. His district has been increased by one new lodge, Mystic No. 378, at Marmora, and the affairs of all the lodges may be said to be in good condition.

Baby Injured by Milkman's Horse

Tug Breaks and Horse Ran Over Baby Carriage and Contents

Yesterday morning, what might easily resulted in the death of a little boy occurred near the Cavanagh House. It seems that a local milk wagon was being passed by a boy driving a baby in a perambulator. The milk man's horse became frightened by something and became tractious. One of the "tugs" attaching the cart to the animal, broke when the horse ran right over the baby carriage and its contents. The baby was knocked out on the street and sustained a severe blow just above the right eye as well as other bruises. The boy was also injured about his back. The two children were taken into the Cavanagh House and their injuries attended to.

Police Court

John McCoy, at yesterday's police court when charged with having been drunk in a public place, remarked in a rich Irish brogue, "Yes, my Lordship, I was drunk, but by the help of the Lord I'll not do so again, if my Lordship lets me go, I have be job and will get to work at once." He was given a chance to make good.

Geo Welding, an old man whose features and long white hand present an almost startling similarity to that of the venerable and world wide venerated old man, General Booth, pleaded guilty to being a vagrant. The Chief explained that the prisoner had been in the Protestant home, but he would not behave himself. "Yes," responded his Worship, "he is a crank and will not restrain his temper." He was "sent up" for a few months.

Gearm Wright was charged with having assaulted two Chinamen, who with some difficulty succeeded in swearing out an information against the prisoner, owing to their limited knowledge of English. One of them said he was standing outside his kitchen door getting cool, when Wright came along and spoke to him and another Chinaman, telling them to go into the house. Wright bit each of them over the head with a long stick (produced in court). They had no dog, as alleged by the prisoner and gave prisoner no provocation. Wright then went into the box and swore that a tall dog ran out of the Chinaman's kitchen and pitched into his witness' terriers. He saw one of the Chinks pick up a knife or something, he was not sure what. He then hit one of them with "a bit of a stick." The Magistrate remarked, "You have no more right to hit a Chinaman than a white man. These Chinamen do not waste their time coming to the police court for nothing. I fine you $2 in each case, the $4 to be paid in 10 days.

The court then went into closed session when two small boys were charged in conjunction with two others, who were not present, with stealing $4.50 from a grocer named Hill. The case was enlarged until 11 o'clock morning. It seems that these boys are confirmed little criminals, having been in court four times within a few weeks.

Then another case was presented in which the first two boys were charged with house breaking and stealing the contents of the till on another occasion. Another boy was connected with this latter case, Mr. Gordon appeared for two of the boys. The larger boy pleaded guilty to the housebreaking charge, and the smaller one, about as large as a postage stamp, said he stood on guard while his pal stole the stuff. Still another boy, who a few days ago was mixed up in the horse stealing case, was not present. The mother of one of the boys, when the Magistrate spoke of enlarging this latter case until today pleaded for summary settlement as she wants to leave town. She asked that the boy's anatomy might be examined to show the effects of the beating she had given him. The evidence of good faith as to punishment by the parent moved his Worship to say, "Well, as this is your first offence, I will let you go this time."

Then another small boy was charged with stealing a horse and rig. This boy seems almost incorrigible. He escaped from the Children's Shelter. He was allowed to go on his own promising to reform. By request of the Chief of Police we withhold the boys names. He thinks and probably with good cause, that some of the more incorrigible of the boys would like to get the notoriety of having their names "in the papers." It seems very evident that with the number of bad boys who almost daily are brought to the court and proven guilty of various kinds of theft, some change will have to be made in the law regarding punishment of juvenile offenders. Boys, who while out on suspended sentence for one crime will deliberately continue on their course of crime. Until the Magistrates are given the power of having boys flogged for theft, and parents are too supine and weak minded to punish their own children for serious offences.

CAPTAIN TOOK HIS LIFE

Buenos Ayres, Aug. 17.— Details received here of the wreck in Fludero Bay, of the American barque Prussia, from Norfolk, March 20, for Port Townsend, announced from Punta Arenas, Strait of Magellan, yesterday, say that the captain committed suicide, the captain committed suicide when the vessel ran ashore and that fourteen passengers, in addition to four sailors, lost their lives.

THE BANKS AND MONEY SITUATION

Vast Sums Are Invested in the United States

LAW MAY BE AMENDED

Where $90,000,000 of Canadian Money is Shown to be by Official Figures

Montreal, Aug. 17.—Mr. Robert Pringle, M.P., has been looking into the banking situation apropos of the financial stringency at present existing. Having done this, he thinks there are some features which would justify legislation, having in view the amendment of the Banking Act; and this he proposes to move for at the next session of Parliament. On the basis of his present examination of the Government bank report, he made some interesting observations as to the disposal of Canadian funds, rates of interest, and the amounts borrowed by directors of the firms in which they are interested.

Speaking of his proposed legislation, Mr. Pringle said;

"I have had occasion lately to look into our Bank Act, and it strikes me that instead of being an improvement on the old acts which were in force in this country for many years, we have gone back.

"For inbtance, under the old statutes a bank exacting a higher rate of interest and discount than 7 per cent. was liable, under the law, to certain penalties and forfeitures. At the present day there is no law now in force which renders a bank liable to incur any penalty or forfeiture for usury. It is true that in section 91 of our present act the rate of interest which the bank may ask for, take, reserve, or exact, shall not exceed 7 per cent and no higher rate of interest shall be recovered by the bank. However the banks have very ingeniously got away from this provision I find in looking into the authorities that the banks, particularly throughout the West, have been exacting as high as 24 per cent and 18 per cent is common; and they have succeeded in sustaining their positions on the ground that the excess of 7 per cent was paid voluntarily in several cases tried in the courts. The evidence as to these excessive rates was given and our Supreme Court has held that if a debtor voluntarily pays the excess of interest over 7 per cent, as, for instance, by giving his cheque to the bank for the same, he cannot recover it.

"The fact is, as our law now stands our banks are in a position to create a stringency in the money market and charge borrowers any rate they may deem fit.

"As a matter of fact they have been charging from 18 to 24 per cent in the Western country. This could not have occurred

"We find today in Canada a great stringency in the money market. Here are some figures bearing on that point. According to the last Government report our banks have on call loan elsewhere than in Canada and largely, I take it, in the United States of America, $55,298,873 and on current loans elsewhere than in Canada $23,388,259.

"Then, there are loans to directors and firms of which the directors are partners, $11,432 629.

"Now here we have in round figures about $90,000,000 or nearly the total paid up capital of the bank.

"Is it any wonder money is tight in Canada? Is it any wonder that our banks are in a position to charge usurious rates of interest to needy borrowers in the West, or the East for that matter?

"Why, we have greater restrictions on the ordinary money-lender. Under the money-lenders Act the ordinary shylock lending in small sums and often very risky securities is limited to 12 per cent. As against this, we have our large banking institutions with enormous capital, in a position to create such a stringency in the money market that they can control any price they wish to be paid by the borrower.

Feeders for Cavanville

Yesterday 100 small pigs, mostly Tamworths and a few Yorkshires were shipped by Mr H. Kiggon to Cavan. These were what the drivers term "Feeders" and were shipped, as their name implies to be fed for two or three months before killing. A local drover told The Times that these feeders were put on about a pound and a half a day until their earthly career ends.

AFTER THAW TRIAL COMES A WEDDING

Stanford White's Widow Will Then Marry Her Husband's Friend

She Retains Her Beauty Despite the Trying Ordeal of the Past Year

New York, Aug. 17.—The announcement that Mrs. Stanford White is to marry her late husband's partner, Charles Follen McKim, as soon as the trial of Harry Thaw is concluded, and the sensation caused by the killing of Stanford White dies out, is not entirely unexpected. The rumor of the engagement has been afloat for weeks, not only here, but in London and Paris, where Mr. McKim and Mrs. White—separately—have been visiting. Mr. McKim, when a cablegram asked him directly if he were to marry his late partner's widow, did not make any denial. Relatives of Mrs. White, also interrogated, smiled, and said they did not know; Mrs. White was always such an uncommunicative woman.

Every one, however, who knows the widow of the slain architect and the head of the architectural firm of McKim, Mead & White, knows of the warm friendship that has always existed between them. After the tragic ending of her husband's life, Mr. McKim acted not only as business adviser, but as personal counsellor to the stricken woman. Through the dark days when Stanford White's reputation suffered as few men's ever have, it was Mr. McKim who stood between the widow and the world and guarded her as much as possible from its buffeting.

CHOSE ART TREASURES.

On the night before the auction sale of Stanford White's treasures, Mr. McKim and Mrs. White went together to the Grameroy Park house, where the art objects were stored, and jointly, choose from among them the very best. These were not offered for sale. Friends believe they were selected as the nucleus of another collection, to be placed in another home. Especially so, since Mr. McKim did quite as much choosing as Mrs. White.

Then, at the sale itself, it was noticed that Mr McKim was very active in the bidding. He was not to be denied certain other art objects. These, significantly, were recognized by many who had visited the White home as favorite possessions of Mrs. White.

Since the end of the Thaw trial Mr. McKim has been a most frequent visitor to Mrs White's home at Sts James, L.I. When, later in the spring, she stayed for a time at Cambridge in order to be near her son, Lawrence, who is a junior at Harvard. Mr. McKim journeyed there for many week-ends.

Soon after the close of the Harvard term, Mrs. White and her son went abroad for a tour of France. Though before this Mr. McKim had given no intimation to his business associates that he was to take a vacation he went abroad too. There was a meeting in Paris, another in London.

At present Mr. McKim is shooting grouse on the moors of Scotland and Mrs White is somewhere in the south of France.

SISTER HEARD THE RUMOR.

Mrs. White's sister, Mrs. Wetherall, whose place at St. James adjoins that of the slain architect's widow, was asked if she knew of the engagement between Mr. McKim and her sister.

"I have heard a report to that effect several times," said Mrs. Wetherall. "But I have not yet heard anything from my sister. I think I should be the first to know of her decision one way or another."

"Does that imply that there is a decision to be made?" Mrs. Wetherall was asked. "Does it mean that Mrs. White has been asked to marry Mr McKim and has not yet consented?"

Mrs. Wetherall smiled warily and replied, "You know, when a woman loses her husband there are always a lot of kindly-meaning friends who are eager to marry her off again. Perhaps Mrs. White is a victim of such friendly devotion. But I really do not know whether she is going to marry Mr. McKim or not. She is expected back by the end of this month. I suppose we shall know then."

Mr McKim is expected to return about the same time, if not on the same ship.

Mr McKim is 60 years old. As head of the firm of McKim, Mead & White his name is known the world over wherever love of beautiful architecture exists.

Mrs Stanford White is about 45 years old. Before her marriage she was Miss Elizabeth Smith of Smith town, L.I., her family being one of the oldest in the state. She is still beautiful, despite her ordeal of the past year.

GOVERMENT BY COMMISSION

The idea of governing cities by commissions is spreading in the United States. The latest convert to follow Galveston and Houston is Des Moines, which has resolved by a majority of over two thousand to try civic government by commission next spring. A campaign in favor of commission government has been in progress for two years. More recently the civic politicians submitted a plan based on that of Indianapolis, where the Mayor is all powerful. Prominent residents of Des Moines then organized a committee of three hundred citizens. Advocates of the Indianapolis plan and of a modified Galveston system held a public debate. The committee of 300 voted in favor of the commission.

The main feature of the Des Moines plan is that five men are elected to the office of commissioner by the electors at large. Of these five one is Mayor. The various departments are known as Public Affairs, Accounts and Finances, Public Safety, Streets and Improvements and Parks and Public Property. These five have absolute control of the city government. No other official is elected. The commissioners name them all, treasurer, engineer, auditor, assessor; there is no exception. No appointments are to be made, unless of day laborers, save upon merit as shown by a civil service examination. The salary of the Mayor is fixed at $3,500, that of a commissioner at $3,000. The election of commissioners is to take place every two years. At a primary convention ten men receiving the highest votes are declared candidates for commissioner. At the election the citizens choose five out of the ten. The use of money or promises in any way is prohibited, with a sentence in the penitentiary as the penalty.

Strong provision is made for the protection of the public as to franchises and with regard to preventing secrecy. Every franchise must be voted upon by the people, and the Council is prohibited from granting privileges to the public service corporations. No ordinance or contract may be passed until it has been open to inspection for seven days. It cannot take effect until ten days after it has been finally passed. Commissioners are prohibited from being in any way interested in any contract or job for the city. If any city official or employee attempts to influence politically any other city official or attempt to influence or control appointments he is subject to a fine of $300 or a term of emprisonment. Complete publicity is made compulsory. A statement of all receipts and expenditures must be published in the newspapers every month. An annual expert examination of accounts is provided for.

By means of the referendum citizens have the power to recall any commissioner who may have failed in his duty. If a petition signed by twenty-five per cent of the voters is obtained the people must vote upon whether any commissioner is to remain in office or not. In the same way initiative in civic enactments may be introduced. This latter plan has been taken from Los Angeles. The Des Moines idea of revised civic government apparently has been admirably planned and may work to the city's advantage.

A SERIUM FOR MENINGITIS

Announcement is made of the successful use in an epidemic of cerebro-spinal meningitis at Castalia, O., of the serum developed by Dr. Simon Flexner of the Rockefeller Institute Medical Research in New York. The reports thus far made are informal. Detailed statements are expected from Dr. Flexner presently on his return from Europe. All that it appears proper to say on present information is that progress is indicated in the treatment of one form of terrible disease which for over a hundred years has baffled medical science.

Epidemic meningitis manifested itself specifically in Switzerland at the beginning of the nineteenth century. It appeared in Massachusetts in the year 1806. Presumably its earlier existence was included in the general typhus account. In visitations it has been erratic. Thus, from 1850 to 1854, it had no mortality record in the world, while New York's epidemic of 1904 was the fourth of a series begun in 1866, Boston having had three epidemics within a similar period. The disease is now domesticated in the United States. It makes death records in New York every year.

Meningitis is feared not only for its score of mortality, ranging as high as 70 per cent of cases, but for after effects of deafness, blindness or imbecility in recovered patients. A serum proved to be effective in combatting this dreadful disease would rank with antitoxin, which has wrought its miracle on the diphtheria scourge.

$100 REWARD, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood an dmucous surfaces of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer one hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

John Redmond Scores The Sinn Feiners

Wexford, Ireland, Aug 16.—John F. Redmond, leader of the Nationalist party in the House of Commons, made an address in this city last night in reply to a resolution conveying him the freedom of the city of Wexford in recognition of his parliamentary work for Ireland, in the course of which he discussed freely the present conflict between the Nationalists and the members of the Sinn Fein Society.

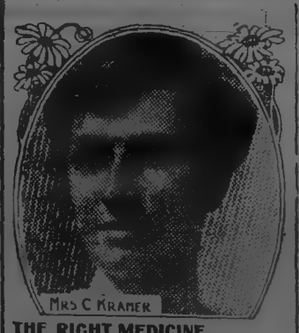
He described the critics of the Irish party as actuated by jealousy, or similar motives, and said the members of the party were the choice of the constituencies and not his nominees. They were honest Nationalists, and far less amenable to British influences and far more independent of the British parties than some of their critics.

No invitation to William O'Brien to join the party was needed. He had been asked repeatedly, but he was unwilling to be bound by the party pledge. The position of Timothy Healy, Mr. Redmond continued, was different, but if the National directory or the convention wanted him back he, Mr Redmond, would not stand in the way.

The policy of the Sinn Fein Society, Mr. Redmond then declared, in withdrawing the members from Westminster was absurd and, found support nowhere in Ireland. "The cranks and the doubters," Mr Redmond said, in conclusion, "have had their innings for the past few weeks, but they will get their answer from every quarter Ireland before the harvest is saved."

Killed by Dynamite

Berlin, Aug 17.—A dynamite factory at Doemitz, Grand Duchy of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, exploded yesterday. One life is known to have been lost, eight persons are missing, and are regarded as killed. 20 persons were dangerously injured and 60 were slightly hurt.



THE RIGHT MEDICINE FOR PELVIC TROUBLES FOUND IN PE-RU-NA.

MRS. CAROLINE KRAMER, Fort Collins, Col., writes:

"The majority of women who are suffering from disordered periods and other pelvic troubles, have such strong faith in doctors that they allow them to experiment on them for kidney, liver or stomach troubles until they become completely discouraged and their money is gone.

"This was my unfortunate experience for nearly two years when my attention was called to Peruna.

"I hardly dared believe that at last I had found the right medicine, but as I kept on using it and was finally cured, I could only thank God and take courage.

"I have had most satisfying results from the use of your medicine and have advised dozens of women who were suffering with woman's ills to use Peruna and let the doctors alone.

"Those who followed my advice are better today and many are fully restored to health."

Mrs. Wilda Moores, R. F. D., No. 1, Lents, Ore., writes:

"For the past four years I was a wretched woman, suffering with severe backaches and other pains, leaving me so weak and weary that it was only with difficulty that I was able to attend to my household duties.

"I used different remedies, but found no relief until I had tried Peruna.

"Within two weeks there was a change for the better and in less than three months I was a well and happy woman.

"All the praise is due to Peruna."

See The Picture in Brighter Hues

Cleveland, Aug. 17.—The dark picture of industrial depression and financial chaos painted by John D. Rockefeller as the future of the country, should the "regulation" of corporations continue, is not concurred in by representative bankers and business men in Cleveland.

Many agree with Rockefeller that the times are propitious for such an outcome, but the majority think that the corporation issue is amenable to solution and that it will be solved without any such disastrous results as looked for by the richest man in the world.

Rockefeller's warning was the main topic of discussion in financial circles yesterday. His condemnation of the Roosevelt method of meeting the trust issue and his confidence in Secretary Taft were very generally commended. The majority opinion, however, differs from Rockefeller at the point where he indulges in the gravest fears for the final outcome.

Some bankers are outspoken in their condemnation of Roosevelt and a few fully concur in Rockefeller's views as to the outcome, but the majority opinion is that the president was right in inaugurating the campaign against law-breaking corporations, but that he is carrying it to an extent that promises serious consequences.

They refuse, however, to believe that the country is rushing headlong into a chaos of financial disorder. Capital is becoming more cautious, and bankers now look for a considerable let up in business during the presidential year. This, they believe will come as a natural reaction from the overpowering prosperity of the country for the past few years, and, as a result of the prosecutions against the trust. They look for a breathing spell during which both sides to the controversy will have time to check up accounts and find out just where they stand.

The Money That's Being Made in

Western Canada LAND

In October, 1906 we sold 5,000 acres of Saskatchewan lands to an Indiana party of men at $8 per acre, and resold it this year at $12, making just about 100 per cent. on the money invested.

A Montreal party of men who bought 10,000 acres from us at $8 per acre last September, resold through us within three months at $10.00 per acre.

A Chicago client writes us that after making some improvements on a section she bought near Regina, one year ago, she sold out recently for exactly twice what she paid for the land.

We resold a section of land located near Lipton for a man at $18.00 per acre last April, which we sold him in December at $12.00.

Western Canada Lands offer the greatest opportunity this continent has ever known

Men here are growing wealthy who never knew success in any other line. You can make money here too, if you think your amount too small rub it with a few friends. Some of the most prominent financial men in the Canada are now interested in this country heavily.

We own about 200,000 acres of the finest wheat and mixed farming lands in Manitoba and Saskatchewan. Picked lands on which we are prepared to give accurate trustworthy information, and these tracts being portions of extremely large purchases, we can sell them at prices that cannot be equalled, quality of land considered, by any firm in the United States and Eastern country.

Prices range from $6.00 per acre upwards Reasonable Terms in every case

Write us for further information but when doing so tell us the class and amount of an investment you desire, and whether you want the land for your own use or for investment purposes purely. $1,000 is about the minimum we can handle. References Union Bank and Traders' Bank, Winnipeg.

THE CONQUEST of CANAAN

By BOOTH TARKINGTON,
Author of "Cherry," "Monsieur Beaucaire," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1905, BY HARPER & BROTHERS

"It seems to me," said Colonel Fitcroft hesitatingly, "that she did right. I know it sounds kind of a queer thing to say, and I stirred up a good deal of opposition at home yesterday evening by sort of mentioning something of the kind. Nobody seemed to agree with me except Norbert, and he didn't say much, but"—

He was interrupted by an uncontrollable cackle which issued from the mouth of Mr. Arp. The colonel turned upon him, with a frown, inquiring the cause of his mirth.

"It put me in mind," Mr. Arp began promptly, "of something that happened last night."

"What was it?"

Eskew's mouth was open to tell, but he remembered just in time that the grandfather of Norbert was not the audience properly to be selected for this recital, choked a half born word, coughed loudly, realizing that he must withhold the story of the feeling of Martin Pike until the colonel had taken his departure, and replied:

"Nothin' to speak of. Go on with your argument."

"I've finished," said the colonel. "I only wanted to say that it seems to me a good action for a young lady like that to come back here and stick to her old friend and playmate."

"Stick to him!" echoed Mr. Arp. "She walked up Main street with him yesterday. Do you call that stickin' to him? She's been away a good while; she's forgotten what Canaan is. You wait till she sees for herself jest what his standing in this com"—

"I agree with Eskew for once," interrupted Peter Bradbury. "I agree because"—

"Then you better wait," cried Eskew, allowing him to proceed no further. "till you hear what you're agreein' to! I say you take a young lady like that—pretty and rich and all cultured up, and it stands to reason that she won't"—

"No; it don't!" exclaimed Buckalew impatiently. "Nothing of the sort! I tell you"—

Eskew rose to his feet and pounded the pavement with his stick. "It stands to reason that she won't stick to a man no other decent woman will speak to, a feller that's been the mark for every stone throwed in the town ever since he was a boy, an outcast with a reputation as black as a preacher's shoes on Sunday! I don't care if he's her oldest friend on earth, she won't stick to him! She walked with him yesterday, but you can mark my words, his goose is cooked!" The old man's voice rose shrill and high. "It ain't in human nature fer her to do it! You hear what I say—you'll never see her with Joe Louden again in this livin' world, and she as good as told me so herself last night. You can take your oath she's quit him already! Don't"—

Eskew paused abruptly, his eyes widening behind his spectacles. His jaw fell. His stick, raised to hammer the pavement, remained suspended in the air. A sudden color rushed over his face, and he dropped speechless in his chair. The others after staring at him in momentary alarm followed the direction of his gaze.

Just across Main street and in plain view was the entrance to the stairway which led to Joe's office. Ariel Tabor, all in cool gray, carrying a big bunch of white roses in her white gloved hands, had just crossed the sidewalk from a carriage and was ascending the dark stairway. A moment later she came down again empty handed, got into the carriage and drove away.

"She missed him," said Squire Buckalew. "I saw him go out half an hour ago. But," he added and, exercising a self restraint close upon the saintly, did not even glance toward the heap which was Mr. Arp. "I notice she left her flowers!"

Ariel was not the only one who climbed the dingy stairs that day and read the pencilled script upon Joe's door: "Will not return until evening. J. Louden." Many others came, all exceedingly unlike the first visitor. Some were quick and watchful, dodging into the narrow entrance furtively; some smiled contemptuously as long as they were in view of the street, drooping wanly as they reached the stairs; some were brazen and amused, and some were thin and troubled. Not all of them read the message, for not all could read, but all looked curiously through the half opened door at the many roses which lifted their heads delicately from a water pitcher on Joe's desk to scent that dusty place with their cool breath.

Most of these clients after a grunt of disappointment turned and went away, though there were a few, either unable to read the message or so pressed by anxiety that they disregarded it, who entered the room and sat down to wait for the absentee. There were plenty of chairs in the office now, bookcases also and a big steel safe. But when evening came and the final gray of twilight had vanished from the window panes all had gone except one, a woman who sat patiently, her eyes upon the floor and her hands folded in her lap, until the footsteps of the last of the others to depart had ceased to sound upon the pavement below. Then with a wordless exclamation she sprang to her feet, pulled the window shade carefully down to the sill and when she had done that struck a match on the heel of her shoe—a soiled white canvas shoe, not a smart one—and applied the flame to a gas jet. The yellow light [illegible]

This grave-courtesy caused a strong, deep flush to spread itself under the rouge which unevenly covered the woman's cheeks as she bowed elaborately in return. Then furtively, during a protracted silence, she took stock of the new comer from the tip of her white-buckle-shoes to the filmy lace and pink roses upon her wide white hat, and the sidelong gaze lingered marvelingly upon the quiet, delicate hands, slender and finely expressive, in their white gloves.

Her own hands, unlike the lady's, began to fidget confusedly, and, the silence continuing, she coughed several times to effect the preface required by her sense of fitness before she felt it proper to observe, with a polite titter:

"Mr. Louden seems to be a good public-comin'."

"Have you been waiting very long?" asked the lady.

"Since 6 o'clock!"

"Yes," said the other, "that is very long."

"Yes, ma'am, it certinly is." The ice thus broken, she felt free to use her eyes more directly and, after a long, frank stare, continued:

Johnnie's Story.

Johnny was detained after school one day and told to write a story of fifty words as a punishment, and, being anxious to join his comrades, this is what he wrote:

"A little girl going home from school one day saw a little cat. Wishing to caress it, she called, "Here, puss, puss, puss

HOW TO TEST YOUR KIDNEYS.

If any of your family have been troubled with kidney disease make a test of the urine and satisfy yourself whether you need a good remedy before the disease has caused serious complications.

Tomorrow morning put some urine in a glass or bottle and let it stand for twenty-four hours.

If it shows particles or germs floating about, is milky or cloudy, or contains a reddish sediment, then your kidneys are diseased.

Commence at once to take Ferrozone to arrest these unnatural conditions.

Ferrozone is especially intended for the immediate relief and cure of kidney and bladder troubles and its health-giving properties will be felt at once in new blood, healthy circulation, and general strengthening of the system.

Ferrozone quickly corrects urinal disorders, headache, and pain in the back. It improves the appetite, digests the food, makes it nourish the nerves, makes them strong and enduring, and fits one for lots of hard work.

Don't be misled by cheap, so-called kidney cures offered by dealers for the sake of extra profits. There is only one safe and reliable specific for Kidney, Bladder, Liver and urinal troubles, and its name is Ferrozone.

Refuse point blank to accept a substitute, and insist on your druggist supplying "Ferrozone;" price 50c. per box at all dealers.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS

DASHES HERE AND THERE BY TIMES' REPORTERS.

At St. John's Tomorrow

Rev. C. F. Lancaster, B.A., of Kingston, will conduct all services at St. John's church tomorrow.

Foot Badly Crushed

A Port Hope despatch says: Fred Wood, a young man of about 21 years of age, residing between Cobourg and Baltimore, met with a bad accident last Wednesday night, August 14, at the G.T.R. station. He had come from Oshawa and as a freight pulled out from here for the east, he attempted to board it. He missed the step, however, and his right foot went under the wheel and was badly crushed.

Horse Thieves are Busy

Lindsay Watchman-Warder says: —There seems to be somewhat of an epidemic in horse stealing going on in the country at present. On July 27th, Mr. Fred Mark, Oakwood, had a valuable bay mare stolen, and no sooner had Chief Vincent started the cards going for the description than he received word that another bay mare had been stolen from Frazerbrook and a third horse from Sutton.

Bad Indians Arrested

As noted in The Times of a day or two ago, three drunken Indians raised herry mell on the steamer Esturoin on Civic Holiday. These disturbers of the peace have been arrested and are now in the county jail. County Constables Archie Moore and T. Cullen made the arrests and put the men behind the bars at Castle Nesbitt. They were brought before Magistrate Edmison yesterday morning and remanded until Tuesday next, when they will be tried The Indians arrested are Dave and Alexander Jacobs and Isaac Knott, all of the Indian Village, Chemong.

Local Sports Off Fishing

A number of local sports leave tonight for Hiawatha. Tomorrow they will attend church at the Indian Village, but Monday morning, will be out after the bass and lunge. Charlie D——, will be out with an old and well proven bait calculated to capture any lunge that even gets a passing glimpse at it. This captain of the party will appear in raiment that will make the red brothers red, not by nature, but by envy.

Mrs. John Haggart Safe

Mrs. John Haggart, who is spending a vacation at Oak Orchard, was not in the recent fire at that summer resort that did so much damage. She arrived too late to have been troubled by the conflagration. It was her intention to stop at the Irving Hotel, but the latest advices do not state whether that caravansery was affected by the fire or not. In any event Mrs. Haggart's many friends will be pleased to learn that she was not affected, owing to her arriving too late, by the disastrous fire.

I will mail you free, to prove merit, samples of my Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and my Book on either Dyspepsia, The Heart or The Kidneys. Troubles of the Stomach, Heart or Kidneys, are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak Stomach nerves—the inside nerves—mean Stomach weakness, always. And the Heart, and Kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves, and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves." Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion, use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write me today for sample and free Book. Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. The Restorative is sold by all dealers.

Black Ducks Shot Out of Season

Local Citizens Saw Hundreds of Wild Ducks Shot

Yesterday a prominent citizen was loud in his denunciation over the slaughter of wild ducks he witnessed last Monday at Chemong Lake. As our informant was driving round the head of Chemong Lake, near Hunters church he saw flocks of black ducks that must have numbered hundreds, if not thousands. There was a heavy sea running on the lake, caused by the heavy wind blowing. This compelled the black ducks to seek safety in the bay near that church mentioned, around the rice fields. A man, although long before the legitimate season for duck shooting opened, was hidden among the wild rice and weeds. As the ducks would raise in perfect clouds and arching round and round, alight in the little bays, this sportsman would let drive with his gun and was simply slaughtering the game by scores. Our informant could not see the man, but judged that he was using a single barrelled gun, as only shot could be heard each time he murdered the ducks. The gentleman said he never saw wild ducks in such numbers or so tame before. Hundreds of them would, after a shot was fired, circle about the edge of the lake and sometimes fly within thrity or forty feet of his rig. He added that if the sportsman were any kind of good shot he must have filled his boat or canoe. It is now up to the game wardens to find out the man who was murdering the ducks.

That our American forests abound in plants which possess the most valuable medicinal virtues is abundantly attested by scores of the most eminent medical writers and teachers. Even the untutored Indians had discovered the usefulness of many native plants before the advent of the white race. This information, imparted freely to the whites, led the latter to continue investigations until to-day we have a rich assortment of most valuable American medicinal roots.

Dr. Pierce believes that our American forests abound in most valuable medicinal roots for the cure of most obstinate and fatal diseases, if we would properly investigate them; and in confirmation of this conviction, he points with pride to the almost marvelous cures effected by his "Golden Medical Discovery," which has proven itself to be the most efficient stomach tonic, liver invigorator, heart tonic and regulator, and blood cleanser known to medical science. Dyspepsia, or indigestion, torpid liver, functional and even valvular and other affections of the heart yield to its curative action. The reason why it cures these and many other affections, is clearly shown in a little book of extracts from the standard medical works which is mailed free to any address by Dr R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., to all sending request for the same.

Not less marvelous, in the unparalleled cures it is constantly making of woman's many peculiar affections, weaknesses and distressing derangements, is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, as is amply attested by thousands of unsolicited testimonials contributed by grateful patients who have been cured by it of catarrhal pelvic drains, painful periods, irregularities, prolapsus and other displacements caused by weakness, ulceration of uterus and kindred affections, often after many other advertised medicines and physicians had failed.

Both the above mentioned medicines are wholly made up from the glyceric extracts of native, medicinal roots. The processes employed in their manufacture were original with Dr. Pierce, and they are carried on by skilled chemists and pharmacists with the aid of apparatus and appliances specially designed and built for this purpose. Both medicines are entirely free from alcohol and all other harmful, habit-forming drugs. A full list of their ingredients is printed on each bottle-wrapper.

English's Creek is Swollen by Rain

The creek that runs down to Spalding's Bay, generally known as English's creek, over which the new concrete and iron bridge is being built on Charlotte street, was yesterday increased at least one hundred per cent. in volume by the heavy downpour of rain. The large sewer pipes that had till yesterday, stuck through the concrete on the western side of the creek, and were seemingly only for ornament, carried volumes of muddy water to the creek. The larger of these carried thousands of gallons of surface water from the neighborhood of Dr. King's residence. It seems, in this connection, that those employed to place the structurial iron work are very dilatory in getting to work, and completing a badly needed bridge. The iron for this bridge, we understand was shipped from Toronto last Tuesday. Why this delay?

A GLOOMY FUTURE FOR THE CHINESE

Private Advices Say Home Government Is Causing Much Alarm--Empress Dowager in a Critical State of Health.

Tokio, Aug. 18.—Private despatches from Pekin forecast a gloomy future, owing to the unsettled state of politics there, caused by the absence of a ruling mind powerful enough to cope with the situation. The empress dowager, who heretofore has been sole mistress of affairs, is now in a critical state of health. Her policy so far has been to play one minister against another, in order to prevent the concentration of power in any single hand.

Inasmuch as the empress is incapacitated by an incurable disease, and as the historical animosity of the Manchus and mandarins is increasing, the prevailing state of affairs in the Pekin government constitutes a baffling problem.

Whatever compromise may be effected between the progressive Yuan Shi Kai and the conservative Chang Fu Tung, there appears little hope of realizing the complete stability of Pekin authority, so imperatively necessary to the integrity of the empire and the peace of the far east in general.

While a fresh guarantee of peace has appeared in the form of the Russian - Japanese entente, peace will be constantly subject to disturbance until some decided measures are taken to re-establish order in Pekin politics. This, however, is deemed impossible of accomplishment so long as a Manchu and mandarin survive.

C. P. R. Installing Telegraphones on System in West

Few people in the west have heard of the telegraphone, nor do they realize how marvelous is the discovery that is about to aid the railways both in the operation of their lines and the carrying on of commercial communication. The C.P.R. is about to establish a telegraphone system on its lines, and before long expects to have it in operation.

There is but one of these systems in operation in Canada at present, and that is on the C.P.R. between Montreal and Fort William. The company, however, intends placing them on a number of other lines, such as between Winnipeg and Fort William, and between Winnipeg and Brandon, but these will only be used for railway purposes, such as receiving orders from the despatcher and the sending of happenings along the lines.

When messages are sent over the telegraphone at night the same price will be charged as if they were sent by the telegraph instrument.

Miss Bawden Gets Position in Kingston

Young Lady Known Here Succeeds in Keen Competition

As is generally known to those interested in such matters, Miss Bawden has conducted most successfully a domestic science department in the local Y.W.C.A. This young lady has been appointed to the position of directress of the domestic science department in the Kingston schools a new department to be opened in September next, at a salary of $500 The Whig of Friday, reporting the meeting at which she was given the appointment, says;

Trustee Martin, chairman of the management committee, said that there were two other applicants practically about the same. Miss Bawden, he said, had been recommended by Inspector Kidd. She had organized a domestic science system in Peterborough, had been successful in the work, and the committee had considered itself fortunate in securing such an able teacher.

One application was from Miss Helen McDonough, at present in charge of the domestic science department of the Y.W.C.A. in this city, and a graduate of the McDonald Institute at Guelph. The other application came from Miss Helen S. Graham, of Toronto, a graduate of the Toronto University.

The application of Miss Bawden showed that she had taken a course of domestic science in the Boston School of Domestic Science.

Trustee Martin stated that the inspector had recommended Miss Bawden for the position, but this the inspector denied.

"I remember that someone recommended Miss Bawden," said the inspector, "but I did not."

Trustee Martin said that he could remember very distinctly the inspector making such a recommendation whereupon Mr. Kidd said that he was satisfied to let the matter stand at that.

Norman Le Bar Gets Five Years

Incorrigible Boy is Made an Example to Other Juveniles

The Times readers will remember that of late a number of small boys have been, recently proven guilty of repeated acts of theft. Although the boys in question are only little chaps averaging possibly from 12 to 14 years of age, they have again and again been shown beyond doubt guilty of serious crimes. They have stolen anything not too hot or too heavy to carry away, that their uncontrolled desires have prompted them to take. These misguided children seem to have absorbed, and been actuated by the idea that justice as administered under the existing law that regulates juvenile offences, would go on indefinitely handing them out that thread-bare and almost laughable punishment entitled "suspended sentences." However on Saturday the magistrate who, whilst handicapped by the present law, in dealing with boys as he would desire, arose to the occasion and sentenced a boy named Norman LeBar to an indeterminate sentence in the Reformatory, Toronto, said term not to exceed five years. This will surely be a notable warning; not only to the boys of Peterborough, but to weak-kneed, and seemingly feeble-minded parents, who do not take the Biblical advice anent "Sparing the rod," etc. The boy's smaller brother was allowed to go on suspended sentence, as was another boy mixed up with the crimes committed by this group of small participants in grave crimes The boys of this city can now see that the magistrate and the police have tired of their crimes and will not deal as leniently as in the past with thieves, even though they be 4 years of age or younger.

New Steamer for Lindsay

Lindsay Post says: A rumor is in circulation to the effect that the Trent Valley Nav. Co. have secured plans for a new steamer for the Lindsay-Sturgeon Point route, to be constructed in time for next season's trade. The craft will be of light draft, with an iron hull to withstand the pounding by sunken logs, and powerful engines capable of turning up a speed of 13 miles an hour. "The Point in 45 minutes will not be impossible then.

Rockfeller vs. United States

Greatest Struggle Between One Man and a Great Nation That Ever Occurred in the World's History.

Mr. Rockefeller is reported to have taken two positions.

First, that because his Standard Oil Co. is fined by a United States court for taking rebates from railroads, and because President Roosevelt has had the courage to enforce the law, therefore, the prosperity of the country will be checked. In other words, one man, and that man the richest man in the States, tells the eighty millions of people in that country that their prosperity is dependent on his being allowed to disobey the law, to accept rebates, that prosperity is due to the unfair extortion that he makes for the products of the great Standard Oil monopoly.

And secondly, he says, by application and by act, that inasmuch as he is not to be let disobey the law, therefore he will button up his own great big pocket and the pockets of the banks, the trust companies, the insurance companies that he controls and the public can go elsewhere for money.

This marks the greatest struggle between one man and a great nation that ever occurred in the world's history, and the result can have only one ending.

New Move by Bell Telephone Co. Appreciated by Farmers

Walkerton Herald: The Bell Telephone Co. has made a new move that should be appreciated by the farming community, and of which they will no doubt take advantage, when it is brought to their notice and fully understood. Where any set of rural residents want telephone connection, the company will serve them on these terms. The subscribers build and equip the line, and the company gives the service. Heretofore the custom has been for the company to build and equip at the subscribers' expense. This new plan will be of advantage to the subscribers, for poles should cost them less, wire and instruments will cost no more than the company will pay, and there would be a big saving of labor. When the line is finished the company will give full exchange service for $5 per year. This is surely very reasonable, when one considers the amount of territory covered. There are many sections of the surrounding townships which have no telephone or telegraph connection, but under this liberal arrangement it should not be long before our neighbors in the surrounding townships are all "on the wire."

Epidemic of Typhoid

Have the health authorities of Peterborough a dangerous and serious epidemic of typhoid fever to cope with. At the present time there are fourteen cases of the dread disease in the Nicholls Hospital. It is true that all the cases are not local ones; seven coming from the Stony Lake regions, three from Warsaw and four from this city, but the fever has reached a threatening aspect.

Sanitary Inspector Ball is on the alert and this week he will make another trip of inspection to Stony Lake to ascertain, if possible, the real cause of the outbreak in those regions with a view to putting a stop to, and preventing its spread. The Board of Health and the citizens at large should give all possible assistance to the officer by keeping their surroundings in a sanitary condition, or if any cesspools of stagnant water lie near by or in any part of the city notify Inspector Ball without delay, and by so doing help to avertt any further cases of fever.

Three Englishmen Narrowly Escape A Watery Grave

On Saturday afternoon a party of Peterborough citizens in a steam launch were taking in the beauties of the Otonabee, when but a few miles down the river their attention was attracted by cries of help from three Englishmen who were struggling in the water, clinging to an upturned skiff. On seeing the launch the exhausted trio recognized their only rescue, and their faint cries of help saved them from their peril. They were taken from the water to land in a rather weak condition but soon recovered.

Strikers Kidnap Girls

Pittsburg Operators Accused of Using Force in Their Battle

Pittsburg, Aug. 19.—As Miss Willa Jeremy, a telegraph operator was entering the Western Union Building this morning on her way to work she was seized by two striking operators, who bore her away bodily. As the man carrying the struggling girl rushed along the street his flight was covered by other strikers, and by the time a couple of policemen, who had been attracted by the girl's screems, reached the scene they found no sign of the men or their captive. The police are still working on the case.

Obituary

On Friday Mr. Hugh McFee, the oldest resident in the township of Dummer passed away at the age of 92 years.

The late Mr. McFee who was laid to his rest yesterday was one of the most highly respected men in the county. He had lived in Dummer a great many years, coming here with the earliest settlers and living here ever since. He was a native of Scotland, but removed to Canada in his early youth, and was one of the men who helped to build up this township. He was a Presbyterian in religion, and an elder in the Warsaw Presbyterian Church. In politics the deceased was a Liberal.

There are left to mourn his death five sons and two daughters, four of the sons, James, Andrew, William and David, living in the Canadian West and the fifth, George, in Dummer. The daughters are Mrs. Yourex of Meyersburg, and Miss Kate, at home. Mrs. McFee died about three years ago.

Peace Costly in Russia

Fifty-Four Officers and 52 Privates Killed During July

St. Petersburg, Aug. 19.—It is reported that 274 persons throughout the Russian empire were exiled for political offences during the month of July and it is officially stated that fifty-four Russian officers and 52 privates were wounded while maintaining order during the same month.

The Local Schools Re-Open September 3

Many Improvements will be in Evidence on That Date

Some Peterborough parents may shed tears when they are reminded that the local schools will re-open on Tuesday, September 3rd prox. if so in the case of those with large families a few of the tears might be called "crocodile tears." During the long summer vacation a large number of improvements have been effected.

The work on the Normal School is progressing favorably, and it is now well advanced, and, when completed, will be one of the best educational buildings in the city. It is close to the North Ward school, and both are situated in one of the finest parts of the city. The new Collegiate Institute building is being rapidly pushed forward and, of course, will be the premier educational institution in the city.

The King Edward school in the south ward is completed, except for the interior fittings, desks, etc., but will not be opened for some time, not until January, it is believed. The sewer connections have not proved satisfactory, and it is likely that temporary outside accommodations will have to be built to be used until the sewer is working. The Board of Education has not discussed this matter recently, so that it is not definitely known what will be done.

Police Court

Quite a number of citizens gathered at Saturday's session of the police court. The first case tried was that of Douglas E. Wark who was charged with having on August 8th, driven a horse on George street at an immoderate rate of speed. Mr. Gordon acted for the defendant who pleaded not guilty.

Mr. Harper, the first witness, said that he was employed on city work. He was driving a load of crushed stone. He saw three young men driving down George street at a reckless rate of speed. Their horse ran into one of the horse witness was driving. The buggy shaft gored witness' horse. He had a veterinary surgeon to attend the injured animal. His horse was laid up on the barn for four days. When he saw the horse being driven down at full gallop towards him, he thought it was being driven either by a drunk man or a fool. Wark afterwards came to him and wanted his shaft settled for. To Mr. Kerr, acting for witness, Mr. Harper, he noticed that the buggy whilst approaching was going in a zig-zag manner.

Joseph Frith then went into the box. He was driving near Ackerman's factory at the time of the trouble. The defendant drove past him with his reins slack. His horse was trotting fast at the time. He heard the horse crash into Harper's horse. The young man after running into Harper's horse, drove into a sign post at Wolfe street.

W. Lily, another civic employee, drove on Harper's wagon the day of the trouble. He corroborated Mr. Harper's evidence.

Mr. Tenise Guerin, who works in Ackerman's factory, saw the buggy coming down the west side of George St., at a moderate trot. To Mr. Kerr Guerin said he thought 6 to 8 miles an hour was moderate driving and from 12 to 14 was furious.

Mr. Wark, the defendant, then gave evidence and said he was driving that day and the horse became startled at something. He tried to avoid a collision with Harper's team.

Mr. Gordon then addressed the court and asked that his client be discharged as the matter was simply a result of an accident. The Magistrate said he was not justified in making a conviction for breach of the bylaw.

A small boy was charged with having stolen a silver watch at the village of Millbrook. Mr. Kerr noted that the boy pleaded guilty to stealing the watch but not "from the person" as charged in the indictment, which was changed to meet the case. Mr. Kerr then explained that the watch, which has since been recovered by its owner, was stolen by the lad, who is only thirteen years of age, whilst he and other boys were playing. The boy was allowed to go on suspended sentence, on condition that his father paid all expenses of the trial.

Wall Street Men Agree With Oil King

Declare That the Country Faces Hard Times

New York, Aug. 17.—John D. Rockefeller's interview about the financial situation and the prosecution of the Standard Oil Company and other corporate law breakers was read with interest in the Wall street district today. Many brokers and bankers were disposed to agree with Mr. Rockefeller that "the attitude of President Roosevelt toward corporations was bringing havoc to the industrial and financial world."

"The imposing of large fines upon corporations are confiscatory in character and destructive of values," said Washington E. Connor. "I believe that the public sentiment favors the punishment of individuals who have been guilty of violating the law, but it is decidedly opposed to confiscating in any form the property of innocent investors. The frequent interviews with officials connected with the administration containing threats against corporations are disturbing and undignified."

ALL COMPANIES SUFFER.

"Every corporation in the country is suffering for the misdeeds of a few by being under suspicion that action may be brought against it and heavy fines imposed. It is only fair that the administration should make plain what corporations are subject to attack and the form of penalty which will probably follow such attack. When such is done investors will be able to discriminate in their purchases and confidence, to some extent, will be restored."

"We regard the expressions of Mr. Rockefeller as representing rather the interests of himself and his well-known monopoly than those of the American people and business community as a whole," said a member of the firm of Zimmerman & Forshay. "The reforming tendencies as brought out by the Government's actions, may appear violent and have undoubtedly to a certain extent damaged conditions, but we know, from previous experience, that our high courts of justice, in all such cases, know how to bring down final results in keeping with sober justice and the common sense of the American people, so that the expectation that corporations could be ruined by enormous fines will hardly materialize."

THE STRIKE IS NOW A WAITING GAME

Telegraphers Claim That Companies are Hopelessly Crippled--No Progress Toward Peace is Being Made.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—The telegraphers' strike today had all the appearances of a waiting game on both sides. The companies claim to be in better shape than on any preceding day.

The officials of the union asserted however, that the telegraph companies are hopelessly crippled. The peacemakers are making no progress.

The general strike order issued yesterday by the union had apparently no effect here. The Western Union today claimed that the only effect it had exerted on the strike was to call out seven men in 20 cities, from which they had complete returns.

Washington, Aug. 18.—Commissioner of Labor Charles P. Neill arrived here today from Chicago, where he went on a vain effort to effect a settlement in the telegraphers' strike.

For the present he is taking no part in the telegraph strike situation, but says he is ready to act as mediator if called upon.

The United States Feared the Result of a War

New York, Aug. 18.—In view of the talk of possible war between the U. S. and Japan and the transfer of a large portion of the American fleet to the Pacific, a review of the naval situation is interesting. Japan has 11 battleships of 160,094 tons total, armed with 52 heavy armor piercing guns, while the armored cruiser list includes 11 ships, of 110,412 tons total, and 37 guns of the class described. This makes a total of 22 Japanese fightnig ships of 270,506 tons total and 89 heavy armor piercing guns.

The new Pacific fleet will consist of 25 vessels, armored cruisers and battleships, aggregating 353,505 tons, with total armament of 188 armor piercing guns, exclusive of smaller calibers. It will thus be seen that the Pacific fleet sailing under the American flag will enjoy a marked superiority, not only in the number of units, but in tonnage and especially in gun power, over the entire Japanese navy.

A JAPANESE ADVANTAGE.

The advantage is the other way when it comes to torpedo boats, which have been proven a vital factor in modern naval warfare. The entire American navy list has only 32 craft of this description, while the Japanese have 77. Submarines in the United States navy number 10 and only 5 in the Japanese.

According to present plans, the Pacific fleet will consistt of the battleships, Louisiana, Connecticut, Kansas, Vermont, Minnesota, New Jersey, Rhode Island, Virginia, Georgia, Nebraska, Maine, Missouri, Ohio, Alabama, Illinois, Kearsarge, Kentucky, and the armored cruisers, Tennessee, Washington, California, South Dakota, West Virginia, Colorado, Maryland, and Pennsylvania.

The Atlantic fleet consists of sixteen battleships. The new battleship Nebraska has just finished on the Pacific Coast. The battleships Oregon and Wisconsin are out of commission on the Pacific coast.

The Japanese navy consists of the following first-class fighting ships; Battleships—Katori, Kashima, Mikasa, Asasi, Shikishima, Iwami, Hizen, Sagami, Suo, Fuji, Tango. Armored cruisers— Tsukuba, Ikoma, Kasuga, Nisshin, Idzumo, Iwate, Yakumo, Adzuma, Asama, Tokiwa, Aso.

In torpedo tactics it is inevitable that the United States should confess itself outclassed. The Japanese torpedo boat work was excellent in their brief and decisive war with China. It was most effective at the outbreak of the Russo-Japanese war, when scores of torpedo boats dashed into the Port Arthur roadstead and disabled Russian warships before they had even time to think of sallying forth to give battle to the enemy's fleet.

PLANS OF CAMPAIGN.

In safe keeping in the archives of the General Board of the Navy and of the Army and Navy Joint Board there are well considered plans of military and naval campaign in event of possible war with Japan. These papers, of course, are of the most highly confidential character and most carefully guarded from disclosure. But there are certain accepted strategic principles which would govern the conduct of any war between the United States and Japan.

UNDER-OFFICERED

In personnel the Japanese enjoy an advantage, the commissioned and enlisted force of their service being considerably larger than that of the United States, despite the fact that their fleet is smaller. This is a serious comparative shortcoming in the American service. It is a notorious fact that American warships are under-officered. While the fault is one for which congress is responsible, it cannot be corrected by the increased graduations at the Naval Academy, there is still an embarrassing shortage of junior officers. There are fewer officers on board American battleships than on board craft of the same class in other navies.

Such a war at the present moment would find the United States in the weaker of the two positions possible under the national policy of fleet concentration. The only two positions which the United States can maintain without dividing its fleet is to concentrate the heavy fighting force either in the Atlantic or in the Pacific So long as the battleship fleet is kept in the Atlantic the government must face the certainty that initial success in any way with Japan would rest with the enemy. Up to the time that President Roosevelt issued orders for the fleet transfer every naval officer who discussed the theory of war with Japan had to start out by conceding to the Japanese the capture of the Philipines, Guam, and Hawaii. The paucity of the American naval force of armored and protected cruisers in the far east made it certain that every ship which did not have enough speed to escape to the Pacific coast would fall into the hands of the enemy.

War under such conditions would inevitably mean a humiliating loss at the outset. It would necessitate the retrieving of that reverse by sending the Atlantic battleship fleet to the far east. This is a cruise difficult enough in time of peace, especially if it be made via Magellan, but in these days of strict neutrality it would be attended with far greater difficulties in time of war. Coal supply would be a problem of the first magnitude. Moreover after a cruise of thousands of miles, the Atlantic fleet would not be in good condition, even though stronger numerically, to engage its enemy fresh from the docks and with fortified bases close at hand.

But since the administration has followed the course of ordering the fleet transferred any discussion of war with Japan must proceed on the premise that the United States is represented in the Pacific by a force superior to that of Japan. And since the demands of good strategy are so strong it is trivial to discuss one which would find the American fleet on the Pacific coast.

A DECISIVE FIGHT.

With the seventeen battleships and the eight armored cruisers of the new Pacific fleet based, as they should be, upon the Philippines, an outbreak of hostilities with Japan would present the necessity for an early decisive conflict on the sea. And since the command of the sea is everything this would mean a short war.

It is the policy of the administration to establish a strong naval base, well fortified, at Olongapo, on Subig Bay, a smooth, deep, land-locked water, forty miles from Manila. It is at Olongapo that the floating dry dock Dewey is anchored. Thus far Congress has been blind to the natural advantages of this site for a naval station, and deaf to the plea of the administration that it and Manila as well be strongly fortified. Subig Bay would doubtless be the rendezvous of the American fleet at the outbreak of hostilities.

WHAT'S THE USE?

To Pour in Coffee When it Acts as a Vicious Enemy

Fasters have gone without food for many days at a time but no one can go without sleep "For a long time I have not been sleeping well often lying awake for two or three hours during the night but now I sleep sound every night and wake up refreshed and vigorous," says a California woman.

"Do you know why? It's because I used to drink coffee, but I finally cut it out and began using Postum. Twice since then I have drunk coffee and both times I passed a sleepless night, and so I am doubly convinced coffee caused the trouble and Postum relieved it.

"My brother was in the habit of drinking coffee three times a day He was troubled with sour stomach and I would often notice him getting soda from the can to relieve the distress in his stomach; lately hardly a day pass his stomach, lately hardly a day pass

"Finally he tried a cup of Postum and liked it so well he gave up coffee and since then has been drinking Postum in its place and says he has not once been troubled with sour stomach."

Even after this lady's experience with coffee her brother did not expect for a time that coffee was causing his sour stomach, but easily proved it.

Coffee is not suspected in thousands of cases just like this but it's easily proved. A ten days trial works wonders "There's a Reason."

Beware of Mercury

You May be Using this Harmful Drug and Not Know it.

A favorite method of administering this deleterious drug is in cathartic pills. Beware of "quick-result" articles, they may do more harm than good.

Drastic cathartics will weaken the strongest. With old people they are a positive menace to life.

Merely to restore normal bowel action and gently stimulate the liver is all that the wise physician recommends.

To keep the system pure and clean, nothing is so efficacious, as the vegetable pills of Dr Hamilton, which are composed of such herbs as mandrake, butternut and dandelion; they contain not an atom of any substance that could injure even an infant.

By their certain action on the Liver Dr Hamilton's Pills cause bile to be secreted which forms the stimulus that moves the bowels; this is nature's own method and the best one.

Mr R. Hambly, of French River, Ont., writes as follows; "I was inclined to bilious attacks and frequently was too ill to work. Mild remedies purged and weakened my bowels, but Dr. Hamilton's Pills gently stimulated my liver, and by strengthening the stomach made a perfect cure. My health has been just splendid since I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills."

Get Dr. Hamilton's Pills from your druggist or storekeeper, 25c per box or five boxes for $1. By mail from N. C. Polson & Co. Hartford, Conn., U.S.A., or Kingston, Ont.

MEASURING SCHOOL CHILDREN

A bill is pending in the British parliament which provides for medical examination and for at least a modest beginning in the way of periodic measurement of school children. The British Medical Association and several sections of the Association for the Advancement of Science have taken deep interest in the question, owing to its connection with the alleged physical deterioration of the English people—a subject which has prompted no little pessimistic and alarmist talk.

The scientists agree that, while there are in operation many causes of deterioration, the data relating to the facts in the premises are few and of a poor quality. Records and measurements of one important intermediate school indicate an improvement in the physique of the boys as compared with those of twenty years ago. The boys of today are taller and heavier than were those of the '80s of the last century. But the school which indicates such improvement is patronized by the well to do only, and it is not certain that other schools would give similar testimony. And yet, writers say, the children of the poorer classes ought to show even greater physical progress, for it is the workmen and the agricultural labors whose lives and conditions of labor and existence have been most profoundly affected by the health and factory and industrial legislation of the last three decades.

At any rate, it is the general opinion that the only sure and practical way to approach the question of race deterioration is through the elementary and intermediate schools. Accordingly, it is proposed to introduce systematic anthropometry into these institutions, and to keep careful records of the measurements. These are to be uniform, to give height and breadth, and to take account of differences of race and environment.

It seems that Japan has made some experiments in anthropometry in her schools, and that statistics thus gathered have given the national education department a good idea of the health and physical development of about a million children throughout the country.

THE NEW STRIKE AND THE OLD LESSON

Once more Canada and the neighboring republic is in the throes of a strike crisis. The great and growing telegraphers' strike came like a bolt from the blue sky, when the business interests were still congratulating themselves on the settlement of the troubles in San Francisco and Oakland which Commissioner Neill brought about after protracted and arduous efforts.

With discussing the confused "issues" of the new strike, it may be pointed out that it serves to emphasize the vital lessons of previous great strikes and tie-ups—the lesson, namely, that the paramount interests of the third party, the public, or the imperative needs of commerce and industry, demand greater consideration from employers and employed, especially in the field of public utilities, than they have received in the past, as a rule at any rate. The era of great and sudden industrial wars, with their fatal effects on the business of the country, the era of selfish disregard of the general welfare by those immediately concerned in such controversies, is nearly over, and the righteous feeling that disputes over wages, hours, "recognition" of unions, conditions of employment, ought to be adjusted without interruptions of commercial activity is becoming stronger and stronger.

Our age is too practical and too reasonable to tolerate needless and disastrous strikes or lockouts. We must have peace, and the guarantee of peace must be found in proper provisions for conciliation, investigation and arbitration. The anthracite strike, with its sequel and the practically permanent beneficial consequences of the president's intervention, enforces certain simple truths that are applicable to the telegraphers walkout and all similar situations.

New Hotel for Ottawa

A Project for a New Railway Hotel for the Canadian Pacific Under Consideration

Ottawa, Aug. 17.—Another hotel project is mooted involving a big venture at Ottawa by the Canadian Pacific Company. It is reported that the company is looking upon the block of land opposite the Supreme Court building on Bank street, as a site for a magnificent hostelry, as commodious as its Place Viger, Montreal, or Chateau Frontenac, Quebec. Rumor has it that the railway company intends to acquire all the property bounded by Bank, Wellington, Kent streets and the Ottawa river, thus crossing Victoria street. After erecting a hotel the Canadian Pacific would connect with the Central Station by enough tracks to conveniently run all its passenger trains to the new hotel.

Corpse Was Nude

Quebec, Aug. 17.—A curious law suit is reported from St. Charles de Bellechasse, against an undertaker. Arthur Carrier, belonging to that parish was recently drowned in the vicinity of Montreal and the remains sent home for burial. The undertaker who had charge of the arrangements, strongly urged the family not to open the claim as he claimed that the remains were not fit to be seen. The relatives insisted upon having a last look at the body, however, and were horrified to find that the body which was in an excellent state of preservation, was entirely naked. They are very indignant at what they term the sacrilegious treatment of the dead and have given instructions for the taking of an action of damages against the undertaker.

HOW WAGES INCREASE

TWENTY-SEVEN PER CENT. ACCORDING TO CENSUS REPORT.

Record of Five Years—Factory Workers Get Much More Now—Salaries Are on the Up-Grade—Evidence of Canada's Manufacturing Prosperity—Details of Various Industries—Employers Increased 12 Per Cent.

A bulletin was issued recently by the Census Department, dealing with the number of wage-earners and salaries paid to all classes of employes in manufacturing establishments of Canada in the years 1900 and 1905. The number of wage-earners in 1900 was 344,035, and in 1905 there were 391,487, an increase of 47,452. Where there are less than three or more works the figures are grouped under the head of "All Other Industries."

The number of employes includes officers, clerks, workers, etc., who are paid salaries or wages for service. The salaries paid in 1900 were $113,249,650, and in 1905, $164,394,490, an increase of $51,145,140. There was an increase in the average wage per employe of $90.74. The employers increased in the five years by 12 per cent.; the total wage by 45 per cent., and the average wage per employe by 27 per cent. The value of product per employe in the year 1900 was $1,398, and in 1905 it was $1,832, being an increase of $434, or 31 per cent. After 1900 the average wage per employe was less than in 1905 by $128.66, and the average product less by $477.

A Big Increase.

The salaries and wages in the agricultural implement industry was $3,728,804, an increase of over $700,000, and an increase in the number of employes of over 600; boots and shoes, $4,644,171, a decrease of about $1,000 over 1900, and a decrease in the employes of over 800, the number employed in 1905 being 12,940.

Bread, biscuits and confectionery shows an increase of over $600,000 in wages; butter and cheese, $280,000; carriages and wagons about $200,000; gear repairs, $3,000,000; clothing, men's factory, over $800,000; clothing, women's factory, for $719,000, to $3,873,000.

There was a decrease in clothing, miner's custom, of about $700,000, in women's custom clothing, over $300,000, and in cottons of about $100,000. Electric apparatus and supplies show an increase in wages from $960,551 to $3,698,905; electric light, from $591,089 to $951,433; fish, preserved, from $1,300,806 to $3,829,137; foundry and machine shop products paid an increase of over three millions and a half in wages; furniture, etc., over $600,000.

Log products, with a decrease of over 1,000 in employes, paid out in wages $10,038,979, as compared with $13,733,287 in 1900. Lumber products show an increase of 9,000 in employes and of nearly three-million dollars in wages.

In printing and bookbinding there were 6,909 employes in 1905, double those 1900, with an increase in wages from $1,195,242 to $3,032,236 in 1905.

In printing and publishing there were $5,540,855 paid in wages for 1905 to 9,680 employes, as compared to $2,871,437 in 1900 to 9,481 employes.

For smelting there was paid in salaries $5,068,400 in 1905, for 9,849 wage-earners, as compared with $1,331,653 in 1900 for 2,113 wage-earners.

Woollen goods show a decrease to $1,508,949 paid in 1905 for 4,647 employes, as compared to $2,066,320 for 6,795 wage-earners in 1900.

There are in the log industry 59,264 employes; lumber products, 13,338; preserved fish, 15,449; foundry and machine shops, 17,228; cottons, 10,420; smelting, 9,849, and furniture and upholstering goods, 8,141.

GIFT OF PRICELESS RELICS.

Antiquities For the Museum of the Toronto University.

A large altar of libations of about 2200 B.C., beautifully carved with designs of the offerings to be placed upon it, is an important addition to the collection for the University of Toronto Museum, presented by Dr. Hubert Mond, of Egypt. Information to that effect has been received from Mr. C. T. Currelley, the distinguished graduate of Victoria, now engaged in research in the Orient. This altar is described as the best that has survived, and is in a remarkable state of preservation. It has an inner and outer receptacle for the pouring of the liquids.

From the same source there has also been obtained a large cedar box of the eighteenth dynasty, or the period of the Hebrew bondage, which, in its exquisite paintings, exhibits scenes in the worship of the Egyptian gods. The cedar is that of Lebanon.

Mr. Currelley, in a letter to Mr John A. Paterson, K.C., of the senate of the university, announces a remarkable find in a collection of Roman garments and other articles. These were found in the sand by a peasant, and he was induced to part with them. The collection includes small towels of the Turkish type, a number of mats, a sampler, beautifully worked, a baby's embroidered shirt, parts of curtains, with applique ornamentation, and many elaborately worked strips, without a doubt part of priestly vestments. The colors are stated to be still quite fresh.

This exclusive collection of textiles will also find their place in the university museum. A whole Noah's Ark can be traced in the sampler working of one of the fragments of linen.

Must Have Been a Cannibal.

The writer of a book of travels, telling of the insect pests in British Guiana, makes a statement of which the best can be said is that it is probably not so bad as it sounds.

"One lady that I knew, while busy at her toilet, felt something crawling on her shoulder. She screamed and called her husband, and he had just time to knock the centiped off before it bit her in the neck."

Something New in Souvenir Cards

See our new line of souvenir cards entitled "Bands across the Sea," "Should auld acquaintance be forgot," and "Far away but not forgotten." These are very unique as one half of the card opens and inside shows a beautiful view of George street. Price only five cents each or six for 25 cents.

Alcohol not needed

Ayer's Sarsaparilla is not a strong drink. As now made, there is not a drop of alcohol in it. It is a non-alcoholic tonic and alterative. Ask your own doctor about your taking this medicine for thin, impure blood. Follow his advice every time. He knows. Trust him.

We have no secrets! We publish the formulas of all our preparations. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

The Money That's Being Made in Western Canada LAND

In October, 1906 we sold 5,000 acres of Saskatchewan lands to an Indiana party of men at $8 per acre, and resold it this year at $12, making just about 100 per cent. on the money invested.

A Montreal party of men who bought 10,000 acres from us at $8 per acre last September, resold through us within three months at $10.00 per acre.

A Chicago client writes us, that after making some improvements on a section that brought near Regina, one year ago, she sold out recently for exactly twice what she paid for the land.

We resold a section of land located near Lipton for a man at $18.00 per acre last April, which we sold him in December at $12.00.

Western Canada Lands offer the greatest opportunity this continent has ever known

Men here are growing wealthy who never knew success in any other line. You can make money here, too, if you think your amount too small club it with a few friends. Some of the most prominent financial men in the Canada are now interested in this country heavily.

We own about 200,000 acres of the finest wheat and mixed farming lands in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.—Picked lands on which we are prepared to give accurate trustworthy information, and these tracts being portions of extremely large purchases, we can sell them at prices that cannot be equalled, quality of land considered, by any firm in the United States and Eastern country.

Prices range from $6.00 per acre upwards Reasonable Terms in every case

Write us for further information but when doing so tell us the class and amount of an investment you desire, and whether you want the land for your own use or for investment purposes purely. $1,000 is about the minimum we can handle. References Union Bank and Traders' Bank, Winnipeg.

SIREN WAFERS DEVELOP THE BUST

SHE'S A QUEEN! SHE'S A SIREN!

Is an expression that is always heard at sight of a well developed woman. If you are flat chested, with BUST undeveloped, a scrawney neck, thin lean arms—the above remark will never be applied to you. "SIREN" wafers will make you beautiful, bewitching. They DEVELOP the BUST in a few weeks from 3 to 6 inches and produce a fine firm, voluptuous bosom. They fill out the hollow places. Make the cheeks plump and rosy, and arms handsome and well molded and the neck and shoulders shapely and of perfect contour.

Send to a bottle today and you'll be pleased and grateful. "SIREN" wafers are absolutely harmless, pleasant to take and convenient to carry around. They are sold under guarantee to do all we claim or MONEY back.

Price $1.00 per bottle. Inquire at good drug stores or send DIRECT to us.

FREE!

During the next 30 days only—we will send you a sample bottle of these beautifying wafers on receipt of 10 cents to pay cost of packing and postage if you will mention that you saw the Advertisement in this paper. The sample alone may be sufficient if defects are trivial.

50% in Annual Dividends

This is a straight Business Undertaking.

The Smelting of Ore is the safest and most profitable business in the world.

We have fifteen mining properties, located in Kern County, California, carrying good values in Gold, Silver and Copper.

The smelter nearest to us is at Needles, 250 miles distant.

We propose to install on our properties a smelter to treat the ores from our own mines and to do custom smelting for others.

50 per cent. per annum is a moderate estimate of the profits we can earn. If you want to make a safe and profitable investment send for full information and investigate our proposition.

COPPER

A 5c. POSSIBILITY

Always the persons who make fortunes are those who seize opportunities. Trudge along in the conventional rut and you will never get away from the counter or the desk.

Fortunes—the greatest mining fortunes in the world—are being made to day by the men who own Copper Mines. You couldn't buy stock in one of the big-paying, developed mines. You CAN buy stock in a mine undergoing development, and if you BUY IN THE RICHT PLACE the fortune will come.

I want you to come in and see me about the proposition I have in the Guggenheim Greenwater Copper Company's two properties at Ely and at Greenwater, Nevada. The recent copper finds at Ely are attracting the interest of a whole continent. The property which this Company owns there is in the best section. The workings are now down fifty feet, and the prospect brightens with every foot. The manager tells me he expects to strike it rich any day. So soon as he does, up goes the stock with a bound.

I still can offer a limited number of shares at 5 cents each. It's the easiest chance at a fortune you've ever had. See me about it at once.

THE CONQUEST of CANAAN

By BOOTH TARKINGTON,
Author of "Cherry," "Monsieur Beaucaire," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1905, BY HARPER & BROTHERS

"Why, you must be Miss Ariel Tabor, ain't you?"

"Yes"—Ariel touched one of the roses upon Joe's desk with her finger tips—"I am Miss Tabor."

"Well, excuse me fer asking; I'm sure it ain't any business of mine," said the other, remembering the manners due one lady from another. "But I thought it must be. I expect," she added, with loud, inconsequent laughter, "there's not many in Canaan ain't heard you've come back." She paused, laughed again, nervously, and again, less loudly, to take off the edge of her abruptness, gradually tittering herself down to a pause, to fill which she put forth, "Right nice weather we be'n havin'."

"Yes," said Ariel.

"It was rainy first of last week though. I don't mind rain so much"—this with more laughter—"I stay in the house when it rains. Some people don't know enough to, they say. You've heard that saying, ain't you, Miss Tabor?"

"Yes."

"Well, I tell you," she exclaimed noisily, "there's plenty ladies and gen'lemen in this town that's like that."

Her laughter did not cease. It became louder and shriller. It had been until now a mere lubrication of the conversation, helping to make her easier in Miss Tabor's presence, but as it increased in shrillness she seemed to be losing control of herself, as if her laughter were getting away with her. She was not far from hysteria when she stopped with a gasp, and she sat up straight in her chair, white and rigid.

"There!" she said listening intently. "Ain't that him?" Steps sounded upon the pavement below, paused for a second at the foot of the stairs; there was a snap of a match, then the steps sounded again, retreating. She sank back in her chair limply. "It was only some one stoppin' to light his cigar in the entry. It wasn't Joe Louden's step anyway."

"You know his step?" Ariel's eyes were bent upon the woman wonderingly.

"I'd know it tonight," was the answer, delivered with a sharp and painful giggle. "I got plenty reason to."

Ariel did not respond. She leaned a little closer to the roses upon the desk, letting them touch her face and breathing deeply of their fragrance to neutralise a perfume which pervaded the room, an odor as heavy and cheap-sweet as the face of the woman who had saturated her handkerchief with it, a scent which went with her perfectly and made her unhappily definite; suited to her clumsily dyed hair, to her soiled white shoes, to the hot red hat smothered in plumage, to the restless stub fingered hands, to the fat, plated rings, of which she wore a great quantity, though, surprisingly enough, the large diamonds in her ears were pure and of a very clear water.

It was she who broke the silence once more. "Well," she drawled, coughing genteelly at the same time, "better late than never, as the saying is. I wonder who it is gits up all them comical sayings?" Apparently she had no genuine desire for light upon this mystery as she continued immediately: "I have a gen'leman friend that's always gittin' 'em off. 'Well,' he says, 'the best of friends must part,' and 'Thou strikest me to the heart'—all kinds of cracks like that. He's real comical. And yet," she went on in an altered voice, "I don't like him much. I'd be glad if I'd never seen him."

The change of tone was so marked that Ariel looked at her keenly, to find herself surprised into pitying this strange client of Joe's, for tears had sprung to the woman's eyes and slid along the lids, where she tried vainly to restrain them. Her face had altered, too, like her voice, haggard lines suddenly appearing about the eyes and mouth as if they had just been penciled there—the truth issuing from beneath her plushback simulations like a tragic mask revealed by the displacement of a tawdry covering.

"I expect you think I'm real foolish," she said, "but I be'n waitin' so awful long, and I got a good deal of worry on my mind till I see Mr. Louden."

"I am sorry." Ariel turned from the roses and faced her and the heavy perfume. "I hope he will come soon."

"I hope so," said the other. "It's something to do with me that keeps him away, and the longer he is the more it scares me." She shivered and set her teeth together. "It's kind of hard waitin'. I cert'nly got my share of troubles."

"Don't you think that Mr. Louden will be able to take care of them for you?"

"Oh, I hope so, Miss Tabor! If he can't, nobody can." She was crying openly now, wiping her eyes with her musk soaked handkerchief. "We had to send fer him yesterday afternoon"—

"To come to Beaver Beach, do you mean?" asked Ariel, leaning forward.

"Yes, ma'am. It all begun out there—leastways it begun before that with me. It was all my fault. I deserve all that's comin'—to me, I guess. I done wrong! I done wrong! I'd oughta't never to of went out there yesterday."

She checked herself sharply, but after a moment's pause continued, encouraged by the grave kindliness of the delicate face in the shadow of the wide white hat. "I oughtn't to of went," she repeated. "Oh, I reckon I'll never, never learn enough to keep out o' trouble, even when I see it comin'! But that gen'leman friend 'of mine'—Mr. Nashville Cory's his name—he kind o' coaxed me into it, and he's right comical when he's with ladies, and he's good company, and he says, 'Claudine, you'll forgit the kind fer-tastic,' he says, and I kind o' wanted something cheerful. I'd be'n workin' steady quite a spell, and it looked like he wanted to show me a good time, so I went, and that's what started it." Now that she had begun she babbled on with her story, at times incoherently, full of excuses made to herself more than to Ariel, pitifully endeavoring to convince herself that the responsibility for the muddle she had made was not hers. "Mr. Cory told me my husband was drinkin' and wouldn't know about it, and, 'Besides,' he says, 'what's the odds?' Of course I knowed there was trouble between him and Mr. Fear—that's my husband—a good while ago, when Mr. Fear up and laid him out. That was before me and Mr. Fear got married; I hadn't even be'n to Canaan then; I was on the stage. I was on the stage quite awhile in Chicago before I got acquainted with my husband."

"You were on the stage?" Ariel exclaimed involuntarily.

"Yes, ma'am—livin' pitchers at Goldberg's rat'skeller, and amunchoor nights I nearly always done a sketch with a gen'leman friend. That's the way I met Mr. Fear. He seemed to be real struck with me right away, and soon as I got through my turn he ast me to order whatever I wanted. He's always gen'lemanlike when he ain't had too much, and even then he vurry, vurry seldom acks rough unless he's jealous. That was the trouble yesterday. I never would of gone to the Beach if I'd dreamed what was comin'! When we got there I saw Mike—that the gen'leman that runs the Beach—lookin' at my company and me kind of anxious, and pretty soon he got me away from Mr. Cory and told me what's what. Seems this Cory only wanted me to go with him to make my husband mad, and he'd took good care that Mr. Fear heard I'd be there with him. An' he'd be'n hangin' around me every time he struck town jest to make Mr. Fear mad—the fresh thing! You see, he wanted to make my husband start something again, this Mr. Cory did, and he was fixed for it."

"I don't understand," said Ariel.

"It's this way: If Mr. Fear attacked Mr. Cory, why, Mr. Cory could shoot him down and claim self defense. You see, it would be easy for Mr. Cory, because Mr. Fear nearly killed him when they had their first trouble, and that would give Mr. Cory a good excuse to shoot if Mr. Fear just only pushed him. That's the way it is with the law. Mr. Cory could wipe out their old score and git off scot free."

"Surely not!"

"Yes, ma'am, that's the way it would be. And when Mike told me that Mr. Cory had got me out there just to provoke my husband I went straight up to him and begun to give him a piece of my mind. I didn't talk loud, because I never was one to make a disturbance and start trouble the way some do, and right while I was talkin' we both see my husband pass the window. Mr.

To Perfume Underlinen.

A delicate perfume will be given to linen by putting a lump of orris root into the boiler on washing days. The delicious fragrance thus given will last even after ironing, but will at no time be penetrating enough to be disagreeable. Another and even more lasting method is to put a Tokay bean in the drawer in which the linen is laid. This perfume in large quantities is overpowering, but one bean will give just the right odor. It usually requires warmth to bring out the perfume.

To Freshen Window Shades.

When window shades have become cracked, split or ragged at the lower end, they will seem as good as new if turned upside down.

Slip out the stick in the lower edge, remove from the roller and then sew the weight stick in the end which was the top, first cutting off the edge to remove the tack holes. Then tack the other end to the roller. When hung it will look like a new shade.

To Clean Rusty Iron.

Iron pots, kettles, skillets—in fact, any iron pieces—can be cleaned if the pieces are placed on a clear coal fire which has died down to red coals. This prevents smoking the articles. Only one piece at a time should be placed on the coal fire and burned until it is almost red hot. Remove with coal tongs and allow to cool, after which scrape with pot rings and sandpaper, then wash with soapsuds.

Catarrh

To prove unquestionably, and beyond any doubt, that Catarrh of the nose and throat can be cured, I am furnishing patients through druggists, small free Trial Boxes of Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Cure. I do this because I am so certain, that Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Cure will bring actual substantial help. Nothing certainly, is so convincing as a physician's test of any article of real, genuine merit. But that article must possess true merit, else the test will condemn, rather than advance it. Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Cure is a snow white, healing antiseptic balm, put up in beautiful nickel capped glass jars at 50c. Such soothing agents as Oil Eucalyptus, Thymol, Menthol, etc., are incorporated into a velvety, cream like Petrolatum, imported by Dr. Shoop from Europe. If Catarrh of the nose and throat has extended to the stomach, then by all means also use internally, Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Stomach distress, a lack of general strength, bloating, belching, biliousness, bad taste, etc. surely call for Dr. Shoop's Restorative.

For uncomplicated catarrh only of the nose and throat nothing else, however, need be used but

This Company was formed for the purpose of manufacturing all kinds of Iron, Steel, Metal and Wooden Goods, Agricultural Implements, etc., and to carry on the business of a foundry.

They are now turning out specialties in Ornamental Iron Work, Fences, Crestings, etc., for which there is a great demand far in excess of the present facilities of the Company.

Winnipeg and the West offers an unlimited market for the products, guaranteeing a paying investment from the start.

There is a limited amount of stock for sale, and this opportunity to purchase will not return.

The encouragement, coupled with the unexcelled opportunities open to such an enterprise, are in themselves sufficient guarantee of absolute safety and large profits.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry must be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made on certain conditions, by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the homestead conditions under one of the following plans:—

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of the homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Six months' notice in writing should be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of intention to apply for patent.

W. W. CORY,
Deputy of the Minister of the Interior.

Brown Bonanza Mining Co.

100,000 Shares of Treasury Stock for Sale at

10 CENTS PER SHARE

This company was incorporated February 9th, A.D. 1907, under the laws of Arizona.

Capital stock 1,000,000 shares, full paid, non-assessable, par value $1, treasury stock 100,000 shares. Other stock pooled.

Officers and Directors

President ..... EDWARD T. PATRICK,
Mine Owner and President of the Goldfield Stock and Exchange Board.

Vice-President ..... JUDGE CHAS. L. HAYES,
Mine Owner and Leading Attorney of Goldfield, Nevada.

Secretary and Treasurer ..... ADAMS F. BROWN,
Corporation and Mining Lawyer and Member of Leading Commercial Goldfield Stock and Exchange Board.

Depository ..... JOHN S. COOK & CO.
Bank of Goldfield, Nevada.

This company owns 4 claims (80 acres) of some of the best proved mining land in the Goldfield district, consisting of the Acceding and Accidental No. 2 lode claims, situated two and one-half miles south of the great Goldfield Consolidated Mines (comprising the Mohawk, Goldfield, Combination, Red Top, Jumbo and Laguna) the richest in the world; and the Broadway and Beauty lode claims situated three and one-half miles south of the Consolidated and about one and one-half miles northwest of the Great Bond and Daisy Mines near the Zon group in the Diamondfield section second only in richness to the great Mohawk portion of the camp.

The company has also succeeded in securing the Sure Thing lode claim (20 acres) in the Cuprate district, which mineral outcroppings equal to anything in Goldfield, showing fine surface values and is without doubt rightly named, "Sure Thing."

All of these claims are located in the same mineral belt as the other rated mines of Goldfield that have astonished the world by their production of millions in high grade ore, and will with the same development give equally profitable returns.

The money derived from the sale of this stock will be used at once for the active development of the property and the fact that all the directors are residents of Goldfield with years of successful mining experience who will give their personal attention at all times to the progress of the work goes to show that the first issue of 100,000 shares will meet with a quick and ready sale at the initial price of 10 cents per share.

We advise immediate action if you wish to participate in the vast profits of this Bonanza Mine.

Stock will be listed as soon as feasible on the Goldfield and San Francisco Stock and Exchange Boards. Would therefore advise purchasers to buy in board lots of 1,000 shares when convenient to do so.

Dragoons Pass Through the City

B Squadron, Royal Canadian Dragoons, passed through the city Saturday morning on a special C.P.R. train on their way home from a month's training at Petewawa Camp. Our readers will remember that these cavalrymen came through to Peterborough on their way to camp, the squadron marching from Toronto to Petewawa. They were here on July 3, and camped for the night at the Exhibition Grounds.

At Petewawa they were in the saddle at least six hours every day, and the work was somewhat hard, although, it was great training.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

Increase in Inland Revenue

It seems that the Inland Revenue department's Peterborough branch, is keeping a comparitively close run with the local customs house in increased collections. In 1899 the Inland Revenue office here collected $34,030.60 whilst in the fiscal year ending July 31st, 1907, the collections amounted to $70,479.80, a very marked increase for the period named.

First Australian Raisins Here

Messrs. Perkins Inec and Company wholesale grocers of this city, on Saturday received the first shipment of Australian raisins to come to Peterborough, and possibly the first shipment of the kind to come to Ontario. Australian raisins are a rarity in this country. They are much like the Valentia fruit, but there are persons who believe them superior.

Local Horses for Toronto

J. J. Cottingham's Harry Direct, Dr. Johnston's Hazel Pelle, and W. Duncan's runner, Marios Curios, were shipped to Toronto on Saturday, and will take part in the big Dufferin Park meet this week Marios Curios cleaned up both running races at the meet here, and will doubtless get a piece of the long green in Toronto.

Salvation Army Band's Return

Peterborough's splendid musical organization, the Salvation Army Band that has for some time been en tour, delighting audiences in nearby towns, will return home today, and will give a band concert this evening in their hall, which should be largely attended by the citizens and well-wishers of the band. Brigadier Hargrave, who is travelling with the band, will be in charge of the band festival this evening.

Creek Crib Work Decayed

It seems that the crib-work on the creek near Hunter street, is in very poor condition. The timbers are in a more than semi-rotten state and so dangerously impaired that the floods of next spring may wash them away and thus cause great damage to adjoining property. Even the fine and expensive new concrete work on the Hunter street bridge, spanning the creek may be endangered when the spring rise in the water comes.

Fall Fair's Success Assured

That the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition this year will be the best in the history of the society, seems evident from the interest displayed in the exhibition by the farmers of the district. President Leary is wearing a hopeful smile at the way in which the farmers are inquiring about the show and at the number of prize lists that are going out. They are being eagerly sought for.

Presentation to Miss Curtis

Miss Mights study class at the George street Methodist church had the members at her house bid farewell to Miss Mabel Curtis, who will soon leave for British Columbia. Miss Curtis was presented by the class members with a handsome gold ring with the word "Mizpah" engraved thereon. The presentation was made by Miss Edna Armstrong, while Miss Amy Crafts read an appropriate address.

Insurance Delegate for Toronto

Mr S. E. Salls of the Canada Life Co., Peterborough, is local delegate to the National Life Underwriters' Association meeting held in Toronto on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week. At a meeting of the Central Ontario Association on Monday evening, the 26th inst. Mr. Salls will report as to the conventions and a specially large meeting is predicted.

Were Up Against It

Lindsay Post says; The team of baseballists that journeyed to Collingwood Monday last from here are stiff and sore yet. They may talk about the scraps at Brantford when the St. Catharines and the Indians mixed it up, but the ball game at the Nottawasaga bay town was one continuous fight. Every few minutes a raid would be made on the opposing players or the umpire and a general mix-up ensue. The Barrie-Collingwood lacrosse match was just as bad.

C. G. E. Co. Increases Capital Stock.

That the Canadian General Electric Co., whose main factory is located in this city, is making a great success in their business, is too well known for comment. This company at a special meeting of the shareholders held in Toronto on Thursday increased their capital stock from $5,000,000 to $8,000,000.

About 35 shareholders were present, and $4,000,000 of the capital stock was represented by proxies.

Mr. Frederick Nicholls, second vice-president and general manager, read the bylaw authorizing the above change. Of the new issue 20,000 shares were to be 7 per cent preferred stock. Each holder of the old preferred stock was given the option of selling his holding, or of having it redeemed with the new issue of this description of stock. Mr. Nicholls said that the last annual report contained every balance sheet of the corporation for the past 16 years. At present their company, he said, had $5,000,000 worth of work on hand, and $5,000,000 in assets. The directors want to apply for letters patent to increase this stock. The company might stop taking orders for a time, and its $5,000,000 assets would thus be worked up. He thought it would be wiser to increase the capital than to give business to the competitors of the company. The profits last year were over $800,000 and this year it seemed that they would be equally good or better. With profits of $853,000, the company was left $713,000 after the payment of deferred dividends.

Mr. J. K. Kerr said that on the new preferred stock the holders could not get more than 7 per cent a year.

Mr. Nicholls observed that the proposed increase was much in the interest of the common stockholders.

Mr. Nicholls had received an offer from England for the whole amount of the preferred stock at par but he thought that the shareholders of the company might want it.

The resolution was carried unanimously.

Caps For Knitting Needles.

These are very useful and very easily made. Take two new corks, cut them down to about an inch in length and round off the tops. Cover them very neatly with flannel or any soft material, taking care not to have any join on the flat end of the cork.

Now take a fairly wide piece of elastic, about half an inch shorter than the knitting needles, and secure it firmly at each end to the corks, with the rounded end of these outward. Make an outside cover for each cap of any pretty material, joining the sides, turning in the raw edges at the bottom and stitching these down to the flannel.

Now gather the ends and finish off with a pretty gold or other fancy bead. The needles are stuck in the flat sides of the corks.

To Clean a Copper Kettle.

Copper kettles and indeed copper utensils of all sorts are often very hard to clean. A good method is to cut a lemon in half and rub over the kettle with it. After a thorough rubbing the kettle should be carefully rinsed in clear cold water and given a final polish with a soft cloth. Never attempt to polish copper cooking utensils with the preparations used for brasses, etc., but simply rub them well with a woolen cloth. Dry them thoroughly after washing, as they gather rust very easily, and it is almost impossible to eradicate it.

A Bold Step.

To overcome the well-grounded and reasonable objections of the more intelligent to the use of secret, medicinal compounds, Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., some time ago, decided to make a bold departure from the usual course pursued by the makers of put-up medicines for domestic use, and so has published broadcast and openly to the whole world, a full and complete list of all the ingredients entering into the composition of his widely celebrated medicines. Thus he has taken his numerous patrons and patients into his full confidence. Thus too he has removed his medicines from among secret nostrums of doubtful merits, and made them Remedies of Known Composition.

By this bold step Dr. Pierce has shown that his formulas are of such excellence that he is not afraid to subject them to the fullest scrutiny.

Not only does the wrapper of every bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, the famous medicine for weak stomach, torpid liver, biliousness and all catarrhal diseases wherever located, have printed upon it, in plain English, a full and complete list of all the ingredients composing it, but a small book has been compiled from numerous standard medical works, of all the different schools of practice, containing very numerous extracts from the writings of leading practitioners of medicine, endorsing in the strongest possible terms, each and every ingredient contained in Dr. Pierce's medicines. One of these little books will be mailed free to any one sending 21 stamps on postal card or by letter, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and requesting the same. From this little book it will be learned that Dr. Pierce's medicines contain no alcohol, narcotics, mineral agents or other poisonous or injurious agents and that they are made from native, medicinal roots of great value; also that some of the most valuable ingredients contained in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for weak, nervous, over-worked, "run-down," nervous and debilitated women, were employed, long years ago, by the Indians for similar ailments affecting their squaws. In fact, one of the most valuable medicinal plants entering into the composition of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was known to the Indians as "Squaw-Weed." Our knowledge of the uses of not a few of our most valuable native, medicinal plants was gained from the Indians.

As made up by improved and exact processes, the "Favorite Prescription" is a most efficient remedy for regulating all the womanly functions, correcting displacements, as prolapsus, anteversion and retroversion, overcoming painful periods, toning up the nerves and bringing about a perfect state of health. Sold by all dealers in medicines.

Prominent S. A. Officer Here

Brigadier Wood, who is in charge of the St. Louis, Mo., division of the Salvation Army, conducted the services at the barracks here last night. Brigadier Wood is visiting with Mrs. Wood's sister, Mrs. W. E. Talbot, with whom Mrs. Wood has been visiting for the past month.

$100 REWARD, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer one hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

EDUCATION BOARD ACCEPTED RESIGNATION

Will Advertise for a Successor to School Inspector Walker Who is Going to London Ont.--Mr. Walker Will Leave City in a Few Days.

Last night a "special" meeting of the Peterborough Board of Education was held at eight o'clock.

There were present, Chairman Robt. Fair, Hill, Robinson, Crane, Pringle and Dr Burnham. Mr. Herb. Morphet acted as secretary in the absence of Secretary G. W. Morrow

Before the actual meeting got down to business Chairman Robert Fair thanked the board for his recent leave of absence. He noted particularly the splendid exhibit made by Canada at the Dublin Exhibition. He then went on to express his regrets at being absent at the laying of the foundation stone of the Collegiate Institute and especially dwelt upon the good taste of having had Mr. Jas. Stevenson to lay the foundation stone. He concluded by thanking Dr. Burnham for filling his position during the absence of the speaker.

As this was a "special," not a "general" meeting, the reading of minutes of last meeting was dispensed with and the main business of the evening began.

A letter from former School Inspector Walker was read in which the latter efficien public official tendered his resignation noting that he had received an offer from the School Board of London, Ont., which he desired to accept. In his letter Mr. Walker noted that he hoped to be present at the opening of the new Collegiate Institute and that his best wishes would ever couple with Peterborough's educational interests

After Mr. Hill had given a short address, laudatory of the splendid services rendered by Inspector Walker, he moved, seconded by Dr Burnham, that under the circumstances, the resignation be accepted.

It was then suggested that an adv. be put in the Toronto papers for another inspector. Mr. Hillt bought we ought to get the best man the board could find in Canada, compatible with the salary paid. He thought this was the most important educational position open in Peterborough.

Dr. Burnham moved that the coming inspector be paid the same salary as heretofore.

Mr. Fair thought in the adv. it would be better not to mention the amount of salary until returns were received. The committee on appointments was authorized to advertise for an inspector, for Peterborough's schools, with power to act.—Carried. The meeting then adjourned sine die.

Before the members left it was noted that former Inspector Walker will remain in the city for a few days to finish up his business and leave matters ready for his successor, whomever he may be, to take hold of local educational matters without any difficulty or embarrassment.

NEW DESTROYERS CAN ANNIHILATE A FLEET

Frenchman Invents a Portable Ocean Terror to Destroy Ships

Paris, Aug. 20.—A quiet, middle aged man living in the Avenue d'Jena, promises to revolutionize maritime warfare. That is indeed the ultimate result of the experiments and investigations of Count Recoupe, to whom we owe the development of the automobile canoe, or motor boat.

Count Recoupe has given to his new instrument of war the name of automobile vedette torpedo launcher, and the title expresses well its function.

The torpedo launcher has only one trick, but like that of the cat in the fable, it is sufficient, though small, the vessel carries a torpedo of the largest size, so that when it operates its destructive powers are equal to those of the greatest vessel afloat.

The ordinary torpedo boats have been hitherto considered admirable for coast defense, for in this work their small size is a positive advantage; and it is possible to build fifty torpedo boats for the price of a cruiser, and the crews are proportionately reduced. But what the torpedo boat is to the cruiser, such, to some extent, is the vedette torpedo launcher to the torpedo boat.

HORNETS AT $10,000 APIECE.

Count Recoupe's vessel costs only $10,000 and it requires only two men to handle it. For the price of a battleship, therefore, it would be possible to construct some 600 of these little vessels, and what vessel or whatefleet of ships could hope to maintain a blockade in such a nest of marine hornets, each provided with a most deadly sting?

The two men who form the crew of the vedette are not overoccupied. One of them devotes his attention entirely to the motor, which is a petroleum machine; the other steers, and at the proper moment sends the torpedo on its mission.

The great advantage of the petroleum motor over steam is that for the same power it is much lighter. The motor while in action produces neither smoke nor noise, and the vessel itself moves lightly on the surface of the water, with no wash and with as little as possible to attract the attention of the eye or ear.

If the vedette accomplishes its purpose it destroys a fighting machine of the highest value. At the worst, if it is sunk, the loss is only that of two men and $10,000.

AS PORTABLE DESTROYERS.

But Count Recope has hit upon something more ingenious still. These boats are so portable that he has been able to design a vessel protected like a battleship, and having the same size, but which, instead of carrying the artillery of an ordinary battleship, will simply serve as transport for fifteen torpedo to the law. launches its weapons, so to speak, will not be guns but vedettes. It will have the same speed as the squadron which it will accompany to the scene of the battle. Arrived there, it will scatter upon the water its fifteen videttes and they will then do their work.

One can imagine nothing more terrible than in an engagement between big battleships, suddenly to find these microscopic but deadly engines darting in and out in every direction. The idea is perfectly feasible, because, as Count Recope pointed out and as can be verified by reference to history, there never has been a great sea fight that did not take place close to the shore.

SMALL BOATS FOR SMALL COUNTRIES.

The speed of the vedette is about seventeen knots, which is quite sufficient for its purpose. The French government has faith in the vedette, and the first of its kind is now on its way to Cherbourg, there to co-operate with the submarines and other means of coast defense.

"I am not only an inventor," said Count Recope with his illuminating smile. "I sell these little vessels at $10,000 apiece. Small countries that feel the need of being reassured will find them a good investment."

Bridgenorth Has Plague of Thieves

Several Citizens Lucky In Intercepting Horse Thieves

Horse thieves seem of late to have chosen Bridgenorth as the scene of their operations. Twice such thieves have been detected before accomplishing their nefarious designs. It is generally rumored that this dual combination, if not including more, have entered a number of houses at Bridgenorth and whilst present, requested the ladies to be very quiet and they would not be molested. They then helped themselves to whatever their wants demanded and left as mysteriously as they had entered.

The latest intelligence of their actions has been supplied by Mr. Geo. Bell o. that village, who on Friday night arose from his bed just in time to stop two men from getting away with his horse, buggy and harness. Shortly after midnight Mr. Bell went out to the barn and found the animal, which was sick, hitched to a buggy in the yard. The unknown thieves made a speedy "get away."

On another occasion they were stopped at the gate of a farm house with a stolen outfit. They were successful in getting away, and made good their escape without the horse and buggy.

A number of the young Bridgenorth men are on the lookout for the midnight mechanics and if they are caught there may be an interesting session before they are handed over

Lindsay Ball Team To Play Here Thursday

Redskins Eager to Turn the Tables on the Local Nine

Manager Arthur Johnston, of the Windsor Hotel, who has brought the Peterborough Baseball team to such a high state of perfection and has won so many games for the Electric City, has concluded arrangements with the Lindsay seniors to play here Thursday, so that those busily engaged of a Saturday afternoon, will have an opportunity to see some good ball. The Redskins will come down with full determination to wipe out the defeat administered by the Peterborough team in Lindsay last week.

The game will be called at three o'clock, and it should be one of the best of the season.

Successful Collegiate Institute Students

Who Passed Teachers' and Othe Examinations.

It will interest those who wrote, as well as their parents or guardians, to learn that the marks of those writing on the pass, matriculation, and junior teachers' examinations have been received. The following pupils of the Collegiate Institute have obtained certificates; Full matriculation—H. Brown, M. Connor, G. Crane, L. Dean, M. Denne, M. Girven, C. Lees, H. S. Maguire, T. S. Pringle, E. K. Wallis, and E. H. Wood.

Matriculation to School of Science of Toronto University—H. Blackwell and V. Lewis.

Matriculation standing on all the subjects of the junior teachers' examinations—F. File, V. Flynn, L. Foley, A. M. Holland, E. V. Huffman, F. L. Orr and L. Weatherill.

The total number of candidates from the Collegiate Institute, writing on the above examinations, was 36, namely; Full matriculation, only, 9; School of Science Matriculation, 2; Subject to complete matriculation, 8; Junior teachers' and matriculation, 5; Junior teachers', only, 14.

It is expected that the marks of those writing on the four matriculation and senior teachers' examinations will be received next Thursday.

Snowden House Has Changed Hands

Mr. D. (Fraser Buys Out and Takes Possession of a Well Established Business

Yesterday Mr. Donald Fraser of London, Ont., a son of the proprietor of the Fraser House, of that city, arrived here and was a guest at the Snowden House. Now for several days The Times has been aware that a business deal has been on between this gentleman and Mrs. Wm. Snowden, proprietor for many years, of the successful hotel of the latter name. By special request, and, recognizing the exigencies of business transactions involved, our columns were closed. Yesterday, however, Mr. Fraser, who is one of Canada's leading horsemen, came here and the deal has been consummated whereby. Mr. Fraser is now proprietor of the old time and Dominion-wide known Snowden House. Mr. Snowden has already applied to the local Board of License Commissioners for a transfer of the liquor license which will probably be effected shortly or as quickly as the existing law permits.

Mr. Snowden has, for many years, in fact since entering the business, been one of the most generally respected and most popular hotelmen among the transient public and most law abiding—as far as the license laws go—hotel men in the business. Mr. Snowden, whilst not, what what might be termed "a spring chicken," is still hale and hearty, and has a long time ahead in which to enjoy the fruits of a life time spent in catering to the travelling and local public His successor, Mr. Fraser, is a young man who has every detail of the hotel business in that part of his thinking machine where it will receive the best and most complete attention, and will undoubtedly run a hotel here that will be a credit, not only to Peterborough, but to the Province of Ontario. The hotel will be conducted under its old time and popular name of the Snowden House.

Plucky Capture of Enraged Steer

Mr. W. A. Stable Grabs the Furious Brute by the Horns

Yesterday morning, shortly before 11 o'clock, there was great excitement along Water street from the market square to Goose Island. About 10 o'clock some men brought a steer north on Water street, trying to deliver it at the market weigh scales. The animals seemed to be in a frenzy of excitement and would rush from side to side of the street, causing pedestrians to fly in all directions. To get it on the scales was impossible, although possibly ten or twelve of the drovers and others at that spot assisted in trying to get the animal to the scales. It broke through the crowd and headed for Central Park. Here a number of small boys joined in the chase and the brute seemed to get more and more excited. It rushed several times round the park to the detriment of grass and flower beds. Then it headed north to Goose Island and tried to get into the river. As things looked dangerous for the onlookers, Mr. W. Stabler made a rush for the steer and caught it by the horns, holding its head down until a stout rope was fastened about the horns. Even then the heavy and furious brute could not be led or driven to the market. A passing carter was hailed and the rope encircling the steer's horns was firmly attached to the cart, and the animal fairly hauled to its destination.

Who Sold the Indians That Fire Water?

Judge Edminson Will Investigate Troubles Caused on Str. Esturion

On Thursday morning at eleven o'clock Mr. W. H. Darcy of the Burleigh Falls Hotel, will appear before County Magistrate Edmison here, on a charge of selling liquor to the Indians, who it is alleged raised such a disturbance on the steamer Esturion a week ago Monday.

When that case has been disposed of the five Indians will be tried for disorderly conduct on the same occasion. Three of the red men are now lodged in the county jail, and Constable Archie Moore went to Chemong yesterday for the other two.

The trial promises to be an interesting one as several prominent citizens will be placed on their oath n evidence.

An Immense Stream of Fire Followed this Great Meteor

New York, Aug. 19.—The World today says; At six o'clock last evening an immense meteor, apparently about 75 feet in circumference, fell into the sea about a mile off the Amagansett, L.I., life saving station. First a roar was heard, and an instant later a great stream of fire seemed to come down from the clouds and plunge into the sea in the wake of the meteor. The meteor fell into the water with a noise as of a boiler letting off steam.

Great waves rolled in upon the beach. Part of the bathing pavilion was smashed away, along with it several fishermen's boats. Much damage was done to property abutting the water front. Some persons thought the strange incident marked the end of the world. Even the old fishermen, used as they are to facing death at sea, were terrified, and not for an hour or more did the excitement quiet down. After the disturbance had subsided hundreds of dead fish were found on the shore. These were gathered up by boys and peddled by them.

Ballonist Fell From Clouds a Quarter of a Mile to Death

Police Court

Only one case was tried at yesterday's police court, viz., one of the bunch of bad boys who last week occupied so much of the attention of both the Magistrate and the police. This boy is charged with others with various cases of theft and housebreaking. He was remanded until Friday. As some of these incorrigible boys seem to pose before their better comrades as criminal heros, it is inadvisable to mention his name.

Britain's Men Are Weaker Sex

Girl's Developing Brawn and Muscle --Scientists Alarmed

London, Aug. 20.—Is muscular superiority passing from men to women in Great Britain? Two items side by side in the newspapers might suggest so.

Addressing the British Medical Association, now in session at Exeter, Dr. Davy pointed out a danger to the nation's health in the change of habits in the last half century, which, he said, had led to a marked muscular degeneration. The extended use of machinery, the tendency to abandon a rural for an urban life, and the facilities for travel without exertion were among the causes he cited.

MANLIEST EXERCISES ALMOST EXTINCT.

The love of athletic games was perhaps as strong as ever, he said, but the people instead of sharing in the games were content to watch a few experts. Hundreds of thousands who pay gate money to watch cricket and football games never play themselves. Dr. Davy said, while some of the manliest exercises, such as wrestling, boxing, and fencing, are almost extinct.

It was much the same with the rich man's sport, he declared. Instead of tramping the moors to shoot game, the sportsmen sit at ease while the birds are driven within reach of their guns.

Dr. Davy insisted upon the necessity of universal physical culture to check degeneration.

GIRLS LEAD THE STRENUOUS LIFE.

Coincidentally appears the summary of the experience of tradesmen who find that the energetic adoption by girls of athletic outdoor games is making their hands and feet larger. Tiny sizes of gloves and shoes that once were almost universal are no longer salable.

Shoe traders say that while the normal size of girls' shoes some time ago was number three, the demand is now chiefly for fives, sixes and sevens. The modern girls, says one dealer, runs, walks, and indulges in athletic exercises to such an extent that her feet are lengthened and widened, transforming a pretty foot into an ugly one.

Similar experiences are narrated by the glove dealers.

Theodore French Was Dashed to Pieces Before 30,000 People

New Haven, Conn., Aug. 20.—In the presence of 30,000 men, women and children, assembled Saturday afternoon in the White City, Savin Rock, the Coney Island of Connecticut, Theodore French, son of Robert French, the chief of police of West Haven, was thrown headlong from a parachute, which was fully a quarter of a mile up in the air, and killed instantly. His neck was broken by the fall, as well as every bone in his body and his face was horribly torn. French was only twenty years old, and had had some success in descending from a balloon heretofore, so much so that he came to have great confidence in himself, and amused the patrons of the summer resorts for some days.

French got into the balloon, which ascended gradually to a height of a quarter of a mile above the clouds. This was the greatest height the young aeronaut had made and the applause of the thousands beneath him must have reached his ears. When he had reached this height he was shot out of a cannon. He tried to open the parachute, but it had become clogged, and the crowds below saw him dash headlong to the earth. Some women fainted, while men hurried to the spot where he was expected to fall. Some even hoped to catch him, but before they could realize it his body was dashed against the earth with such force that his neck was broken, as well as every bone in his body. The accident made the resort one of gloom.

French was quite popular with the younger people of West Haven. Robert French, father of the young man, was among the cheering crowds that saw him go up and was a witness of his fatal accident. Though deeply grieved by the accident, he remained calm, attended to his duties as usual, and ordered the body to be taken to the family home.

Thermometer at 179

McGregor, Texas, Aug. 20.—The most terrific heat visitation ever known a Texas occurred here Sunday, continuing about an hour and twenty minutes. The thermometer registered 179 degrees in the sun and 117 in the shade. An area of three miles long and two miles wide was affected. Accompanying the heat was a peculiar haze, which moved over the area affected. Scores of people were overcome. Horses, cattle, hogs, and poultry dropped dead, one man losing thirty-five head of stock. The phenomenon has not been explained.

New Steamer for Kawartha Lakes

Stony Lake Navigation Company to Replace Str. Majestic by New Boat

Mr. Frank Young, of the steamer Stony Lake, in conjunction with other members of the Stony Lake Navigation Co., has decided to build a new steamer for next season's passenger traffic. The company already own the steamers Stony Lake and Majestic.

The Majestic will be replaced next year by a large and commodious boat, which will be a credit to Stony Lake, and to the wide awake operators of the steamers that the Stony Lake Navigation Company now own.

The company expect the new steamer will be in dimensions about 90 feet long, with a 17-foot beam. These figures represent a considerably larger boat than the Majestic, but a somewhat smaller one than the Stony Lake, which was constructed for excursion purposes, as well as for regular passenger traffic. The estimated cost of the steamer will be $11,000.

C.P.R. OPERATORS WILL NOT GO OUT

No Truth in the Rumor That the Union will Ask the Men to Strike--Company and Their Men Enjoy the Best of Relations.

Toronto, Aug. 19.—The Great Western Telegraph Company reported this morning that all messages on their heavy lines were being handled promptly, though they are not giving the same press service as before the strike. It is feared locally that the rifle range scores tomorrow may not be handled.

The strikers today gave out the following statement;

"There is nothing particular in the situation this morning. The operators who have been forced out of the Great North Western are determined to stay out, and while the public and business men generally are the sufferers, none of the telegraphers can see their way to return to work until conditions are settled on the other side.

"Few outside the profession can realize what the operators are fighting for at the present time. The public have no idea of the long hours, small pay, and the unsanitary conditions which they have to work under.

"They tell us the strike is settled and everything is moving free, but if you have any doubts of the strike not being in full force the next time you send a message, mail a postcard and see which is delivered first.

"As for the local operators who are out, they stand just as firm today as when they first were forced out. They will not help to defeat the good for which their co-telegraphers on the South are fighting for, and which means so much to them. The C.P.R. with their usual fairness have realized the situation and consequently they and their employes enjoy the best of relations." The rumor that has been circulated throughout the country that the men would be called out is absolutely untrue. The company stand by their men and do everything possible to make their work a pleasure.

C.P.R. AT MONTREAL.

Word came from Montreal at noon today that the C.P.R. telegraphers there handed in a request that the chiefs cease to operate American wires. The report was that the company complied with this request and that American wires were consequently cut off. This was at noon today.

Daughter Shoots Father After He Kills His Wife

New York, Aug. 20.—George Wasser, a German, 67 years of age, murdered his wife and was in turn slain by his daughter, at the home of the woman in Harlem today. Wasser fired upon his wife and then exchanged shots with the daughter. The latter was not wounded. Mrs. Wasser soon succumbed to her injuries and her husband died a little later. The daughter was arrested.

She asserted that the father had persistently practised cruelties upon his family.

On entering the flat in Third avenue, where his wife and daughter lived, Wasser upbraided the former for having had him arrested because he annoyed her. He then drew a revolver and fired several shots at his wife.

Adeline Langlotz, the widowed daughter, then sent her youngest sister Annie to the next room to bring a revolver. The little girl obeyed and Mrs. Langlotz opened fire on her father. Wasser ran, his daughter pursuing and firing several shots at him as he fled from room to room. Wasser turned several times in his flight and fired at his daughter. In the parlor Wasser fell to the floor.

The police found Mrs. Wasser lying wounded in the head.

Adeline Langlotz and the little daughter Annie were taken to the police station. The woman said her parents had been separated for several years and that recently Wasser had tried to assault Annie. He was arrested, but not convicted.

When Mrs. Langlotz was arraigned before Magistrate House for shooting her father she said "I fired four shots at him as he sneaked through the rooms. I don't care what happens to him, or me."

No one had told her that her mother had died.

Magistrate House was in tears. He directed that the probation officer find some home for Mrs. Langlotz and her sister until the coroner needed her. The magistrate said he would not send her to prison and told her that he would aid her all he could.

Prominent Douro Man's Sudden Death

Mr. M. J. Mahoney Found Dead in Bed Sunday Morning

News from the flourishing and prosperous township of Douro, conveys the startling intelligence that Mr. Michael James Mahony, who, after retiring in apparent good health on Saturday night was found dead in his bed, by other members of the family Sunday morning. A doctor was called at once and, it was found that death had been caused by heart failure, and he had apparently died in his sleep.

Mr. Mahoney was 26 years of age, and was the eldest son of Mr. Michael Mahoney. He was born in Douro and lived in that township all his life. Besides his parents he leaves to mourn his loss two brothers, William and John and one sister, Kitty, all of whom live in Douro, at home.

The funeral will take place this morning at nine o'clock, from the family residence on the 5th concession, to the Roman Catholic church and Douro cemetery for interment.

Mrs. Samuel Pearson Has Passed Away

Well Known Lady Dies in Nichol's Hospital

The many friends of Mrs. Samuel Pearson of Bethune street, will regret to learn that this lady is very seriously ill. In fact in a critical condition with typhoid fever in the Nicholl's Hospital. This is a particularly sad case. Mr. Pearson has recently completed a new house on Bethune street, and shortly after moving in Mrs. Pearson took the fever and had to be moved to the hospital. She was reported yesterday as resting somewhat better.

LATER.

We regret to say that since writing the above, the sad intelligence reached this office that Mrs. Pearson, who had only been ill for about a week before going to the hospital, had passed away during the afternoon. The hospital authorities noted in conversation that the deceased had been ill about a year ago. Her sad ending was not therefore altogether unexpected by those knowing her physical condition. The funeral will be held on Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock interment will take place at Little Lake cemetery.

Spurns the Wire

Des Moines, Ia., Aug. 20.—William Bevington, a railway telegraph operator, near Sioux City, on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway, refused yesterday to take a telegram from a non-union operator at Cedar Rapids. Later he was called by long distance telephone and told that his mother was dead at Cedar Rapids. It being the message he had refused to receive by telegraph.

Obituary

The death occurred yesterday of Richard Bullied, aged 54 years, at the Nicholls Hospital from typhoid fever. The deceased had been ill about three weeks and it is supposed he contracted the disease while working on a drive previous to coming to the city. His wife and daughter Miss Mary, reside at 414 Aylmer St. His mother and a brother also survive him. The funeral will be held today to Apsley, where he was born.

—Mr. Archie Campbell, the George street tonsorial artist is spending his holidays at Stony Lake and other Kawartha points. Mrs. Campbell and little daughter are with him.

FOOD FACTS

Grape-Nuts

FOOD

A Body Balance

People hesitate at the statement that the famous food, Grape-Nuts, yields as much nourishment from one pound as can be absorbed by the system from ten pounds of meat, bread, wheat or oats. Ten pounds of meat might contain more nourishment than one pound of Grape-Nuts, but not in other than the system will absorb as large a proportion of as the body can take up from one pound of Grape-Nuts

This food contains the selected parts of wheat and barley which are prepared and by natural means predigested, transformed into a form of sugar, ready for immediate assimilation. People in all parts of the world testify to the value of Grape-Nuts.

A Mo. man says: "I have gained ten pounds on Grape-Nuts food. I can truly recommend it to this people. He has been eating meat, bread, etc., right along, but there was no ten pounds of added flesh until Grape-Nuts food was used.

One curious feature regarding the health food is that its use will reduce the weight of a corpulent person with unhealthy flesh, and will add to the weight of a thin person not properly nourished. There is abundance of evidence to prove this.

Grape-Nuts balances the body in a condition of true health. Scientific selection of food elements makes Grape Nuts good and valuable. Its delicious made Grape-Nuts famous. "There's a flavour and powerful nourishing properties have made friends that in turn have Reason." Read, "The Road to Wellville in pkgs.

About Female Ailments

Not Hard to Cure if Properly and Promptly Treated.

Ask any intelligent physician what causes nine-tenths of all female disease, even including anaemia, nervousness and consumption.

Back comes the answer quick and sharp "Constipated Bowels."

There is scarcely a single female ailment that had not in its earlier stages symptoms of constipation.

How much better off the system is without the poisonous accummulations caused by constipation. How much clearer the complexion, how much fresher one feels when the system is pure and clean.

Think it over yourself.

Isn't it apparent that a bowel regulator and liver stimulant like Dr. Hamilton's Pills a sure to do good?

Gay spirits, good looks and happy health have returned to many a sick woman through Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

Better get a few boxes today; purely vegetable, free from injurious ingredients, healthful and antiseptic. Dr. Hamilton's Pills will assist you in a thousand ways.

As delay is always dangerous, your plain duty is to follow the example of Mrs. F. Rowe, who sends the following letter from Gravels, Port Au Port, Newfoundland: "Four years ago I got kidney and bladder trouble. I thought it was 'female trouble' and treated it accordingly. Even my doctor in St. John said it was so.

"In reading about Dr. Hamilton's Pills I noticed symptoms like mine and I bought six boxes. These pills went right to work on my sick condition and helped me from the first. My supposed female trouble, which was bladder disease, was cured. My weight increased eight pounds and never before was I as well as today. Dr. Hamilton's Pills did it all."

All dealers sell Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. per box or five boxes for $1.00. By mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S. A., or Kingston, Ont.

MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP

The members of the commission appointed some time ago by the National Civic Federation in the United States to investigate the question of municipal ownership, have made their reports. The investigation was to be confined to the results of municipal ownership in the United States. Later on a similar inquiry will be made of the situation in Great Britain. The report is very voluminous, embracing as it does the statements made before the Committee by experts including engineers, accountants, statisticians and others, concerning the operation of a large number of enterprises conducted by private companies or by public bodies. The four members of the Committee being unable to agree on a joint report, have now made separate reports. Two of the Committee appear to uphold public ownership and operation as affording better, cheaper and more satisfactory services where supplies of gas, water and electricity are concerned, while the other two members express the opinion that private ownership, under proper and reasonable regulation, is the more satisfactory policy.

In favoring public ownership Professor Parsons declares that too much attention is given to the purely financial side of it. He claims that other phases of the problem must also be taken into consideration, but he fails to answer the question why a service of a certain standard of efficiency should be preferred at a higher cost under public ownership than at a lower cost under private ownership. Professor Parsons claims that where municipal ownership has been costly and disappointing in its results, the cause has been corruption or incompetency on the part of municipal officials. But that seems to give his case away, because it is the difficulty of getting such efficient management, as is generally secured by a private corporation, that is one of the principal objections to municipal ownership.

From a perusal of the different reports of the members of the Committee, it would seem that the best results under municipal ownership have been secured in connection with waterworks systems. The statistics furnished of the results—both financial, and as regards the quantity and quality of the water supplied—seem to show that municipal ownership is superior to that of private ownership. That is particularly the case in some cities in which, while the water rates are not higher (in some cases even lower than they were under private ownership) under civic ownership, the quality of the water and the system of distribution have both been improved. On the whole the policy of municipal ownership appears to find its best support in the results secured in connection with waterworks undertakings. But even in these the reports admit that one great difficulty in achieving successful results arises from the fact that there is little about municipal trading to attract men of the first class. The extension of municipal activity in the field of providing utilities which previously had been furnished by private enterprise has not, in the opinion of the members of the Committee, resulted in attracting a higher or more intelligent class to the civic governing bodies, and until this is the case municipal ownership will not really have a fair trial to show what it can achieve in comparison with private control. The reports to be made later on the conditions prevailing in the United Kingdom will probably afford some interesting information on a detail which we have always regarded as most important in municipal ownership.

A SERVICEABLE WORK

The United States postal authorities every year issue a postal guide in order that people may better understand the regulations governing mail matter and educate themselves accordingly. A similar work in this country would doubtless prove serviceable. The Watertown Standard, referring to the guide, says:

"The third edition of the United States Postal Service, a booklet issued by the department at Washington, has been distributed among postoffices of the country. Deputy Postmaster Martin of the Watertown office, has not yet received the supply for this city yet, but expects to soon. The booklet contains information regarding domestic and foreign postage, the use and abuse of the mails and a fund of instruction for the general public.

"The book is for general distribution, gives the rates of the registry system for the different points reached by the United Postal Union, with a special paragraph on money orders, special delivery, the parcel post and a general guide to the classification of domestic mail matter. Postage rates and the amount and variety of mailable articles are touched upon, and the law governing the mailing of souvenir postal cards. Several sections refer to second and third class matter with special reference to mailable matter.

"These pamphlets of general postal information are issued for the express purpose of educating the public in the proper use of the mails. A large amount of money is annually expended in correcting existing evils of the postal system caused by the ignorance of the people in mailing letters, postals and packages. A force of clerks is kept busy at the Watertown office looking up letters containing wrong addresses, due almost universally to the carelessness of the senders.

"New forms of souvenir postal cards are constantly being put on the market and thousands of them are almost daily held by the postal authorities as being unmailable, either on account of the character of matter which they contain, or because they carry articles of merchandise attached which are unmailible."

I will mail you free, to prove merit, samples of my Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and my Book on either Dyspepsia, The Heart or The Kidneys. Troubles of the Stomach, Heart or Kidneys, are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak Stomach nerves—the inside nerves—mean Stomach weakness, always. And the Heart, and Kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves, and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves." Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion, use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write me today for sample and free Book. Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. The Restorative is sold by all dealers.

Robt. A. Pinkerton Dead

New York, Aug. 18.—Robert A. Pinkerton, head of the Pinkerton Detective Agency, died on board the steamer Bremen, on his way to Europe, on Aug. 12. Mr Pinkerton was on his way to Germany for his health and was accompanied by Florence Sullivan.

The deceased was the eldest son of the famous founder of the great agency. A brother of the deceased, William Pinkerton, has his headquarters in Chicago.

His death was due to fatty degeneration of the heart. Mr. Pinkerton was only ill for two days. The body was taken to Germany on board the Bremen, and will be shipped to New York by the North German Lloyd steamer Kaiser Wilhelm II. which leaves Bremen for New York.

Would Lose Pension

The diplomatic methods of the Canadian Pacific Telegraph Company is one reason for the men remaining at their posts, and another solid reason was that to quit the wires would mean loss of right to participate in the pension fund. The Canadian Pacific Railway Company conducts a pension fund. To this all employes, no matter whether they are clerks in the railway office or operators in the telegraph department, contribute. The employes are entitled to retire at a certain age on a pension, and the amount of this is regulated by their length of service. But all rights to this would be lost the moment an employe went but on strike, or left his position for any reason. As there are some operators with good terms of service to their credit, this makes the employes think seriously before undertaking any rash step.

An Ishmaelite of the Plains.

The dead thing, wherever it lies, still remains the coyote's choicest feast. A creature without a friend, an Ishmaelite whom men and animals have combined in despising, the ideal thief and vagabond of the animal world, this gray, gaunt figurehead of the western world still survives, as much the owner of his empire as he was in the days when his ancestors looked with cock eared astonishment and staccato exclamations upon the expedition of Lewis and Clark feeling its way slowly across that transmissouri wilderness whose future was then undreamed.—James W. Steele in Outing Magazine.

Snuff Taking In London.

Snuff taking is a common habit among certain classes of the London poor. It shows its effects in rambling speech, pallid aspect and dejected demeanor, resembling the symptoms of the morphia taker. The practice is especially common among women, and an observer says that women in the prisoner's dock in the police court will have their hair decorated with curl papers which contain each the pinch of snuff needed for consolation.

Its Advantage.

Knicker—Why do you prefer serial stories?

Flatter—Because it's the only thing on the installment plan they can't take away.

Not Very Flattering.

She—Emma is the prettiest, but Lena is the smartest. Now, which would you rather marry, beauty or brains? He (very far gone)—Neither. I'd rather marry you.

A Scriptural Bull.

Even the Bible is not free from bulls. In chapter thirty-seven of the book of Isaiah appears the following confusion of ideas: "Then the angel of the Lord went forth, and smote in the camp of the Assyrians a hundred and four score and five thousand; and when they arose early in the morning, behold, they were all dead corpses."

THE CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY

The Money That's Being Made in Western Canada LAND

In October, 1906 we sold 5,000 acres of Saskatchewan lands to an Indiana party of men at $8 per acre, and resold it this year at $12, making just about 100 per cent. on the money invested.

A Montreal party of men who bought 10,000 acres from us at $8 per acre last September, resold through us within three months at $10.00 per acre.

A Chicago client writes us, that after making some improvements on a section she bought near Regina, one year ago, she sold out recently for exactly twice what she paid for the land.

We resold a section of land located near Lipton for a man at $12.00 per acre last April, which we sold him in December at $12.00.

Western Canada Lands offer the greatest opportunity this continent has ever known

Men here are growing wealthy who never knew success in any other line. You can make money here too, if you think your amount too small club it with a few friends. Some of the most prominent financial men in the Canada are now interested in this country heavily.

We own about 200,000 acres of the finest wheat and mixed farming lands in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.—Picked lands on which we are prepared to give accurate trustworthy information, and these tracts being portions of extremely large purchases, we can sell them at prices that cannot be equalled, quality of land considered, by any firm in this United States and Eastern country.

Prices range from $6.00 per acre upwards Reasonable Terms in every case

Write us for further information but when doing so tell us the class and amount of an investment you desire, and whether you want the land for your own use or for investment purposes purely. $1,000 is about the minimum we can handle. References Union Bank and Traders' Bank, Winnipeg.

SHE'S A QUEEN! SHE'S A SIREN!

Is an expression that is always heard at sight of a well developed woman. If you are flat chested, with BUST undeveloped, a scrawney neck, thin lean arms - the above remark will never be applied to you. "SIREN" wafers will make you beautiful, bewitching. They DEVELOP the BUST in a few weeks from 3 to 6 inches and produce a fine firm, voluptuous bosom. They fill out the hollow places Make the cheeks plump and rosy, and arms handsome and well molded and the neck and shoulders shapely and of perfect contour.

Send for a bottle today and you'll be pleased and grateful. "SIREN" wafers are absolutely harmless, pleasant to take and convenient to carry around. They are sold under guarantee to do all we claim or MONEY back.

Price $1.00 per bottle. Inquire at good drug stores or send DIRECT to us.

FREE!

During the next 30 days only—we will send you a sample bottle of these beautifying wafers on receipt of 10 cents to pay cost of packing and postage if you will mention that you saw the Advertisement in this paper. The sample alone may be sufficient if defects are trivial.

50% in Annual Dividends

This is a straight Business Undertaking. The Smelting of Ore is the safest and most profitable business in the world.

We have fifteen mining properties, located in Kern County, California, carrying good values in Gold, Silver and Copper.

The smelter nearest to us is at Needles, 250 miles distant.

We propose to install on our properties a smelter to treat the ores from our own mines and to do custom smelting for others.

50 per cent. per annum is a moderate estimate of the profits we can earn. If you want to make a safe and profitable investment send for full information and investigate our proposition.

COPPER A 5c. POSSIBILITY

Always the persons who make fortunes are those who seize opportunities. Trudge along in the conventional rut and you will never get away from the counter or the desk.

Fortunes—the greatest mining fortunes in the world—are being made to-day by the men who own Copper Mines. You couldn't buy stock in one of the big-paying, developed mines You CAN buy stock in a mine undergoing development, and if you BUY IN THE RIGHT PLACE the fortune will come.

I want you to come in and see me about the proposition I have in the Guggenheim Greenwater Copper Company's two properties at Ely and at Greenwater, Nevada. The recent copper finds at Ely are attracting the interest of a whole continent. The property which this Company owns there is in the best section. The Workings are now down fifty feet, and the prospect brightens with every foot. The manager tells me he expects to strike it rich any day. So soon as he does, up goes the stock with a bound.

I still can offer a limited number of shares at 5 cents each. It's the easiest chance at a fortune you've ever had. See me about it at once.

THE CONQUEST of CANAAN

By BOOTH TARKINGTON,
Author of "Cherry," "Monsieur Beaucaire," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1905, BY HARPER & BROTHERS

Cory give a kind of yelling laugh and put his arm round me jest as Mr. Fear come in the door. And then it all happened so quick that you could hardly tell what was goin' on. Mr. Fear, we found afterward, had promised Mr. Louden that he wouldn't come out there, but he took too much—you could see that by the look of him—and fergot his promise—fergot everything but me and Cory, I guess.

"He come right up to us, where I was tryin' to git away from Cory's arm—it was the left one he had around me and the other behind his back and neither of 'em said a word. Cory kept on laughin' loud as he could, and Mr. Fear struck him in the mouth. He's little, but he can hit awful hard, and Mr. Cory let out a screech, and I see his gun go off right in Mr. Fear's face, I thought, but it wasn't. It only scorched him. Most of the other gen'lemen had run, but Mike made a dive and managed to knock the gun to one side jest barely in time. Then Mike and three or four others that come out from behind things separated 'em, both of 'em fightin' to git at each other. They locked Mr. Cory up in Mike's room and took Mr. Fear over to where they hitch the horses. Then Mike sent fer Mr. Louden to come out to talk to my husband and take care of him—he's the only one can do anything with him when he's like that—but before Mr. Louden could git there Mr. Fear broke loose and run through a cornfield and got away—at least they couldn't find him. And Mr. Cory jumped through a window and slid down into one of Mike's boats, so they'd both gone. When Mr. Louden come he only stayed long enough to hear what had happened and started out to find Happy—that's my husband. He's bound to keep them apart, but he hasn't found Mr. Fear yet or he'd be here."

Ariel had sunk back in her chair. "Why should your husband hide?" she asked in a low voice.

"Waitin' fer his chance at Cory," the woman answered huskily. "I expect he's afraid the cops are after him, too, on account of the trouble, and he doesn't want to git locked up till he's met Cory again. They ain't after him, but he may not know it. They haven't heard of the trouble, I reckon, or they'd of run Cory in. He's around town today, drinkin' heavy, and I guess he's lookin' fer Mr. Fear about as hard as Mr. Louden is." She rose to her feet, lifted her coarse hands and dropped them despairingly. "Oh, I'm scared!" she said. "Mr. Fear's be'n mighty good to me."

A slow and tired footstep was heard upon the stairs, and Joe's dog ran into the room droopingly, wagged his tail with no energy and crept under the desk. Mrs. Fear wheeled toward the door and stood, rigid, her hands clinched tight, her whole body still except her breast, which rose and fell with her tumultuous breathing. She could not wait till the laggard step reached the landing.

"Mr. Louden!" she called suddenly.

Joe's voice came from the stairway. "It's all right, Claudine. It's all fixed up. Don't worry."

Mrs. Fear gave a thick cry of relief and sank back in her chair as Joe entered the room. He came in shamblingly, with his hand over his eyes as if they were very tired and the light hurt them, so that for a moment or two he did not perceive the second visitor. Then he let his hand fall, revealing a face white and worn.

"It's all right, Claudine," he repeated. "It's all right."

He was moving to lay his hat on the desk when his eye caught first the roses, then fell upon Ariel, and he stopped stock still with one arm outstretched, remaining for perhaps ten seconds in that attitude, while she, her lips parted, her eyes lustrous, returned his gaze with a look that was as inscrutable as it was kind.

"Yes," she said, as if in answer to a question, "I have come here twice today." She nodded slightly toward Mrs. Fear. "I can wait. I am very glad you bring good news."

Joe turned dazedly toward the other. "Claudine," he said, "you've been telling Miss Tabor."

"I cert'nly have!" Mrs. Fear's expression had cleared, and her tone was cheerful. "I don't see no harm in that. I'm sure she's a good friend of yours, Mr. Louden."

Joe glanced at Ariel with a faint, troubled smile and turned again to Mrs. Fear. "I've had a long talk with Happy."

"I'm awful glad. Is he ready to listen to reason?" she asked with a titter.

"He's waiting for you."

"Where?" She rose quickly.

"Stop," said Joe sharply. "You must be very careful with him"—

"Don't you s'pose I'm goin' to be?" she interrupted, with a catch in her voice. "Don't you s'pose I've had trouble enough?"

"No," said Joe deliberately and impersonally, "I don't. Unless you keep remembering to be careful all the time you'll follow the first impulse you have, as you did yesterday, and your excuse will be that you never thought any harm would come of it. He's in a queer mood, but he will forgive you if you ask him"—

"Well, ain't that what I want to do?" she exclaimed.

"I know, I know," he said, dropping into the desk chair and passing his hand over his eyes with a gesture of infinite weariness. "But you must be very careful. I hunted for him most of the night and all day. He was trying to keep out of my way because he didn't want me to find him until he had met this fellow Nashville. Happy is a hard man to come at when he doesn't care to be found, and he kept shifting from place to place until I ran him down. Then I got him in a corner and told him that you hadn't meant any harm—which is always true of you, poor woman—and I didn't leave him till he had promised me to forgive you if you would come and ask him. And you must keep him out of Cory's way until I can arrange to have him—Cory, I mean—sent out of town. Will you?"

"Why, cert'nly," she answered, smiling. "That Nashville's the vurry last person I ever want to see again—the fresh thing!" Mrs. Fear's burden had fallen; her relief was perfect, and she beamed vapidly. But Joe marked her renewed irresponsibility with an anxious eye.

"You mustn't make any mistakes," he said, rising stiffly with fatigue.

"Not me. I don't take no more chances," she responded, tittering happily; "not after yesterday. My, but it's a load off my shoulders! I do hate it to have gen'lemen quarreling over me, especially Mr. Fear. I never did like to start anything. I like to see people laugh and be friendly, and I'm mighty glad it's all blown over. I kind o' thought it would all along. Pshaw!" She burst into genuine, noisy laughter. "I don't expect either of 'em meant no real harm to each other after they got cooled off a little. If they'd met today they'd probably both run. Now, Mr. Louden, where's Happy?"

Joe went to the door with her. He waited a moment, perplexed; then his brow cleared, and he said in a low voice: "You know the alley beyond Vent Miller's poolroom? Go down the alley till you come to the second gate. Go in, and you'll see a basement door opening into a little room under Miller's bar. The door won't be locked, and Happy's in there waiting for you. But remember"—

"Oh, don't you worry!" she cut him off loudly. "I know him. Inside of an hour I'll have him laughin' over all this. You'll see!"

When she had gone he stood upon the landing looking thoughtfully after her. "Perhaps, after all, that is

OLD BIRDS' NESTS.

Many Feathered Creatures Use the Same Ones Year After Year.

"That common expression for worthlessness, 'It has no more value than a last year's bird's nest,'" said a bird fancier, "is often far from correct. The majority of our birds do leave their nests after raising a brood, but many do not, and their nests are used through a succession of years. I have known some birds to use their nests ten years in succession, and so persistent are they that many times the female will return even after the nest has been robbed and the mate killed. Among these users of perennial nests are the wrens, some of the swallow family, bluebirds, great crested flycatchers, some of the owls, eagles, chickadees and some woodpeckers.

"They repair to the nest each year and often build it over. A little wren has made its nest in a hole in a tree in my garden and has occupied it for the last eight years. Each year it has piled on new stuff till the hole is almost filled up. Some say that as soon as it becomes crowded the birds will clean it out. I know of a bluebird's nest that has been occupied for several years. It is the same female year after year, for she has two black wing feathers and is lame.

"Birds that build in exposed situations, like hangbirds, always build anew each season, and some others build anew for every brood. Some never build. They either lay in the nests of other birds or in the sand. The eagle and the owl make a framework of sticks and slight repairs are needed. Many birds' nests that you find have never been used. For instance, the marsh wren builds several with the idea that in the case of disturbance the male will attract attention to the nests other than that in which the female is brooding and so shield her from enemies."

Modern Modesty.

"You say a modest woman. Just what do you mean by that?"

"Well, a woman who costs her husband less than $2,500 a year is modest as prices go."

Weak Kidneys

Weak Kidneys surely point to weak kidney Nerves. The Kidneys, like the Heart, and the Stomach, find their weakness, not in the organ itself, but in the nerves that control and guide and strengthen them Dr. Shoop's Restorative is a medicine specifically prepared to reach these controlling nerves. To doctor the Kidneys alone, is futile. It is a waste of time, and of money as well.

If your back aches or is weak, if the urine scalds, or is dark and strong, if you have symptoms of Bright's or other distressing or dangerous kidney disease, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative a month—Tablets or Liquid—and see what it can and will do for you. Druggist recommend and sell

This Company was formed for the purpose of manufacturing all kinds of Iron, Steel, Metal and Wooden Goods, Agricultural Implements, etc., and to carry on the business of a foundry.

They are now turning out specialties in Ornamental Iron Work, Fences, Crestings, etc., for which there is a great demand far in excess of the present facilities of the Company.

Winnipeg and the West offers an unlimited market for the products, guaranteeing a paying investment from the start.

There is a limited amount of stock for sale, and this opportunity to purchase will not return.

The encouragement, coupled with the unexcelled opportunities open to such an enterprise, are in themselves sufficient guarantee of absolute safety and large profits.

Write for our Prospectus. Investigate to-day—to-morrow may be too late.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry must be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made on certain conditions, by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the homestead conditions under one of the following plans:—

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of the homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Six months' notice in writing should be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of intention to apply for patent.

President ..... EDWARD T. PATRICK.
Mine Owner and President of the Goldfield Stock and Exchange Board.
Vice-President ..... JUDGE CHAS. L. HAYES.
Mine Owner and Leading Attorney of Goldfield, Nevada.
Secretary and Treasurer ..... ADAMS F. BROWN.
Corporation and Mining Lawyer and Member of Listing Committee Goldfield Stock and Exchange Board.
Depository ..... JOHN S. COOK & CO.
Bank of Goldfield, Nevada.

This company owns 4 claims (80 acres) of some of the best proved mineral land in the Goldfield district, consisting of the Accidental and Accidental No. 2 lode claims, situated two and one-eighth miles south of the great Goldfield Consolidated Mines (comprising the Mohawk, Goldfield, Combination, Red Top, Jumbo and Laguna) the richest in the world, and the Broadway and Beauty lode claims situated three and one-half miles north of the Consolidated and about one and one-half miles northwest of The Great Bend and Dyer Mines near the Zeo group in the Diamondfield section (owned only in richness to the great Mohawk portion of the camp.

The company has now succeeded in securing the Sure Thing lode claim (20 acres) in the Cuprite district, which is outcroppings equal to anything on Goldfield, showing fine surface values and is without doubt richly named, "Sure Things."

All of these claims are located on the same mineral belt as the other famed mines of Goldfield that have astonished the world by their production of millions in high grade ore, and will with the same development give equally profitable returns.

The money derived from the sale of this stock will be used at once for the active development of the property and the fact that all the directors are residents of Goldfield with years of successful mining experience who will give their personal attention at all times to the progress of the work goes to show that the first issue of 100,000 shares will meet with a quick and ready sale at the initial price of 10 cents per share.

We advise immediate action if you wish to participate in the vast profits of this Bonanza Mine

Stock will be listed as soon as feasible on the Goldfield and San Francisco Stock and Exchange Boards. We therefore advise purchasers to buy in board lots of 1,000 shares when convenient to do so.

Men Require Nerve and Blood Tonic.

How Are Your Nerves?

The daily grind of life burns up a man's vitality faster than he renews it.

He gets shaky, starts at trifles, tosses in his sleep, is ready to fly off the handle any minute.

The nervous man is nervous because his blood is so thin his nerves are starved to death.

He needs Ferrozone!

Its first action is upon digestion.

It stimulates secretion of gastric juice, ensures perfect digestion, prepares the food so it can be at once assimilated.

Hence the blood is nourished, is fortified, made redder, richer, stronger.

To the whole organism is imparted a vim, endurance and reserve of vigor that the nervous man never knew before.

The restorative power of Ferrozone is marvelous. In a month it will make you feel like new, just as it did Mr. Karl E. Newsome of Rothesay, who writes: "I owe a debt of gratitude to Ferrozone which saved my life after a severe siege of nervous prostration. About a year ago my health gave out. I was in such a weak, irritable condition I couldn't work, and found that three doctors did nothing for me. My druggist recommended Ferrozone as the best preparation for nervous troubles, so I commenced with one tablet at meals. Every box of Ferrozone I took did me more good than the previous one, and it wasn't very long before I was completely cured. Ferrozone braced up my nerves, gave me a strong, healthy constitution, and is certainly a marvelous restorer and tonic."

Try Ferrozone—sold everywhere by druggists in 50c. boxes.

Mr. McNamara's Last Lot Gone

Yesterday Mr. M. A. McNamara, the local contractor, sold the last lot on his splendid south side property to Mr. Wm. Graham, an American, who has been camping on the property with his wife, and who fully recognized not only the beauty of this spot, but from a business stand of view its certain coming commercial residential value. This is the last of the lots as per Mr. McNamara's plan. He will however proceed to list others in the vicinity.

Who Took the Drink at Burleigh?

A local pastor in his address Sunday intimated that a prominent member of a local church, not his own, was seen to take a drink at the Burleigh Falls Hotel bar recently. Would it not be more to the point if he mentioned the "manager's" name and what he drank, as well as the price paid. Thus when such attacks are made, possibly deservedly, their outcome would stick tighter to the target. This remark of the pastor seems an indefinite attack against "every other fellow."

Carters' Shelter is Improved

The carters' shelter has been improved largely through the efforts of of Mr H. Edmondson, who has spent some considerable sum of money in improvements to the interior as well as the exterior of the building. The shelter has been painted and a new sign, with a picture of Mr. Edmondson, appears on the front of the building. A telephone has been installed, and now all that a would-be employer has to do to secure the services of a carter is to call up 'phone No. 587b.

Upper Stony Lake Regatta

The first annual regatta on upper Stony Lake will be held on Thursday afternoon, and from the interest being evinced in the affair it should be a grand success. The course will be off Crowe's Landing, and there will be a complete program of sailing, paddling and rowing races. Mr. John Finlay, M.P., has offered a handsome cup for the open sailing race, and no doubt a large number of the fast white wings will take part. In the evening there will be the presentation of prizes in the pavilion followed by a masquerade. A special boat service is being arranged from the lower end of the lake.

Mrs. Judge Barron Very Ill

The friends of Judge John A. Barron of Stratford, will regret to learn that Mrs. Barron is very ill at their residence in the above named city. It seems that Mrs. Barron recently had a paralytic stroke and unfortunately did not rally, and now other complications have arisen. Mr. A. P. Poussette, of this city, who is a brother-in-law of Judge Barron was away for his holidays at Sarnia. He was summoned by telegraph and is now at Stratford. Mrs. Barron is a daughter of the late Mr. Hartley, formerly county registrar at Lindsay.

LATER.

We are pleased to note that late last night Mr. Court Poussette received the following telegram: "Patient recovering, returning to Sarnia this evening."

$100 REWARD, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood an dmucous surfaces of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer one hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

St. Luke's Church Notes

The choir of St. Luke's church will hold its picnic to Chemong Park Thursday afternoon. Busses will leave the post office at two p.m. Friends of members of the choir, who wish to attend, are gladly welcomed to join the party.

The Brotherhood of St Andrew will meet tomorrow evening at eight o'clock

Next Sunday morning the children of the Sunday School will attend morning prayer, at which Dr. Langfeldt will preach a special sermon. Sunday school will be held at 10 a.m. and the service at 11.

Rev Dr. Langfeldt gave notice Sunday of the Harvest Festival being held on Sept. 11th. The very reverend the Dean of Ontario, Dr Farthing, will be the special preacher.

Non-Coms for an Outing Thursday

The 57th Regiment non coms excursion will be held per steamer Otonabee on Thursday, Aug. 29th to Idyl Wyld, leaving Wolfe street wharf at 1.30. The boys in red with their girls dressed in every shade from khaki to sky blue or saffron a la sassafrass, or whatever heart breaking fameels will don to break the hearts of poor weak masculine humanity at sight, will be on hand and treat their accompanying visitors as only Sons of Mars know how. We hope and predict that the non coms. will have the record crowd of the season both as to numbers and the crowd that will enjoy every hour of this beautiful trip by the splendid new boat. The socials and smokers given by the local non coms is sufficient evidence of the popularity and large attendance that marks their entertainments or outings. Every citizen has the interest of our local crack regiment at heart.

IN SHORT FORM FOR BUSY READERS

—A large number of heavy weight fat cattle passed over the market weigh scales yesterday morning.

—The Property Committee and Public Library Board will hold a joint meeting this evening.

—Grasshoppers are reported by farmers of this county to be playing berry-mell with their crops

—The White House yesterday opened up a brand new hotel register, the old one having its last line in the guest arrival columns filled Sunday.

—The Committee of the Archdiaconal Conference was in session yesterday to arrange for their annual meeting. Ven Archdeacon Warren acted as chairman.

—A handsome mirror has been placed in the ladies department of Yeo's Bros' shoe shine parlor, which adds much to the attractive appearance of the establishment.

—A number of improvements are being made around the locks here. A new cement wharf is being built on the south side of the lower entrance and the banks along both sides of the canal will be graded and put in better condition.—Fenelon Falls Star.

The Roy Studio is displaying some splendid photographs of the Chemong Regatta. The most striking one probably is that showing the sensational finish in the dinghy race between Milne Hamilton and A. A. Hollingshead.

—A gang of men began work yesterday on the new Charlotte street bridge, taking the Street Railway tracks, which, as before noted in The Times, will have to be temporarily raised some three feet during completion of this new concrete and iron bridge.

—The Fenlon Falls Star says, Mr. A. W. Spence, of Peterborough, Ont., passed through on Wednesday, to Rosedale, where he will have charge of surveying operations there for the next two weeks, on the completion of which tenders for the new locks, and other improvements there will be immediately called for, and the work pushed to completion.

—Hay was $14 a ton on the market yesterday. A Times man heard a farmer from Smith complaining that he sold two loads Saturday on the way to market at $13 and on arrival had several offers of $14. The farmers of this county must be making good returns on their farms.

Nursing Mothers and Over-burdened Women

In all stations of life, whose vigor and vitality may have been undermined and broken-down by overwork, exacting social duties, the too frequent bearing of children, or other causes, will find in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription the most potent, invigorating restorative strengthgiver ever devised for their special benefit. Nursing mothers will find it especially valuable in sustaining their strength and promoting an abundant nourishment for the child. Expectant mothers too will find it a priceless boon to prepare the system for baby's coming and rendering the ordeal comparatively painless. It can do no harm in any state, or condition of the female system.

Delicate, nervous, weak women, who suffer from frequent headaches, backache, dragging-down distress low down in the abdomen, or from painful or irregular monthly periods, gnawing or distressed sensation in stomach, dizzy or faint spells, see imaginary specks or spots floating before eyes, have disagreeable, pelvic catarrhal drain, prolapsus, anteversion or retro-version or other displacements of womanly organs from weakness of parts will, whether they experience many or only a few of the above symptoms, find relief and a permanent cure by using faithfully and fairly persistently Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

This world-famed specific for woman's weaknesses and peculiar ailments is a pure glyceric extract of the choicest native, medicinal roots without a drop of alcohol in its make-up. All its ingredients printed in plain English on its bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. Dr. Pierce thus invites the fullest investigation of his formula knowing that it will be found to contain only the best agents known to the most advanced medical science of all the different schools of practice for the cure of woman's peculiar weaknesses and ailments.

If you want to know more about the composition and professional endorsement of the "Favorite Prescription," send postal card request to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for his free booklet treating of same.

You can't afford to accept as a substitute for this remedy of known composition a secret nostrum of unknown composition. Don't do it.

DETERMINED ON-SLAUGHT ON FRENCH

French Machine and Field Guns Used on Enemy with Deadly Effect--Algerian Spahis Caught in Ambush by Moors.

Casablanca, Morocco, Aug. 20 A large force of Moors suddenly descended on the French camp early this morning, but were driven off after a sharp conflict. The tribesmen advanced to within eight hundred yards of the city, when General Drude sent against them, under cover of the guns of the warships, a detachment of fifty Algerian spahis (Arab horsemen in the French service). The Moors permitted this small body of cavalry to advance for a half mile unmolested, when they suddenly ambushed them, and in a wild charge got right among the spahis. The head of a spahi was cut off At one sweep of a big Moorish sword The French officer in command of the spahis and several of his men were wounded, but the officer rallied his force and slowly retired, fighting, until a large body of spahis from the towns succored their comrades and routed the Moors.

The fighting covered a front of about sixteen miles and lasted from 7 to 11 a.m. The French used field guns and machine guns with deadly effect in repelling the attacks of the Moors, and shells from the cruiser Gloire also rendered efficient service. The spahis and sharpshooters each lost one man killed and had several wounded, including Captain Coud of the spahis. About a dozen horses were killed. The Moors lost heavily.

Should The Rod Be Spared?

Probably because it is a good hot weather, perennial topic, the papers are busy once again with the old, old discussion of corporal punishment We say the "old, old discussion," but perhaps in the far past there was really no discussion The matter appeared to have but one side. The child must be beaten. He could not grow up properly without it is this, perchance, the reason why almost no classic writer (among the Greeks, or Romans) ever speaks with joyous remembrance of his childhood! Is it the reason why Seneca stands almost alone in referring to his mother in terms of affection? And was the mother of the Gracchi so well beloved because she did not whip her children!

It is said by Horace Mann that Quintilian was the first school master to protest against the use of the rod. School was hated and despised by all boys (and would have been by all girls, only they were not thought capable of education, and so escaped its terrors) until within, perhaps, a little over a century.

The whole trend of civilization is toward the banishment of physical penalties. The retention in Delaware of the whipping-post is almost universally considered a remnant of barbarism. The hangman's rope is coming to be regarded in the same way. That sometimes slipped and caused as terrible scenes as does the occasional miscarriage of the electrical mechanism of death—but the "lightning chair" seems far more civilized than the gallows. Why is not the painless, equally irrevocable sleep produced by an adequate dose of some powerful anesthetic better in its turn than the chair?

The peace conference shows how men are deploring war and try to rob it of its worst terrors. Everywhere we see the moral and mental forms of torture and punishment supplanting the physical—the moral and mental said to be worse, but generally by those who have never been whipped nor bound to the rack.

In that wittiest of novels, "Concerning Isabel Carnaby," we are told of the estimable Mrs. Seator, that she "had been known to whip her darlings, urged by a painful sense of duty thereto, but on such sad occasions she wore a shawl (or the rest of the day, just as she did when the minister was not well, or when any important member of the congregation died."

Thousands of conscientious mothers have chastised and then suffered likewise. In many families, under certain circumstances, there seems nothing left to do but to whip—all other punishments having been tried Probably the hottest partisan of the "rule of love," if initiated into the intimate situations in certain households at certain crises would counsel the use of the rod There is no cast-iron policy in the matter To whip a gentle girl child for a fib might be a shocking sin. To whip her brazen brother, who has been cutting a hole in the cat's back, and filling it with pepper and salt, might be an exigent duty

A mother of six children, who had reared them to maturity without ever having a blow struck upon any one of them, admitted that the fact that the boys' eldest were girls might have greatly influenced the matter. They were gentle and obedient and affectionate. They petted and taught the little brothers, as they grew, and there was consequent no occasion for ill-temper nor cruelty in them, nor any other of those juvenile vices which lead to the rod.

The children of amiable, phlegmatic parents, may never offend so far as to deserve a spanking. The children of strong-willed, irascible, erratic parents may be very different Bring them up ever so judiciously, yet they will be likely to do queer and unexpected and shocking things. Tie their hands behind them for the first offense. Deprive them of their cherished toy for the second. Cut down their diet to the merest necessities of life for the third. Still, you will, perhaps, get to a point where the child who persists in throwing hatchets and forks at the cook must be whipped. A good strap or thong properly applied, will generally cure his little eccentricity. The eating of meat is said to make children quarrelsome and captious

A certain little boy had an exhilarating habit of playing with matches After he had set the house on fire three times it was thought best to whip him.

A wilful and ugly tempered little girl, who looked out of her eyes with a dark, suspicious glare upon the whole world, seemed to enjoy nothing so well as tormenting her innocent, mild-mannered old grandmother. The ingenuity of the child's devices for harassing, mystifying and actually hurting this old lady would have given us perpetual motion and unravelled the aurora borealis if it had been applied to those immemorial secrets. All kinds of light penalties were imposed upon the young sinner—but a good, sound, old fashioned spanking did more to uproot the evil than anything else.

Then it must be remembered that, added to this illimitable differences in the composition of children, there are the immensely various capacities of the parents for government It is the commonest of truisms that the ability to govern is the rarest of attributes. Even very intellectual and religious parents may be lacking in this great quality. They may have high ideals. They may detest spoiled children and may be determined to have lofty standards reached in their families—but they have none of the "faculty" which attains results without effort. They have to strain and agonize and even resort to brute force in order to accomplish that which, with the same children, another, better endowed, might do with a wave of the hand.

There are certain children who put all sorts of mischief into others. Almost any decently brought up child gets along happily and peaceably alone. Difficulties of all kinds generally increase in geometrical ratio to the number of children involved.

You cannot indict a whole system any more than you can indict a whole nation Until the race is more fully developed than now, it is hard to see how we can get along entirely without corporal punishment. But by all means let us work as fast as we can toward a condition in which reason and love are the sole weapons in family discipline.—Kate Upson Clark in Brooklyn Eagle.

DISAFFECTION IN CHINA GAINING STRENGTH

Thousands of Revolutionists Concealed in Foreign Quarters of the Cities--Agitation Has Spread to the Army.

Berlin, Aug 20.—A special despatch from Shanghai, published today, says that the situation in China especially in the Yangtse Valley, continues unsatisfactory It is impossible, the message adds, to say whether a general outbreak is impending, but the revolutionary movement gains strength daily, and the secret organizations are growing visibly The Chinese officials say that thousands of revolutionists are concealed in the foreign quarters of the cities, thus placing themselves outside the jurisdiction of the Chinese courts. The revolutionary agitation recently was carried into the army. The provincial officials are doing their utmost to suppress the revolutionary movement, especially trying to promote reforms, but they feel themselves helpless. Murderous plots against the Manchus continue to be discovered in Pekin.

Roosevelt Intimates Financial Panic was to Intimidate Him

Provincetown, Mass., Aug. 21.—The laying of the cornerstone of the Cape Cod Memorial monument with formal ceremonies, and in the presence of President Roosevelt, Governor Guild, and distinguished guests completed today the foundation of one of the most imposing structures along the Atlantic coast, commencing the first landing, within a few feet of its base, of the Pilgrim Fathers on American soil.

President Roosevelt, in the course of an address, said: "During the present trouble with the stock market I have received countless requests and suggestions, public and private, that I should say or do something to ease the situation. There is a world-wide financial disturbance; it is felt in the source of Paris and Berlin, and British consols are lower, while prices of railway securities have also depreciated. On the New York stock exchange the disturbance has been particularly severe. Most of it, I believe to be due to matters not particularly confined to the United States, and to matters, wholly unconnected with any governmental action, but it may well be that the determination of the government, in which, gentlemen, it will not waver, to punish certain malefactors of great wealth, has been responsible for something of the troubles, at least to the extent of having caused men to combine to bring about as much financial stress as they possibly can in order to discredit the policy of the government, and thereby to secure a reversal of that policy, so that they may enjoy the fruits of their own evil doing.

TO BE NO LET UP.

"That they have misled many people into believing that there should be such reversal or policy is possible If so, I am sorry, sorry, but it will not alter my attitude. Once for all, let me say that as far as I am concerned, and for the eighteen months of my administration that remain, there will be no change in the policy we have steadily pursued, no let up in the effort to secure the honest observance of the law, for I regard this contest as one to determine who shall rule this country—the people, through their governmental agents, or a few ruthless and determined men, whose wealth makes them particularly formidable because they hide behind the breast works of corporate organizations.

NOTHING VINDICTIVE.

"I wish there to be no mistake on this point It is idle to ask me not to prosecute criminals, rich or poor, but I desire no less emphatically to have it understood that we have undertaken, and will undertake, no action of a vindictive type, and above all, no action which shall in fact great or unmerited suffering upon the innocent, stockholders, and upon the public as a whole. Our purpose is to act with the minimum of harshness compatible with obtaining our ends. In the man of great wealth, who has earned his wealth honestly, and used it wisely, we recognize a good citizen, worthy of all praise and respect Business can only be done under modern conditions through corporations, and our purpose is to heartily favor the corporations that do well.

The administration appreciates that liberal but honest profit for legitimate promoters, and generous dividends for capital employed either in founding or continuing an honest business venture, are the factors necessary for successful corporate activity, and therefore for generally prosperous business conditions.

HELP ALL WHO ARE HONEST.

"All these are compatible with fair dealings as between man and man, and rigid obeyance of the law. Our aim is to help every honest man, every honest corporation, and our policy means in its ultimate analysis a healthy and prosperous expansion of business activities, of honest business men, and honest corporations.

"I very earnestly hope that the legislation which deals with the regulation of corporations engaged in inter-state business will also deal with the rights and interests of the wage workers employed by those corporations. Action was taken by the Congress last year limiting the number of hours that railway employes should be employed. The law is a good one, but if in practice it proves necessary to strengthen it, it must be strengthened. We have now secured a national employers' liability law; but ultimately a more far-reaching and thorough-going law must be passed.

"It is monstrous that a man or woman who is crippled in an industry, even as a result of taking what are the necessary risks of the occupation, should be required to bear the whole burden of the loss. That burden should be distributed and not placed solely upon the weakest individual, the one least able to carry it. By making the employer liable the loss will ultimately be distributed among all the beneficiaries."

Former Lindsay Man in Trouble

Son of Ex-Mayor Smythe Committed Forgery

The Lindsay Post says; S. W. Smythe, the ex-traveller of the S. F. Mackinnon Company, who was arrested in Brantford last week on a charge of forgery, and who pleaded guilty on two charges, namely, of placing a forged check at the R. C. Burns store and at the Bank of Hamilton, was this morning let out on suspended sentence by Magistrate Livingston of that city. Surety for $500 for the appearance of Smythe when wanted was furnished by his friends. Crown Counsel Henderson consented to the decision of the court, and took the view that Smythe did not come within the strictly criminal class and committed the offence when suffering from the effects of a spree. Magistrate Livingston strongly advised the prisoner to take the best out of his experience. The prisoner felt his position keenly. His brother appeared in court. Smythe has had a good reputation, and his father was mayor of Lindsay for four years.

Board of Trade Presents a Flag

Orillia Honors Captain of Steamer Kawartha

A flag is to be presented by the Board of Trade of Orillia to Capt. Burgoyne, of the steamer Kawatha for carrying the first excursion to Orillia from the Kawatha lakes. The flag—an ensign—is about 6 ft. by 8 ft. of deep blue silk, having in the field the town's crest—two buck deer rampant, shield and motto, "Progress Orillia," neatly done in gold leaf. It is a very fine tribute, and it is quite appropriate that the fittingly named "Kawatha" should be the first bonafide passenger boat to weld the navigation of the two waters.

A Great Game Saturday

Lindsay Will Play Here To-morrow and Cobourg on Saturday

Much interest is being taken in the baseball game to take place next Saturday at Riverside Park between Cobourg and the local nine. No doubt a bumper crowd will be in attendance to root for the local boys. Cobourg and Peterborough are tied and Saturday is the deciding game, for the winners play off with Port Hope for the championship of the Midland League This will be the best game of the season. Cobourg is sending her strongest nine here, and will try hard to win Manager Johnston was in communication yesterday with President Jecks, of the Midland League. Cobourg will be strengthned by four big leaguers, including a pitcher. The same bunch that won from Port Hope a week ago will face Cobourg, with the probable exception of Jack Connors, who may be unable to play, owing to injuries received in the last contest In case of Connors' inability to play Manager Johnston has a good "dark horse" to take his place.

The game tomorrow with the senior Lindsay nine will prove a good practice for the local's contest on Saturday Lindsay is bringing down a strong aggregation and will try hard to make up for their loss last week in their own town.

Tin Can Tinkering at the Fire Hall

How Long Are Doors at Such an Important Place to be Held By Slabs

It seems that a complaint laid many weeks ago in The Times and the other local papers concerning the new fire hall has not received due attention.

As before noted the doors leading from the stables to the main hall, are still held closed by slabs of wood. Why this is done it is hard to say, as the Fire, Water & Light Committee issued instructions to have proper openers put on those doors several months ago. Probably the management of the fire hall considers that such obsolete methods are desirable. The firemen do not think so and when orders for door openers have been authorized, they should be put on. In writing such news, the paper printing it may be accused of calling attention to Peterborough's short comings by the outside press, still real reforms are only the reaction of radical reformation and to get such reformation, public opinion must be aroused.

Beef Commission Summons Editor

Winnipeg, Aug. 21.—John J. Moncrieff managing editor of the Winnipeg Tribune, was summoned before the beef commission to divulge the name of the writer of an anonymous letter alleged to be a reflection upon witnesses who had given evidence before the commission

He was given 24 hours in which to show cause why he should not be committed for contempt of court.

SEN. COX WILL HELP ESTABLISH COLONIES

He will Advance the Salvation Army $50,000

For the Purpose of Establishing Colonies in New Ontario

Toronto, Aug. 20.—"I am going to advance them the money, if the land is suitable for settlement to start on, and will give them additional means if it is found that the land is suitable, which, I presume it is."

This statement was made by Senator Cox to a press representative this morning regarding a report that he was prepared to advance the sum of $50,000 to the Salvation Army at a reasonable rate of interest for the prosecution of their scheme to establish colonies in New Ontario, providing the land which the Army have in view for the purpose is suitable.

"We have four men up there looking over the land," Senator Cox said. "The Salvation Army sent two, I believe, the government sent one, and I sent one myself, the man who looks after the Canada Life's real estate, and knows all about land. It is their report that is under consideration.

It is proposed to purchase 250,000 acres at 25 cents an acre, and locate settlers thereon.

COULD NOT GRANT OPERATORS' REQUEST

President Shaughnessy Held That It Would Be Illegal

To Cut Off Service with the United States

Toronto, Aug 20.—A despatch was received at one o'clock today by the local C.P.R telegraph operators stating that the committee at Montreal had interviewed Mr McNichol on the matter of having the wire chiefs taken off the wires connecting with points where the strike is in force, and were informed that President Shaughnessy held that it would be illegal for them to cut off the telegraph service with the United States, and they would therefore be unable to grant the request of the men.

The C.P.R. operators will hold a meeting in Montreal tonight, and a meeting will also be held in Toronto to discuss the question.

There is much speculation in Toronto as to whether the C.P.R telegraph operators in Toronto Montreal will go on strike. In both places they are trying to have the wire-chiefs taken off the United States wires to prevent their co-operating with non-union operators in places where the strike is on They are using all the means they can with out resorting to a strike.

This attitude is due to the fact that the union recognizes the desire of the company to deal as well as possible with the men and also the difficulty the company would be placed under on account of its agreement with the Postal Telegraph Company, as well as on account of other considerations.

"I don't think there will be a strike," said a prominent member of the local union to a reporter at 1230 o'clock today "I expect that the whole matter will be amicably settled inside of a couple of days

"The wire chiefs were taken off the wires connecting with strike points at Winnipeg and Vancouver This was without conceding anything in the argument, but for the purpose of avoiding trouble through the men going on strike The wire chiefs have not been taken off in Montreal or Toronto and I cannot say whether they will or not The men in these two cities pressed for this action because it was done in the West."

Total Depravity

A man living in the south end told this great family journal about a neighbor who was asked by his wife to lay aside politics long enough to dig the potatoes in the garden. He consented, and after digging for a few minutes he returned to the house and said he had found a coin. He washed it off and it proved to be a silver quarter. He put it in his jeans and went back to work. Presently he went to the house again and said he had found another one. He washed the dirt off it and this time it was a silver half dollar. He put it in his jeans. "I have worked pretty hard," said he to his wife. "I guess I'll take a short nap." When he awoke he found that his wife had dug all the rest of the potatoes But she found no coins. It then dawned upon her that she had been "worked."

Priest Dodged Rule To Help Methodist Congregation

St Catharines, Aug. 21.—Dean Harris of this place, is one of the best known priests of the Roman Catholic Church in Canada, and is as remarkable for his literary productions, as for his ecclesiastical virtues. He is so popular with citizens of all denominations that he has found it comparatively easy to collect subscriptions from Anglicans, Baptists, Methodists, and Presbyterians. But a time came when the members of the Methodist Church determined to erect a new church and inaugurated a popular canvass for funds for that purpose. A deputation ventured to call upon Dean Harris and ask his co-operation They were met most politely, but when they explained their mission they were told it was with the most sincere regret that he was unable to help them. One member of the deputation ventured to recall that he and other Methodists had in times past assisted the dean's Church building enterprises.

"I know, I know," replied the genial priest plaintively "I'd be glad to help you, but the rules of my Church positively forbid the faithful to contribute towards the building of a Protestant church. But," he added, "what are you going to do with the old edifice?"

"We're going to pull it down," was the answer of the "heretics."

A great light dawned on the dean's countenance "And will that cost you anything?" he asked

"Several hundred dollars or so."

"That's a fine situation. Now, I'll tell you what I'll do. The mother Church has nothing to say against pulling down what the Protestants have set up, and it'll be a good deed to destroy the work of the enemy. I'll help you tear it down"

Thus the Methodists went away smiling with a substantial sum to their credit towards the demolition of the old church.

110 CHINAMEN KILLED

Berlin, Aug. 21.—The directors of the Shantung Mining Co. yesterday received a cable message from Taing Tau, announcing that an explosion of dynamite had occurred underground in the Fantage Mine, killing two Germans, and 110 Chinamen.

Deposits Lagged Investments Grew

Ottawa Bank Manager Explains Cause of Financial Stringency

Ottawa, Aug. 21.—Mr. George Burn, general manager of the Bank of Ottawa, interviewed relative to the present tight condition of the money market said that this was accounted for by the fact that the commercial loans made by the banks during the year amounted to $35,000,000 while the deposits had reached only $62,000,000. This was due to the expansion of business—for example, that in the Northwest. A great deal of money had been invested and was being invested in improvement in the Northwest, and the banks were also attending to arrangements for the carrying of the crops this fall.

Asked how it was that people could borrow money at the banks a year ago and, although offering better security now, could not do so. Mr. Burn explained particulars relative to the large investments, and thus said that while the deposits in banks had increased by $65,000,000 in 1906, they had only increased by $52,000,000 during the last year reported on. This was a big difference for a country like Canada.

Death of Mr. H. Mick's

Respected Citizens of Coe Hill Has Passed Away

Yesterday afternoon Mr A. E. Micks, the local hardware man attended the funeral of his brother, Mr. H. A. Micks, at Coe Hill, where the latter died on Sunday evening.

The deceased was about 65 years of age, and had always enjoyed good health.

He had been a farmer, but for the past few years had retired. He was a resident of Coe Hill for some fifteen years, and was very widely known and highly respected. Mr. Micks was an active worker in the Methodist Church, and for years taught a class and filled the duties of superintendent of the Sunday school. He was a Conservative and took an active part in politics.

Insults to Pope Ignored

Italy Blind to Outrages Offered Catholic Religion

Rome, Aug. 21.—In Vatican circles the passive attitude of the Italian government during the anti-church crisis is unfavorably commented upon. The parish priests of Rome have addressed a petition to the prefect of the province in which, after protesting at the outrages daily committed against the clergy, they ask whether the laws are still in force and whether it is lawful for a savage rabble composed of Jews and anti-clericals to burst with impunity the Catholic religion, which is still recognized as the religion of the state, the pope, whose person is declared by law to be sacred and inviolable, and the clergy, whose vestments are Italian citizens are entitled to liberty, respect, and personal protection.

In almost every Italian town priests and nuns have been hunted, outraged, and attacked, yet not one of their assailants has been arrested. A prominent Vatican priest says:

"Pius X commenced his pontificate with a conciliatory policy and he was forced to end it with a interdict. The same thing happened in the case of Leo 13th and were an identical change to take place now under Pius 10th the church question in Italy would be sure to assume quite a different aspect. Conciliation between church and state was both premature and impossible under Pius 5th

"But Pius 10th on the contrary, initiated quite a different policy. He never sought to arrive at an entente with the Italian government, which has ceased to protest against the occupation of Rome and the loss of his temporal power, still he has repeated proofs that he favored a modus vivendi—namely, that both church and state should continue to live side by side, each doing its part with without friction or antagonism.

Cardinal Merry del Val, the papal secretary of state, arrived at Castel Gandolfo this evening and was enthusiastically greeted by the entire population of the village. He drove in an open carriage, accompanied by Mgr. Kennedy, rector of the American college, from the station to the papal palace. The courtyard was crowded with people who repeatedly cheered the cardinal. The demonstration was considered significant as

Steamers Do Not Run on Sundays

(To the Editor of The Times.)

Sir,—In the Toronto World of yesterday's issue I saw an article evidently emanating from Peterborough which said that Rev. J. G. Potter, pastor of St. Andrew's church had, in a recent sermon, made certain remarks that are liable to be misinterpreted by readers all over the Province, but more particularly in this district. The rev. gentleman is alleged to have said, or insinuated, that Sunday excursions by steamboat are a common occurrence on these water. Now I do not say but what occasionally some gentleman owning a steam launch or yacht may sometimes ask a few friends to spend an hour or two on the waters in his launch, I do however protest most vehemently against such an imputation as cast by this gentleman, being used unless specifically. The Otonabee navigation Co., which has large interests in the summer trade on the Trent canal waters, has never nor ever will allow any of their steamers to be used for Sunday excursions, or to be used in any way on the Sabbath.

Dr Hamilton Proves That Piles Are Caused by Constipation and Strong Catharties.

Knowing the frequency with which people suffer from this ailment, Dr. Hamilton made an exhaustive study into the cause of piles.

He found that the lower part of the bowels is like a network of blood-vessels, and if subjected to persistent pressure, a section will bulge out and form what is commonly known as piles.

The only effective mode of curing this trouble is the regular use of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which can be taken before retiring. Next day will bring wonderful relief.

"I suffered up to about the limit of human endurance with piles," writes Miss Lueders, from Cornwall, Ont., "I was employed in a factory here, but for a while had to give up work till I got better of this trouble. I read in the Montreal Herald about Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and after using them for two weeks was cured. I can recommend these pills very highly; there are none better. They at once relieve and pervent a constipated condition of the bowels, and from my experience can be depended upon as a perfect safeguard against piles. Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut, I am sure, would be a benefit to every girl or woman."

Take Dr. Hamilton's Pills and your system will be regenerated, revitalized, and made proof against disease.

Good for men, excellent for women, and most effective for children. All ages and both sexes find Dr. Hamilton's Pills a marvelous medicine. Although active, they do not gripe or cause inconvenience, system, thereby maintaining a high still they cleanse and purify the standard of health. Sold by all dealers, 25c. per box, or five boxes for $1.00, or by mail, from N. C. Polson and Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S. A., and Kingston, Ont.

GREAT BRITAIN AND RUSSIA

Following close on the conclusion of the treaties between Japan and Great Britain, France and Russia for the maintenance of the present situation in the Far East, comes information of another diplomatic arrangement in no wise inferior to those agreements in its value as tending to preserve peace in Europe and Asia. This is the report than an agreement has been reached between Great Britain and Russia amicably adjusting the various outstanding differences between them in connection with the Indian frontier and the situation in Persia. A rumored Russian invasion of India has been a cause of alarm or anxiety to the British Government on several occasions during the last thirty or forty years, leading in one or two instances to actual preparations being made to meet such a contingency. While the north-west frontier was the point at which an attack by Russia was expected to be made, it has been stated from time to time that Tibet through its rulers had placed itself under Russian dominion and might prove to be a convenient place from which the enemy might descend on the fertile plains of India.

Within the last few years Persia has been the scene of rivalry betwen the two powers, great alike in both continents. Russia's influence had been very strong in Northern Persia, while that of Great Britain has been confined almost entirely to southern Persia. But in the years immediately preceding the outbreak of the Russo-Japanese War, Russian agents had been active and the influence of Russia at Teheran had become very great. The Persian Customs were managed by Belgian officials appointed with Russia's approval, and the only really effective corps in the Shah's army was equipped on a Russian model and officered by Russians. Russia made a loan to the late Shah to meet the pressing demands on him which his extravagance entailed, and in return subjects of the Czar secured a concession for bank, while the Persian government agreed to make no further foreign loans without the approval of St. Petersburg. Concurrently with these movements, Russian influence increased in southern Persia, and it became evident that an effort was being made to undermine British influence and destroy British-Indian trade in that country. The war with Japan forced the Russian government to abandon for the time being its aggressive policy in Persia. But with the close of the war the former activity was renewed. The death of the Shah and the disturbances which broke out in the various parts of the country as the result of misrule and oppression afforded Russia favorable opportunities for intrigue. It is satisfactory that both Lord Lansdowne and Sir Edward Grey made it quite plain that Great Britain intended to maintain her influence in Persia, and that an attempt on the part of any other nation to establish a naval station on the Persian Gulf would be regarded at London as an unfriendly act.

Now it would seem that the two powers have reached an understanding in regard to their respective interests in the middle as well as the Far East. By such an understanding the suspicions of the past will disappear, and each power be free to devote all its energies to the development of the trade in its own sphere and unhampered by anxieties as to the policy of its rival. There is ample scope in Asia for the utilization of all the resources that the two powers have available for the extension of peaceful commerce in the regions which have come under their control or influence. Another and not less important result of these agreements is the removal of possible causes of international disputes, and the additional support thereby secured for the maintenance of the world's peace.

AN INTERESTING CELEBRATION IN CANTON

A dispatch from Canton, China, tells of the closing of the opium dens in that city and adds that the new departure caused general rejoicing. "The streets were decorated and a number of processions headed by bands of music playing lively airs marched through the main thoroughfares."

Canton was the center of the opium trade in the old days, and it was because of events that occurred there that the opium war was waged. The Chinese authorities seized 22,000 chests of the drug in the British settlement and destroyed them. This was after the trade had been condemned and outlawed many times over by the Chinese government. A prohibitory edict was issued as early as 1796, when it was discovered that since the English had come to the front in the Orient and the British East India Company had secured an opium monopoly the exports to China from India had risen from 200 chests to several thousand chests annually.

In view of the fact that the Chinese are the chief victims of the drug today and that it has become a Chinese national curse there appears now to have been most remarkable prescience in all those old decrees. Nor should we question the the sincerity of the protests because Chinese may have engaged in the illicit trade or because the cultivation of the poppy has spread in the country. Such celebrations as that at Canton are fairly indicative of the spirit that prompted the government's policy, and there is little reason to question the assertion that the national curse was forced upon the country at the mouth of the cannon or that there has hitherto been no effective effort to check it because of the aggressive support that has been given the Indian poppy growers by the British government.

China, however, will have to prove her sincerity by steadily reducing the area for the cultivation of the poppy within her own domain before she can make much headway against the habit that has proved so injurious to her people, and she will have to carry on a very skillful campaign generally in order to do away with every pretense for the support of the Indian trade. But a fight against such an evil should have the good wishes of all civilized powers.

I will mail you free, to prove merit, samples of my Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and my Book on either Dyspepsia, The Heart or The Kidneys. Troubles of the Stomach, Heart or Kidneys, are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak Stomach nerves—the inside nerves—mean Stomach weakness, always. And the Heart, and Kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves, and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves." Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion, use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write me today for sample and free Book Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. The Restorative is sold by all dealers.

Japs Are Quiet in Philippine Islands

San Francisco, August 21.—Returning passengers on the transport Thomas are inclined to laugh at the reports of trouble between the Japanese and residents of Manila, and state that there will be no serious clashes between the little brown men and the merchants for some time to come.

"All this talk of encroachment upon the trade of Manila merchants by the Japanese is exaggerated," declared a passenger on the transport this morning. "Thus far, the Japanese in the islands seem to know their place and no efforts in the line of competition are being made by the subjects of the Mikado. There are a few Japanese engaged in carpentering work, but in no instance have I observed any attempt to crowd an American out of this labor."

Another passenger, who had spent some time in the Orient before coming to the Philippines, stated that the Japanese in the Islands acted not at all like their brothers in the Far East.

"The Japanese at home is vastly different from the Mikado's subjects in Manila. At home the Japanese boast a well developed case of swelled head and feel that they are head and shoulders above the world. No such conditions prevail in Manila, where the Jap is content to play second fiddle to the American storekeeper," declared the returning passenger.

Japanese Arriving In Large Numbers

Ottawa, Aug. 21.—Reports received by the Department of Trade and Commerce show that during the month of July 657 Japanese arrived at Victoria, with the idea of remaining in Canada, while 291 passed through en route to cities in the United States. In addition there were on steamers who did not land 401 Japanese bound into the United States, and 48 who were going to other Canadian cities. During the same period 183 Chinese came into Canada, and paid the poll tax, while there were 44 Chinese arrivals who were exempt from the tax. The Chinese figures are remarkable, as for two years subsequent to the imposition of the $500 poll tax, very few Celestials entered Canada.

Mr. R. G. MacPherson, member for Vancouver, has sent another telegram to Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in which he said that a crisis is arising in British Columbia which can only cause trouble unless something is done. It is hard to reconcile the figures of Japanese arrivals with the statement that the agreement limiting the departure of Japanese to one from each province per month, is still in force. The only explanation would seem to be that the Japanese remain for a time at Hawaii and then come on to Canada.

The Situation in China

Berlin, Augg. 21.—A special despatch from Shanghai, published today, says that the situation in China, especially in the Yang Tse valley, continues unsatisfactory. It is impossible, the message adds, to say whether a general outbreak is impending, but the revolutionary movement gains strength daily, and the secret organizations are growing visibly. The Chinese officials say that thousands of revolutionaries are concealed in the foreign quarters of the city, thus placing themselves outside the jurisdiction of the Chinese courts. The revolutionary agitation recently was carried into the army.

The Money That's Being Made in Western Canada LAND

In October, 1906 we sold 5,000 acres of Saskatchewan lands to an Indiana party of men at $8 per acre, and resold it this year at $12, making just about 100 per cent. on the money invested.

A Montreal party of men who bought 10,000 acres from us at $8 per acre last September, resold through us within three months at $10.00 per acre.

A Chicago client writes us that after making some improvements on a section she bought near Regina, one year ago, she sold out recently for exactly twice what she paid for the land.

We resold a section of land located near Lipton for a man at $18.00 per acre last April, which we sold him in December at $12.00.

Western Canada Lands offer the greatest opportunity this continent has ever known.

Men here are growing wealthy who never knew success in any other line. You can make money here too, if you think your amount too small club it with a few friends. Some of the most prominent financial men in the Canada are now interested in this country heavily.

We own about 600,000 acres of the finest wheat and mixed farming lands in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.—Picked lands on which we are prepared to give accurate trustworthy information, and these tracts being portions of extremely large purchases, we can sell them at prices that cannot be equalled, quality of land considered, by any firm in this United States and Eastern country.

Prices range from $6.00 per acre upwards Reasonable Terms in every case

Write us for further information but when doing so tell us the class and amount of an investment you desire, and whether you want the land for your own use or for investment purposes purely. $1,000 is about the minimum we can handle. References Union Bank and Traders' Bank, Winnipeg.

COPPER A 5c. POSSIBILITY

Always the persons who make fortunes are those who seize opportunities. Trudge along in the conventional rut and you will never get away from the counter or the desk.

Fortunes—the greatest mining fortunes in the world—are being made to day by the men who own Copper Mines. You couldn't buy stock in one of the big-paying, developed mines You CAN buy stock in a mine undergoing development, and if you BUY IN THE RIGHT PLACE the fortune will come.

I want you to come in and see me about the proposition I have in the Guggenheim Greenwater Copper Company's two properties at Ely and at Greenwater, Nevada. The recent copper finds at Ely are attracting the interest of a whole continent. The property which this Company owns there is in the best section, The workings are now down fifty feet, and the prospect brightens with every foot. The manager tells me he expects to strike it rich any day. So soon as he does, up goes the stock with a bound.

I still can offer a limited number of shares at 5 cents each. It's the easiest chance at a fortune you've ever had. See me about it at once.

the best mood to let her meet him in, he murmured

Then, with a deep breath, he turned. The heavy perfume had gone, the air was clear and sweet, and Ariel was pressing her face into the roses again. As he saw how like them she was he was shaken with a profound and mysterious sigh, like that which moves in the breast of one who listens in the dark to his dearest music.

CHAPTER XV.

"I KNOW how tired you are," said Ariel as he came back into the room. "I shall not keep you long."

"Ah, please do!" he returned quickly, beginning to fumble with the shade of a student lamp at one end of the desk.

"Let me do that," she said. "Sit down." He obeyed at once and watched her as she lit the lamp and, stretching upon tiptoe, turned out the gas. "No," she continued, seated again and looking across the desk at him, "I wanted to see you at the first possible opportunity, but what I have to say"—

"Wait," he interrupted. "Let me tell you why I did not come yesterday."

"You need not tell me. I know." She glanced at the chair which had been occupied by Mrs. Fear. "I knew last night that they had sent for you."

"You did!" he exclaimed. "Ah, I understand! Sam Warden must have told you."

"Yes," she said. "It was he. And I have been wondering ever since how he heard of it. He knew last night, but there was nothing in the papers this morning, and until I came here I heard no one else speak of it. Yet Canaan is not large."

Joe laughed. "It wouldn't seem strange if you lived with the Canaan that I do. Sam had been downtown during the afternoon and had met friends. The colored people are a good deal like a freemasonry, you know. A great many knew last night all about what had happened and had their theories about what might happen today in case the two men met. Still, you see, those who knew also knew just what people not to tell. The Tocsin is the only newspaper worth the name here. But even if the Tocsin had known of the trouble it wouldn't have been likely to mention it. That's a thing I don't understand." He frowned and rubbed the back of his head. "There's something underneath it. For more than a year the Tocsin hasn't spoken of Beaver Beach. I'd like to know why."

"Joe," she said slowly, "tell me something truly. A man said to me yesterday that he found life here insufferable. Do you find it so?"

"Why, no!" he answered, surprised.

"Do you hate Canaan?"

"Certainly not!"

"You don't find it dull, provincial, unsympathetic?"

He laughed cheerily. "Well, there's this," he explained: "I have an advantage over your friend. I see a more interesting side of things probably. The people I live among are pretty thorough cosmopolites in a way, and the life I lead"—

"I think I begin to understand a little about the life you lead," she interrupted. "Then you don't complain of Canaan?"

"Of course not."

She threw him a quick, bright, happy look, then glanced again at the chair in which Mrs. Fear had sat. "Joe," she said, "last night I heard the people singing in the houses, the old Sunday evening way. It took me back so!""

"Yes, it would. And something else. There's one hymn they sing more than any other. It's Canaan's favorite. Do you know what it is?"

"Is it 'Rescue the Perishing?'"

"That's it. 'Rescue the Perishing!'" he cried and, repeating the words again, gave forth a peal of laughter so hearty that it brought tears to his eyes. "'Rescue the Perishing!'"

At first she did not understand his laughter, but after a moment she did and joined her own to it, though with a certain tremulousness.

"It is funny, isn't it?" said Joe, wiping the moisture from his eyes. Then all trace of mirth left him. "Is it really you, sitting here and laughing with me, Ariel?"

"It seems to be," she answered in a low voice. "I'm not at all sure."

"You didn't think yesterday afternoon," he began almost in a whisper "you didn't think that I had failed to come because I"— He grew very red and shifted the sentence awkwardly. "I was afraid you might think that I was—that I didn't come because I might have been the same way again that I was when—when I met you at the station?"

"Oh, no!" she answered gently. "No. I knew better."

"And do you know," he faltered, "that that is all over? That it can never happen again?"

"Yes. I know it," she returned quickly.

"Then you know a little of what I owe you."

"No, no," she protested.

"Yes," he said. "You've made that change in me already. It wasn't hard—it won't be—though it might have been if—if you hadn't come soon."

"Tell me something," she demanded. "If these people had not sent for you yesterday, would you have come to Judge Pike's house to see me? You said you would try." She laughed a little and looked away from him. "I want to know if you would have come."

There was a silence, and in spite of her averted glance she knew that he was looking at her steadily. Finally, "Don't you know?" he said.

She shook her head and blushed faintly.

"Don't you know?" he repeated.

She looked up and met his eyes, and thereupon both became very grave.

"Yes, I do," she answered. "You would have come. When you left me at the gate and went away you were afraid. But you would have come."

"Yes, I'd have come. You are right. I was afraid at first, but I knew," he went on rapidly, "that you would have come to the gate to meet me."

"You understood that?" she cried, her eyes sparkling and her face flushing happily.

"Yes. I knew that you wouldn't have asked me to come," he said, with a catch in his voice which was half chuckle, half groan, "if you hadn't meant to take care of me. And it came to me that you would know how to do it."

She leaned back in her chair, and again they laughed together, but only for a moment, becoming serious and very quiet almost instantly.

"I haven't thanked you for the roses," he said.

"Oh, yes, you did! When you first looked at them."

"So I did," he whispered. "I'm glad you saw. To find them here took my breath away—and to find you with them"—

"I brought them this morning, you know."

"Would you have come if you had not understood why I failed yesterday?"

"Oh, yes, I think so!" she returned, the fine edge of a smile upon her lips. "For a time last evening, before I heard what had happened, I thought you were too frightened a friend to bother about."

He made a little ejaculation, partly joyful, partly sad.

"And yet," she went on, "I think that I should have come this morning after all even if you had a poorer excuse for your absence, because, you see, I came on business."

"You did?"

"That's why I've come again. That

PRAYERS BEFORE BATTLE

Curious Invocations by Famous Historical Personages.

One of the earliest records in history of a prayer before battle is that of Childeric, king of Gaul, a pagan, who before going into battle at Zuelpich, some 400 years after Christ, prayed to the God of the Christians to help him to victory. His foe was Attila, king of the Huns, and Childeric vowed if God would give him the victory he would embrace the Christian faith.

The prayer of a Hungarian officer before one of the battles fought for the independence of Hungary in 1849 was as follows: "I will not ask thee, Lord, to help us, and I know thou wilt not help the Austrians, but if thou wilt sit on yonder hill thou shalt not be ashamed of thy children." This was the prayer of the "Fighting Bishop" Leslie before one of the battles fought in Ireland: "O God, for our unworthiness we are not fit to claim thy help, but if we are bad our enemies are worse, and if thou seest not meet to help us we pray thee help them not, but stand thou neuter on this day and leave it to the arm of the flesh."

The one offered before the battle of Edgehill by Sir Jacob Astley was, "Thou knowest, O Lord, that I shall be very busy this day, and if I forget thee forget thou not me," and then the command followed, "March on, boys!" As King Edward advanced with his columns to Bannockburn he remarked to his aids, seeing the Scotch on their knees: "See, they kneel. The rebels are asking pardon." D'Umphraville was heard to remark: "Yes, but it is to the King of kings. These men conquer or die on this field."

Oliver Cromwell had public prayers before going to battle on several occasions, as, for instance, previous to the battle of Dunbar. It is a curious fact that the English prayer book contains prayers, or at least one prayer, to be said before going into action at sea, while nothing is provided for use before engagements on land.

Most of us are guilty of sins of omission because they involve less effort than the other kind.

Weak Kidneys

Weak Kidneys surely point to weak kidney Nerves. The Kidneys, like the Heart, and the Stomach, find their weakness, not in the organ itself, but in the nerves that control and guide and strengthen them. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is a medicine specifically prepared to reach these controlling nerves. To doctor the Kidneys alone, is futile. It is a waste of time, and of money as well.

If your back aches or is weak, if the urine scalds, or is dark and strong, if you have symptoms of Brights or other distressing or dangerous kidney disease, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative a month—Tablets or Liquid—and see what it can and will do for you. Druggist recommend and sell

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry must be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made on certain conditions, by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the homestead conditions under one of the following plans:—

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of the homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Six months' notice in writing should be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of intention to apply for patent.

Bank of Goldfield, Nevada.

This company owns 4 claim (80 acres) of some of the best proved mineral land in the Goldfield district, consisting of the Arcadia and Accidental No. 2 lode claims, situated two and one-half miles south of the great Goldfield Consolidated Mines (comprising the Mohawk, Goldfield, Combination, Red Top, Jumbo and Laguna) the richest in the world, and the Broadway and Beauty lode claims situated three and one-half miles north of the Consolidated and about one and one-half miles northwest of the Great Bend and Daisy Mines near the Zeon group in the Diamondfield section second only in richness to the great Mohawk portion of the camp.

The company has also succeeded in securing the Sure Thing lode claim (20 acres) in the Cuprite district, which has outcroppings equal to anything in Goldfield, showing fine surface values and is without doubt rightly named, "Sure Thing."

All of these claims are located in the same mineral belt as the other noted mines of Goldfield that have astonished the world by their production of millions in high grade ore, and will with the same development give equally profitable returns.

The money derived from the sale of this stock will be used at once for the active development of the property and the fact that all the directors are residents of Goldfield with years of successful mining experience who will give their personal attention at all times to the progress of the work goes to show that the first issue of 100,000 shares will meet with a quick and ready sale at the initial price of 10 cents per share.

We advise immediate action if you wish to participate in the vast profits of this Bonanza Mine.

Stock will be listed as soon as feasible on the Goldfield and San Francisco Stock and Exchange Boards. We therefore advise purchasers to buy in board lots of 1,000 shares when convenient to do so.

SINKING SENSATIONS IN THE STOMACH.

Do They Affect You?

These unpleasant feelings of weakness and collapse indicate that the sympathetic nervous system is out of order.

The cause is impairment of nerve tone, arising from failure of the stomach to perform its work.

Acute indigestion follows and the natural result is mental depression, and a feeling of collapse and extreme weakness.

It acts at once upon the digestive and assimilative organs—it fortifies the stomach—makes the blood nourishing, gives it a rich, red color, the best evidence of health.

"For ten years I suffered acutely from stomach trouble," writes Mr. Maxwell Thompson, of Toledo, "I always had a headache and full feeling after meals. My appetite was poor, and I didn't relish food. It was all due to a weak, defective stomach. I read about Ferrozone and ordered six boxes from my druggist. It was no time at all before I felt much better, and when all the Ferrozone was used I really took a new lease of life. I am stronger, brighter, and feel more like work than before trying Ferrozone. It is a splendid tonic, the best I ever used."

Ferrozone is unrivalled in curing stomach ailments, try it and be convinced. Sold by all druggists in 50c. boxes

Haliburton is All Right

Bob. Independent: Haliburton is still booming, all four mills we can say, as Cain's mill is not far out of the village, in full blast. Cattle being shipped every other day or so. No houses to rent; although lots wanted. Potatoes not too bad, glorious weather, and lots of pretty girls strolling around the streets, so what is the matter with Haliburton? It's alright, and next year it will be better than never, as the papers say bout the shows.

Told He Robbed A Bank

Yesterday afternoon a local professional man, who had dallied too long and too frequently with alcoholic stimulants was gathered in by P. C. McDonald and taken to the police station. The poor fellow was told by some one, who was a would-be joker that he was arrested for breaking into the Canadian Bank of Commerce and trying to rob the bank. As his arrest was effected in front of that building, the prisoner thought there was some mistake made, as he is not, nor ever was a man likely to rob a bank.

Roller Rink Opens To-morrow Night

Yesterday the Charlotte street roller skating rink awoke from its summer siesta and is once more a scene of business in preparation for the fall season. Mr. S. B. Sheridan, with a staff of men, was busily engaged in overhauling his hundreds of roller skates, oiling and getting the ball bearings into shape. The rink will open tomorrow night. A week from Thursday night a masquerade carnival will be held, which promises to be both a novelty and a success, as quite a number of people have ordered costumes from Toronto. In reply to the question put by a Times representative as to the age at which a roller skate plays out, Mr. Sheridan showed the Times man a row of boxes containing the various parts of the skates, so that they are practically indestructible. Each skate contains 72 balls in its bearings about the axles.

$100 REWARD, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer one hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Yesterday street car traffic along Charlotte street was slightly delayed as passengers going either east or west on the new bridge had to disembark and walk to the car waiting at the opposite side. The tracks directly over the bridge are now three feet higher than usual to permit work being prosecuted on the new structure. A large gang of men were working at each approach to the elevated rails preparing to make a gradual rise, some 70 feet long both east and west (which will be connected with the elevated rails so as to assist in hastening the Jackson Park passenger traffic.

Conservatives Meet This Evening.

A special meeting of the Executive Committee of the Liberal-Conservative Association of the west riding of Peterborough, has been called by the president, Mr. James Kendry, for this evening at eight o'clock in the Young Conservative Club rooms. A full attendance is requested as business of importance will be considered.

A special meeting of the Young Conservative Club Executive is called for the same hour and place this evening. A full representation should be on hand. Every member of the executives of both the Liberal-Conservative Association and the Young Men's Club should make it a point to be present.

A Interesting Wedding

Miss Gracie Lillicrap Wedded to Mr. Herbert Stuart at Lakefield

Yesterday in the Baptist church, Lakefield, Miss Gracie Lillicrap, only child of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Lillicrap, became the bride of Mr. Herbert Stuart of Calgary, Alberta, the officiating clergyman being the Ven. Archdeacon Warren of Toronto, assisted by the Rev. W. J. Creighton, incumbent of the parish.

The ceremony was performed in the presence of a large number of guests, and afterwards a reception was held at the residence of the bride's parents. The bride was attired in white silk Princess style trimmed with Bebe Irish lace and white silk applique, white embroidered veil and orange blossoms. The bridesmaid, Miss Kathleen Blomfield, was dressed in pink Dresden muslin with trimmings of Cluny lace, over white satin, and white lace hat trimmed with pink.

The best man was Mr Grover, of the Bank of Toronto, Toronto. The happy pair drove to Peterborough, en route to Toronto, where they will spend a few days.

"The Blood is The Life."

Science has never gone beyond the above simple statement of scripture. But it has illuminated that statement and given it a meaning ever broadening with the increasing breadth of knowledge. When the blood is "bad" or impure it is not alone the body which suffers through disease. The brain is also clouded, the mind and judgement are affected, and many an evil deed or impure thought may be directly traced to the impurity of the blood. Pure, impure blood can be made pure by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It enriches and purifies the blood, thereby curing pimples, blotches, eruptions and other cutaneous affections, as eczema, tetter, or salt-rheum, boils and other manifestations of impure blood.

In the cure of scrofulous sores, ulcers, enlarged glands, open eating sores, or old sores, the "Golden Medical Discovery" has performed the most marvelous cures. In cases of old sores, or open eating ulcers, it is well to apply to the open sores Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve, which possesses wonderful healing potency when used as an application to the sores in conjunction with the use of "Golden Medical Discovery" as a blood cleansing constitutional treatment. If your druggist don't happen to have the "All-Healing Salve" in stock, you can easily procure it by inclosing fifty-four cents in postage stamps to Dr. R. V. Pierce, 663 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y., and it will come to you by return post. Most druggists keep it as well as the "Golden Medical Discovery."

You can't afford to accept any medicine of unknown composition as a substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery," which is a medicine of KNOWN COMPOSITION, having a complete list of ingredients in plain English on its bottle-wrapper, the same being attested as correct under oath.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels.

CANADA HAS ARRIVED.

How Dominion Has Grown and Prospered Since Confederation.

Canada recently celebrated the 40th anniversary of her present political organization. The provinces then known as Upper Canada and Lower Canada held their first united Parliament in Kingston on June 14, 1841. The demonstration under that system of Canada's ability to manage her own affairs led to the confederation, which became effective on July 1, 1867. The anniversary of this event is known as Dominion Day.

Forty years ago Canada's population was a little less than 3,500,000. To-day it is probably not far from 6,000,000. In this respect the country has grown but slowly. Few immigrants came in, and many Canadians crossed the border to share in the large growth and the greater prosperity of the United States. The census of 1901 shows only 5.2 per cent. of the entire population as of foreign birth. The census of 1911 will in all probability show a marked change in this respect. Many Canadians are returning to their own country and large numbers are going in to become Canadians of alien birth. Within the last five years the arrivals have increased more than threefold, and Canada is now getting more than 300,000 new citizens a year from other lands.

In 1868 Canada had only 2,269 miles of railway in all her vast domain. She now has about 22,000 miles, and in a few years will have 30,000. Her foreign trade 1868 was $131,000,000. The next thirty years increased that to $200,000,000. The succeeding decade lifted it to the figures of last year, $567,000,000, a very striking total for so small a population. In 1868 Canada's bank discounts were $56,000,000. They are now well above $500,000,000. In 1868 there were 3,638 postoffices. There are now more than 10,000. Her mail business has grown from the 18,600,000 letters posted in 1868 to nearly 300,000,000 at the present time. She has paid enormous sums in bounties to industries, and even larger sums to develop railway and canal systems.

The first three decades of her 40 years of experience as a Confederation were a time of plowing and planting. For the last ten years she has been garnering an ever-increasing crop. She was slow in finding herself, but it may be said to-day that Canada has arrived.—New York Sun.

FARMING IN SASKATCHEWAN.

Province Promises to Become Ideal Agricultural Country.

There has just been completed in the Province of Saskatchewan a series of Farmers' Institute meetings. The province was divided into two series, for each of which a delegation of two speakers was provided. The speakers were Mr. C. M. MacKay, B.S.A., Mr. Duncan Anderson, of Orillia, for the Live Stock branch, and Mr. T. N. Willing, inspector of weeds in Saskatchewan, and Mr. A. P. Ketchen, deputy commissioner of agriculture for that province.

Owing to the lateness of the meetings the earlier ones were poorly attended, as most of the farmers had not finished seeding, but during the latter half of the period the meetings were exceedingly well attended.

Messrs. Anderson and MacKae report that although growth was very slow in commencing that it has made such rapid progress since the summer weather and the rains have come that vegetation is very little behind what it was at the same period last year.

These gentlemen report that the live stock, particularly in the eastern part of the province, have come through the winter in excellent condition. The farmers were supplied with an abundance of hay and oat straw, with which they were able to bring through their stock in really fine condition.

Mr. Anderson is enthusiastic with regard to the portion of the country which he visited north of the Saskatchewan. The land is rolling and much better adapted to mixed farming than wheat growing. He considers that there is a wide field for the milking Shorthorn. While beef cattle are needed they will be much more valuable to the farmers if they are able to produce a good quantity of milk. Cream gathering creameries are springing up and these will be able to take care of a large quantity of milk from dual purpose cows. From the class of settlers in a large portion of the country and the physical features of the land, it would appear that in a very few years there would be a very extensive output of butter, cheese and bacon. With this combination associated with wheat growing, the rolling sections of Saskatchewan promise to become an ideal farmers country.

DOLLAR PEACHES THIS YEAR--CROP IS 40 PER CENT.

Housekeepers will not be Able to Make Up Shortage in the Small Fruit

Grapes Will be Plentiful but a Good Price-- Cold Weather the Cause

Grimsby, Aug. 22. — Housekeepers who have been expecting to make up for the scarcity of strawberries and raspberries by preserving an extra supply of peaches are going to be disappointed. There may not be dollar wheat in the West, but there will be dollar peaches in the Niagara Peninsula.

From extensive inquiries through the fruit belt from Stoney Creek to Niagara-on-the-Lake the best information that can be gained is that the peach crop will this year be from one-third to one-half a normal crop. Perhaps 40 per cent. would be a high average of the estimates given your correspondent.

The early and late Crawfords—the peach that made Niagara famous—are almost a complete failure. They will not average the tenth of a crop. The Elberta, which is a second-grade peach, lately introduced because of its superior shipping qualities, which fit it for the Northwest trade, is a good crop almost all over the district, but the Elberta does not constitute more than 20 per cent. of the total crop. Other varieties are half a crop or less, so that altogether, perhaps 40 per cent. will be a liberal estimate.

The earlier reports sent out of an average crop were too optimistic, based on the number of fruit buds. However, owing to the late, cold spring, and the absence of bees at the right time to fertilize the blossoms, the fruit did not "set," and consequently men who were counting on thousands of baskets will now be glad to get that many hundred.

Of all the varieties of fruit, grapes alone promise a full crop, but growers confidently expect that the prices for these will be high because of the scarcity of other fruit. Growers state that no grapes will be sold this year lower than $30 per ton.

The scarcity of all kinds of fruit this year has about finished the commission agent, so far as this district is concerned. Practically no fruit has this year been shipped on commission, but buyers from Montreal and Toronto and local firms have bought and paid for fruit on the station platform or in the orchard. This is what the grower wants, because shipping fruit on commission was always a gamble and conduced to low prices and careless handling.

Rajah Upholds the Selling of Women

Himalayan Says Purchased Person Frequently Marries Happily and Both Contented

Simla, British India, Aug. 22.—In the Himalayas, lying between the fashionable European hill stations of Simla and Mussoorie, lies the little native state of Kothi. It has long been the practice to hold an annual fair in the Sipi valley, in this state, at which women of all ages are exhibited.

The British government has put a stop to the publicity of these sales, but the fair is still held, and women, fine featured and of sturdy figure, clad in the gaudiest of costumes, assemble in hundreds to do homage to the crudely carved little wooden god who rules over the destines of the state and watch the fair as they squat down on the terraced hillside.

The Rajah said to a correspondent: "The public exhibition of women for sale works splendid in practice. When a man and a woman loved each other the man earned enough and bought her, and whether she was married or not, the purchase money satisfied any claim others might have on her."

To objections this pig-eyed, bamboo-colored potentate merely shook his head and repeated that the practice was a good one for his people.

Ottawa, Aug. 21.—An estimate of 95,000,000 bushels has been placed on the wheat crop by Col. A. D. In Saskatchewan and Alberta he says the wheat crop will be heavier per acre than ever before.

Yellow Peril is no Joke to Starr

Says Japs Would Whip the United States Easily Owing to Conditions

Chicago, Aug. 22.—Professor Frederick Starr, anthropologist of the University of Chicago, believes Japan could whip the United States in war. He says it is a mistake to send the great American fleet into the Pacific, as the ships are quite likely to show how inefficient the navy is.

His views were presented in an address on "Japan" yesterday in All Souls' church. Among the pointed statements he made were these:

"Japan, from our standard, has no superior as a world power today.

"I am not afraid of a yellow peril. Think of what the white peril has been. Where are the red men and the black men?

"We are inclined to think the Russian army was rotten. But Russia was the only power which stood a chance with Japan.

"Do you think our army, with 10,000 deserters a year, whose men complain of codfish for breakfast, detest the marches from day to day, who clamor about the small pay they receive, could stand up against the Japanese?

"I do not know if we will have a war with Japan.

"I hope not; if we do, it will be our own fault. Japan will not start it."

A Quiet Wedding at St. Peter's Cathedral

Yesterday morning in St. Peter's Cathedral, Miss Mary Philomena, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. P. Begley, was made the bride of Mr. Hugh Francis McFadden of Lindsay. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father McGoll, in the presence of a number of the friends and relatives of the contracting parties. The bride, was attired in a neat travelling costume, and was assisted by her cousin, Miss Mary Begley of Lindsay. Mr. James Gilloghy of Lindsay, was best man.

At the conclusion of the wedding ceremony the happy couple drove to the residence of the bride's brother, Mr. T. J. Begley, Victoria avenue, where a wedding breakfast was partaken of.

Mr. and Mrs. McFadden left on the 5.33 G.T.R. train for Toronto, and on their return will take residence in Lindsay.

Rev. J. G. Potter Gives an Explanation

The Times Finds that the Press Has Made Exaggerations

In conversation, yesterday, with the Rev. J. G. Potter, regarding the recently, alleged, statements made by him on temperance matters, as directly connected with a specified hotel, that gentleman noted that the local evening press had greatly exaggerated his remarks, in fact, they had conveyed a wrong impression altogether Mr. Potter said, in conversation, yesterday, that he had no desire or intention of casting reflections upon any prominent member of any other church, as regards any member drinking at the Burleigh Falls hotel. He did, however place the disturbances created by the drunken Indians in a new, and less admirable light before The Times man. Rev. Mr. Potter may have seemed, to some of our readers, to lack a certain amount of salt, still his explanation shows that he did his duty as he saw the execution thereof.

Boy Playing with Dynamite Hurt

Sad Tale From Belleville Regarding High Explosive

A Belleville despatch says that playing with a stick of dynamite resulted seriously for a six-year-old son of Mr. Arthur Price. The lad picked up a piece of dynamite stick and commenced to break it up with a stone. The result was that an explosion occurred. The top of the boy's thumb and the tips of two fingers of the right hand were blown off, his face and chest were badly lacerated, and the left eye injured to such an extent that it is feared that the eye-sight is destroyed. As soon as possible the boy was brought to the city to receive medical treatment.

American Girls are Kidnapped

Former Russian General Wants Women of America to Stop It.

New York, August 21.—Count Tcherep Spiridovitch, former major-General in the Russian army and leader of the Turkish liberty movement, sailed for Europe on the Corenia yesterday. The Count will shortly issue an appeal to the American women to help end the kidnaping of beautiful girls from Europe, Asia and this country for the Turkish harems and free the kidnapped women from the harems.

In his opinion a Turkish uprising may come this summer or autumn. Regarding the kidnapping of the women, the general said;

"I know that thousands of the women from every country in the world are brought every year to the harems. They soon become consumptives and die. I have been an eyewitness of this terrible traffic."

Safety in Submarines is Assured by New Invention

London, Aug. 22.—Crews of submarines have hitherto undertaken their duty with the unpleasant consciousness, that if disaster befell the vessel, their chances of escape were slight in the extreme. It is no longer.

Commander S. S. Hall, inspecting commander of submarines, and Staff Surgeon Rees, of H.M.S. Mercury, have at last perfected an apparatus which renders catastrophies such as that which overtook the men of the A 1 an impossibility, and which will enable the crew of a submarine to escape from the vessel, even though it be filled with water or poisonous gases.

Examinations of wrecked submarines after salvage show that the conditions prevailing in a submarine when a large quantity of water enters are such that if life is to be preserved, three definite problems must be solved;

Saving the crew from the effects of noxious fumes generated by the salt water which gained access to the electrical storage batteries.

Saving the crew from drowning in the submarine.

Enabling the crew to escape from the boat and ascend to the surface.

The new apparatus has been proved by experiments at Portsmouth to fulfil all these conditions, and will probably soon be adopted officially by the admiralty for use in the British fleet.

THE HELMET.

In appearance the new invention is like a diving helmet, made of light metal, with a canvas jacket. It weighs only about ten pounds and can be attached in a few seconds.

The air breathed by the wearer is used overe and over again. The poisonous carbonic acid gas of the respired air is absorbed by a special substance called oxylithe, which also restores to the air the requisite amount of oxygen and renders it fit again for breathing.

A practical demonstration of the apparatus was given yesterday at the works of Messrs Siebe, Gorman & Co., Limited, submarine engineers, to the British admiralty.

The firm has an enormous experimental tank, in which Chief Petty Officer Hines, of the royal navy, descended, equipped with the new life-saving device. The effect of the apparatus is to bring the person wearing it to the surface and consequently Hines had to wear heavy weights, so that he could climb down the ladder to the floor of the tank.

There were glass windows in the tank, through which Hines could be seen walking about with as little discomfort as if he were on land. All this time, of course, he was obtaining no fresh supply of air from outside, the headgear giving him all the necessary oxygen.

Suddenly Hines released the weights from his body, and as would be the case were he escaping from the conning tower of a submarine, he rose swiftly to the surface, where the dress acted as a life-buoy.

Commander Hall, who was watching the experiment, told a newspaper representative that, equipped with the new apparatus, a man could live in the most poisonous fumes for an hour and twenty minutes.

FATAL GAS.

Chlorine gas, which generates immediately sea water gets into the submarine batteries, he said, was fatal in very small quantities. Even apart from being actually dangerous to life, the smallest trace in the air will cause such coughing that work is impossible just when it is most needed to get rid of the water in the boat, and perhaps to get her to the surface.

Special arrangements, Commander Hall added, are provided in submarines for enabling the crews to open the hatch of the conning under all conditions, so that they could come to surface, where the patent dress would act as a life-buoy until they were picked up.

Terrible Execution Among the Moors By the French.

Casablanca, Aug. 21.—Undeterred by their great losses yesterday estimated by Jewish couriers at two thousand dead, the Moors again advanced this morning in a great semi-circle with the evident intention of trying to envelope the city. The guns of the warships began bombarding the advancing tribesmen.

EXECUTION BY MACHINE GUNS.

Paris, Aug. 21.—The correspondent of the Matin at Casablanca speaks in loud praise of the 65-millimetre gun, fourteen rounds of which, he says, put 1,500 Arabs to flight. In attacking the center of the camp on the right the Arab horsemen galloped to within four hundred yards of French positions where two rapid-fire guns had been mounted on the roof of a farm building. These guns opened each with five hundred shots per minute, swept the ground with a rain of lead and covered it with the dead and dying.

Paris, Aug. 21. — The government has received confirmation from Fez of the report that the Sultan has declared his intention to send a deputation of notable Moors to Tangier, but neither the object of their mission nor date of departure is known. The announcement is regarded as a "bluff" on the part of the Sultan to appease the anti-foreign sentiment of the fanatics. It was made during the excitement caused by the ceremonies commemorating the birth of the prophet, and even if the deputation comes to Tangier, it is considered doubtful whether it will be received by the diplomatic corps. The government has received confirmation of the report that Mulai Hafi, the Sultan's brother, has been proclaimed Sultan. The news is creating excitement, especially in the neighborhood of Morocco City. The government advices from Mazagan are disquieting. The situation generally looks grave.

KAID MACLEAN'S SURRENDER

London, Aug. 21.—A special despatch from Tangier, dated August 19, says that Kaid Sir Harry Maclean was to have been surrendered that day to El Mersni, the uncle of the Sultan, and that he is to be brought into Alcazar today.

Destructive Fire at Downeyville

Mr. Pat Meehan is a Loser by the Rampant Fire Fiend

A Lindsay despatch says that a destructive fire occurred two miles north of Downeyville, when the barn and outbuildings owned by Mr. P. J. Meehan were destroyed by fire. Forty-five tons of hay, five or six hogs, valuable agricultural implements, harness, grain and a grist mill, were also burned. Although the loss is practically covered by insurance it will be a severe setback for Mr. Meehan. The cause of the fire is still unknown. Several hundred people gathered, but nothing could be done. The dwelling was saved with the utmost difficulty. The loss to Mr. Meehan will be a most severe one, his total hay drop being destroyed.

Mr. Pat. Hickey, wine clerk at the King Edward Hotel, town, was present at the fire, and stated that it was one of the worst seen in Victoria County for years.

New Steamer for Supt. McClellanp

Government Supplies Boat to Inspect the Trent Valley Canal

It seems that Superintendent McClelland, with his proverbial interest in the work done on the Trent Valley canal, has arranged for a new steamer, for inspection purposes. The new boat, which will be in commission in about six weeks, will be 80 feet long by 17 feet broad. She will be called the "Bessie Butler," and the contract for her construction was let to the Polson Iron Works, Toronto. Two car loads of her machinery have arrived in the city. The work on the steamer was all done in Toronto. The steamer will be equipped with compound engines and power will be supplied by Scotch boilers. The cost of the steamer will be about $16,000 and complete with furnishings, etc., probably $2,000 more. She will have a speed of fifteen miles an hour.

The Great Contest on Saturday

Cobourg Sports Will be Here in Large Numbers to See the Game

Come and see the Eastern League outfit up against Manager Johnston's saucy bunch of ball tossers Saturday. Word has been received from Cobourg that there will be great doings when that bunch of "Dooty's" stalk up against the local team. The wealthy American tourists who are summering in the Lakeside town have responded liberally to the subscription list to aid in bringing in players from over the border to put it on Peterborough's eye, and it is said the manager of the Cobourg nine has landed a few good ones, including one of the best twirlers in the Eastern League. Well they'll need 'em all. Wait until you see Corney Burns and Capt. Burridge, and a few of the locals use the gad on their imported twirler. It was a shame the way they got after that American League twirler in Cobourg a few weeks ago when they hammered him right off the dump.

The locals have got right at themselves, are in the pink of condition, and are out to win. They recognize the fact that they will have to be on their best behavior to score a victory Saturday.

The winners of Saturday's game will play off with Port Hope for the Midland League championship.

Morocco in an Alarming State

Paris, Aug. 22.—The Moroccan situation is regarded here as having assumed a distinctly more serious aspect. The ferment in the interior of Morocco, the proclamation of Mulai Hafig, the Sultan's brother, as sultan by a section of the rebels, and the appearance of a new Moorish army before Casablanca have created the fear that the whole country will soon be ablaze with fanaticism.

General Drude, commander of the French force at Casablanca, has now practically asked for reinforcements, points out that his men are worn out with being constantly under arms, but especially insisting that he is losing the advantage gained by his successes because the limited force at his disposal prevents him from following up his victories. Public sentiment in France is becoming stronger against the present half-way measures, which, it is feared, will only lead to disaster.

Special despatches received here today from Tangier say that Mulai Hafig, the brother of the Sultan of Morocco, who recently was proclaimed Sultan, is marching on Casablanca with 15,000 Moorish reinforcements recruited from the most fierce and fanatical tribesmen of the South of Morocco.

The French press expects that Premier Clemenceau's interview with King Edward at Marienbad will be useful to France in the event of complications in Morocco, as it will enable the premier to know in advance the personal views of Emperor William and Emperor Francis Joseph on the Moroccan situation.

A MERE FLASH IN PAN; WEIR'S ESTIMATE OF BOURASSA

TREATED SQUARELY

Toronto, Aug 21.—C. P. R. telegraph operators held a meeting at the Aberdeen Hotel last night to discuss the situation and consider several communications received from the union. It was unanimously resolved that as the C.P.R. had treated them squarely all through the trouble they would continue to work and would take no active part in the strike.

Asks That Boycott be Made Illegal

Legal Action Has Been Taken Against National Labor Leader.

Washington, Aug. 22.—A significant legal action was begun in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia yesterday by James W. Van Cleave, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, to enjoi nSamuel Gompers, John Mitchell and other officers of the American Federation of Labor and several of its subsidiary organizations from using the boycott and so-called "unfair list." Mr. Van Cleave institutes the suit in his capacity as the head of a large manufacturing company in St. Louis, whose products are alleged to have been declared unfair by the labor unions, and the significance of the action lies in its being a test case, wherein Mr. Van Cleave, as head of the Manufacturers' Association, seeks to permanently enjoin organized labor from using the "unfair" or "we don't patronize" lists in its fight against the firms and individuals. The papers were filed here in order that persons service might be immediately obtained against a large number of labor leaders named in the complaint who are in Washington in attendance upon a general conference.

The bill asks for a permanent injunction against Samuel Gompers and Frank Morrison, of Washington; John V. Lennon, of Bloomington, Ill.; James Duncan, of Quincy, Mass.; John Mitchell, of Indianapolis; James O'Connell, of Washington; Max Morris, of Denver; Dennis A. Hayes, of Philadelphia; Daniel J. Keefe, of Detroit; Wm. D. Huber, of Indianapolis; John F. Valentine, of Cincinnati, all of the American Federation of Labor; also R. L. Thiston, C. O. Buckington, H. C. Poppe, A. J. Cooper, and E. L. Hickman, as individuals, and as officers of the Electrotypers' and Stereotypers' and Stereotypers' Finishers, No. 15, and members of the International Stereotypers' Union. The complainant is the Buck Stove and Range Company, of St. Louis.

INJUNCTIONS ASKED FOR.

The plaintiffs ask that the defendants be enjoined on nine special points, first, alleging a conspiracy, unlawfully to injure their business. These points are as follows:

"From in any manner carrying on a conspiracy to restrain and destroy the business of the plaintiff; from agreeing or combining to interfere in any manner with the business of the plaintiff or any other person, corporation or firm, from boycotting, or attempting or threatening to boycott the plaintiff or the plaintiff's business; from publishing or distributing through the mails any copy of the American Federationist, the organ of the American Federation of Labor, which printing the name of the plaintiff under its "We don't patronize" or "unfair" list, or which containing any statement that the plaintiff is or has been unfair; from publishing or circulating in any way, in pursuance of the alleged conspiracy, in writing or orally, any statement to the injury of the product of the plaintiff's factory; from recommending or stating to customers of the plaintiff or dealers or the public that the plaintiff's factory has been boycotted, and that its goods should not be dealt in, or for the purpose of coercing any dealer or person not to purchase the plaintiff's product; from threatening or intimidating the customers of the plaintiff from giving any orders or directions to committees, associations, officers, agents or others for the performance of any acts or threats which would interfere with the plaintiff's business, and from carrying on the alleged conspiracy to prevent the plaintiff from conducting his proper business in any other states or territories of the Union."

The complaint states that the American Federation of Labor comprises 120 national jurisdictions, and has during the past twenty years repeatedly declared and prosecuted products of numerous individuals and concerns, and that the Federation's combined power is now being directed against the business of the plaintiff.

The complaint says that the Federation has greatly diminished, and in many places destroyed the company's trade, and that if the federation is permitted to communicate its alleged conspiracy the company was unable to dispose of its goods, and will be caused great and irremediable injury, and alleges that it will require a great many actions at law to recover the damages and the complainant has no claim to speedy or adequate remedy at law.

The sweeping nature of this action is dictated by a partial list of national and international unions that will be directly affected if the injunction is granted which is made an exhibit in the case and which includes 173 names of organizations.

Believes the New Independent Will Soon Pater Out

The Conservatives will Fight in Quebec at the Next Election

Toronto, Aug., 22.—"Bourassa will soon peter out," declared Hon. W. A. Weir Minister of Public Works for the Province of Quebec, when spoken to by a press representative at the close of the insurance banquet last evening.

"I do not believe he will have five candidates in the field. He can't keep his followers for long. He is too much of a dictator. The two he has in the House of Commons are mere boys; they like the notoriety they are getting now as his "lieutenants." When they get older and begin to feel their oats, they will rebel at his leadership and leave him."

"What attitude do you intend to take towards his platform?" the reporter asked.

"We are not feeling at all alarmed. Most of what he advocates is already in force, the rest—well."

NO MORE WALK-OVERS.

"Do you think the Conservatives will repeat what they did at the last election and place no candidates in the field?"

"No, they will oppose us in every constituency they can, that election they were very silly. They thought that dissensions would spring up when we had no regular opposition, but they have been fooled. They won't try such a senseless trick again.

"Do you think that they will unite with Bourassa?"

"No, there will be separate parties, but as I said before, the Bourassa movement won't amount to much. Bourassa is a good stump speaker, but altogether a destructive critic. He can't last on that."

"Will Mr. Gouin make an appeal to the province in the near future?"

"No, there is almost sure to be another session, probably in November. The legislature is only three years old, and may last for a year or eighteen months more."

"Then the investigation into the management of public lands hasn't shaken the government much?"

Mr. Weir only smiled and shook his head.

"In your address tonight you sided with the insurance men as against the findings of the commission. Does that foreshadow special insurance legislation in Quebec Province?" was asked.

"Not necessarily, although there may be some to the limit of our powers."

"Will you ask a province support the insurance men before the Ottawa government?"

"No, we can hardly do that; they must fight their own battles."

Mr. Weir returned to Quebec yesterday.

Want the Road

Ottawa Electric Railway May Change Hands

Ottawa, Aug. 22.—American capitalists having obtained a price for the acquisition of the Ottawa Electric Railway, a movement to secure the ownership of the road by the city is again on foot. The price named is in American funds, in addition to floating liabilities of a matter of a million and a hundred indebtedness of half a million. The capitalization is some million, and last year's net earnings were 12 per cent. out of which a dividend of 12 per cent was paid the balance being carried to the reserve. The company's franchise has fifteen years to run, and at the end of that time the city has the right to take over the property at a valuation to be fixed by arbitration. Representatives of South American syndicate have been here inquiring into the terms on which the Ottawa Electric Light Company and the Ottawa Gas Company, now under one control, can also be secured, and prices have been quoted, but no options have been given in either of these cases or in that of the electric railway company.

Old Peterboro Resident Here

Yesterday Mr. W. Choate of Chicago, Ill., arrived in the city. This gentleman who is related to the Choate family of Warsaw, first drew the breath of life in this city eighty years ago. The house in which Mr. Choate lived, near Spaulding's Bay, is still in existence and is used by one of the canoe companies as a store house. Mr. Choate who has been visiting his cousin at Warsaw, will spend a few days at Stony Lake before returning to his home.

Look For Blood Humors

They Crop Out Constantly, Showing the System Needs Purifying.

You're not satisfied with your looks. How can you be with such disfiguring pimples, such rough unevenskin?

Blood is full of humors, and it's no wonder you look and feel poorly.

You are languid,
Appetite is miserable,
Sleep is hard to get,
Snap and vim are lacking.

High time to improve matters—but what's the proper remedy?

Experience proves that Dr. Hamilton's give instant effect. They tone the entire system, fortify the blood, and impart a feeling of new life in a few days.

Unlike strong purgatives, Dr. Hamilton's Pills are exceedingly mild. They are made from concentrated vegetable extracts such as Mandrake and Butternut, and can be taken by young or old, with absolute safety.

"I learnt something very valuable after using Dr. Hamilton's Pills," writes Miss Effie Thomson of Meridan. "I used to have ugly pimples that much embarrassed me. The tonic and purifying effect of Dr. Hamilton's Pills completely restored me. My health is splendid and my complexion a great credit to this marvelous medicine."

Let your medicine be Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They do cure so thoroughly. Sold by all dealers, 25c per box, or five boxes for $1. By mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont., and Hartford, Conn., U.S.A.

MANY MARRIAGES ILLEGAL

Two acts relative to marriage have been passed by the legislature of the province of Ontario which are believed to be ultra vires. One defines the age at which marriage is lawful without the consent of parents and the other is a special act to annul a marriage that has been solemnized between minors. If on a ruling of the courts the first act is found to be unconstitutional it will render many marriages solemnized since the act became law illegal. With regard to the special act the federal department of justice has always assumed that the federal parliament alone has the power to annul marriages in Ontario. It was intended at the last session of parliament to introduce a bill to confirm the provincial legislation in the special case referred to, but objections were raised by the opposition, and as the matter appeared likely to delay prorogation the bill was dropped for the time, to be reintroduced probably at the coming session. The special case was that of Maria Fasken, aged 17, and Henry Park, aged 18, of Wellington county. The two attended Sunday school. On their way home made love. They were married at the house of a minister at Elora, and the girl parted with her juvenile husband at the minister's door, and as soon as the facts became known an appeal was made to the provincial law authorities to have the nuptial knot dissolved, with the above result.

THE HIGH COMMISSIONERSHIP

Sir Wilfrid Laurier has denied the accuracy of the report that he will succeed Lord Strathcona as High Commissioner for Canada in London, on the latter's retirement at an early date from that position. From one point of view there can be little doubt that Sir Wilfrid would make an admirable representative of the Dominion at the Capital of the Empire. Sir Wilfrid is known throughout the Empire, and in the United Kingdom he is popular among all sections of the people. It would be no disadvantage either to the Empire or to its largest overseas territory, that the latter had as its representative and agent in London a son of the race which was conquered by the British but is now a loyal part of the population of Canada. Foreign nations find it difficult to understand British methods or the process by which races subjected to British rule become loyal citizens. No other country has achieved anything like the success of Great Britain as a colonizing power. Their institutions are not, indeed, adapted to such methods as in Canada and in South Africa have been found effective for the consolidation and welding together of different races, with the result of strengthening the Empire by the development and growth of its outlying parts.

The rumors that Sir Wilfrid Laurier would accept the High Commissionership being now disposed of by his denial, the idea that he is likely to retire from the leadership of the Liberal party may also be dismissed as improbable. Like Sir John A. Macdonald, he may be regarded as loving power and reluctant to relinquish a position which he has held for so long, and to the importance and success of which he has contributed more than any other man in the Liberal party. It is not improbable that having led the party to victory, and steered it safely through the intricacies of administration for more than ten years, Sir Wilfrid Laurier may have gradually grown to believe that he is necessary to the party. And as the ablest man is liable to come under the influence of his environments, Sir Wilfrid may have become accustomed to regard the party as the country, and in that view to believe that his retention of the leadership is essential to the welfare of the country.

Speculation as to Lord Strathcona's successor does not seem to view with much favor the name of Sir Frederick Borden for that position. Yet it is probable if the circle from which the selection is to be made is to be confined within the limits of Liberal occupants or former occupants of high official positions, that Sir Frederick Borden will be found as well fitted as any other person for the position. There is no doubt that it will be difficult for any one to follow Lord Strathcona. Sir Wilfrid Laurier on account of the prominent position he has occupied in the political field in Canada, could probably make the change in the situation in London which will follow Lord Strathcona's retirement, more easily to himself, and with less perception of it by others, than any other probable occupant of the office. But as there seems to be no likelihood of that, we must hope that Sir Wilfrid Laurier will realize that something more than faithful party services should be regarded in the selection of the man who is to fill such an important position.

A Canadian Boy in Evil Hands

Chatham, Aug. 21.—Definite word has at last been received in this city from Reginald Glasser, the Chatham youth, who ran away from home and was arrested in Covington, Kentucky. Before he went away from home, Glasser took some money from his mother's purse and since that time he has not been heard of. Mr. John McConnell, a grocer of this city, has received word from a man named McConnell of Covington, with whom Glasser lived for some time during his wanderings, asking for information concerning the young lady. The following is a copy of the letter:

"Could you find for me through the police or in any other way if there is a child missing from your town. A child has been stopping with me who told me he knew a man named McConnell who kept a grocery at Chatham. He has the appearance of a child who was raised in an orphanage or home of some kind. He was arrested today for stealing and we think he has had an older accomplice. He has told me that a man took him from his father a year ago, his father having died at that time. He said, also, that he was at Atlantic City with a man who did some robbing. The man skipped out to England and he found his way down here. We want to find out something about him. Could you give us any information. He is about 12 or 13 years old and seems to be a very nice child, nicely trained. My name is McConnell and that is how he happened to tell me about you. He calls himself Jack McDougall or Jack Williams. Address 422 Greening street, Covington, Ken."

Mr. McConnell has handed the letter to the police and a communication will at once be sent to the Covington authorities.

"Cop" Hoaxes City

Order to Arrest Every Russian in Town Startles Copenhagen

Copenhagen, Aug. 21.—The entire police force here got a startling shake-up last night. Every office received a sudden telephone order from Second Officer Truelsen for the whole force to turn out and arrest every Russian in Copenhagen, a great plot against the czar having been discovered.

The order was immediately complied with. The detectives who were accessible were hurried off in all directions and steps were taken to rouse those who were off duty.

It occurred to only one of the sub-chiefs who received the order to doubt its accuracy. He reflected that there were more than 2,000 Russians in the city, and concluded that there must be a mistake somewhere. He telephoned to the first officer who hastened to headquarters and found that Truelsen had gone suddenly mad.

The order was cancelled in time to save the liberties of the Russians.

Japanese Invasion

Ottawa, Aug. 20.—During July the arrivals of Japanese at Victoria reported to the Trade and Commerce Department totalled 858, of which 731 were males and 77 females. Of the total arrivals 657 were destined for Victoria and 201 were in transit to the United States. Other Canadian ports received 48 Japanese immigrants. The net influx of Japanese into British Columbia last month was therefore about seven hundred, considerably less than some press despatches from the west seemed to indicate. In a telegram received last week by Sir Wilfrid Laurier from Mr. R. G. Macpherson, M.P., of Vancouver, the latter stated that since January last over 4,000 Japanese had arrived in British Columbia; 233 had arrived last week and 2,000 more were en route from Honolulu on the steamship Indiana. Mr. Macpherson urged the government to take some steps, if possible, to restrict the rising tide of Oriental immigration into British Columbia.

During July no fewer than 133 Chinese paid the poll tax of $500 for the privilege of entering Canada, thus adding $63,500 to the Federal revenues. In addition 44 Chinese arrived who were exempt from the poll tax being merchants, or returning after less than a year's absence from Canada.

I will mail you free, to prove merit, samples of my Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and my Book on either Dyspepsia, The Heart or The Kidneys. Troubles of the Stomach, Heart or Kidneys, are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak Stomach nerves—the inside nerves—mean Stomach weakness, always. And the Heart, and Kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves, and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves." Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion, use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write me today for sample and free Book. The Money That's Being Made in Western Canada LAND

In October, 1906 we sold 5,000 acres of Saskatchewan lands to an Indiana party of men at $8 per acre, and resold it this year at $12, making just about 100 per cent. on the money invested.

A Montreal party of men who bought 10,000 acres from us at $8 per acre last September, resold through us within three months at $10.00 per acre.

A Chicago client writes us that after making some improvements on a section we bought near Regina, one year ago, she sold out recently for exactly twice what she paid for the land.

We resold a section of land located near Lipton for a man at $18.00 per acre last April, which we sold him in December at $12.00.

Western Canada Lands offer the greatest opportunity this continent has ever known

Men here are growing wealthy who never knew success in any other line. You can make money here too, if you think your amount too small club it with a few friends. Some of the most prominent financial men in the Canada are now interested in this country heavily.

We own about 200,000 acres of the finest wheat and mixed farming lands in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.—Picked lands on which we are prepared to give accurate trustworthy information, and these tracts being portions of extremely large purchases, we can sell them at prices that cannot be equalled, quality of land considered, by any firm in this United States and Eastern country.

Prices range from $6.00 per acre upwards Reasonable Terms in every case

Write us for further information but when doing so tell us the class and amount of an investment you desire, and whether you want the land for your own use or for investment purposes purely. $1,000 is about the minimum we can handle. References Union Bank and Traders' Bank, Winnipeg.

SIREN WAFERS DEVELOP THE BUST

SHE'S A QUEEN! SHE'S A SIREN!

Is an expression that is always heard at sight of a well developed woman. If you are flat chested, with BUST undeveloped, a scrawny neck, thin lean arms the above remark will never be applied to you. "SIREN" wafers will make you beautiful, bewitching. They DEVELOP the BUST in a few weeks from 3 to 6 inches and produce a fine firm, voluptuous bosom. They fill out the hollow places Make the cheeks plump and rosy, and arms handsome and well molded and the neck and shoulders shapely and of perfect contour.

Send for a bottle today and you'll be pleased and grateful. "SIREN" wafers are absolutely harmless, pleasant to take and convenient to carry around. They are sold under guarantee to do all we claim or MONEY back.

Price $1.00 per bottle. Inquire at good drug stores or send DIRECT to us.

FREE!

During the next 30 days only—we will send you a sample bottle of these beautifying wafers on receipt of 10 cents to pay cost of packing and postage if you will mention that you saw the Advertisement in this paper. The sample alone may be sufficient if defects are trivial.

This is a straight Business Undertaking.

The Smelting of Ore is the safest and most profitable business in the world.

We have fifteen mining properties, located in Kern County, California, carrying good values in Gold, Silver and Copper.

The smelter nearest to us is at Needles, 260 miles distant.

We propose to install on our properties a smelter to treat the ores from our own mines and to do custom smelting for others.

50 per cent. per annum is a moderate estimate of the profits we can earn. If you want to make a safe and profitable investment send for full information and investigate our proposition.

COPPER A 5c. POSSIBILITY

Always the persons who make fortunes are those who seize opportunities. Trudge along in the conventional rut and you will never get away from the counter or the desk.

Fortunes—the greatest mining fortunes in the world—are being made to day by the men who own Copper Mines. You couldn't buy stock in one of the big paying, developed mines You CAN buy stock in a mine undergoing development, and if you BUY IN THE RIGHT PLACE the fortune will come.

I want you to come in and see me about the proposition I have in the Guggenheim Greenwater Copper Company's two properties at Ely and at Greenwater, Nevada. The recent copper finds at Ely are attracting the interest of a whole continent. The property which this Company owns there is in the best section. The workings are now down fifty feet, and the prospect brightens with every foot. The manager tells me he expects to strike it rich any day. So soon as he does, up goes the stock with a bound.

I still can offer a limited number of shares at 5 cents each. It's the easiest chance at a fortune you've ever had. See me about it at once.

makes it respectable for me to be here now, doesn't it for me to have come out alone after dark without their knowing it? I'm here as your client, Joe."

"Why?" he asked.

She did not answer at once, but picked up a pen from beneath her hand on the desk and, turning it, meditatively felt its point with her forefinger before she said slowly. "Are most men careful of other people's—well, of other people's money?"

"You mean Martin Pike?" he asked.

"Yes. I want you to take charge of everything I have for me."

He bent a frowning regard upon the lampshade. "You ought to look after your own property," he said. "You surely have plenty of time."

"You mean—you mean you won't help me?" she returned, with intentional pathos.

"Ariel!" he laughed shortly in answer; then asked, "What makes you think Judge Pike isn't trustworthy?"

"Nothing very definite perhaps, unless it was his look when I told him that I meant to ask you to take charge of things for me."

"He's been rather hard pressed this year, I think," said Joe. "You might be right—if he could have found a way. I hope he hasn't."

"I'm afraid," she began gayly, "that I know very little of my own affairs. He sent me a draft every three months,

"Joe," she cried in a voice of great pain, "you mustn't feel like that!"

with receipts and other things to sign and return to him. I haven't the faintest notion of what I own—except the old house and some money from the income that I hadn't used and brought with me. Judge Pike has all the papers—everything."

Joe looked troubled. "And Roger Tabor, did he"—

"The dear man!" She shook her head. "He was just the same. To him poor Uncle Jonas' money seemed to come from heaven through the hands of Judge Pike"—

"And there's a handsome roundabout way!" said Joe.

"Wasn't it!" she agreed cheerfully. "And he trusted the judge absolutely, I don't, you see."

He gave her a thoughtful look and nodded. "No, he isn't a good man," he said, "not even according to his lights, but I doubt if he could have managed to get away with anything of consequence after he became the administrator. He wouldn't have tried it probably unless he was more desperately pushed than I think he has been. It would have been too dangerous. Suppose you wait a week or so and think it over."

"But there's something I want you to do for me immediately, Joe."

"What's that?"

"I want the old house put in order I'm going to live there."

"Alone?"

"I'm almost twenty-seven, and that's being enough of an old maid for me to risk Canaan's thinking me eccentric, isn't it?"

"It will think anything you do is all right."

"And once," she cried, "it thought everything I did wrong!"

"Yes. That's the difference."

"You mean it will commend me because I'm thought rich?"

"No, no," he said meditatively, "it isn't that. It's because everybody will be in love with you."

"Quite everybody!" she asked.

"Certainly," he replied. "Anybody who didn't would be absurd."

"Ah, Joe!" she laughed. "You always were the nicest boy in the world, my dear!"

At that he turned toward her with a sudden movement, and his lips parted, but not to speak. She had rested one arm upon the desk and her cheek upon her hand; the pen she had picked up, still absently held in her fingers, touching her lips, and it was given to him to know that he would always keep that pen, though he would never write with it again. The soft lamplight fell across the lower part of her face, leaving her eyes, which were lowered thoughtfully, in the shadow of her hat. The room was blotted out in darkness behind her. Like the background of an antique portrait, the office, with its dusty corners and shelves and hideous safe, had vanished, leaving the charming and thoughtful face revealed against an even, spacious brownness. Only Ariel and the roses and the lamp were clear, and a strange, small pain moved from Joe's heart to his throat as he thought that this ugly office, always before so harsh and grim and lonely—loneliest for him when it had been most crowded—was now transfigured into something very, very different from an office; that this place where he sat, with a lamp and flowers on a desk between him and a woman who called him "my dear" must be like—like something that people called "home."

And then he leaned across the desk toward her as he said again what he had said a little while before, and his voice trembled:

"Ariel, it is you?"

She looked at him and smiled.

"You'll be here always, won't you? You're not going away from Canaan again?"

For a moment it seemed that she had not heard him. Then her bright glance at him wavered and fell. She rose, turning slightly away from him, but not so far that he could not see the sudden agitation in her face.

"Ah," he cried, rising, too, "I don't want you to think I don't understand or that I meant I should ever ask you to stay here! I couldn't mean that. You know I couldn't, don't you? You know I understand that it's all just your beautiful friendliness, don't you?"

"It isn't beautiful; it's just me, Joe," she said. "It couldn't be any other way."

"It's enough that you should be here now," he went on bravely, his voice steady, though his hand shook. "Nothing so wonderful as your staying could ever actually happen. It's just a light coming into a dark room and out again. One day long ago, I never forgot it,

Chinese Carpenters.

There are few more skillful workmen in the world, according to Mr. Barrett Smith's statements in the Engineering Magazine, than the native Chinese carpenters. This is hardly surprising, considering the extensive use of wood for all kinds of construction in China. But more surprising is the fact that for countless generations the Chinese have not changed the form of their tools. The Chinese carpenter's favorite tool is a little hatchet, with which he can cut surfaces as smooth as those produced with a plane. Only recently has the hammer of the western world begun to find a place in the Chinese carpenter shop. Heretofore the Chinaman has universally used the back of his hatchet for hammering. The gradual introduction of iron nails has brought the hammer with them.

An Athletic Poet.

Theodore Tilton not long before his death was speaking to a friend about some of his former literary friends and acquaintances and was asked if he had known William Cullen Bryant.

"Yes, indeed," he replied. "Bryant had the finest head and beard of modern times. One day, it must have been in 1872 or 1873, I had an engagement to meet him at his private office at 8 o'clock in the morning. I arrived about ten minutes before the hour, and what do you think I found him doing? Practicing athletics, hoisting himself up and down from the lintel of the door by his arms and touching the lintel each time with his chin. He was then almost an octogenarian!"

Hall Caine's Autograph.

Hall Caine has a great horror of the autograph hunter, but during his visit to America he was trapped by a wily collector in a very curious way. One day a porter at the hotel brought him a registered letter. He signed the receipt and was then asked to sign a second paper, which he was told had to be returned to the sender of the letter. New to American ways, he did so, and when he opened the letter he found it to be a note of thanks for his autograph, which he had, of course, appended to the paper. London Tit-Bits.

The Plains of Abraham.

The historic plains of Abraham will be dedicated as a national park at the celebration next year of the three hundredth anniversary of the founding of Quebec, provided those most prominent in the commemoration are able to have their way. At present the plains are marred by a rifle factory, and instead of listening to the demand that they remove to another site the owners of the plant demand more room.

Catarrh

To prove unquestionably, and beyond any doubt, that Catarrh of the nose and throat can be cured, I am furnishing patients through druggists, small free Trial Boxes of Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Cure. I do this because I am so certain, that Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Cure will bring actual substantial help. Nothing certainly, is so convincing as a physical test of any article of real, genuine merit. But that article must possess true merit, else the test will condemn, rather than advance it. Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Cure is a snow white, healing antiseptic balm, put up in beautiful nickel capped glass jars at 50c. Such soothing agents as Oil Eucalyptus, Thymol, Menthol, etc., are incorporated into a velvety, cream like Petrolatum, imported by Dr. Shoop from Europe. If Catarrh of the nose and throat has extended to the stomach, then by all means also use internally, Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Stomach distress, a lack of general strength, bloating, belching, biliousness, bad taste, etc. surely call for Dr. Shoop's Restorative.

For uncomplicated catarrh only of the nose and throat nothing else, however, need be used but

This Company was formed for the purpose of manufacturing all kinds of Iron, Steel, Metal and Wooden Goods, Agricultural Implements, etc., and to carry on the business of a foundry.

They are now turning out specialties in Ornamental Iron Work, Fences, Crestings, etc., for which there is a great demand far in excess of the present facilities of the Company.

Winnipeg and the West offers an unlimited market for the products, guaranteeing a paying investment from the start.

There is a limited amount of stock for sale, and this opportunity to purchase will not return.

The encouragement, coupled with the unexcelled opportunities open to such an enterprise, are in themselves sufficient guarantee of absolute safety and large profits.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry must be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made on certain conditions, by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the homestead conditions under one of the following plans:—

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of the homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Six months' notice in writing should be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of intention to apply for patent.

Depository ..... JOHN S. COOK & CO.
Bank of Goldfield, Nevada.

This company owns 4 claims (80 acres) of some of the best proved mineral land in the Goldfield district, consisting of the Accidental and Accidental No. 2 fraction claims, situated two and one-half miles south of the great Goldfield Consolidated Mines (comprising the Mohawk, Goldfield, Combination, Red Top, Jumbo and Laguna) the richest in the world, and the Broadway and Beauty fraction claims situated three and one-half miles north of the Consolidated and about one and one-half miles northwest of the Great Bond and Piney Mines near the Zeon group in the Diamondfield section second only in richness to the great Mohawk portion of the camp.

The company has also succeeded in securing the Sure Thing fraction claims (20 acres) in the Cuprite district, which are outcroppings equal to anything in Goldfield, showing fine surface values and is without doubt rightly named, "Sure Thing."

All of these claims are located in the same mineral belt as the other noted mines of Goldfield that have astonished the world by their production of millions in high grade ore, and will with the same development give equally profitable returns.

The money derived from the sale of this stock will be used at once for the active development of the property and the fact that all the directors are residents of Goldfield with years of successful mining experience who will give their personal attention at all times to the progress of the work goes to show that the first issue of 100,000 shares will meet with a quick and ready sale at the initial price of 10 cents per share.

We advise immediate action if you wish to participate in the vast profits of this Bonanza Mine.

Stock will be listed as soon as feasible on the Goldfield and San Francisco Stock and Exchange Boards. Would therefore advise purchasers to buy in board lots of 1,000 shares when convenient to do so.

Indians on Trial Today

The charge against Mr. W. H. Darcy, of selling liquor to Indians will be taken up by Magistrate Edmison today at 11 o'clock. This promises to be an interesting case as a number of prominent local citizens will give their testimony.

At the conclusion of the liquor case the Indians will appear on the charge of causing disturbances on the steamer Esturion on Monday, Aug. 12th.

Mark Street Church News

Mr. M. Carton, who was the past Recording Steward, of Mark street church, has resigned his position and Mr. Albert Throop has been appointed to fill the vacancy. Mr. Carton explained that his resignation was due to having so much work on hand which kept him away from the city very often. There were 12 members present and it was decided to fix the appropriation for minister's salary at the new minimum

Mr. H. E. Robinson Has Gone

—Yesterday afternoon, after a long illness, Henry Ernest Robinson, at the age of thirty-seven years, passed away. The deceased was a brother of Dr. F. L. Balsam Lake Property to be Sold

We are informed that a number of local capitalists are conjoined in an endeavor to purchase property on Balsam Lake, with a view to subsequent reselling to those seeking healthy and picturesque summer residences. If these gentlemen succeed in their endeavors they will assuredly make money on their bargain. A Times representative who, on the day of the opening of the Kirkfield lift lock, passed through Balsam Lake noted its beauties and the splendid site it affords, now that the Trent Valley Canal is practically completed.

Dr. Gray Injured

On Tuesday, as Dr. Gray, Sherbrooke street, was looking after his horse he had occasion to lift one of the animal's front legs. The horse suddenly stamped the leg down, its hoof alighting on the doctor's foot. Fortunately no bones were broken, but Dr. Gray's foot was very badly bruised. So bad was the injury sustained that Dr. Gray had to get Dr. King to drive him round his extensive route of patients. We hope Dr. Gray will have a speedy recovery. This physician has a large clientele of patients, outside his official duties as coroner, for some four counties.

Many Bellevillians Here

Yesterday George street and also other leading thoroughfares of our city were notably augmented in population by the crowd that came from Belleville. Yesterday's excursion was held under the auspices of the Holloway street Methodist Sunday school, Belleville. Over six hundred people arrived on the special G.T.R. train. On the arrival of the train, a number of the excursionists were taken over the lift lock on the steamer Otonabee, which was chartered for the occasion. The boat made a second trip during the afternoon, which was also well patronized.

Work on the Underground System

Work is progressing rapidly on the Bell Telephone Company's underground work and manholes are being dug at many street corners. This is preparatory to the still larger job of digging the continuous trenches in which the great 812 wire cables will be laid eventually through the city streets, thus doing away with the unsightly and dangerous overhead wires. In conversation with Mr. Doan, the efficient local manager, The Times was yesterday assured that if the Northern Electric Co., which is supplying the cables, keep their end of the deal that the "hello's" over the telephones of Peterborough will before the streets freeze up, be carried through the pipes now laid like cords of wood on Aylmer street near the Queen's Hotel.

$100 REWARD, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood an dmucous surfaces of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer one hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Famous Bandit Paroled for Treatment

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 7.—Bewildered by the busy scenes and new sights confronting his eyes, Emmett Dalton, the ex-train robber, is enjoying the first bit of freedom he has spent outside of prison walls in nearly 15 years. A week ago he was granted a four months' parole by Gov. Hoch and released from the Kansas penitentiary at Lansing in order that he might go to Kansas City, Mo., to receive treatment for a wound in the shoulder received in the famous skirmish at Coffeyville, Kansas.

It is believed that a pardon is in sight for the ex-bandit, and it is probable that he will not be obliged to stay in prison long after the expiration of his present parole. His old mother is now with him.

Emmett Dalton is the last surviving member of the Dalton gang of outlaws, which included the three brothers, Bob, Grafton and Emmett, who first sprang into public notice in 1889, and were wiped out in 1892, at Coffeyville, Kansas, when they attempted to rob two banks.

Bob Dalton had been a deputy marshal in the Indian Territory, where he acquired a reputation for nerve and daring. In 1889 he was discharged from the service for accepting bribes from criminals. Accompanied by his brothers, Grafton and Emmett, he proceeded to California. They had not been there long before there was a train robbery near Attila, in which the fireman of the train was killed. The Daltons were accused and indicted. They left the state, and for the next 18 months they made criminal history faster than it had been made since the days of the Younger and James boys.

Santa Fe train robberies at Wharton and Red Rock, the Missouri Pacific robbery near Vinita, all followed in rapid bery near Vinita all followed in rapid succession. Between jobs the gang hid in the Indian Territory, Arkansas and Kansas. The railroad and express companies heaped up rewards until they amounted to $25,000, but there were no captures.

The Coffeyville raid was the pet scheme of Bob Dalton. He had lived there, knew the banks, and was anxious to outdo the James and Younger exploits by riding boldly into the town in broad daylight and plundering both banks at one haul. The raid occurred in October, 1892. The gang rode into the town, hitched its horses in an alley and started for the banks, each man carrying a Winchester in the hollow of his arm.

But the purpose of the gang was quickly realized, and a cry of "Robbers in the bank!" brought the citizens out in full force. In the National Bank, Bob and Emmett Dalton compelled the bank force to hold up its hands, and had dumped $20,000 in cash into a sack. Coming to the bank window, Bob engaged in battle with the townspeople, killing one man and wounding three others.

Meanwhile there was more serious trouble for Grat Dalton at the Condon Bank. The bank had a time lock, which frustrated the efforts of the gang to open it. Grat swept up the cash he found lying around, exchanged a few shots with the citizens, until he was forced to flee. The robbers hurried to the alley where their horses were tied, and where they were hemmed in by the citizens to such an extent that of the Dalton boys only Emmett, swifter of foot than the others, gained his horse. Emmett rode but a short distance when, to the astonishment of the citizens, he turned back to help his brother Bob, who had been mortally wounded.

When the smoke of battle cleared away there were eight dead men. The robbers had lost Bob and Grat Dalton, Joe Evans and John Moore, and their fifth man, Emmett Dalton, had been shot until it was thought he could not live. The citizens had lost the city marshal, a bank clerk and two merchants of the town. Several others had been severely wounded.

After Emmett recovered from his wounds he was tried and sentenced to be hanged, which in Kansas means a life sentence in the penitentiary. He was only 18 years old when captured, and has been confined in the penitentiary nearly 15 years. He has been spoken of at all times as a model prisoner.

PRAYERS BEFORE BATTLE.

Curious Invocations by Famous Historical Personages.

One of the earliest records in history of a prayer before battle is that of Childeric, king of Gaul, a pagan, who before going into battle at Soelpich, some 400 years after Christ, prayed to the God of the Christians to help him to victory. His foe was Attila, king of the Huns, and Childeric vowed if God would give him the victory he would embrace the Christian faith.

The prayer of a Hungarian officer before one of the battles fought for the independence of Hungary in 1849 was as follows: "I will not ask thee, Lord, to help us, and I know thou wilt not help the Austrians, but if thou wilt sit on yonder hill thou shalt not be ashamed of thy children." This was the prayer of the "Fighting Bishop" Leslie before one of the battles fought in Ireland: "O God, for our unworthiness we are not fit to claim thy help, but if we are bad our enemies are worse, and if thou seest not meet to help us we pray thee help them not, but stand thou neuter on this day and leave it to the arm of the flesh."

The one uttered before the battle of Edgehill by Sir Jacob Astley was, "Thou knowest, O Lord, that I shall be very busy this day, and if I forget thee forget thou not me," and then the command followed, "March on, boys!" As King Edward advanced with his columns to Bannockburn he remarked to his aide, seeing the Scotch on their knees: "See, they kneel. The rebels are asking pardon." D'Umphraville was heard to remark: "Yea, but it is to the King of kings. These men conquer or die on this field."

Oliver Cromwell had public prayers before going to battle on several occasions, as, for instance, previous to the battle of Dunbar. It is a curious fact that the English prayer book contains prayers, or at least one prayer, to be said before going into action at sea, while nothing is provided for use before engagements on land.

Do You Think For Yourself?

Or, do you open your mouth like a young bird and gulp down whatever food or medicine may be offered you?

If you are an intelligent thinking woman, in need of relief from weakness, nervousness, pain and suffering, then it means much to you that there is one tried and true honest medicine of KNOWN COMPOSITION, sold by druggists for the cure of woman's ills.

The makers of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, for the cure of weak, nervous, run-down, over-worked, debilitated, pain racked women, knowing this medicine to be made up of ingredients, every one of which has the strongest possible indorsement of the leading and standard authorities of the several schools of practice, are perfectly willing, and in fact, are only too glad to print, as they do, the formula, or list of ingredients, of which it is composed, in plain English, on every bottle wrapper.

The formula of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will bear the most critical examination of medical experts, for it contains no alcohol, narcotics, harmful, or habit-forming drugs, and no agent enters into it that is not highly recommended by the most advanced and leading medical teachers and authorities of their several schools of practice. These authorities recommend the ingredients of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for the cure of exactly the same ailments for which this world-famed medicine is advised.

No other medicine for woman's ills has any such professional endorsement as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has received, in the unqualified recommendation of each of its several ingredients by scores of leading medical men of all the schools of practice. Is such an endorsement not worthy of your consideration?

A booklet of ingredients, with numerous authoritative profesional endorsements by the leading medical authorities of this country, will be mailed free to any one sending name and address with request for same. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

TOWN OF WIARTON IN STATE OF EXCITEMENT

Charge Murder Against Woman Who, It Is Alleged Shot Gilbert--She Admits Testing Revolver In the Afternoon.

Wiarton, Aug. 23.—Magistrate Miller said at noon yesterday, at the close of the evidence; "I do not feel like taking the responsibility of acquitting the prisoner, nor do I care to commit her. I will, therefore, remand her for eight days, while I send the evidence to the attorney general for his consideration. He can then take whatever course he sees fit on the evidence."

The matter of bail will be considered this afternoon.

As there was no charge against Mrs. Lamont, she was given her liberty after the inquest, but remained with her friend, Mrs. Thomas, at the lockup all night She was with Mrs. Thomas in the police court yesterday morning. Both women were dressed in black, and seemed to feel their position. During the recital of the shooting, tears ran down their cheeks

Mrs. Thomas is about 45, striking of figure, but worn of face.

According to the evidence, versions vary as to the shots fired. One witness said four, another five. A question arises from this, as Mrs. Thomas' revolver contained two loaded chambers of the full complement of five. Who fired the fourth or fifth shot, and did one or other kill Gilbert? Mrs. Thomas' friends make this query.

Wiarton, Aug. 22.—The people of this town are in a state of great excitement over a fatal shooting affray that occurred here last night, by which Mr. P. Gilbert, a bachelor of about 45 years, a man who was greatly respected after twenty years' residence, lost his life. Mr. Gilbert was caretaker of the lighthouse on the harbor breakwater, and consequently an employe of the Dominion Government. He had no relatives.

ATTACK BY CITIZENS.

The shooting was the result of an attack by citizens on a tent occupied by a Mrs. Thomas and a friend in a wild place on the outskirts of the town. She returned to this place last week, after having left on three different occasions, the magistrate in each case having notified her that she was not wanted in the community. Attempts to convict her of any offence had failed from lack of evidence.

The persistency of the woman aggravated the community, and Mr Gilbert set out to take the law in his own hands. He organized a number of boys and men, variously estimated at from 25 to 40, for the purpose of driving the women away; and last night about ten o'clock, armed with clubs and rotten eggs, the attack was made by his party, the numbers of which are seeking to hide their identity. No masks, however, were worn.

STRUCK THE WOMAN.

The attackers apparently had little trouble in pulling down the tent, and the occupants were showered with rotten eggs. According to the stories told, Mr. Gilbert was not satisfied with this, but went so far as to strike the woman, and she, while in a prostrate position, is said to have produced a revolver and fired quickly three times in succession, each bullet taking effect on Mr. Gilbert's body. Death resulted instanteously.

INQUEST OPENED.

Just what happened after the fatality is not certain. The crowd certainly dispersed, and the women were placed under arrest, but beyond this it is hard to get information. An inquest is being opened this afternoon.

What charge will be brought against Mrs. Thomas is not certain. A charge of murder is not at all likely, as the woman would have a strong case in setting up the plea of self-defence.

The community, while greatly regretting the fate of Mr Gilbert, and partly sympathizing with the motives that prompted his course, feels that he made a great mistake in resorting to force.

RESIDENTS OBJECTED

Wiarton, Aug. 22.—This town was the scene of a very sad occurrence last night.

All summer there has been located in a suburb known as Voganville one or two houses to which the residents objected most strenuously, and the places were closed. Last week a Mrs. Thomas, known as Vogan, returned and located in a tent. She was accompanied by a friend. The residents of the section took exception, and on Tuesday Mr. P. Gilbert, an old and respected citizen, organized the boys to drive out the visitors that night.

WOMEN ROTTEN-EGGED.

The attack was made, the tent was pulled down, and the women were rotten-egged, but Mr. Gilbert paid for his indiscretion with his life. He struck Mrs. Thomas, and, while lying on the ground, she pulled a revolver and placed three bullets in his body, causing instant death.

The women are under arrest, and an inquest is being held

The case is a very regrettable one, and has cast a gloom over the whole town, but it may result in good and clean up a lot of abuses

BULLET THROUGH HEART.

Wiarton, Aug. 22.—Phillip Gilbert, a bachelor, aged 45, was shot and killed, supposedly by Agnes McTams, led, supposedly by Agnes Thomas, alias Mrs. Reid at 10 o'clock last night.

In company with a girl called "Stella," the woman is now under arrest for the shooting. She occupied a house on the north-east hill, above the town. Gilbert, it is said, organized a crowd of about 25 men, and they started for the house to order them out of the neighborhood.

The women refused to go. An attempt to tear down a fence was made and a second afterwards a shot rang out and Gilbert fell dead with a bullet through his heart.

Both women were placed under arrest. Agnes Thomas had a 32-caliber revolver. She hails from London.

Feminine Vandals Destroy Property

Local Lady Has Her Garden and Property Destroyed

It seems that modern and well dressed vandals are in the habit of destroying gardens of those possessed of such adornments to their home. A few days ago, it is alleged, that a lady having a flower garden, had it practically destroyed by three young women, who entered the lawn and not only picked the flowers, but destroyed the vines and plants. The lady whose property was thus destroyed states that while she does not intend to make a complaint to the police this time, a repetition of the act will result in police court proceedings.

Leader of Conservative Party will be Here on Sept. 11

Mr. R. L. Borden, the leader of the Conservative party in the Dominion Parliament, will be in Peterborough, and address a mass meeting, which will be held for the East and West Ridings of Peterborough, in the Grand Opera House, on Wednesday, September 11th. At a joint meeting of the executives of the Young Conservative Club, and the West Peterborough Conservative Association, these arrangements have been made.

On his visit to Peterborough, Mr. Borden will be accompanied by T. Chase Casgrain, ex-M.P., of Montreal, Claude McDonnell, Toronto; W. B. Northurp, M.P., Belleville; W. H. Bennett, M.P., Midland; and T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P., West Peterborough.

A committee has been appointed to complete the arrangements for the meeting

Row in San Francisco

San Francisco, Aug. 23.—Mayor Taylor yesterday began his promised cleaning of the municipal departments by sending a notification of their removal from office to four police commissioners. The communication scored the commission for failing to remove Chief of Police Dinan, who, Mayor Taylor declared, is incompetent and lacking in character. The commissioners after a secret conference, announced that they would not recognize any power except the court. It is understood they will resist any attempt to take possession of the records by an appeal to the police.

THE BLACK HAND IN TORONTO

Toronto, Aug. 22.—"I would not be surprised to learn that the Black Hand had something to do with this business," said Mr. Michael Basso, discussing the Giannetti case this morning. "In fact, from what I have been told, I am inclined to the opinion that not only the Black Hand, Black Heads, Blackmailers, and everything else that is black have been at work People have told me repeatedly that this 'Banco,' as it was called, had agents at work in the city, and that certain influence was brought to bear upon ignorant Italians to patronize it. I believe that the trouble was this—somebody had gobbled up this money. Giannetti ran away and others connected with the bank made themselves scarce. I am not saying that this man was murdered, but the Black Hand would stop at nothing if it considered any of its members in danger of exposure. I am of the opinion that this Banco Giannetti is on a par with other fakes that have been going on the ignorant Italians, and that they will get very little, if anything to make up for their loss."

Japs Invading Province of Alberta

Are Ambitious to Take Up Homesteads and Acquire Wealth

Edmonton, Aug. 23.—The latest arrivals to take up homesteads in Alberta, and the first of their race to take up land in this province, if not in the entire west, are two Japanese who have just come to the city. They stated that for some time they with others of their race have contemplated coming to Alberta in order that they might take up land and make money. "At home," said one of them, "one may work for many years and not acquire the wealth which in one of your cities he will acquire in as many months. Although our hopes are high, many leave their native land and the rulership of the Mikado. We have come to realize in the last few years that our country is being too thickly populated, and we must emigrate if we ever wish to rise in the world."

Russia Building Ships in Britain

A British Firm Building Battleships, Cruisers and Gunboats

London, Aug. 23.—A foreign government, supposed to be Russia, says the Chronicle, has awarded to a British firm of shipbuilders, a contract for several battleships, cruisers, and gunboats, a record insurance of nearly $35,000,000 has been effected on the building and launching risks, the policies covering two years.

New Battleship for Japan

Glasgow, Aug. 23.—The Japanese government has placed an order for an 18,000 ton battleship with the Fairfield Shipbuilding Company. The new vessel will be one of the most formidable armored ships of war afloat. A feature of her construction will be her extreme beam.

The All-Red Scheme Favored in East

The Maritime Boards of Trade Pass Resolution Urging Progress

St. John, N.B., Aug. 21.—The Maritime Boards of Trade met here today, President W. S. Fisher presiding. Letters of regret were read from Sir Wilfrid Laurier and other Cabinet Ministers and provincial governors. Among those present were Mr. C. M. Duff, agent general in England for New Brunswick, and Mr. Logan, M.P.

Mayor Sears gave an address of welcome. Mr. Logan acknowledged the greeting and urged a unity of purpose. He found in Ottawa that New Brunswick members were for New Brunswick, Nova Scotia for their province, and Prince Edward Island for the island. He attributed the success of Amherst to the fact that the business men worked together.

Secretary Creed read his report, in which he reviewed the work of the past year and showed that new boards had been formed at Oxford and Weymouth, N.S., and have been affiliated and that one had been formed at Shelburne, Bridgewater and Woodstock boards have affiliatedd. The boards of Pictou and New Glasgow have reorganized.

President Fisher made a lengthy address touching largely on the work being done by the Maritime Board.

The All-Red project was the first matter taken up. The following resolution was moved by G. M. Campbell, of Halifax, and seconded by M. G. Dewolfe, of Kentville: "This convention of the Maritime Boards of Trade, believing that fast high-class mail, passenger and express freight services between the British possessions would be of immense material and political advantage to Canada, and all parts of the Empire, hereby heartily endorse the All-Red line project proposed by the people of Canada and unanimously adopted at the recent Imperial conference held in London, and urges the Canadian government to take all possible steps to hasten the inauguration of the scheme."

The resolution was unanimously passed.

Judgment Was Reserved in The Indian Cases.

Yesterday morning the county court building shortly before eleven o'clock was crowded both outside and through the corridors by people most of whom displayed both by color and costume, their Indian ancestry. Mr. O'Connell was counsel for the Indians who were charged with having created a disturbance. Those present first gathered in the county court room, but were later on told to go to the county court room.

At 11 o'clock County Magistrate Edmison mounted the rostrum. County Crown Attorney R. E. Wood appeared for the prosecution. Mr. O'Connell appeared for the two Jacobs, Knott and Johnston.

The first case tried was that of the two Jacobs and Knott for common assault. Mr. O'Connell here asked to have the other informations read. The assault alleged was against Fred Wright. The two Jacobs were surnamed Jonas and Jacobs

The first witness called was Mr. Wright, who said he was on the steamer Esturion the day of the trouble. His captain did not know the Stony Lake route very well. On the trip from Buckhorn the Indians were in the bow of the boat cursing and swearing Johnston whilst "head push" on getting up the excursion, said he was going to run things his own way on the boat Johnston caught witness by the throat when he, the witness, remonstrated with Johnston regarding his conduct. Jacobs gave him two black eyes and made his nose bleed. His clothes were torn and his shirt torn "clean off." He had to quit work for three days Three or four attacked him

To Mr. O'Connell, witness said he is mate on the Esturion The Indians got on at the Indian Village It took about 3-4 of an hour from Burleigh to Buckhorn. Johnston had the girl set shoved up against the wharf at Buckhorn During the scrap a man named Nicholls came to his assistance.

Here a large number of boys were chased out of court.

Jas Joplin then went into the witness box and said he saw the mate of the Esturion and the Indians having a mix-up on the Esturion The four Indian prisoners took part in a scuffle. He saw the four prisoners in a fracas. The language used by the Indians was obscene. One of the Indians had a man by the neck He recognized the four prisoners as taking part in the scrap as well as John Tobico, not present

Thos Sullivan, j.r was on the Esturion on the date in question. He heard Mate Wright ask the Indians to keep quiet He saw the Indians tear Wright's shirt off It was the two Jacobs who did it. Blood flowed.

Mr. R. E. Wood then gave evidence as to the trouble, as he was on the boat that day He heard loud talking and heard one of the Indians saying the boat was chartered, and that they, the Indians could do as they liked. One of the Jacobs, with others attacked Mate Wright of the Esturion He pulled one of the Indians off. Tobico tried to pull the Indians off and stop the fight He never saw a worse row in his life, but could not identify the prisoners as participants.

Alex Knott, one of the prisoners then went into the box and said he is an Indian and was present at the trouble alleged. There were seven Indians men on the excursion that day. There was whiskey among the Indians. He was under the influence of whiskey when the row took place. Wright made certain expressions to some of the Indian women. Two boys about 13 to 14 years of age used insulting language in the Indian tongue to the Indian women present. Witness did not engage in any fight or use improper language. He was pretty drunk that day. He "only lied" to Constable Moore about the fight. Here the witness was put through a severe cross examination by County Attorney Wood, as to where he got his liquor that day. He got a bottle of whiskey for which he paid $1 from a white man whom he did not know The white man he "did not know," simply went into the bar and got the whiskey and brought it out to him.

David Jacobs, said he had four drinks of whiskey the day of the trouble,

The result of the trial was that David Jacobs was fined $2 and costs and judgment was reserved in the other cases. Then the matter of the Indians drinking illegally, was tried. As is known, Indians are forbidden to use liquor in any way at any time under section 146 of the Indian Act. After hearing considerable evidence which was practically covered by the former trial, Jonas Jacobs was called to the stand by County Crown Attorney Wood

Here a red hot triangular fight took place between Messrs Wood for the prosecution, and McWilliams for Mr. Darcy, and O'Connell for the defence Mr. Wood slamming down his law book said, "Well, if this kind of thing is going to be allowed, I will give up the case." Magistrate Edmison sustained Mr. Wood's contention. Mr. O'Connell claimed, as the Magistrate had found the prisoners guilty that they should not then be tried so as to compel them to disclose from whom they got their liquor, this being another case altogether. Mr. Wood then said to Jonas Jacobs, you're an Indian, a treaty Indian are you not?" "Yes," said Jonas "Where did you get your liquor?" "At Burleigh." "From whom," said Mr. Wood. "Bill Aldridge," replied Jonas. "Who is he?" said Mr. Wood. "Oh, a white man" replied Jonas, who then went on to say he did not know anything about Aldridge except that Fr. the Indian used to work for Aldridge. He the witness went on to say he paid Aldridge $1 to get the whiskey.

Alex Knot then went into the box and said he got his liquor from Rolly McColl, and paid him $1 for it. He forgot who Rolly was and when he lives Here a mix-up (i.e. legally), took place when Mr Wood ascertained from the witness that he had told two different stores about getting his liquor, between him and Mr O'Connell Here Mr. Wood made the witness say that his first story was all lies, the Indian explaining it by saying, "I was excited this morning."

The magistrate after Mr O'Connell had made a strong plea for clemency for his clients, said he would impose the least possible penalty under the act. His judgment will be rendered at his office at 11 o'clock this morning.

Then the case against Mr Darcy of the Burleigh Falls' Hotel, charged with selling liquor to Indians was on. David Jacobs, the first witness, said

Police Court

At yesterday's police court Mrs. Mary Irwin, arrested on Wednesday afternoon by P. C. McDonald, was charged with having been drunk in a public place. The lady admitted the soft impeachment and was allowed to go with a warning as to her better discretion in to handling alcoholic beverages in the future.

Several cases that had been held over from previous trials were once more enlarged until the morning, when the magisterial mill will have a large grist to grind. All the bad boys who have been suffering with sticky finger tips, to which most any old thing not too heavy to carry away, will be tried.

C. P. R. Operators Remain at Work

Montreal, Aug. 23.—There is no change today in the local telegraph situation. The operators of the Canadian Pacific Company decided to remain at work. Business will be conducted by this company as hitherto, the clerks working on wires with affected points. So long as this continues the men will remain at work and handle the company's Canadian business.

This was settled on at a meeting the operators the men agreeing to remain at work on the conditions who have existed in Montreal since the beginning of the trouble in the United States The company officials seemed be satisfied to allow things to remain as they were and so the American business will be entrusted to the care of the chiefs while the working operators will be used to man wires to unaffected and Canadian points

In the C. N. W things appear to be today as yesterday, and yesterday they were as the previous day Messages are being handled and there appears to be plenty of life and activity about the offices.

Labor Scarce In West

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 21.—The scarcity of labor in the West has reached an acute stage. It has resulted in curtailing so much coal mine working that the Harriman lines, which have an abundance of fuel in their own mines, have been compelled to order coal from Australia. They have also made contracts for 2,000 tons a week from Illinois, paying one dollar a ton and seven dollars a ton freight to Garfield, Utah. Japanese in some Union Pacific mines are drawing as high as $170 a month, and it is feared wages will go still higher.

GIANNETTI'S HEAD NEARLY SEVERED

Michele Basso Believes the Suicide of Giannetti the Italian Bank Manager, May Have a Connection with Work of Some Mysterious Order

Toronto, Aug. 23.—The body of the man found dead with his throat cut in room 17 of the Hotel Cecil, corner of Queen street and Beaconsfield avenue, about midnight has been positively identified as that of A. Giannetti, the manager of Banco Giannetti, the doors of which were closed on Tuesday, causing the greatest anxiety among scores of Italians, who had entrusted to the bank all they money they had in the world.

Giannetti's head had been severed almost from the body Letters which were found in the room and which were evidently written by Giannetti would indicate that he committed the deed himself. The proprietor of the hotel states that he arrived about half past two in the afternoon, that he was alone, and that no person saw him up to the time he was found dead.

These facts and the contents of the letters satisfy the police that the man was not the victim of foul play, and that the theory that his death was brought about as the result of a black-hand plot, or by persons concerned in the failure of the bank, may be far-fetched.

The case was placed in the hands of Coroner Clark. He instructed Norman H. Craig, undertaker, 1253 Queen street west, who took charge of the body, to have it embalmed as there would be no inquest.

PRESS FOR INVESTIGATION.

The police authorities, however, will press for an investigation as in that way they may obtain a great deal of useful information.

The dead man used a razor with which to kill himself. He first inflicted deep gashes on each side of the neck behind the ears, and then drew the blade across the front, severing the wind pipe No large artery was severed, there was also a gash on the left wrist, which was evidently inflicted while he was slashing his neck.

The sum of $1,674 in Canadian and Italian money was found in the pockets of the clothes All of the dead man's belongings have been taken over by the police.

REGISTERED AS LESCERANCE.

The man registered as H. Lescerance, of Vaudreuil, Quebec, when he arrived at the hotel, and Mr. Michael Clancy, the proprietor, states that he had a presentiment almost as soon as he saw him that there was something mysterious about him Attempts were twice made during the evening to arouse the man for dinner, but no response was heard, and about midnight, Mr. Clancy on opening the door made the appalling discovery that the man had killed himself. The dresser in the room had been so shifted that the mirror was directly opposite the bed, beside which the man lay, and it is believed that he used the glass in order to guide the direction of his hand

Mr. Eric Armour, who is acting on behalf of Italians concerned, stated yesterday that letters of administration would be applied for on behalf of the creditors in order to realize as much as possible out of the estate of the dead man. These, so far as known, consist of bank property in Fort William, in which town it is now declared the headquarters of the bank were situated; cash to the amount of about $1,800 made up of the amount found on the dead man, and the money that was seized by the police when they visited the bank; an insurance policy for $5,000, which Giannetti in one of his letters directed should be paid to his brother at Fort William; and an amount as yet unknown, which he had on deposit in a local bank.

Hon. Frank Oliver Favors a White and British Canada

Vancouver, Aug. 23.—"My principal mission here is to gather information regarding the question of Oriental immigration, which I understand is absorbing public attention at this juncture. Let me assure the people of British Columbia that I have come with an open mind. So far as I am personally concerned I am unreservedly in favor of a white and British Canada. As minister of the interior, and in charge of the department especially entrusted with immigration affairs, my policy has been, as it will be in future, to attract desirable settlers, and to exclude all undesirables."

This was the epigrammatic way in which Hon. Frank Oliver last week stated his views respecting the Oriental problem.

"I am very glad you are here, for British Columbia, unless the bars are raised against Orientals, will soon be no longer a white man's country," was the comment of Mr. R. G. Macpherson, M.P., who was present and who went on to outline the conditions leading to the displacement of white men by Asiatic competitors.

Mr. Oliver was given an opportunity to study conditions at first hand, as he made a tour of Chinatown and the various sawmills. Later an appointment with the Anti-Asiatic League was arranged.

Mr. Hamar Greenwood, M.P., for York in the Imperial House, has agreed to address the club in Vancouver in the first week in September. Mr. F. C. Wade, K.C., president of the club, personally induced Mr. Greenwood to speak here.

British Columbia Leads the World

The Annual Per Capita Value of Its Products Holds Record

Montreal, Aug. 23.—Hon. J. H. Turner, former premier of British Columbia coast, and one cannot talk to him many minutes without finding it out Mr. Turner is at present agent-general for British Columbia in London, and he arrived in this city yesterday on his way to the coast where he will remain till the month of October.

The great resources and greater future of British Columbia naturally became at once the subject of conversation when an interviewer approached Hon Mr. Turner at the Windsor last night and the former premier was not slow to point out the splendid natural resources enjoyed by his province, and also to call attention to what had been accomplished by its people.

British Columbia, he said, is more talked of today in London than any other province of the Dominion of Canada, chiefly because of the great display of fruit they make each year at the Colonial Fruit Show of the Royal Horticultural Society They have taken all the gold medals and last year the success of the carload of fruit sent to England from the Coast province of the Dominion was marked

"The annual value of British Columbia's products per capita is larger than that of any other country in the world," was his proud boast.

Referring to immigration matters the agent-general said that the government of British Columbia had just concluded arrangements whereby some fifteen hundred agricultural workers were coming out to that province next spring. A great many more, he said, would come if the trip out was not so expensive, as there were many quite disposed to come, and there was room in the Western province for all that could find their way over to the Pacific Coast.

Speaking of the recent visit of Premier McBride to London, Mr. Turner said that the Premier had created the most favorable impression at the British Colonial Office where the leader of the Columbia Government was rightly looked upon as a man of marked ability.

Chinese Woman and Baby in Toronto

Toronto, Aug. 22.—A real live Chinese woman and baby was the attraction at the Union Station at noon today. The husband is a Toronto laundryman, who refused to make known his name. He was accompanied by Wong Chong of 11 Queen St. east.

The little lady was richly dressed in Chinese costume. She wore no hat, and her glossy black hair was carefully smoothed back from her brow and knotted behind the head and fastened with a peculiar-looking tone comb, set with brilliants. In her ears hung massive gold rings, supported by huge green stones. Heavy gold bracelets adorned both wrists, and her fingers bore several gold rings, prettily carved.

Her dress consisted of a three-quarter sacque of light colored silk, and her lower limbs were clad in cloth trousers. Her tiny feet were encased in patent kid shoes.

She is a very nice-looking little soul and bore the curious scrutiny with equanimity and looked about her on the citizens of Toronto as if they were as curious to her as she was to them.

The Baby Chinaman is beyond description. Whether it is a boy or girl, how old it is beyond that it is big enough to walk, no one would venture even a guess. But it is pretty and cute and clean, which is more than can be said of a great many others

Are You Often Bilious?

Read This and Learn How to Prevent Attacks.

Biliousness is merely a term applied to a condition that exists when the body is over-loaded with bile.

The complexion turns yellow, eyes look dull, pimples, itching and eczema break out, headaches are ever present.

Biliousness has two great causes, constipation and defective liver action.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills do cure biliousness and liver ills under all circumstances.

We prove this by the statement of Mr. Fenwick Luddington, of New Harbor, N.S., who writes: "Three months ago I had no expectation of ever getting free from periodical bilious attacks. They were preceded by dizziness and dreadful headaches. If I stooped over my head would swim and a nauseous feeling crept into my stomach.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills fixed up my liver, drove all the bile out. Of my blood and made me a well man in a few months. Today I enjoy a good appetite, excellent digestion, and the best of health. Dr. Hamilton's Pills did it all."

CAUSES OF WAR DISAPPEARING

In a recent interview Prince Buelow spoke of the possibility of wars becoming less frequent and suggested as a reason why they should not be waged the growing solidarity in the interests of nations with the resulting fact that the least disturbance affected all.

This suggestion supplies a very practical answer to the assertions of those who speak of war as a necessity, as something which must continue as long as human nature is what it is. Actually, and not because of peace conferences but because of the way in which nations and national interests have developed, we are gradually eliminating the causes of war. Peace has gained much through the reduction of the area in which civil wars are probable. They not only kept the disturbed state in fierce turmoil, but invited selfish and dangerous intervention from greedy neighbors. And where they were once carried on with great ferocity there are now strong and united peoples busily engaged in working out problems of civil liberty and self-government.

The growth of political power among the people, the spread of intelligence, the influence of industry and business are distinctly discouraging to the plots of warmaking adventures like Louis Napoleon. Against such a crime as the attempt to convert Mexico into a feudatory monarchy under France there is, in fact, a series of obstacles that illustrate the elimination of causes. The United States is reunited by bonds that will never be severed. Mexico has escaped from anarchy and is not likely to revert to the chaos of old whatever may happen; the Monroe doctrine is fortified not only by the increased strength of this nation but by the greater stability throughout the Latin American states and preoccupation of the great European powers with more engrossing matters than American conquests. France has become a republic for good, has lost all sympathy for her pretenders and has made a Boulanger ridiculous.

The chances to war over unclaimed territory have nearly, if not entirely, disappeared because there is little territory in the world that has not been seized or portioned out. China is saved because it is easier to agree to keep her whole than to devise a plan for her dismemberment. Russia has manifestly reached her limit in Asia, and with the end of her intrigues the yearly output of war rumors is sensibly diminished.

Evidently there will be fewer wars both because the nations are knit together by the vastly increased importance of their business relations and because there are so few things left to fight about. Reservations concerning honor remind one of the incidents preliminary to a French duel. A nation is not likely to be affected unless there is some appreciable menace to its sovereignty. There must be some substantial injury, and not a mere caring of names and mating of lines.

MUNICUPAL GOVERNMENT IN MICHIGAN.

The League of Michigan Municipalities met recently in Detroit. The following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved That the League of Michigan Municipalities recommends to the coming Constitutional Convention the careful consideration of municipal government in this state to the end:

1. That the Legislature be relieved of the burden of considering special legislations for particular cities; and

2. That all the cities and villages in the state be granted adequate powers of local legislation, subject to limitations in the constitution and general laws of the state.

That the League and all cities which are members of the League use their best endeavors to secure in the new constitution authority for municipal light and water plants to furnish light and water for commercial purposes.

That the League renew its endorsement of the proposed bill to establish a uniform system of accounting for counties, cities and other local districts, and that a committee on uniform accounting, to be appointed by the president, be continued for the purpose of promoting the passage of the proposed bill.

That the said bill be printed and presented to the members of this League for approval before it is introduced in the legislature.

That the Committee on Non-Partisan Government, to be appointed by the President, be continued for the purpose of further investigation and report to the next convention of the League.

That the League calls the attention of city officials to the graduates of the Engineering Department of the University of Michigan, trained in the technical subjects relating to municipal public works, and recommend to the Regents of the University that a special course of study be arranged to prepare graduates to undertake the general management of the public works of cities.

That Friday, September 4, 1907, and Friday, May 1, 1908, be observed by all cities of the state as "City Cleaning Day." That each mayor issue a proclamation in which he shall request the school children and all citizens to join in a general cleaning of yards and places of business, and the burning of all rubbish accumulation thereof. That the boards of Health and School Boards impress upon the school children the importance of good sanitary conditions, and the fact that public health depends upon a clean city.

That citizens owning wagons and horses be requested to donate them on these days for carrying away rubbish; and that each and every citizen devote the day to a general cleaning of the city.

The Outing Magazine for September.

"The Peal and Huddled East," by Vance Thompson, in the Outing Magazine for September is a living picture of today's London slums. Told in Mr. Thompson's brilliant literary style, the article forms a stinging indictment of English complacency in the face of misery which he refuses to alleviate. Mr. Robert Dunn, himself a widely traveled explorer, writes of "Mountaineering in North America," giving data which must be taken into account by the mountaineers.

"Along the Columbia," by Clifton Johnson, is an account of the social and industrial conditions along a river which is destined to be as much the center of things on the Pacific Coast as the Hudson River is on the Atlantic. "The Trapping of Morgan's Buccaneers," by John R. Spears, is the brilliant account of dare-devilism in the days when Spain ruled queen of the seas. "The Robbers of the Falls," by Herbert K. Job, recounts some stratagems of hawk-photography. "The Fish Ponds of Cape Cod," by John Murdock, is a description of a little known industry.

The September number, as usual, is full of intensely interesting true stories of out-of-the-way personalities of the past and present. "A Duel in the Dark," by W. J. Carney and Chauncey Thomas, is of this kind, being a narrative of an actual episode in the Arizona of thirty years ago. "The True Land of Bunco," by Ernest Russell, tells how a confiding searcher after country rest and quietness was neatly "done" by a smooth and plausible rural landlady.

In "Little Outdoor Stories," are included "Grandpa's Big Bass," by Carroll D. Murphy; "Bill Piken For Hunt," by Norman H. Crowell; "Corn and Grapes," a mixture of sound agricultural gossip and boyhood memories. The remarkable feat of walking around the world is described in the article, "A German Globe Trotter." "The Wandering Bookcase," by Ralph D. Paine, is a story rich in humor and funny absurdities. Emerson Hough's notable serial, "The Way of a Man," continues to increase in interest. "Derby Day" is a series of full page photographs of the foremost racing event of the year, won this year by Richard Croker.

Caspar Whitney's "View-Point" is given up to a discussion of the many true animal stories, which will give the "views" of one of the principals in the recent controversy between the Rev. Mr Long on the one side and President Roosevelt, Mr. John Burroughs and Mr. Whitney on the other.

The departmental articles are: Three Important Phases of Yacht Racing," "The Quality of a Bird Dog's Nose."

Thinks Expense Unnecessary

London, Aug. 21.—The plan of Premier Botha, of the Transvaal, to present the Cullinane diamond to King Edward meets with much criticism, both in England and the Transvaal. The finances of the colony are in bad condition, and many persons think that the expense is unnecessary. Moreover, the magnates of the premier diamond mining company have found the Cullinane diamond to be a white elephant. There is no market for such huge stones. The Premier people are political supporters of General Botha's party, and critics say that if the stone belonged to the De Beers Company, which is an opponent of Gen. Botha's, there would have been thought of presenting the diamond to the King, adding that the Botha party want to gain the credit for a patriotic act while putting money from the treasury in the pockets of their friends at a time when the colony can ill afford such luxuries.

The controversy places King Edward in an embarrassing position.

The Money That's Being Made in

Western Canada LAND

In October, 1906, we sold 5,000 acres of Saskatchewan lands to an Indiana party of men at $8 per acre, and resold it this year at $12, making just about 100 per cent. on the money invested.

A Montreal party of men who bought 10,000 acres from us at $8 per acre last September, resold through us within three months at $10.00 per acre.

A Chicago client writes us that after making some improvements on a section he bought near Regina, one year ago, he sold out recently for exactly twice what he paid for the land.

We resold a section of land located near Lipton for a man at $18.00 per acre last April, which we sold him in December at $12.00.

Western Canada Lands offer the greatest opportunity this continent has ever known

Men here are growing wealthy who never knew success in any other line. You can make money here too, if you think your amount too small club it with a few friends. Some of the most prominent financial men in the Canada are now interested in this country heavily.

We own about 200,000 acres of the finest wheat and mixed farming lands in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.—Picked lands on which we are prepared to give accurate trustworthy information, and these tracts being portions of extremely large purchases, we can sell them at prices that cannot be equalled, quality of land considered, by any firm in the United States and Eastern country.

Prices range from $6.00 per acre upwards Reasonable Terms in every case

Write us for further information but when doing so tell us the cash and amount of an investment you desire, and whether you want the land for your own use or for investment purposes purely. $1,000 is about the minimum we can handle. References Union Bank and Traders' Bank, Winnipeg.

SIREN WAFERS DEVELOP THE BUST

SHE'S A QUEEN! SHE'S A SIREN!

Is an expression that is always heard at sight of a well developed woman. If you are flat chested, with BUST undeveloped, a scrawney neck, thin lean arms—the above remark will never be applied to you. "SIREN" wafers will make you beautiful, bewitching. They DEVELOP the BUST in a few weeks from 3 to 6 inches and produce a fine firm, voluptuous bosom. They fill out the hollow places. Make the cheeks plump and rosy, and arms handsome and well molded and the neck and shoulders shapely and of perfect contour.

Send for a bottle today and you'll be pleased and grateful. "SIREN" wafers are absolutely harmless, pleasant to take and convenient to carry around. They are sold under guarantee to do all we claim or MONEY back.

Price $1.00 per bottle. Inquire at good drug stores or send DIRECT to us.

FREE!

During the next 30 days only—we will send you a sample bottle of these beautifying wafers on receipt of 10 cents to pay cost of packing and postage if you will mention that you saw the Advertisement in this paper. The sample alone may be sufficient if defects are trivial.

50% in Annual Dividends

This is a straight Business Undertaking.

The Smelting of Ore is the safest and most profitable business in the world.

We have fifteen mining properties, located in Kern County, California, carrying good values in Gold, Silver and Copper.

The smelter nearest to us, is at Needles, 250 miles distant.

We propose to install on our properties a smelter to treat the ores from our own mines and to do custom smelting for others.

50 per cent. per annum is a moderate estimate of the profits we can earn. If you want to make a safe and profitable investment send for full information and investigate our proposition.

COPPER A 5c. POSSIBILITY

Always the persons who make fortunes are those who seize opportunities. Trudge along in the conventional rut and you will never get away from the counter or the desk.

Fortunes—the greatest mining fortunes in the world—are being made to day by the men who own Copper Mines. You couldn't buy stock in one of the big-paying, developed mines. You CAN buy stock in a mine undergoing development, and if you BUY IN THE RIGHT PLACE the fortune will come.

I want you to come in and see me about the proposition I have in the Guggenheim Greenwater Copper Company's two properties at Ely and at Greenwater, Nevada. The recent copper finds at Ely are attracting the interest of a whole continent. The property which this Company owns there is in the best section. The workings are now down fifty feet, and the prospect brightens with every foot. The manager tells me he expects to strike it rich any day. So soon as he does, up goes the stock with a bound.

I still can offer a limited number of shares at 5 cents each. It's the easiest chance at a fortune you've ever had. See me about it at once.

THE CONQUEST of CANAAN

By BOOTH TARKINGTON,
Author of "Cherry," "Monsieur Beaucaire," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1905, BY HARPER & BROTHERS

Some apple blossoms blew by me as I passed an orchard, and it's like that too. But, oh, my dear, when you go you'll leave a fragrance in my heart that will last!"

She turned toward him, her face suffused with a rosy light. "You'd rather have died than have said that to me once," she cried. "I'm glad you're weak enough now to confess it!"

He sank down again into his chair, and his arms fell heavily on the desk. "Confess it!" he cried despairingly. "And you don't deny that you're going away again—so it's true! I wish I hadn't realized it so soon. I think I'd rather have tried to fool myself about it a little longer!"

"Joe," she cried in a voice of great pain, "you mustn't feel like that. How do you know I'm going away again? Why should I want the old house put in order unless I mean to stay? And if I went you know that I could never change. You know how I've always cared for you"—

"Yes," he said, "I do know how. It was always the same, and it always will be, won't it?"

"I've shown that," she returned quickly.

"Yes. You say I know how you've cared for me, and I do. I know how. It's just in one certain way—Jonathan and David"—

"Isn't that a pretty good way, Joe?"

"Never fear that I don't understand!" He got to his feet again and looked at her steadily.

"Thank you, Joe." She wiped sudden tears from her eyes.

"Don't you be sorry for me," he said. "Do you think that 'passing the love of women' isn't enough for me?"

"No," she answered humbly.

"I'll have people at work on the old house tomorrow," he began. "And for the"—

"I've kept you so long!" she interrupted, helped to a meek sort of gayety by his matter of fact tone. "Good night, Joe." She gave him her hand. "I don't want you to come with me. It isn't very late, and this is Canaan."

"I want to come with you, however," he said, picking up his hat. "You can't go alone."

"But you are so tired, you"—

She was interrupted. There were muffled, flying footsteps on the stairs, and a shabby little man ran furtively into the room, shut the door behind him and set his back against it. His face was mottled like a colored map, thick lines of perspiration shining across the splotches.

"Joe," he panted, "I've got Nashville good, and he's got me good too. I got to clear out. He's fixed me good, but he won't trouble nobody"—

Joe was across the room like a flying shadow.

"Quiet!" His voice rang like a shot, and on the instant his hand fell sharply across the speaker's mouth. "In there, Happy!"

He threw an arm across the little man's shoulders and swung him toward the door of the other room.

Happy Fear looked up from beneath the down bent brim of his black slouch hat. His eyes followed an imperious gesture toward Ariel, gave her a brief, ghastly stare and stumbled into the inner chamber.

"Wait!" Joe said cavalierly to Ariel. He went in quickly after Mr. Fear and closed the door.

This was Joseph Louden, attorney at law. And to Ariel it was like a new face seen in a flashlight—not at all the face of Joe. The sense of its strangeness, his unfamiliarity in this electrical aspect, overcame her. She was possessed by astonishment. Did she know him so well after all? The strange client had burst in, shaken beyond belief with some passion unknown to her, but Joe, alert and masterful beyond denial, had controlled him instantly; had swept him into the other room as with a broom. Could it be that Joe sometimes did other things in the same sweeping fashion?

She heard a match struck in the next room and the voices of the two men—Joe's, then the other's, the latter at first broken and protestive, but soon rising shrilly. She could hear only fragments. Once she heard the client cry, almost scream, "Joe, I thought Claudine had chased him around there to do me!" And instantly followed Louden's voice:

"Steady, Happy, steady!"

The name "Claudine" startled her, and, although she had had no comprehension of the argot of Happy Fear, the sense of a mysterious catastrophe oppressed her. She was sure that something horrible had happened. She went to the window, touched the shade, which disappeared upward immediately, and lifted the sash. The front of a square building in the courthouse square was bright with lights, and figures were passing in and out of the Main street doors. She remembered that this was the jail.

"Claudine!" The voice of the husband of Claudine was like the voice of one lamenting over Jerusalem.

"Steady, Happy, steady!"

"But, Joe, if they git me, what'll she do? She can't hold her job no longer—not after this."

The door opened, and the two men came out, Joe with his hand on the other's shoulder. The splotches had gone from Happy's face, leaving it an even, deathly white. He did not glance toward Ariel. He gazed far beyond all that was about him, and suddenly she was aware of a great tragedy. The little man's dim troubled, and he mumbled pitifully,

"Steady, Happy, steady!"

Nevertheless he bore himself upright and dauntlessly as the two walked slowly to the door, like men taking part in some fateful ceremony. Joe stopped upon the landing at the head of the stairs, but Happy Fear went on, clumping heavily down the steps.

"It's all right, Happy," said Joe. "It's better for you to go alone. Don't you worry. I'll see you through. It will be all right."

"Just as you say, Joe," a breaking voice came back from the foot of the steps—"just as you say."

The lawyer turned from the landing and went rapidly to the window beside Ariel. Together they watched the shabby little figure cross the street below, and she felt an infinite pathos gathering about it as it paused for a moment, hesitating, underneath the arc lamp at the corner. They saw the white face lifted as Happy Fear gave one last look about him; then he set his shoulders sturdily and steadfastly entered the door of the jail.

Joe took a deep breath. "Now we'll go," he said. "I must be quick."

"What was it?" she asked tremulously as they reached the street. "Can you tell me?"

"Nothing; just an old story."

He had not offered her his arm, but walked on hurriedly a pace ahead of her, though she came as rapidly as she could. She put her hand rather timidly on his sleeve, and without need of more words from her he understood insistence.

I will mail you free, to prove merit, samples of my Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and my Book on either Dyspepsia, The Heart or The Kidneys. Troubles of the Stomach, Heart or Kidneys, are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak Stomach nerves—the inside nerves—mean Stomach weakness, always. And the Heart, and Kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves, and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves." Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath, or complexion, use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write me today for sample and free Book. Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. The Restorative is sold by all dealers.

Application for a Receiver.

Utica, N.Y., Aug. 21.—Application was made before U. S. Court Judge Ray at Norwich on Saturday, for the appointment of a receiver for Curtiss, Leggett & Co., manufacturers of shirts, collars and cuffs, Troy. A petition is filed by three Troy creditors, who allege that the firm is insolvent. The liabilities are placed at $1,100,000, while the assets are said to be nominally $2,000,000. It is said that the scarcity of the money market has cramped the company in such a manner that it cannot handle its output and many orders on hand. It is impossible for it to borrow any more. It is not expected that there will be opposition to the petition and a receiver will be appointed who will continue the business as the concern may be reorganized and put on a stronger basis. The company employs about 1,500 operatives.

Rheumatism

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism! Not a remedy that will straighten the distorted limbs of chronic cripples, nor turn bony growths back to flesh again. That is impossible. But I can now surely kill the pains and pangs of this deplorable disease.

In Germany—with a Chemist in the City of Farmyards—I found the one Ingredient with which Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was made a perfected, dependable prescription. Without that last ingredient, I successfully treated many, many cases of Rheumatism; but now, at last, it uniformly cures all curable cases of this heretofore much dreaded disease. Those sand-like gritty waste, found in Rheumatic Blood seem to dissolve and pass away under the action of this remedy as freely as does sugar when added to pure water. And then, when dissolved, those poisonous wastes freely pass from the system, and the cause of Rheumatism is gone forever. There is now no real need—no actual excuse to suffer longer without help. We sell, and in confidence recommend

This Company was formed for the purpose of manufacturing all kinds of Iron, Steel, Metal and Wooden Goods, Agricultural Implements, etc., and to carry on the business of a foundry.

They are now turning out specialties in Ornamental Iron Work, Fences, Crestings, etc., for which there is a great demand far in excess of the present facilities of the Company.

There is a limited amount of stock for sale, and this opportunity to purchase will not return.

The encouragement, coupled with the unexcelled opportunities open to such an enterprise, are in themselves sufficient guarantee of absolute safety and large profits.

Write for our Prospectus. Investigate to-day—to-morrow may be too late.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry must be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made on certain conditions, by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of the homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Six months' notice in writing should be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of intention to apply for patent.

W. W. CORY,
Deputy of the Minister of the Interior.

Brown Bonanza Mining Co.

100,000 Shares of Treasury Stock for Sale at

10 CENTS PER SHARE

Capital stock 1,000,000 shares, full paid, non-assessable, par value $1, treasury stock 300,000 shares. Other stock pooled.

Officers and Directors

President ..... EDWARD T. PATRICK.
Mine Owner and President of the Goldfield Stock and Exchange Board.

Vice-President ..... JUDGE CHAS. L. HAYES.
Mine Owner and Leading Attorney of Goldfield, Nevada.

Secretary and Treasurer ..... ADAMS F. BROWN.
Corporation and Mining Lawyer and Member of Exchange.

Committee Goldfield Stock and Exchange Board.

Depository ..... JOHN S. COOK & CO.
Bankers of Goldfield, Nevada.

This company owns [illegible] claims (80 acres) of the best proven mining land in the Goldfield district, consisting of the Accident and Accidental No. 2 lode claims, situated two and one-half miles south of the great Goldfield Consolidated Mines (comprising the Mohawk, Goldfield, Combination, Red Top, Jumbo and Lucania), the richest in the world, and the Broadway and Bluejay claims, situated three and one-half miles south of the Consolidated and about one and one-half miles northwest of the Great Bend and Daisy Mines near the Zeon group in the Diamondfield section, second only in richness to the great Mohawk portion of the camp.

The company has also succeeded in securing the Sure Thing lode claim (20 acres) in the Cuprite district, which are outcroppings equal to anything in Goldfield, showing fine surface values and without doubt rightly named, "Sure Thing."

All of these claims are located in the same mineral belt as the other noted mines of Goldfield that have astounded the world by their production of millions in high grade ore, and will with the same development give equally profitable returns.

The money derived from the sale of this stock will be used in advance for the active development of the property and the fact that all the directors are residents of Goldfield with years of successful mining experience who will give their personal attention at all times to the progress of the work goes to show that the first issue of 100,000 shares will meet with a quick and ready sale at the initial price of 10 cents per share.

We advise immediate action if you wish to participate in the vast profits of this Bonanza Mine.

Stock will be listed as soon as feasible on the Goldfield and San Francisco Stock and Exchange Boards. Would therefore advise purchasers to buy in board lots of 1,000 shares when convenient to do so.

Auto Sale Does Not Affect Us

We note that some $8,000,000 worth of automobiles are to be sold by stock brokers in New York, who gambelled on the wrong side of the market. Whilst the trains from Peterborough may be crowded by those seeking cheap auto-bubbles, thank the Lord this bargain sale does not attract newspaper men. Shank's mare with an occasional and extravagant street car ride is the limit of the press.

Local Library is all Right

Mr. Barton Earle, one of Peterborough's most thoroughly posted literary men thinks that the local public library whilst confined to more humble quarters than the Winnipeg library contains a better assortment of books than the Prairie City boasts of. It is the books that count, just as the man makes the man not the West End tailor who supplies his exterior surface.

Obituary

Yesterday the widely respected wife of Mr. Geo. Wheeler of the east ward, passed away. Her death will be noted with deep regret by a large circle of friends and acquaintance. The deceased had been ill for a long time.

She was born in Donegal, Ireland, 59 years ago, and came to Peterborough when but 18 years of age. In 1870 she was married to Mr. George Wheeler, who survives her. A family of three sons and two daughters is also left to mourn her demise. They are Messrs. George, William and Harry Wheeler, city, and Mrs. C. F. Greig and Mrs. G. T. Chisholm, Toronto. One sister, Mrs. Thomas Doman, resides in Lakefield.

The funeral will take place Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the family residence, to the Little Lake cemetery.

$100 REWARD, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer one hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Minden Woman's Fight with Thief

Plucky Action of Woman in the Absence of Her Husband

A Minden message says that Mrs. W. B. Shewfelt, of Blind River, Ont., daughter of Mr. C. H. Crofts, of Ingoldsby, whose marriage took place only a few weeks ago, was brutally assaulted and robbed, at her home last week. It seems that this lady, whilst alone in her house by night, heard some one attempting an entrance to the house She grabbed up a gun and pointing it at the window that was apparently being opened, was ready to fire. However, fearing it might be her husband returning late at night she lowered the weapon. Thereon a man rushed in and choked her till the blood ran from her mouth, and then pounded her to a state of insensibility and afterward robbed the house of money and other valuables and took his departure. Mrs. Shewfelt had to remain alone till morning when she succeeded in calling a passerby who reported the matter and the husband was some twenty-five miles away. Mrs. Shewfelt is weak from the nervous shock and injuries received. She could not identify the robber.

Hotelmen Foolish to Sell to the Indians

Licensed Victuallers Should Refuse Any Red Skin Liquor

It seems that Ananias and an Indian, when the latter is up on a liquor case are rivals as to whom can tell the most lies in the shortest time. Yesterday, one of the Indians before his worship, County Magistrate Edmison, admitted during the afternoon session, that his evidence given during the morning was all "lies." This, he explained was due to him having been "excited." When one, in cool sober judgment, weighs the evidence in this case, it clearly proves the fact that, under the present law, the hotel man who, for a paltry two or three 5-cent pieces, takes an Indian's money and sells him liquor, is nothing but what rhymes with breaking the Golden RULE. An Indian when he gets liquor seems to regain the characteristics and crazy actions that actuated his ancestors under similar conditions. Hotel men, who personally would not commit a crime, by selling liquor to our red-skinned brethren are "participes criminis," with those who break the law in buying. Whilst the present law, evidently designed to stop the sale of liquor to Indians in remote districts, may seem unfair in its effects on educated and civilized men whose skins are tinctured with the red of their ancestors, the result of yesterday's trials demonstrated most undeniably that men of Indian blood cannot control their actions when under the result of alcohol. One man, well dressed and intelligent looking had to admit that he had deliberately lied during an examination under oath. Thus the licensed man, whose license is worthy a good many hundred dollars to him, when next year's business is considered, who for a few five cent pieces sells so many glasses of whiskey or beer to an Indian, is taking bigger chances than his individual profit justifies. We are pleased to know, from conversation with numerous catuomers, that there are very few men in Peterborough who sell to the Indians. We hope that they will in the future be fewer.

Peterboro Won from Lindsay

Yesterday afternoon a fair-sized crowd gathered at Riverside Park to see the struggle between the locals and the Red Skins from Lindsay, Peterborough winning by a score of 5 to 4. The game looked like Lindsay's up until the eighth inning, as the visitors led by four runs to three, but the locals evened up and made the winning run in the ninth. Batteries, Peterborough, Burridge, Burns, and Flaherty; Lindsay, Workman and O'Keefe. Jack Connors umpired the game.

Salvation Army Band Plays in Park

Last night the splendid band of the local Salvation Army Band, reflected great credit on its members and on Mr. Green, to whose efforts its efficiency is largely due, by the music it dispensed at Victoria Park The program was as follows;

March—"Tredegar."
Selection—"The Old, Old Story."
March and Selection - "Spanish Chant."
Trombone Solo—Bandsman Moynes —"The Cross is Not Greater than His Grace."
March—"Prize March No 3."
Selection "The Old Times."
Instrumental Quintette —"He is Risen"—By two cornets and three trombones.
Hymn—"Lead, Kindly Light."
"God Save the King."

Judgment Reserved

he was in the hotel bar on the date named Aug. 8th and bought lager. He drank alone and paid ten cents for two glasses. It was Rolly Darcy who served him

Here quite a learned disquisition was rendered by his worship on lager He said, when Mr McWilliams, acting for Darcy, tried to discredit the Indian's evidence as to getting lager that whilst there might be many kinds of lager when it is bottled, that when drawn through a pump it is about the same.

Mr. Alex. Elliott then went into the box and as a dealer in liquors testified that lager is intoxicating if one took enough of it.

Mr Darcy next went into the box and said he was not in the bar when the excursion came back on the 8th. Several Indians asked him for liquor but he refused them all. When he saw that there were Indians aboard he notified the bar tender not to sell to them.

W. Devin, Darcy's bar tender went into the witness box and denied selling liquor to Indians.

His worship also reserved judgment on this case until 11 a.m., today, so that he could read up the Indian Act.

The Story of a Medicine.

Its name—"Golden Medical Discovery" was suggested by one of its most important and valuable ingredients—Golden Seal root.

Nearly forty years ago, Dr. Pierce discovered that he could, by the use of pure, triple-refined glycerine, aided by a certain degree of constantly maintained heat and with the aid of apparatus and appliances designed for that purpose, extract from our most valuable native medicinal roots their curative properties much better than by the use of alcohol, so generally employed. So the now world-famed "Golden Medical Discovery," for the cure of weak stomach, indigestion, or dyspepsia, torpid liver, or billousness and kindred derangements was first made, as it ever since has been, without a particle of alcohol in its make-up.

A glance at the full list of its ingredients, printed on every bottle-wrapper, will show that it is made from the most valuable medicinal roots found growing in our American forests. All these ingredients have received the strongest endorsement from the leading medical experts, teachers and writers on Materia Medica who recommend them as the most potent remedies for the diseases for which "Golden Medical Discovery" is advised.

A little book of these endorsements has been compiled by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., and will be mailed free to any one asking same by postal card, or letter addressed to the Doctor as above. From these endorsements, copied from standard medical books of all the different schools of practice, it will be found that the ingredients composing the "Golden Medical Discovery" are advised not only for the cure of the above mentioned diseases, but also for the cure of all catarrhal, bronchial and throat affections, accompanied with catarrhal discharges, hoarseness, sore throat, lingering, or hang-on-coughs, and all those wasting affections which, if not promptly and properly treated are liable to terminate in consumption. Take Dr. Pierce's Discovery in time and persevere in its use until you give it a fair trial and it is not likely to disappoint. Too much must not be expected of it. It will not perform miracles. It will not cure consumption in its advanced stages. No medicine will. It will cure the affections that lead up to consumption, if taken in time.

Time to Close the Hotel Controversy

Correspondent Thinks too Much Publicity is Being Given

(To the Editor of The Times.)

Sir.—In the Examiner of yesterday's date, I saw a very pointed letter referring to the alleged recent utterances made by Rev. J. G. Potter regarding a church member. The rev. gentleman evidently was carried away by his zeal in what he thought a good cause, and neglected to use a certain seasoning of common sense. Now that the pastor has made a mistake I do not think it wisdom to get the "mud rake" out and stir up trouble. There are reasons for believing that the pastor making those unfortunate remarks has, by this time, seen the error of his way, and is sorry that he threw out the slurs at a fellow christian. I think, in christianity and common sense that the incident should be closed.

Yours truly,

PAX.

Abandon the Suit Against Mrs. Eddy

Concord, N.H., Aug. 23.—The famous suit in equity brought on March last by George W. Glover, son of Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy, and others, as "next friends," against Calvin S. Frye and others, to secure an accounting of the property of the aged founder and head of the Christian Science church, came to an abrupt end today.

Immediately after the opening of court in the continued hearing regarding Mrs. Eddy's competency before Judge Edgar Aldrich and his co-masters, William E. Chandler, senior counsel for the "next friends" had filed with the clerk of the court a motion for the dismissal of the suit.

He said that there were many reasons for this action, but the principal one was "the unprofitableness of any immediate result of a decision in our favor upon the exact issue as now framed, compared with the burdens and disadvantages to be endured by us, both before and after such a decision."

SENTIMENTAL REASONS.

Mr. Chandler, continuing, said:

"The suit has been almost wholly altruistic in its nature, and not a single dollar of the large fortune whose existence is disclosed, of which might be enlarged in consequence of this suit, can become at this time the property of the "next friends." There are also reasons, sentimental in their character, overcoming the strong desire of the "next friends" to press the suit."

DEFENCE OPPOSED DISMISSAL.

Mr. Streeter, counsel for Mrs. Eddy, at once presented a motion that the masters proceed with the hearing and determine her competency to manage her business affairs.

"If we are allowed to proceed," said Mr. Streeter, "we will show you that on February 12, 1907, Mrs. Eddy began to arrange for the management of her property for the rest of her life, and to provide for her kindred during that time."

ATTACK ON RELIGION.

Mr. Streeter reviewed the institution and progress of the accounting suit, which he characterized as primarily an assault by a great newspaper upon a great religion—a religion which its founder had designed to promote after her death by the use of a large part of her fortune.

"Not one word of testimony has been introduced," said Mr. Streeter, "to show that one dollar of her money has ever been misappropriated. The charge of her incompetency has completely collapsed. It is now stated in the press that the "next friends" will abandon this suit for the purpose of awaiting Mrs. Eddy's death, and then contesting her will. Mrs. Eddy has a legal right to a finding of her competency upon the case as it now stands or upon such further evidence as she may introduce."

Mr. Streeter took an exception to the ruling of the masters, concluding the hearing.

At the Roller Rink

There was a good turn out at the roller rink last evening and a most pleasant time was spent at this popular pleasure resort The floor is in excellent shape. There was keen competition for the handsome prize for the best lady roller skater, and the judges, Messrs. J. T. Armstrong, T. Savigny and C. R. Banks awarded the prize to Miss Mona Logan.

C. P. R. OPERATORS ALL AT THEIR WORK

Mr. Hill Back from West, and is Submitting Difficulty to Mr. Small--Operators Stick with the C. P. R. Company.

Toronto, Aug 23.—Wearing ribbons, on which the word "Stick" was very prominent, the striking G. N.W. telegraphers went for a moon light sail last night on the Turbinia The affair was a thorough success.

Only one operator has gone back in Toronto. This is asserted by the men, and admitted by the company. The impression on both sides now is that the struggle is to be simply a question of endurance, and each side claims superior facilities for outlasting the other.

C.P.R. IN TROUBLE.

There was considerable alarm in Toronto last night, owing to the situation in the West. In Winnipeg the C.P.R. men went out shortly after midnight, but went back at 1.15, pending a conference on the question of permitting chiefs to man the American wires. The C.P.R. charter is worth millions of dollars, and it compels the company to give continuous service. Under the circumstances there is no desire to let it lapse. Nor are the company's operators in Toronto anxious for a strike as they have always enjoyed amicable relations with the management and are anxious to stand by the company.

The western situation was set forth by the following bulletin posted this morning at the union headquarters, Aberdeen Hotel, Queen street.

"C.P.R. operators at Winnipeg, Vancouver, and Montreal last night demanded that American scab wires be abandoned. Demand acceded to by Superintendent Jenkins, at Winnipeg; Richardson, at Montreal, and night chief at Toronto. Since 1.30 a. m. no American Postal wire out of Vancouver, Winnipeg, Toronto, and Montreal has been worked. Vancouver men were out to enforce demand yesterday afternoon, and up to 1.30 a.m., our time, today; also Winnipeg from 4 to 6 p.m., but went back pending decision from Montreal Men at Montreal were ready to go out on five minutes' notice, but the company gave in before anything happened, Winnipeg and Vancouver backed them."

TORONTO CHIEFS OFF LAST NIGHT

Mr. Charles E. Hill, who has been in Chicago and the West as representative of the local strikers, returned to Toronto last night. "Every thing is locked up very tight in the States," he said, "and I do not see how the companies can stick out much longer."

"What is the C.P.R. situation here?" asked the reporter.

"It is all right today," he said, He admitted that there had been a short strike in Winnipeg last night, but declared that all the men were back except a committee which is looking into several mattes of interest to the telegraphers.

"Are the chiefs in Toronto handling Postal wires?"

"Yes, but not for thorough messages They are taking messages from American points to Toronto, just as they have done all along."

"Did they do so all last night?"

"No Things were tied up for a while, but we managed to straighten them out, as the company are doing everything possible to avoid trouble with the men. We are not looking for trouble unless it is necessary. I am to speak to Mr. Small over the phone at noon, and we will then know more definitely as to the situation."

AN EFFORT TO STAMPEDE MEN

"There is only one local G. N. W. man back at work," declared Mr. Hill. "Stories as to others going back are untrue."

"What do you think of the situation here?"

"I think that the men are doing splendidly. The return of the one man to work was part of a plan to stampede the strikers before my return. That's what I think of it."

"Before you returned"

"Yes, they knew I was coming back, and they thought they might stampede the strikers into returning to work before I came."

Three Children Drowned in Lake North of Madoc --All From One Family

Drowned in Wadsworth Lake

Madoc, Aug. 24--A Terrible Drowning Fatality Occurred at Wadsworth Lake Wednesday--Three Children Lose their Lives.

Willie Green, Aged 9 Years; Burnett Green, Aged 7; Helen Green Aged 6

Madoc, Aug. 24.—A terrible drowning accident occurred at Gilmour, about thirty miles north of here, on Wednesday afternoon, when three children of Mr. Norman A. Green, agent for the Anglo-American Iron Company for North Hastings, and a resident of this place, were drowned in Wadsworth's lake, where Mr. Green has been spending the summer with his family.

Wadsworth's lake is one of the many small bodies of water which abound in the northern part of this county. It is about two miles and a half long, and situated about three miles from Gilmour, where the head office of the Anglo-American Company is situated. As the company controls about 80,000 acres of land in Hastings county, Mr. Green has to spend much of his time in the northern part of the county, where most of the company's property is situated For this reason Mr. Green has been in the habit of taking his family north with him during the summer, and this season he decided to locate near Gilmour.

PLAYED IN A SKIFF.

On Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Green and one of the older boys, Percy, had gone out picking berries. Another boy, Roscoe, was in the house putting the baby to sleep.

On the shore of the lake close to the house was a new skiff which Mr Green purchased this summer.

It is thought that the children got the boat into the water, climbed in, and pushed out from shore. When about 45 or 50 feet, they in some manner capsized the skiff, which was very light, and as the shore is rocky and slopes away rapidly, they were thrown at once into deep water.

Roscoe was the first to discover the accident. Having succeeded in putting the baby to sleep, he had gone out to join the others in their play, when he was horrified to see the skiff floating bottom upwards, and the children nowhere to be seen. He immediately gave the alarm, but as there are no other cottagers on the lake, which is in a lonely spot, and the nearest neighbor is nearly a mile away, it was some time before help arrived.

The news of the drowning soon spread, however, and neighbors from miles around came to assist in dragging for the bodies.

RECOVERED THE BODIES.

That of the little girl, Helen, was the first to be discovered. Her body was found about seven o'clock, three hours after the accident. The body of Burnett was recovered at 7.30 the following morning, and that of Willie an hour later. The bodies were brought to Madoc by Mr. Green.

Mr. Norman A. Green is known all through Hastings county, having been engaged in business here for many years Previous to his appointment as agent of the Anglo-American Company he kept a general store at Gilmour. He moved to Madoc about three years ago.

The surviving children are Percy, aged 14, Roscoe, aged 12, and a baby a little over a year old.

WAS THE ITALIAN BANKER MURDERED?

Police Work on the Theory That He Met His Death at the Hands of Enemies--New Sensational Developments are Hourly Expected.

Toronto, Aug. 24 The mystery in the Giannetti case deepens Almost every conjecture relating to the dead banker, the operations of himself and his associates, now takes the form of plausibility. It would not surprise the detectives to discover that the banker had been murdered, and that the letters which are said to have been written by himself are bogus. And out of the intricate mass of explanations and theories pops the questions;

Where is Coronia, the missing clerk? What does he know about Giannetti's death?

Toronto, Aug 24.—The two New York Italians, Vetromile and Martaroni, will not be allowed to leave the city. They will be required at the coroner's inquest which will be held on Wednesday evening next by Coroner J. T. Clark. These men will also be closely questioned at a conference of interested parties, to be held by Inspector of Detectives Duncan.

It is learned at the detective offices that some arrests may shortly be made in the case. The intention of the police with regard to Vetromile, Martaroni and Couiorti, the latter two having been clerks in the "Banco," has not been made apparent.

"Will these men be placed in custody?" was the question asked of Inspector Duncan.

He jerked up his hands and shook his shoulders in the Italian manner which has developed among the detectives since the Giannetti case arose, but he made no reply. It was evident that he had not yet been satisfied as to any connection these men had with the bank which might warrant their arrest.

Dominco Vetromile, who at first intimated that he was only interested in the case as a friend, as it now develops, more concerned than he was at first willing to admit. He and Martaroni were closeted with Inspector Duncan all morning. Vetromile admits that he had some business dealings with Giannetti. He still insists that the muddle in connection with the Banco Giannetti will clear itself. He intimates that he intended leaving for New York last night to attend to some business affairs of his own, after which he intended to return and see that his friend Giannetti had decent burial. The body has been embalmed, and Undertaker Craig awaits the directions of the deceased friends.

MUDDLE OF BOOKS AND PAPERS.

There is a great deal of work to be done by the detective department and the representatives on each side before any definite information can be handed out as to whether money was actually forwarded from Toronto to New York and thence to Italy.

It was learned yesterday that the Banco Giannetti forwarded upwards of one million lires, or $250,000 to Italy during the first six months of its business here. Representatives of express companies declare that about $60,000 is sent from Toronto's foreign population to European countries every month.

"We are trying to clear up the muddle of books and papers that we took from the bank," said Inspector Duncan yesterday. "We have no idea what help will be given the case by information thus obtained. The steamship people and others are anxious to secure their property.

"We have information that in the city of New York, Giannetti took out bonds for $15,000 with an insurance company by way of security to depositors or remitters before he could start a banking business there. He has been in the habit of using his also made a deposit of $500 against the rental of a large building, which he evidently intended to fix up as a bank, and a further deposit of $550 on furniture."

Wiarton Expects Woman Will Not be Prosecuted

Wiarton, Aug. 24.—The trial of Mrs. Agnes Thomas is looked upon as closed. The Man-on-the-street speaks of her as discharged, but does not expect that Wiarton or its vicinity will be troubled by her any more. The evidence on the preliminary examination will go to the attorney-general, and, in the meantime, she goes to Walkerton for eight days. No bail was asked. The incident in the history of the town is closed, in the opinion of the citizens, and they are ready to forget it as quickly as possible.

FIRST IN HISTORY.

This is the first time in the history of the town that life has been taken, and Mrs. Thomas is the first woman to be brought before a Wiarton Magistrate on a charge of this kind.

A VIGILANCE COMMITTEE.

It is recalled that Wiarton's history records more than one example of "vigilance committee" methods. About twelve years ago a drunken fellow and a wife-beater lived in the then village. The reeve as magistrate fined him, but his people suffered, as they paid the fines. The reeve observed one day that a thrashing would do the man more good than a hundred fines, and a dozen villagers horsewhipped him a few nights later, after giving the impression that they intended to hang him. They told him to leave Wiarton, and he went, never to return.

WOMEN WHIPPED.

About the same time, two women scandalized the neighborhood. A deputation visited them unexpectedly one night, and they were carried on rails down the road and whipped. They disappeared, too. The farmer at whose house they lived escaped with a drubbing.

WOMAN HAD TWO SONS.

A Goderich despatch says that the Thomas woman comes from that town. A daughter of the late James Keag, she married Benj. Thomas. Two sons were born and twenty years ago husband and wife separated. Thomas going to British Columbia. He is still there, it is said. Mrs. Thomas was respectable in Goderich. From there she went to London. She left London at the authorities' request it is said, and lived in Owen Sound for four or five years. Then she went to Wiarton.

Stella Lamont, better known as Stella Baker, claims London as her home, and went there yesterday.

LANCASTER'S STORY.

Robert Lancaster, who lives almost in front of where the tent was set up, testified at the inquest that he had heard the shots fired. Some of the men had their faces blackened. The men were there more than 10 minutes. Jim Miller gave first warning of Gilbert being killed.

"I knew the women by sight," said the witness. "I do not know whether they were there last night or not. I do not know who fired the shots that killed Gilbert. I did not see any weapon with either woman. I did not hear either of them make any remarks."

To Mr. MacKay, Lancaster said that the women were 100 feet from the tent when they met the crowd. "I heard someone call, 'Come on, boys, now is our time.' They pelted the girl with eggs and stones as she was running away towards the town, but did not hear her scream. I was coming out of the bushes, 50 feet from the tent, when the first shot was fired. I did not see Hastings. I think his evidence was wrong as to the time of the firing—there was not half a minute between the shots. It was not more than a minute and a half till the whole thing was over. I swear I do not know the man who carried the dead man into my house.

COULD NOT BELIEVE HIM.

Mr MacKay: "That will do. The jury may believe you, but I cannot."

Mr Lancaster also said: "The deceased was at my house on the night of the 20th He stayed 15 minutes, and about 15 minutes after he left I heard four shots fired. I went out to the sidewalk. As I was going out after the shooting, I heard a noise like the tent being torn down. Someone came running out of the bushes and said 'Phil's shot,' and turned around and went back. He said: 'Let us bring him in out of that.' They then brought him into my house. I do not know how many people were around.

"I could not see the tent. I did not see Mrs Thomas at the tent, but I saw two women coming out from the tent to the road before the crowd went in. They stood on the road for a minute or two, and the crowd passed them when they followed the crowd to the tent."

Peterboro Patent Article Made.

Two local gentlemen, Messrs Collier and Cunningham, of the Prepayment Meter Co., have taken out a patent on what promises to be an article that will be used in every house that is supplied with electric light. This is the latest and seemingly the best electric iron yet placed on the market. There are, as is generally known, a number of electric irons for ironing clothes now on the market. The iron that these gentlemen have patented and are having made at the Prepayment Meter Company's factory on Hunter street, has a unique contrivance not supplied in any other iron, viz., an attachment whereby, by the woman doing her ironing simply standing the iron on its rear end, the electric current is cut off. This effects a great saving of the electric current when houses are paying for the current by meter. The new Peterborough made article is of handsome design, and is so designed that the heat is only placed where needed, namely, at the bottom side, the handle being quite cool. This local product is kept hot by three amperes, while other makes require 5 1-2 amperes of current.

Gompers Will put up Fight

He Charges the Manufacturers with Trying to Crush Unions

Washington, Aug. 24.—Following a meeting of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor today, President Gompers said that the federation would probably bring a counter suit against the National Manufacturers' Association, charging that body with conspiracy.

In an interview he said that the recent Van Cleave injunction proceedings against boycotts and publication of unfair lists was instigated by the Manufacturers' Association, which, he said recently decided to raise $1,500,000 to crush organized labor. Mr. Gompers added: "The executive council of the American Federation of Labor decided today that the case to be met in the courts shall take on the broadest scope, the justification or exercise of our rights. Those rights sought to be enjoined are not illegal or unlawful, and we will continue to assert them.

"We know we are within our legal rights, and we propose to exercise them regardless of personal consequences.

"So far as I am concerned, I wish to state this, when it comes to a choice between surrendering my rights as a free American citizen, or violating the injunction of the courts, I do not hesitate that I shall exercise my rights as between the two."

Mr. W. H. Darcy was Fined Fifty Dollars

Burleigh Hotelman Fined for Act of a Relative

Yesterday morning at eleven o'clock County Magistrate Edmison delivered his judgment regarding the trial wherein some four Indians were charged with getting liquor from Mr. Tom Darcy's son at Burleigh Falls. His worship decided yesterday morning that Mr. W. H. Darcy was guilty under the Indian Act, and he was fined $50 and costs. The magistrate stated that although the sale took place in his absence and without his knowledge an infraction of the law was committed as the liquor was sold to David Jacobs by the brother of the proprietor who, although not an employe, was occasionly allowed to tend bar and do other work around the premises The fine imposed was the minimum for the offense

NO HARM FROM FROST

Winnipeg, Aug. 24. — The weekly crop report of the C. P.R. yesterday indicates that no damage has been done by the frost, which has been reported during the past few days from a number of places in the West.

Asiatics are Thought a Menace

British Journalists Fear the Influx of Colored People into the West

Winnipeg, Aug. 23. — The second group of British journalists, full of sound Saxon common sense, arrived in the city this afternoon Everyone seems to have enjoyed the trip through to the coast. Victoria and Vancouver were both appreciated for their natural beauties. On the return journey the newspaper men spent a day at Calgary to see the irrigation works They stopped at Red Deer on the way to see Edmonton, and coming further over the Canadian Northern visited Saskatoon and Prince Albert. Provincial legislators and influential settlers accompanied them in certain sections, and they have each been well primed with information which is already blossoming forth into articles for the newspapers which they severally represent

LIKE MIXED FARMING

At Lloydminster the Barr colonists were met. Mr. C. W. Stormer thinks that they were doing well and says that the district is particularly suited to English settlers, as it is adaptable to mixed farming, at which the English yeoman is more apt than wheat growing The party is unanimous in expressions of surprise at the marvelous stretches of level landscape and the equally extraordinary development going on, despite the population of the whole Dominion not being more than that of the British metropolis.

"We think we are pretty smart at business," remarked Mr Stormer, but you have nothing to learn from us. Your go-aheadness is a splendid augury of the prosperity of this great Dominion."

OPPOSED TO ASIATICS.

W. Redwood of the Western Daily Press expressed his misgivings as to the advisability of allowing so many Asiatics in British Columbia, and does not think that it is in the best interests of the general white population.

B. McConkey of the Belfast Evening Telegraph was also surprised to see the extreme western province overrun in this fashion

The majority of the opinions seem to be anti-Asiatic.

France Hurrying Reinforcements

Will Have 5,000 Men to Defend Casablanca which is Again Surrounded

Paris, Aug. 24.—An official note was issued today announcing that General Drude, commander of the French expeditionary force in Morocco, will, when the reinforcements now on their way to Casablanca reach him, have at his disposal five thousand men. Which number is considered to be efficient to insure the protection of the town, unless the unexpected happens, for which emergency further reinforcements are ready to embark for Morocco. It is stated that, as a result of the cabinet conferences and exchanges of views with Premier Clemenceau, who is at Marienbad, where he met King Edward, the government remains firm in carrying out its programme which, it is reiterated, is not one of conquest.

Casablanca, Aug. 24.—The arrival before the town of three new columns of warring tribesmen, who have joined the army of the fanatics besieging Casablanca, has rendered more serious the problem undertaken by France and Spain to restore order. The new arrivals constitute an imposing opposition to the French forces, now worried with their long vigil. The soldiers are convinced that their present defensive strength is inadequate.

Whenever the men on boar dthe cruiser Gloire sight groups of Arabs they open up on them with shell fire and during all last night there was a constant rattle of rifle fire from the French sharpshooters directed against Arabs who were trying to steal in toward the town under cover of darkness.

Oran, Algeria, Aug. 24.—A battalion of Algerian sharpshooters and half a squadron of cavalry were embarked on the French transport Vinh Long Their destination is Casablanca.

The Indians Paid for Their Drunk

Indians Who Caused Disturbance on Steamer Esturion Fined

At eleven o'clock yesterday, his worship County Magistrate George Edmison delivered, as anticipated in yesterday's issue of The Times, his decision as to the trial of the Indians on the day preceding On the charge of d. & d. on the steamer Esturion the two Jacobs brothers, and Knott were fined $5 each and costs. The latter amounts to more than the fine, in the disturbance case David Jacobs was fined $1, and the other Indians, Jonas Jacobs and Knott, were assessed $5 each. Isaac Johnston was fined $10 and costs.

Peterboro Man Finds Gold Mine

Ottawa Press Has Enthusiastic Words Regarding Results

The Ottawa Journal of recent issue contains considerable space regarding the finding of a gold mine of great value, by a Peterborough man. This discovery refers to the find of a property found by Mr. J. L. Garvin. The paper in question says;

Between 60 and 80 miles from Latchford, Ont., up the Montreal River, a few miles north and south of the Hudson Bay post, Fort Matachewan, the east and west branches of the river, after flowing many miles northward, make two immense bends as they turn into the main river flowing eastward. These bends are known in that region as the North Bend and the South Bend.

Near the apex of the latter, a couple of miles west of Willison township, in the latter half of June last, Mr. W. H Fletcher, representing Salkeld & Co., of Cobalt, Ont., and Mr. Jos. L. Garvin, B.A., of Ottawa, representing himself, Judge A. Constantineau of Ottawa, and Mr. J. W. Garvin, B.A., of Peterborough and Ottawa, who were prospecting opposite Willison township in the Temagami Reserve, discovered numerous large gold quartz veins, and since then they and their assistants have staked out fifteen valuable claims. The quartz is of the milk quartz variety and shows free milling gold on the surface. The first discovery was made by Mr W. H Fletcher, and the second and third by Mr. Jos. L. Garvin, and the fourth by Mr. Jules Mourey, of Argenteuil county, Que., who accompanied Mr. Garvin.

Mr Fletcher is an experienced and expert gold miner and is of the opinion that the gold discovery made by him and Mr. Garvin is one of the most important made in Canada, and he is also of the opinion that it is one of the few big discoveries made on the American continent.

Mr Fletcher's opinion has just been confirmed by Mr J. T. Carmody a well known mining engineer of Cobalt, who has had experience in the gold mines of Arizona, Australia and South Africa Mr. Carmody has just inspected and reported on the claims in the interests of one of the large financial institutions of Canada.

One of the veins when stripped, measured 35 feet in width, and the others from four to eight feet.

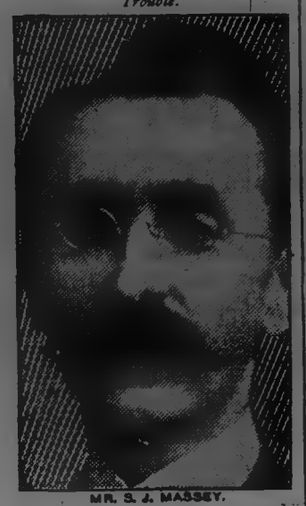
Mr Garvin, who has just returned from South Bend, states that four of the five discoveries made by him, and his assistants, and which were staked out by him, show on the surface of the veins free gold visible to the unaided eye.

The Big Game Today

The Peterborough Baseball team will do battle with the Cobourg ball tossers this afternoon at Riverside Park The game will likely be one of the best ever witnessed here, as it is claimed that the Cobourg twirler is an Eastern League star, and others on the team have been gathered in from the big leagues. The team that will represent Peterborough this afternoon will be the best that ever wore the Peterborough colors and the fans will certainly get a run for their money. Don't forget to go early, as from all indications the greatest crowd that ever witnessed a game in this town will be present.

STOMACH INDIGESTION.

Pe-ru-na Strikes at the Root of the Trouble.



MR. S. J. MASSEY.

Mr. S. J. Massey, formerly a resident of Toronto, and a well-known business man, writes from 247 Guy street, Montreal, Quebec:

"I wish to testify to the good results I have derived from the use of Peruna.

"Having been troubled for several years with catarrh of the head, I decided to give Peruna a fair trial and I can truly say I have received great benefit from its use.

"It evidently strikes at the very root of the trouble and good results are soon noticeable.

"I have also found Peruna a very valuable remedy for stomach trouble and indigestion.

"I have no hesitancy whatever in recommending Peruna as a reliable catarrh remedy."

There are several kinds of indigestion. The trouble may be due to sluggishness of the liver, derangements of the bowels, enlargement of the pancreas, or it may be due to the stomach itself.

In nearly all cases of stomach indigestion catarrh is the cause. The only permanent cure is to remove the catarrh.

Peruna has become well-known the world over as a remedy in such cases.

GERMANY'S MILITARY SYSTEM

A popular idea in this country, where there is no compulsory army service, is that the military service in Germany imposes a very heavy burden on its people. According to an eminent German, Prof. Munsterburg, this is a very grave mistake, as Germany is prosperous today, and the expenses of the army are felt by the nation hardly more than fire insurance is felt by the good householder. Few Canadians stop to consider the advantages as a nation that Germany gains by a military system that gives it the greatest standing army in the world.

Protection, while highly important is not the sole, or even chief advantage of the military system. Germany, through the efficiency of her military forces, has been united after years of disunion. It is not considered unreasonable that the citizens should undergo some hardship, self-discipline and subordination, in the Kaiser's domains, for the sake of serving the country that gave him birth, education and prosperity, and whose natural structure is characterized by a reciprocity of service of service between a State and individual. The German system also develops the national sense the country youth first discovers himself when he enters the army. It gives a broad education. Drill, the army rifle practice comprise but a part of the programme of instruction which includes the teaching of national history, the country's commercial resources, conditions of traffic, the citizenship and institutions, relations on the globe, etc. It also affords a practical training of individual talent, forty per cent of the men in the army being called to work in their individual trades during service and after their terms have expired the fact of having served is usually a passport to any position. By the employment of the army on such public works as lend themselves to it, the German military life is in a measure made self-supporting.

The German system also takes the place of athletics, and it has been termed "the great sport of the nation." Exhibitions of military skill are followed with the same interest as other sports in this country.

It is also held that the system produces trustworthy civil service and to prove this reference is made to the the country's railroad department, in which the very small number of accidents is attributed to the fact that no one can get a position of trust and responsibility in the government service unless he has been first tested through the military service. Station master's are usually the product of from nine to twelve years of army life and come thoroughly trained in order, discipline and self-denial.

Instead of being a strain on the nation's labor resources the system takes the country's youths and by a rigid system of training more broadly fits them for business and professional duties and makes them a much more valuable economic unit than they would otherwise be.

MUNICIPAL EXTRAVAGANCE

The Mayor of Brandon is the kind of man needed in many Canadian municipalities, and especially in the towns and cities in the new Western provinces. As the chief executive of the city he has for the first time in many years used his prerogative to veto a proposal to spend $10,000 for the purchase of city stables.

The extravagance of Western communities is quite in proportion to the optimism of the people. But optimism is no excuse for tying the hands of the councillors of future years. That is what many of them are doing by engaging in undertakings beyond what they can afford. A great city like Winnipeg can undertake big things safely—when it can get the money. But little municipalities all through Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta have gone into debt to the utmost extent of their borrowing powers and for years to come the unconfrollable expenditures will be so great that if either new or necessary public improvements are undertaken the tax rate will have to be high.

It seems strange, but it not infrequently happens that the greater expenditure a council can incur the more elated it is. The characteristic is not confined to the west—we see it in the east as well, many instances of which might be cited.

But it is the west particularly where the check rein needs to be tightened. The banks have already pulled up short a good many municipalities, but the better way is by such common sense actions as that of Brandon's mayor in vetoing what appears at this distance as a deliberate waste of money.

OPIUM HAS TO GO

China has at last, officially enacted prohibition as far as the smoking of opium is concerned. Whether legislation can effectually eradicate the practice remains to be seen, but credit is due to the Chinese Emperor for making a very serious effort to that end. A few days ago the cable announced great rejoicings in Canton over the closing of the opium joints. The occasion for the celebration was not generally known to Occidentals; but the Chinese Minister to Washington has since given out a statement which explains the celebration.

It seems that on September 21 of last year the Emperor of China issued a decree that the use of opium in China should cease within ten years, and the Council of State was ordered to draw up regulations for the effective administration of the law. On November 21 last, the regulations were issued and proved to be more severe than any previously issued on the subject in China. There are eleven of them. The cultivation of the poppy and the use of opium must cease in ten years. No new ground can be placed under cultivation, and the ground under cultivation now must be reduced one-tenth every year, under penalty of confiscation. All persons who use opium must be registered, and so must the quantity each uses. Only a registered person can buy opium. No one may begin the use of opium after the issuance of the regulations. Shops that sell opium are to be closed gradually.

It was further ordered that all opium dens be closed within six months of the issuance of the order. This time expired, according to the Chinese reckoning—in May, by which time, with but few exceptions, of which Canton was one, the law was in enforcement throughout the Empire.

These Medical Facts

You Can Study With Profit

How few realize that twenty-five per cent. of all disease has its origin in some interference with the function of elimination.

The whole body exists by reason of the transfusion of fluids through its component parts.

Up to a certain point the body has power to object to destructive elements, but this power is limited.

When it happens that the body is loaded with wastes and poisons which it can't eliminate, fermentation, decay, and germ life run riot through the blood.

Serious illness is the result unless nature is assisted by a cleansing tonic like Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which are purely vegetable, contain no mercury, no bismuth, no injurious metallic ingredient of any kind.

Such a medicine is the greatest possible assurance to every man and woman of health, spirits and contentment.

From Newfoundland, Miss Lillian Anthony, of Upper Gullies, Conception Bay, writes: "In praise of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, I must say that I have used them with grand success for three years. They never fail to cure me of indigestion or constipation. Formerly my face was full of pimples, but now my complexion is clear and ruddy. In more ways than I care to mention have Dr. Hamilton's Pills helped me; they would be good for every woman to use."

DUELING IN THE NAVY

The Tragic Affair That Put an End to the Practice.

A MIDSHIPMAN'S CHALLENGE

It Was Accepted by the Lawyer, and the Battle Was Fought In Delaware. Sad Fate of the Two Principals in the Unfortunate Meeting.

That settlement of quarrels by appeal to the code of honor was no longer to be the unwritten law of the American navy was determined by a duel in which William Miller, Jr., a Philadelphia lawyer, was slain in a personal affair fought along the northern circle of Delaware. The man who fired the fatal shot was Midshipman Charles G. Hunter, and the encounter took place along Naaman's creek on the afternoon of Sunday, March 21, 1830.

Singularly enough, neither Miller, who lost his life, nor Hunter, who killed him, was principal in the original quarrel that led to the meeting on the bank of the little creek in Delaware. Neither had seen the other until a few hours before the challenge was sent and accepted.

Simply a misshot in a game of billiards played at Third and Chestnut streets, Philadelphia, led to the tragedy that plunged two homes into sorrow and imbittered the life of the man whose pistol shot senselessly shed human blood.

Henry Wharton Griffith and R. Dillon Drake, prominent society men of Philadelphia, played the game of billiards, and Griffith made the misshot which called forth a taunt from Drake, who was immediately struck in the face with a cue by Griffith. A challenge to a duel was sent by Drake, but Griffith declared that the challenger was beneath his notice and that he would not demean himself socially by consenting to meet him.

Then followed a long and wordy warfare in which each posted the other as a coward. Lieutenant Duryee of the United States navy was called to make an effort to settle the dispute, and it was then that Miller, the lawyer, and Hunter, the midshipman, became involved in the quarrel. In the heated discussion Hunter accused Miller of publishing a confidential letter, and a challenge was at once sent by the midshipman and accepted by the attorney.

It was decided that the duel should be fought early on Sunday morning of March 21, but it was nearly 10 o'clock before carriages containing the principals, seconds and surgeons left a house that stood on Chestnut street above Sixth. The presence of the company excited some suspicion at Chester, where the party stopped for lunch, but they hurried down the post road, tied their horses close to the highway and proceeded 200 yards behind a clump of trees that would shield them from observation.

As the sun was setting two pistol shots rang out simultaneously as one of the seconds counted "One, two, three—fire!" Hunter stood unharmed as the ball from his opponent's pistol struck at his feet, but Miller cried out that he was shot, placed one hand on his breast and fell with a bullet lying close to his heart. In a few minutes he died, while pale and anxious faces watched the convulsive breathing of the dying man.

"Gentlemen," said Hunter, "I had no enmity against this man. I never heard of him until two days ago. Let those whose quarrel embroiled him be responsible for his death."

After a hurried consultation it was decided that the midshipman should leave the state at once, and he was driven rapidly to New Castle, Del., where he boarded a boat for New York and rejoined the navy. In order to hide the tragedy it was decided to wait until dark and take Miller to Philadelphia in a carriage.

Seating the dead man between them, two seconds held him in an upright position on the long journey to Philadelphia. News of the duel had reached Chester, and a crowd of men stood at Third street bridge to intercept the carriages. The first buggy contained the surgeon, and, as his explanation was satisfactory, he was permitted to proceed. The dead man in the second carriage was driven through the crowd without the ruse being detected, and at midnight the body was placed in a house in Walnut street, where vigil was kept by the seconds, who drank heavily to support them in the terrible strain under which they had been placed.

Miller's father said that he held no malice against Hunter, but the midshipman, who was suspended for a year for punishment, was haunted by the specter of the dead man lying on the bank of Naaman's creek, slain by his hand, and died a prematurely old man after a lonely life, shut off from all hope of preferment in the navy. He was buried by the newspaper men of New York, who erected a tombstone over his grave.

Mentally.

"You have been abroad, haven't you, Mr. Snipleigh?"

"No, Miss Sharp. What made you think I had been abroad?"

"Why, I heard papa say you were 'way off.'"

Candor.

Mabel (aged six)—Ain't you afraid of our big dog? The Parson (very thin)—No, my dear. He would not make much of a meal off me. Mabel—Oh, but he likes bones best.

The Bohemian for September

An Article entitled "Famous Arteries of Travel," by Aubrey Langston, in the September Bohemian is alive with human interest shown in its most typical moments on the promenades of the great avenues of the world. Herein are described the peculiarities of such renowned streets as the Piccadilly Circus of London, Unter Den Linden of Berlin, and Der Graben of Vienna.

"The End of the Vacation," is frankly a piece of sentiment and one that will appeal forcefully to the thousands who are counting on their fingers the remaining days of the interval of summer rest.

Clara Bloodgood tells the story of her life in "My Yesterdays." "The People and the Ponies," by Charles F. Peters, is self-explanatory. "In Days Like These," by Miles Bradford, tells how some light delicacies may help make bearable the heated days of summer and fall.

Several of the short stories, of which The Bohemian for September is full, deserve special attention. "At Ye Ladye's Inn" is the story of a woman burglar's shrewd gateway. "Jimmie Duncan of the Herald" is a love story of a new mould. "The Patricians" is a delightful story of the days of Columbus, and "The Ingrate" is the story of the Secret Agent, a well-meaning lady, and her attempts to reform him.

In addition to these features will be found a group of "Ten-minute Stories," and a variety of fun and humor in Bohemiana, a "department of nothing serious."

Montreal Financier Says Worst Is Over

Montreal, Aug. 23.—Mr. Rodolphe Forget, M.P., says of market conditions: "I believe that the worst is over. Prices in many instances have now been carried down to such a level that the list of local securities offers many highly attractive bargains for investors. If an investor, for instance, will take the local list and pick out a dozen of the standard stocks and invest in them at present prices, he will obtain a net return on his investments of 7 3-4 per cent, beside standing a good chance of an appreciation of 50 per cent within the next couple of years. The decline in local prices has been simply due to a great extent to the slump on the Wall street market. There are always certain people who must speculate, and, being unable owing to the local money stringency to speculate further on the local market, they went into the New York market, and when the slump took place on that market they were obliged to sacrifice their local holdings to provide for their New York interests. This explains the recent liquidation on the local market, but I believe that that is now over. While it would be too much to expect any sustained upward movement for the present, I believe that when things become more settled there should be a steady improvement."

Always the persons who make fortunes are those who seize opportunities. Trudge along in the conventional rut and you will never get away from the counter or the desk.

Fortunes—the greatest mining fortunes in the world—are being made to day by the men who own Copper Mines. You couldn't buy stock in one of the big-paying, developed mines. You CAN buy stock in a mine undergoing development, and if you BUY IN THE RICHT PLACE the fortune will come.

I want you to come in and see me about the proposition I have in the Guggenheim Greenwater Copper Company's two properties at Ely and at Greenwater, Nevada. The recent copper finds at Ely are attracting the interest of a whole continent. The property which this Company owns there is in the best section. The workings are now down fifty feet, and the prospect brightens with every foot. The manager tells me he expects to strike it rich any day. So soon as he does, up goes the stock with a bound.

I still can offer a limited number of shares at 5 cents each. It's the easiest chance at a fortune you've ever had. See me about it at once.

THE CONQUEST of CANAAN

By BOOTH TARKINGTON,
Author of "Cherry," "Monsieur Beaucaire," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1905, BY HARPER & BROTHERS

"That was the husband of the woman who told you her story," he said. "Perhaps it would shock you less if I told you now than if you heard it tomorrow, as you will. He's just shot the other man."

"Killed him!" she gasped.

"Yes," he answered. "He wanted to run away, but I wouldn't let him. He has my word that I'll clear him, and I made him give himself up."

CHAPTER XVI.

WHEN Joe left Ariel at Judge Pike's gate she lingered there, her elbows upon the uppermost crossbar, like a village girl at twilight, watching his thin figure vanish into the heavy shadow of the maples, then emerge momentarily ghost gray and rapid at the lighted crossing down the street, to disappear again under the trees beyond, followed a second later by a brownish streak as the mongrel heeled after him. When they had passed the second corner she could no longer be certain of them, although the street was straight, with flat, draftsmanlike western directness, both figures and Joe's quick footsteps merging with the night. Still she did not turn to go, did not alter her position nor cease to gaze down the dim street. Few lights shone, almost all the windows of the houses were darkened, and save for the summer murmurs, the faint creak of upper branches and the infinitesimal voices of insects in the grass there was silence—the pleasant and somnolent hush, swathed in which that part of Canaan crosses to the far side of the eleventh hour.

But Ariel, not soothed by this balm, sought beyond it to see that unquiet Canaan, whither her old friend bent his steps and found his labor and his dwelling—that other Canaan where peace did not fall comfortably with the coming of night; a place as alien in habit, in thought and almost in speech, as if it had been upon another continent. And yet—so strange is the duality of towns—it lay but a few blocks distant.

Here about Ariel as she stood at the gate of the Pike mansion the houses of the good (secure of salvation and daily bread) were closed and quiet, as safely shut and sound asleep as the churches. But deeper in the town there was light and life and merry, evil industry, screened, but strong to last until morning. There were haunts of haggard merriment in plenty; surreptitious chambers where roulette wheels swam beneath dimmed eyes; ill favored bars, reached by devious ways, where quavering voices offered song and were harshly checked. And through the burdened air of this Canaan wandered heavy smells of musk like that upon Happy Fear's wife, who must now be so pale beneath her rouge. And above all this and for all this and because of all this was that one resort to which Joe now made his way—that haven whose lights burn all night long, whose doors are never closed, but are open from dawn until dawn—the jail.

There in that desolate refuge lay Happy Fear, surrendered sturdily by himself at Joe's word. The picture of the little man was clear and fresh in Ariel's eyes, and, though she had seen him when he was newly come from a thing so terrible that she could not realize it as a fact, she felt only an overwhelming pity for him. She was not even horror stricken, though she had shuddered. The pathos of the shabby little figure crossing the street toward the lighted doors had touched her. Something about him had appealed to her, for he had not seemed wicked. His face was not cruel, though it was desperate. Perhaps it was partly his very desperation which had moved her. She had understood Joe when he told her that this man was his friend and comprehended his great fear when he said: "I've got to clear him! I promised him!"

Over and over Joe had reiterated: "I've got to save him! I've got to!" She had answered gently, "Yes, Joe," hurrying to keep up with him. "He's a good man," he said. "I've known few better, given his chances. And none of this would have happened except for his old time friendship for me. It was his loyalty—oh, the rarest and absurdest loyalty!—that made the first trouble between him and the man he shot. I've got to clear him."

"Will it be hard?"

"They may make it so. I can only see part of it surely. When his wife left the office she met Cory on the street. You saw what a pitiful kind of fool she was, irresponsible and helpless and feather brained. There are thousands of women like that everywhere—some of them are 'court beauties,' I dare say—and they always mix things up, but they are most dangerous when they're like Claudine, because then they live among men of action like Cory and Fear. Cory was artful. He spent the day about town telling people that he had always liked Happy; that his ill feeling of yesterday was all gone. He wanted to find him and shake his hand, bury past troubles and be friends. I think he told Claudine the same thing when they met and convinced the tiny brainlet of his sincerity. Cory was a man who 'had a way with him,' and I can see Claudine flattered at the idea of being peacemaker between 'two such nice gentlemen as Mr. Cory and Mr. Fear.' Her commonest exasperation—quite genuine, too—is that she doesn't like to have the gentlemen making trouble about her. So the poor imbecile led him to where her husband was waiting. All that Happy knew of this was in her cry afterward. He was sitting alone, when Cory threw open the door and said, 'I've got you this time, Happy!' His pistol was raised, but never fired. He waited too long, meaning to establish his case of 'self defense,' and Fear is the quickest man I know. Cory fell just inside the door. Claudine stumbled upon him as she came running after him, crying out to her husband that she 'never meant no trouble,' that Cory had sworn to her that he only wanted to shake hands and 'make up.' Other people heard the shot and broke into the room, but they did not try to stop Fear. He warned them off and walked out without hindrance and came to me. I've got to clear him."

Ariel knew what he meant. She realized the actual thing as it was and, though possessed by a strange feeling that it must all be mediaeval and not possibly of today, understood that he would have to fight to keep his friend from being killed; that the unhappy creature who had run into the office out of the dark stood in high danger of having his neck broken unless Joe could help him. He made it clear to her that the state would kill Happy if it could; that it would be a point of pride with certain deliberate men holding office to take the life of the little man; that if they did secure his death it would be set down to their efficiency and was even competent as campaign material. "I wish to point out," Joe had heard a candidate for re-election vehemently orate, "that in addition to the other successful convictions I have named I and my assistants have achieved the sending of three men to the gallows during my term of office!"

"I can't tell yet," said Joe at parting. "It may be hard. I'm so sorry you saw all this. I"—

"Oh, no!" she cried. "I want to understand!"

She was still there at the gate, her elbows resting upon the crossbar when a long time after Joe had gone there came from the alley behind the big back yard the minor chordings of a

I will mail you free, to prove merit, samples of my Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and my Book on either Dyspepsia, The Heart or The Kidneys. Troubles of the Stomach, Heart or Kidneys, are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak Stomach nerves—the inside nerves—mean Stomach weakness, always. And the Heart, and Kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves, and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves." Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion, use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write me today for sample and free Book Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. The Restorative is sold by all dealers.

Labor Scarce in West

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 23.—The scarcity of labor in the West has reached an acute stage. It has resulted in curtailing so much coal mine working that the Harriman lines, which have an abundance of fuel in their own mines, have been compelled to order coal from Australia. They have also made contracts for 2,000 tons a week from Illinois, paying one dollar a ton and seven dollars a ton freight to Garfield, Utah. Japanese in some Union Pacific mines are drawing as high as $170 a month, and it is feared wages will go still higher.

Row in San Francisco

San Francisco, Aug. 23.—Mayor Taylor yesterday began his promised cleansing of the municipal departments by sending a notification of their removal from office to four police commissioners. The communication scored the commission for failing to remove Chief of Police Dinan, who, Mayor Taylor declared, is incompetent and lacking in character. The commissioners after a secret conference, announced that they would not recognize any power except the court. It is understood they will resist any attempt to take possession of the records by an appeal to the police.

Weak Women

To weak and ailing women, there is at least one way to help. But with that way, two treatments, must be combined. One is local, one is constitutional, but both are important, both essential.

Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is the Local.
Dr. Shoop's Restorative, the Constitutional.

The former—Dr. Shoop's Night Cure—is a topical mucous membrane suppository remedy, while Dr. Shoop's Restorative is wholly an internal treatment. The Restorative reaches throughout the entire system, seeking the repair of all nerve, all tissue, and all blood ailments.

The "Night Cure", as its name implies, does its work while you sleep. It soothes sore and inflamed mucous surfaces, heals local weaknesses and discharges, while the Restorative, eases nervous excitement, gives renewed vigor and ambition, builds up wasted tissues, bringing about renewed strength, vigor, and energy. Take Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—as a general tonic to the system. For positive local help, use as well

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTHWEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry must be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made on certain conditions, by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the homestead conditions under one of the following plans:—

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of the homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Six months' notice in writing should be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of intention to apply for patent.

The medal which was presented by H. F. Strickland of Toronto for the boys' swimming race at the Stony Lake regatta on August 12, has not been claimed by the winner, who is believed to be Kenneth Halpin. This medal is in the possession of Mr. Strickland, who will be pleased to forward it to the winner of the race if he will kindly forward his name and address to H. F. Strickland, 27 Wellington street east, Toronto.

Disastrous Fire in Harvey

It is generally known that a disastrous fire occurred in Harvey township on Tuesday evening which burned the large frame barn belonging to Mr. Mooney, about five miles from Buckhorn, which destroyed grain, live stock and implements belonging to Mr. Thomas Freeburn, the tenant. The blaze started from an unknown cause and gained such rapid headway before observed that it was impossible to save the contents of the barn.

Not Up to a Local Capture

Millbrook Reporter says: "The best fish of the season was caught by Miss Nora Ross in the Otonabee last week, a monster lunge weighing 16 1-2 pounds and measured forty-two inches from tip to tip. It certainly was a beauty and admired by many when brought to town." Pshaw! Bro. Reporter, talk about the "best fish of the season" weighing a paltry 16 1-2 pounds. Why, less than two weeks ago, as noted in The Times the next day, a 32 1-2 pound lunge was caught right in the city limits just behind the Matthews' packing house.

A Sad State of Affairs

Mother's down at Idyl Wyld,
Sister's gone away;
Brother Bill is catching bass
Off frrom Spalding's Bay.
Everyone is happy,
Having worlds of fun;
Excepting Dad, who never will Get the dishes done.

Heaped up in the kitchen,
All the dishes stand;
All the common china,
All the Haviland.
Mother's been away a month,
Dad has used them all;
Now, he's eating off the plates
That decorate the wall

Mother, mother, hurrry,
Come back from Rice Lake shore;
Dad can only find enough plates
Plates for two meals more.
He's up against it,
While we stay away;
Now he's eating breakfast food
From a large ash tray

He will not wash the dishes,
He piles them in the sink;
If you could only see them now,
I wonder what you'd think.
Oh hurry, mother hurry,
Come back to us today;
For father hasn't washed a dish
Since you went away.

Popular Local Teacher Going to Toronto

What Peterboro Loses Toronto Gains in Educational Matters

Those interested in the education of the youth of Peterborough, will be sorry to learn that, Mr. T. J. Wallace is going to Toronto to assume the position of assistant head teacher in the new Queen Alexandra school. He will assume his duties on the school opening, on September 3rd.

Mr. Wallace has been in Peterborough three years and three months after coming here from Keene, and during that time he has taken charge of the entrance class, with much success. Prior to coming to Peterborough, Mr. Wallace was principal of the school in Keene for six years, where, as in Peterborough, he was very popular.

His departure from Peterboroughg will be regretted alike by his fellow-teachers and pupils. He is an enthusiast in his work, which fact probably accounts for much of his success. To few teachers is given the ability to maintain their popularity with the pupils and at the same time exhibit a firmness which is essential to the success of any teacher. These qualities, however, Mr. Wallace happily combines.

Rev. Potter's Remarks Were Misinterpreted

Letter by "Pax" Was Altogether Unjustified and Incorrect

In our issue of yesterday appeared a letter over the signature of "Pax," referring to the recent alleged remarks made by Rev. J. G. Potter. On investigation, as this is an important matter, we are fully convinced that Rev. Mr. Potter has been either misunderstood or misinterpreted in the Burleigh report. In any event the Rev. Mr. Potter is too good a judge of human nature and too conscientious a christian to make remarks such as have evidently been distorted by the press of Toronto and this district. This gentleman, whilst seeking to do the best in his power for humanity at large, may have made remarks that may have been misunderstood, still those who know him are fully aware that he is the last man to throw a slur at any one undeservidely.

A Peeking Piker In the West End

Who is the Man That Has Played Amateur Detective?

It seems that some man who has been reading the Sherlock Holmes tales has decided to emulate the actions of that author, and recently he has got busy in the northwestern part of the city. Windows in that part have been peeped into. On Thursday night things seemed to have come to a climax as the so-claimed thief got away with a lot of fruit. There were two men on this job, and after filling their bags with apples they spent some time making an investigation of the nearest house through the windows.

In a number of cases where ladies have been alone in the house at night, they have been badly frightened by the actions of these men they, the ladies have had to get out their fans and start their circulation working. Whilst not wanting to give anything away, this tale is twaddle. Yellow journalism is good to a certain stage and there is a sure enough corpse.

A Rich Arizona Silver Mine.

Arizona Silver-Lead Mining Co. Offer Good Investment

The name of the State of Arizona is inseparably connected in the public mind with fortunes recently and quickly made through discovery and development. Among the latest mines to be developed and proved to be winners are the K. P. and P. K. mines, located some 12 miles north of Kingman, Mohave county, Arizona, which are within one mile of the County Wagon Road. This splendid mine is owned, developed and operated by the Arizona Silver-Lead Mining Co. This property is beyond the experimental stage and clearly proven to contain vast quantities of rich ore that assays from $15.78 to $45.18 per ton. Already three shafts have been sunk to the respective depths of 26, 32 and 22 feet. They are connected by a 40 foot drift following the main ore shaft, and from which run two cross cuts, one 25 feet to the hanging wall and the other 36 feet to the foot wall, showing the ledge to be nearly 70 feet wide. Some 60 tons of ore have been taken out during development work, which have assayed very richly, or with values as given above. One important point for consideration by investors in any enterprise, particularly in the mining business, is the personel of the directorate. It might be noted that the directors of the Arizona Silver-Lead Mining Co. are all gentlemen of substance, now command the general respect of the public of their state. The company has 1,000,000 shares of a par value of $1 each. They are now offering 20,000 shares at 15c per share. When these are subscribed they will place 20,000 more at 20c per share and then 10,000 shares at 25c each. For full particulars see Mr. W. H. Hall, Fiscal Agent, Peterborough, or write to H. M. Bowen, Sec.-Treas., 501 O. T. Johnston Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.

The Story of a Medicine.

Its name—"Golden Medical Discovery" was suggested by one of its most important and valuable ingredients—Golden Seal root.

Nearly forty years ago, Dr. Pierce discovered that he could, by the use of pure, triple-refined glycerine, aided by a certain degree of constantly maintained heat and with the aid of apparatus and appliances designed for that purpose, extract from our most valuable native medicinal roots their curative properties much better than by the use of alcohol, so generally employed. So the now world-famed "Golden Medical Discovery," for the cure of weak stomach, indigestion, or dyspepsia, torpid liver, or biliousness and kindred derangements was first made, as it ever since has been, without a particle of alcohol in its make-up.

A glance at the full list of its ingredients, printed on every bottle-wrapper, will show that it is made from the most valuable medicinal roots found growing in our American forests. All the ingredients have received the strongest endorsement from the leading medical writers, teachers and writers on Materia Medica who recommend them as the best remedies for the diseases for which "Golden Medical Discovery" is advised.

A little book of these endorsements has been compiled by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., and will be mailed free to any one asking same by postal card, or letter addressed to the Doctor as above. From these endorsements, copied from standard medical books of all the different schools of practice, it will be found that the ingredients composing the "Golden Medical Discovery" are advised not only for the cure of the above mentioned diseases, but also for the cure of all catarrhal, bronchial and throat affections, accompained with catarrhal discharges, hoarseness, sore throat, lingering, or hang-on-coughs, and all those wasting affections which, if not promptly and properly treated are liable to terminate in consumption. Take Dr. Pierce's Discovery in time and persevere in its use until you give it a fair trial and it is not likely to disappoint. Too much must not be expected of it. It will not perform miracles. It will not cure consumption in its advanced stages. No medicine will. It will cure the affections that lead up to consumption, if taken in time.
